RUSSIANS TOLD TO FIT PEACE WORDS TO BERLIN

Eisenhower Answers Khrushchev Message

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower has told Russian leaders plainly the United States desire for peace should be applied to their handling of the Berlin crisis.

He made the reply in an exchange of New Year's greetings with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and President Kliment E. Voroshilov.

Their message, delivered to Eisenhower's farm home near here, expressed hope that 1959 would see an end to "fears of the dangers of a new world war."

SHARES HOPES

Eisenhower sent back a cablegram saying he shared the Russians' hopes. He agreed that "genuine efforts" might well be fruitful, and went on to say:

"As of this moment it seems to us critically important to apply the sentiments expressed in your message to the Berlin situation. In one connection, I cannot fail to recall your government's declaration toward the people of Berlin.

He referred to the Russians' announced intention to make Berlin a free city—which would mean Western withdrawal from a key city that, in the U.S. view, would then inevitably come under Communist rule.

Eisenhower said the Russians' moves to take over Berlin "are not in accord with your expressed aspirations and hopes for peaceful coexistence."

REJECT DEMAND

Then Eisenhower reiterated the stand taken by the United States, Britain and France in formal notes delivered Wednesday to the Kremlin. Those notes, rejecting Russia's demand that they agree within six months to leave Berlin, suggested a general conference on German problems.

"The United States government," Eisenhower said, "repeats that, in an atmosphere devoid of any kind of coercion and threat, it would welcome discussion with the question of Berlin in the wider framework of the whole German problem and European security."

Khrushchev and Voroshilov told the president:

"We would like to express the hope that in the coming year our countries will unite their efforts in the search for ways toward the settlement of international problems, for the cessation of the cold war which is hated by the people, with the aim of reducing international tensions."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: The rain ended in southwestern sections of Ontario during the night leaving a mild weather in these areas. Rain in eastern Ontario and southern regions north of Georgian Bay is expected to diminish as the disturbance causing this bad weather moves out of the district into Quebec province. Very cold weather has returned to Western Canada and northern United States. The new cold wave is a pressing steadily eastward and is forecast to bring sharp temperature drops to Ontario tonight. Saturday will be a cold day in Ontario with a few snowflurries in most regions. Heavier snowfalls and drifting snow should be anticipated in areas to the southeast to Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

HAVANA (AP)—Armed Cuban rebels fired shots at the Havana Post newspaper building and temporarily detained three Associated Press men covering the city's post-revolt convulsion. The three were released a short time later after questioning.

Larry Allen, roving AP correspondent; George Kaufman, Cuban national who is Havana AP bureau chief; and Harold Valentine, AP photographer from Miami, were taken to a police station but there freed 30 minutes later.

Rebels carrying machine-guns, rifles and other weapons opened fire on the Post building at 10:30 a.m. Several bullets smashed into windows, light and tore the walls of the Post editorial office adjoining the AP headquarters on the second floor. The Post is an English-language newspaper.

AIM RIFLES

The front door of the building was smashed in and six rebels pounded up the stairs and levelled rifles at the AP men. They escorted them into the Post composing room, where they claimed to have found a pistol and attempted to pin ownership on the AP.

"We tried to argue our way out of it," Allen said, "but the rebels became more menacing."

They were herded downstairs and into an automobile and taken to a police station where young rebels were standing guard.

"After much protesting the rebels decided to release us and permit us to return to the bullet-battered Post building."

As Allen, Kaufman and Valentine were taken out of the building, Bob Clark, AP writer from Miami who had just returned Havana after a charter flight, was taken into the police station.

Clark grabbed a phone and dictated the story of the arrest until the others returned.

WAVING GUNS

"Young boys were running with their guns in the streets, waving guns and picking up anyone they suspected of possessing arms or of being anti-Castro," Allen said.

"It is a wild situation that could go out of control at any time and develop into something horrible.

"There is no protection for Americans whatsoever, except what the rebels themselves give."

Kaufman said: "There is hysteria also in Cuba helping to cover the revolution, was not in the AP office when the rebels invaded. He arrived shortly after the others were taken away.

WORSE DISPATCH

Just a short time before Kaufman had written a dispatch which read:

"Quiet returned to the streets of Havana this morning after the spread their terror and violence, but it was a quiet ordered by rebel leader Fidel Castro's partisans. With their red and black armbands symbolizing the rebels, they were ready to shoot first and ask the questions later.

"It was a quiet ordered by general strike called by Castro until his man, Judge Manuel Urrutia, could come to Havana this afternoon and take over as temporary president.

"It was a quiet of business paralysis. Everything was shut down—if not by the strike then by the

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Benn was a New Year's baby 101 years ago, and celebrated his birthday Thursday with a one-candle cake, a few friends, a bottle of sherry and a gloomy view of the world.

"The world is far worse in every way than it used to be," he said. "Manners are worse. People aren't polite to each other as they once were.

"They don't build houses like they used to," said the retired carpenter, who came to Montreal 75 years ago. "They build with a gun and the walls are thin."

Mr. Benn was born at Sandford, Ont., and at 15 started to work in Belleville. At 20 he joined the P. T. Barnum circus—his job was to hold a flaming hoop that pretty girls jumped through.

His second wife Bertha, 66, died a few weeks ago following a fire in their Verdun home. Mr. Benn moved into a nursing home.

NATIONALIZATION U.S. UTILITIES CASTRO PROGRAM

Rebel Leader Never Doubted Victory

HAVANA (AP)—Rebel leader Fidel Castro's last announced platform calls for nationalization of U.S. utilities and sugar estates in Cuba.

The bearded guerrilla chieftain published his program in 1954, while in exile in Mexico. It called for:

1. Nationalization of U.S. financed and operated utilities in Cuba and division of American-owned sugar estates among Cuban peasants.

2. Confiscation of all properties acquired through "corrupt government."

3. Distribution of 30 per cent of the profits of all utility enterprises to Cuban workers.

4. A public housing and rural electrification program.

5. Liberation of Cuba "from the political interests of half a dozen monopolies."

6. A speed up of industrialization and increased social security.

ALWAYS CONFIDENT

Castro never doubted that he would win. He never once stood on Fulgencio Batista.

Now 32, the husky, 6-foot, 2-inch rebel was the only boy ever strong enough to break a channel through the frozen St. Lawrence River to open water at Cape Vincent, N.Y.

Weather Helped to Stretch Some Parties Across Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New Year's Eve celebrants at London, Ont., had to make all-night parties out of it when a freezing rain turned streets to ice and immobilized traffic.

Most of them didn't mind it a bit but two thoughtful guests at one house party produced skates from their car trunk and glided home without a spill.

Weather also interfered with celebrations at St. John's, Nfld., which had 12 inches of snow followed by freezing rain which disrupted transportation.

Montreal reported a quiet night. A 10 p.m. curfew on night club drinking eased the crowds in a number of house parties. Roman Catholic churches were crowded for midnight masses with the central observance at Notre Dame church where Archbishop Cardinal Leger celebrated the mass.

It was much the same in Ottawa where clubs closed early and private parties filled the gap.

The noise-making which welcomed the New Year in Montreal was swelled by the sounding of ship's horns by 13 foreign ocean vessels tied up in the city harbor. Four government icebreakers spent the holiday trying to break a channel through the frozen St. Lawrence River to open water at Cape Vincent, N.Y.

East Canada Warned to Get Ready for Cold Wave Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newfoundland and the Prairies were busily working their way back to normal today after New Year's Day storms and the weather office warned Eastern Canada to get ready for another wave of cold tonight.

A storm that found its roots in the Yukon swept across British Columbia and worked its way across the Prairies starting Wednesday night.

While British Columbia now is comparatively free of the high winds, toppled power and communications lines remained as evidence of the storm's passage.

Out on the Prairies the "wind chill" — calculated from Thursday's drop in temperature and a temperature around 10 below zero—was expected to drop as regards were reported in many areas as winds gusting up to 70 miles an hour piled drifts up to inches of snow that fell New Year's Eve.

Manitoba was feeling the full brunt of the storm early today. The outer edges were reported creeping into Northern Ontario.

The Manitoba highways department reported several roads blocked by drifts.

The temperature freezing rain made roads practically impassable also on New Year's Day. temperatures later climbed above freezing, most districts are clearing or have rain. But a new blast of cold is due by tonight.

Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were generally cloudy with temperatures above zero Thursday the temperature ranged from zero to 12 above.

Newfoundland still was being battered Thursday night by an Atlantic storm that screwed ashore New Year's Eve. St. John's reported inches of snow, mixed with freezing rain.

Former Judge Named Provisional President After Batista Flees

Rebellion Started 5½ Years Ago By 200 Youths Finally Successful

HAVANA (AP) — Advance spearheads of Fidel Castro's revolutionary forces entered the city of Havana today.

Truckloads of bearded guerrilla fighters rolled into the city over the main central highway from the eastern provinces of Matanzas and Las Villas and sped along the Malecon Sea Boulevard toward the former military headquarters of deposed president Batista at Camp Columbia.

As the Castro forces advanced, Cuba's 8,300,000 war-weary people had two provisional presidents. —Neither occupied the chair vacated by dictator Fulgencio Batista, who fled in the darkness of New Year's morning.

STREETS TENSE

The streets of Havana were tense and alive with expectation. The symbolic Castro partisans, who had seemed to emerge armed from nowhere Thursday to take over control of the capital, kept a tight lid on the situation to prevent pent-up public emotion from creating a chaotic situation.

Hours earlier had triumphantly proclaimed his native Santiago, in eastern Cuba, as the provisional capital and named Manuel Urrutia at provisional president. The rebel chief ignored Carlos Piedra, a jurist who took over as provisional president after Batista left, and the Supreme Court refused to swear him in.

While Castro's success in his 25-month rebellion seemed close to complete, he still must bring his supporters in Havana and Santiago and install him in the presidential palace from which Batista fled in the early hours Thursday.

To install Urrutia in the capital, Castro ordered a mass public demonstration in Havana's Central Park at noon today.

PARALYZING STRIKE

The country will remain in a state of paralysis from a general strike ordered by Castro until Urrutia takes over, in Havana.

Castro spoke Thursday night to a huge crowd in Santiago, the capital of eastern Oriente Province, after a parade of crack ors had rolled his leadership and his selection of Urrutia.

Castro said the road to Santiago ran through Havana after the defending garrison surrendered, had been strung and hard up. He called Santiago "the strongest fortress of the revolution" and the triumph was being crowned by making it the provisional capital for some 12 hours, until Urrutia go to Havana.

HOLD COMMUNICATIONS

Castro's supporters controlled all communications and every radio broadcast referred to Urrutia as "provisional president of Cuba."

Former president Carlos Prio Socarras, an exile in Miami since Batista ousted him by military coup in 1952, was reported Thursday in Havana. Prio has supported Castro's struggle from exile. Prio and all other revolutionary organizations recently agreed to recognize Urrutia as provisional president.

There was little doubt that this island republic would accept Urrutia, a former judge about 56 years old who was picked by Castro's choice to succeed Batista until free elections could be held. But it was uncertain when conditions permitting a political campaign could be restored.

TIGHT HOLD ON HAVANA

Until Urrutia arrives in the city, Havana, Castro's announcements from Santiago provided the only fishwaves of information. Men he designated were giving orders to Cuba's armed forces and po-

Most scientists believe the abominable snowman, or yeti as it is called in the mountain country, is a figment of Himalayan imagination. But the Nepal government blacked up Spani's story.

Spatol said he was unable to get a flash bulb to take the picture as the snowman stood 65 yards away in the mountains.

He said the encounter was at an altitude of nearly 18,000 feet on the ridge of the Dorje Lakpa mountain range. Spatol said he can say the yeti inhabits the high altitude.

Godwin said he and three companions were in a cave asleep when they were awakened by the sound of footsteps at midnight.

With a camera flash gun he went outside and saw "a huge monkey-like animal covered with long hair all over its body except for its face, but walking like a man." It was staring at him.

Godwin said he took the picture, and the yeti disappeared fast. Next morning, he said, they made a thorough search of the wood region but found no threats beyond human footprints on sandpaper a rivulet.

Kai-Shek Claims Victory in Formosa Strait

TAIPEI (AP) — President Chiang Kai - shek Thursday claimed victory in the Formosa Strait and said the Peiping regime has been shaken to its foundation. He attacked the commune system as a form of slavery.

The Chinese Communists today may be likened to a two-headed snake," Chiang said in a New Year's statement broadcast to the mainland. "A severe blow to either end would mean the death of the whole monster.

"During the last five months thanks to the determined and valiant stand by our armed forces at the front in the Taiwan (Formosa) Strait, the Communists have suffered a crushing defeat.

As for statesmen—"A statesman is a dead politician."

OTTAWA (CP) — The Cuban ambassador to Canada, Carlos Carrillo, said Thursday night he will resign if rebels take over government in Cuba.

He was asked about his intentions following the resignation Wednesday of Cuba's ambassador to Washington, Nicolas Arroyo. Mr. Arroyo said a rebel-backed embassy officer in charge.

Cuban ambassadors in other countries also were reported resigning, although the country's Paris representative has switched allegiance to rebel leader Fidel Castro following President Fulgencio Batista's flight from Cuba.

Mickie, "the Penguin," so named because of his white vest and black coat, known by many for his lovesick and endearing ways, passed on during the Christmas week in the happy hunting grounds reserved for pussy cats, leaving a breach in the home and heart of Mrs. John Bos, of Rosemore.

Mickie came to her 18 years ago as a kitten while she lived in Moira, and as the years passed, took on the distinction of 30 pounds at the time of his death. He was just a big, good-natured fellow who knew him, sitting up to be petted.

Canada Sells Cobalt Therapy Units to China

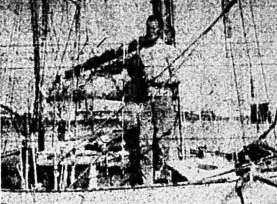
The sale was confirmed today by the commercial products division of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited. It was the first such Canadian sale to the Chinese Reds.

The Chinese People's Republic paid $100,000 for the two nuclear medicines through the Bank of China in London.

The company said the two therapy units were shipped recently by ship from Montreal to Tientsin. The units, along with other necessary equipment, weighed 17 tons.

MADE AT OTTAWA

The machines were produced in the Ottawa plant of the division, a subsidiary of the Crown-owned Atomic Energy of Canada Limited. The cobalt 60 radioactive sources which provide gamma rays to attack cancer were produced at Canada's Chalk River, Ont., atomic energy project.



The shipment to Communist China brings to 23 the number of countries that have bought Canadian therapy units. One other Communist country — Poland — has bought a unit.

On Tuesday the division announced shipment of five of the machines to India, Ceylon and France.

AMONG MOST POWERFUL

The radioactive sources in the units shipped to China are among the most powerful of their type in the world. The more powerful the source the less time required for an individual treatment of a cancer patient.

The Chinese shipment includes a Theratron unit and an Eldorado model. The Theratron is equipped with a treatment couch and the gamma ray source can be directed at the patient from a variety of angles. The Eldorado is particularly suited for the treatment of deep cancer growths.

K-W Dutchmen Selected for Olympic Games

MIDLAND (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen today were selected to represent Canada at the 1960 Olympic Games hockey tournament.

The announcement of the choice was made by George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The selection was made after a vote of a five-man special committee of the CAHA consisting of Dudley, President Robert Lebel of Chambly, Que., First Vice-President Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., Second Vice-President J. M. Roxburgh of Simcoe and Delegate Treasurer W. A. Hewitt of Toronto.

Four clubs had responded the a CAHA request for nominations: Dutchmen, Kelowna Packers, Fort William War Memorials and Dunlops, who won the world title in 1958.

DUNLOPS WITHDREW

Later the Dunlops announced withdrawal of their application and regular season hockey forces with the Dutchmen who rejected the proposal.

Kelowna Packers of the Okanagan Valley Senior League, who made a strong showing in a recent tour of Sweden and Russia, were interested in the nomination but had all of their professionals who would have had to be replaced.

There was a suggestion that the University of Toronto Blues, eastern college champions, be given the task. However, Dudley said no college squad applied and the college loop is not a member of the CAHA.

The CAHA with pay all travel and living expenses for the team to Squaw Valley, Calif., and will provide uniforms and other equipment. The Games will be held Feb. 18 to 28.

The club will be required to raise its own money for other expenses which may total $15,000.

Only four players on the present team were with the 1956 squad: forwards Ken Laufman, Terry Theberge, Don Rope and Jack McKenzie.

McKenzie got some measure of revenge last night when he played with Dunlops, who won the world title at Oslo.

Bill Durnan, former NHL all-star goalie for Montreal, is the present coach of the Dutchmen, now leading the OHA-NOHA Senior A loop.

New Year Visit Proves Costly To Jimmy Mayo

An early morning visit to his sister a mile or so down the highway from his place of business, proved costly for Jimmy Mayo, operator of Jimmy's Lunch on Highway 7 near Actinolite.

The theft took place between 2:00 and 3:30 New Year's morning.

Entry to the lunch counter premises was gained by forcing in the door of an adjoining warehouse.

Provincial Police from Kaladar, Marlee and Belleville set up roadblocks in the Actinolite area but without success in locating the thieves who apparently had time to flee the area.

Firm Ordered To Answer Certain Questions

TORONTO (CP)—The owner of a Toronto women's clothing firm, Jack Poilman Limited, Tuesday was ordered by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court to answer certain questions in connection with a patent infringement suit brought by Mrs. Catherine Brennan, North Bay dressmaker.

The patent involves a pleated reversible skirt, for which Mrs. Brennan said she has sole rights in Canada, the United States and Britain.

Mr. Justice McRuer allowed Mrs. Brennan's appeal from a decision of A. S. Marriott, senior master at Osgoode Hall, that the company did not have to answer questions on examination for discovery.

Flight Engineers Settle Strike With Airline

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Eastern Air Lines and its flight engineers have settled a 38-day strike, easing conditions for post-holiday travellers in the United States despite the continuing strike of American Airlines.

The line announced in Miami, Fla., shortly after the New Year's Eve accord was reached that service would resume on its 234 city system as quickly as equipment can be made ready and personnel is back in adequate strength. The line normally carries about 26,000 passengers a day. It serves Montreal and Ottawa in Canada.

Meanwhile, the situation remains static at American airlines, where 1,500 pilots and co-pilots walked out Dec. 30 in a wage-hours dispute. No negotiations are in progress and none are scheduled.

A major factor in the Eastern dispute was pilot training for engineers. Company officials said the agreement in the strike ended the basis of other issues, including pay, travel expenses and seniority.

Adenauer Target Of Attack by Communist Chief

BERLIN (Reuters)—East Germany's Communist chief, Walter Ulbricht, has lashed out at West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, accusing him of preparing a "new war in Germany" and "fascism" in the West.

Ulbricht spoke in a 9,000-word article in the party newspaper Neues Deutschland that Adenauer's policy is the same as the policy of revenge of Hitler.

Ulbricht's attack followed the handing over in Moscow of the American, French and British notes rejecting Russian proposals to make West Berlin a free city with all foreign troops withdrawn.

Neues Deutschland reported the handing over of the Western notes in a top-line message without comment. Only direct Communist reaction to the notes came Wednesday night from the East German news agency ADN which described the move as "brusque."

ADN said the notes ignored that the Western powers "have broken all allied agreements" and that East and Berlin stemming from the Second World War," and also ignored the will of the East German people "in the interest of peace" to announce the sovereignty over West Berlin.

Canadian Output Of Minerals Drops in 1958

OTTAWA (CP)—The estimated value of Canadian mineral production—showing the first decline in 15 years—dropped three per cent to $2,122,153,000 in 1958 from the record $2,190,322,000 in 1957, the 3322,000, the bureau of statistics said today in a preliminary report.

Iron ore, copper, lead, nickel, zinc, gold, asbestos, coal and salt asbestos showed reduced values among major mineals.

Uranium more than doubled its production, moving to $290,228,000 compared with $136,304,000. Only nudge aside nickel as Canada's leading export.

STRIKE HIT NICKEL

Through production curbs and the protracted strike against the International Nickel Company of Sudbury and Port Colborne, Canada's estimated nickel production was set at $196,745,000 as against $258,977,000 in 1957.

Thanks in part to a lower 1958 premium on the Canadian dollar, production of gold rose to $154,065,000 from $148,757,000 and output of silver increased to $27,200,000 from $25,183,000.

The value of metals produced in 1958 was $1,142,140,000, down 1.5 per cent from the 1957 record value of $1,159,579,000.

Ontario maintained its lead as top producer among the provinces with an estimated total value of $733,000 or 37 per cent of national total, followed by Quebec's $482,778,000. Ontario's 1957 total was $748,824,000.

lice. Castro supporters held Havana under tight control—virtually martial law—today after victory celebrations Thursday led to violence.

Castro chose Urrutia over provisional president Instead of taking the post himself after frequent declarations that he has no presidential ambitions. Castro also is three years too young, the constitution requiring the president to be at least 35.

Castro, a lawyer who has been a rebel for more than a third-of his 32 years, outlined in 1955 the platform he would follow.

It included nationalization of U.S. financed and operated utilities, splitting up American-owned sugar estates among the peasants, confiscation of all properties acquired through corrupt government and breaking the hold of some big business men on Cuba's economy.

The bearded guerrilla warrior has denied Batista's charges that he is a Communist or is Communist influenced. Castro says his goal is to end corruption and establish democracy.

Castro and Urrutia were expected to make a triumphal entry into Havana soon.

CANADIAN HELD

In Ottawa, the external affairs department said the Canadian embassy in Havana has received a report that a Canadian is being held by Cuban authorities. He was identified as Adam Bessarabia, a native of Montreal.

Bessarabia is a construction worker employed by an American firm. The embassy here is trying to find out more about the situation and is keeping close posted.

The capital quited down Thursday night as curfew, curtailing and retaliation against supporters of former dictator Batista's police men and 19 looters were reported killed.

Batista gave up the presidency and fled to the Dominican Republic early Thursday. The family and scores of his officials departed hastily with him on planes and boats for the United States.

Batista said he was quitting to save Cuba from further bloodshed caused by the rebellion.

Castro announced the order as soon as possible, both to stop bloodshed and to allow Cuba's normally prosperous economy.

Sugar and sugar producers make up 75 per cent of national exports and the cane grinding season is at hand.

HEADS ARMED FORCES

To head the armed forces, Castro appointed Col. Ramon Barquin, who had just been released from a Batista prison along with 700 other political prisoners. Barquin headed an appeal from the military headquarters at Camp Columbia for peace with the people of Havana and the nation to remain peacefully in their homes.

There were reports that some army units might resist Castro's advance to Havana from Santiago. However, prospects for resistance seemed to be dimming hourly.

There was no indication of continued fighting anywhere in Cuba between Batista's 37,000 troops and the rebels.

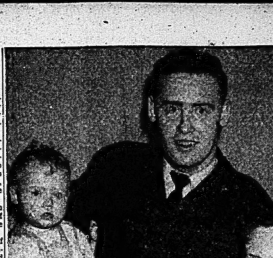
The sudden collapse of Batista apparently stemmed from the first major battle of the rebellion. Three columns of rebels who previously had risked only hit-and-run raids and small battles launched a drive last weekend on Santa Clara Batista had to hold this vital road and rail junction in the middle of Cuba to maintain ground contact with the eastern part of the country.

The president threw tanks, planes, artillery and reinforced infantry men into the battle against rebel foot soldiers. Army and rebel casualties were estimated by Batista's regime at 3,000 dead and wounded. But the government said it had suffered 1,000 or more casualties. These losses caused Batista to decide to give up. He was in danger of having the army turn on him rather than continue to suffer such casualties.

While continuing to claim publicly that the rebels were losing heavily, Batista privately told visitors had a plane standing by. Some government officials got out Wednesday on the commercial line.

The dictator gathered his officials around him at Camp Columbia on New Year's Eve. He broke off a game of golf to get reports to announce that he was giving up the presidency and leaving.

About 3:30 p.m. he flew off in his private DC3 to Ciudad Trujillo, capital of friendly fellow dictator Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic. Batista's wife, three of his children and a number of aides accompanied him. They included Prime Minister Gonzalo Guell and the man Batista had picked to succeed him Feb. 24, Andres Rivero Aguero, who was named president Nov. 3 in an election that Castro called fraudulent.



Other Batista supporters—many of them marked for death by the rebels on charges of practicing terrorism and oppression—fanned out from the island. Planeloads of them landed at six U.S. airports from New York to New Orleans. Small boats sailed for Key West, Fla.

Batista's other five children also made it to the United States and it seemed certain the dictator himself would go there. He owns a large home in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Before departing, Batista willed whatever property he had to a three-man military junta headed by Gen. Eulogio Cantillo, a 47-year-old career military man.

Cantillo immediately followed the constitution and ordered the senior member of the Supreme Court to take over as provisional president. He is Carlos Piedra, 63, a lawyer who had never been politically prominent.

Rebel spokesmen promptly declared Piedra unacceptable. Because of Castro's stand, the Supreme Court refused to swear in Piedra. Piedra and Cantillo, who was to have been his chief of armed forces, gave up their self-effort. That left the government open to any orders from Castro.

RCAF STATION TRENTON — Father of the first Christmas baby born to RCAF personnel in the Trenton area is LAC George Jackson, a Medical Assistant at the Station Trenton Hospital. The airman will be presented with a silver cup by the Air Force Womans Auxiliary, and in this case it is well-earned.

LAC Jackson stood in for the doctor at his Belleville home when his six pound two ounce son was born.

"When my wife was ready to go to the hospital at 4 a.m. Christmas morning," he related, "I couldn't get my car started. I telephoned the doctor and an ambulance, but things started happening so fast that the baby was born fifteen minutes before the ambulance arrived."

Originally from Edinburgh, Scotland, the airman joined the RCAF six years ago and has served as a Medical Assistant ever since. While obsteteres are not part of the training of these specialists, LAC Jackson assisted in a few deliveries while serving at RCAF hospitals in Europe.

Mrs. Doris Jackson, a former airwoman and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gibson of New Hamburg, Ont. is home with the new baby, Ian Angus.

CUBAN REBELS

fear of more trouble in the streets . . .

PHONES ACCOUNT

"All three men appeared haggard and shaken from the effects of rifle fire which pockmarked the building and shattered glass only a few minutes before a 26th of July rebel squad invaded the AP offices of the Post building's second floor.

"I arrived at 10:30 a.m. [EST] after a relatively tranquil ride through Cuban countryside from Jose Marti airport where a charter plane brought me from Miami.

"Sid Feder, Associated Press bureau chief at WCKT, Miami TV station, and Edward Cony of the Wall Street Journal bureau at Jacksonville, Fla.

"Silver and Cony left me at the Post building and planned to seek lodgings at the Seville Biltmore Hotel. We already had been turned away by the Hotel Nacional, which said it could not take care of us.

SERVICE BLACK

"Guests at the Nacional, said they were eating only sandwiches which were brought to their rooms. There was no table service.

"Much of Havana appeared in a holiday mood, with crowds joyriding in automobiles that flew flags and banners. Many Havana residents loitered on curbings watching for entertainment which still flared up at points in downtown Havana.

"Barricades stopped motorists and pedestrians away from the waterfront.

"But on the road from the airport to Havana, usually a race course for daring motorists and taxi drivers, only a light stream of traffic was moving."

IRONIC NOTICE

"In an ironic twist, many telephone poles still carried posters urging election of Batista who fled into exile with dictator Fulgencio Batista in the Dominican Republic.

"Men brandishing a variety of small arms that ranged from modern hunting rifles to beat-up weapons of Spanish - American War vintage prowled the streets in automobiles, directed traffic at intersections, and stood guard before sandbags and other makeshift barricades at many points. "I saw few men in uniform. Line between Batista's forces and the rebels, who had stuck to guerrilla warfare earlier.

The heavy casualties on both sides—estimated up to 4,000 dead and wounded—probably shook the army. Batista presumably feared the army would desert him rather than accept such losses to fight for him. At any rate, he fled.

Castro had won.

J.C.R. Punchard New President Of Chamber

Mr. J. C. B. Punchard, general manager of the Northern Electric Company Ltd. has been named president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for 1959.

The election was held Wednesday at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors. Mr. Punchard succeeds Mr. J. N. Vanzwer, who remains on the Chamber directorate as immediate past president.

Other executive officers named for the year are J. W. Pickett as 1st vice-president; G. A. Wishart as 2nd vice-president, and A. F. E. Jarrett as treasurer. Mr. Jarrett was returned as treasurer having acted in that capacity last year.

Named as Chamber executives to the Industrial Commission were J. N Vanzwer, Stuart Chipman and J. C. B. Punchard as Chamber president.

Don Barrett will represent the Chamber on the city traffic committee.

The various committee chairmen for the chamber will be appointed at the next meeting centre. Rebel control of it could have cut Cuba in two.

USE TANKS, PLANES

The rebels threw about 3,000 men into the fight. Batista ordered up reserves and used tanks, artillery and planes against the outnumbered rebel foot soldiers.

This was the first pitched battle between Batista's forces and the rebels, who had stuck to guerrilla warfare earlier.

The heavy casualties on both sides—estimated up to 4,000 dead and wounded—probably shook the army. Batista presumably feared the army would desert him rather than accept such losses to fight for him. At any rate, he fled.

Castro had won.

NEW YEAR WITH A DIFFERENCE

Happy New Year, fellow Bellevillians!

This is not just the start of another year as far as Belleville is concerned. Something new has been added, something has changed besides the date. Good neighbors and friends have joined the family. Suburbs in what were so recently parts of Sidney and Thurlow Townships have become part of the city. It is a bigger Belleville which starts this year and we must all work together to make it a better one.

An increase in the family always calls for some adjustment, but in this case the adjustment period should be easier and shorter than in many instances, because so many things remain the same. The people in what were so recently this city's suburbs, and what are now just as much parts of Belleville as Front Street, have long worked, played, shopped, studied and worshipped with the rest of us. They have even depended on the city for some of the essential municipal services. At the last municipal election they voted with the rest of us. About all that remains is for them to pay taxes with the rest of us. But let us not dwell on the one dark spot in a bright picture.

Welcome, fellow Bellevillians; we hope you are happy to join us.

A DEBATE WE ARE TIRED OF

We are getting cheesed off with the continuing discussion about Prime Minister Diefenbaker's sins of syntax.

On his return from his world tour, the Prime Minister said: "Everywhere I went, the name of Canada meant more than Canadians have any realiation of."

The Toronto Globe and Mail used this sentence in Exhibit A in an editorial describing it as a sentence with a preposition. It promptly received a richly deserved scolding from dozens of readers.

We are among those who do not hesitate to end a sentence with a preposition if we want to. In this we are in good company. There is a well-known anecdote about a secretary who revised a sentence in the draft of one of Sir Winston Churchill's wartime speeches in order to eliminate a preposition at the end of the sentence, bringing from Churchill the indignant retort that this was "an example of pedantry up with which I will not put." But Prime Minister Diefenbaker's sentence is indefensible because the same thing can be said more concisely without that dangling preposition — "every where I went the name of Canada meant more than Canadians realize."

The Globe and Mail deserved every thump it got. Not so the Prime Minister. If this "misuse of the language" is his worst sin, he is closer to perfection than any who have walked this earth for almost 2,000 years.

We recognize that the reason we set the type of spelling-criticism annoys us so deeply is the instinct for self preservation. Besides ending sentences with prepositions, we also have a tendency to frequently split infinitives. These and other sins would reduce the flow of words from this typewriter to a treacly trickle if we were to bother about pedants.

Too few people seem to realize that grammatically correct English is not automatically good English. There are people who never misplace a preposition, split an infinitive or dangle a participle, but who write sentences which are as murky as yesterday's unemptied dishwater, as soggy as the immersed dish cloth and as lifeless as the tea leaves at the bottom of the sink.

The first objective in arranging words is to convey an idea clearly. When that has been done we can bother about wringing out the excess verbiage and bringing the sentence to life. Once having done that, it is unlikely that any grammatical errors will remain. Most, but not all, prepositions will have been transported to the interior of sentences; most, but not all, infinitives will have had their wings clipped.

But to value grammatical rules ahead of clarity, conciseness and vividness is to defeat the very purpose for which these rules exist.

WHY?

Around noon on almost any sunny winter day, following a night during which there has been a light snowfall, one may note some roofs edged with white borders. The heat from an insufficiently insulated house has melted the snow except for a few inches next to the border, where the roof juts out past the body of the house.

The other day, on unheated garages and porches, we noticed the pattern reversed. The snow had melted off the portion of the roofs which jutted out past the building, but still lay thick and white over the main part of the roof, above the unheated building.

Just why were the eaves warmer than the main body of the roof? Unimportant, but puzzling.

WHY HE LINGERED
By EDGAR A. GUEST

She stood beneath the mistletoe
And knew that it was there.
He made no move to kiss her,
though,
Nor did he seem to care.

While others came with shouts of glee
To claim the treasured kiss,
He stood as one who didn't see
The beauties of the miss.

She stood beneath the mistletoe,
He lingered in the gloom;
But he knew what she didn't know:
His wife was in the room.

Long Road For Africa

Brantford Expositor

Too much significance is likely to be attached by most outsiders to the first conference of African peoples being held this week in the Ghanian capital of Accra. While there is no denying that this gathering from every quarter of the vast continent is a notable event in the quickening pace of African affairs, it also needs to be kept in perspective.

Some 250 delegates from political parties and trade union organizations are participating amid a torrent of oloquizing and oratory that sounds acutely on the theme of freedom and independence. This could easily suggest that the day of Africa for the Africans is just around the corner, and that will be in a few years, at most, those who have been running affairs will have to reckon with yet another monolithic power, brown-black this time instead of red or white.

Some naive European and American correspondents, flown in for the occasion, are taking off on the shadow of a United States of Africa. They know how to be, but what of the chances that it will ever gain substance? After all, there are 1,000 years of education, improving communications, rising living standards and political stability ahead. Today, only a third the size of Africa, is still far from united. Africa is developing well behind where Europe was in development 1,000 years ago. It has a long, long way to go and road to travel.

Its 12 million square miles, bigger than three Canadas, offer contrasts in human beings and physical environment without parallel elsewhere. Its 200 million native peoples, split among 800 tribes and states, speaking different languages, include nakedness, cannibalism and gradations, cannibals and clergymen, killer leopard men and lawyers. Its vast jungles are being cut to flesh burned in fields to ensure fertility. One can see scattered several Shakespeare plays into his native tongue. Millions can't read. Its economic resources are hampered by half a dozen trade deficits, and most of what industry there is owes its existence to foreign capital.

These handicaps will not greatly diminish in time, but it will be a long time. Industry will spread. But regional rivalries in the world over have a history of persisting, and there is even a start be made towards continental political unity when all the nations are fully independent. who are represented at the conference, advocate freedom from colonialism, while Premier Nkrumah of Ghana and others stand for Ghanaian nonviolence in shaping African foreign policy. Where is the ambitious Nasser and his country fit in this grandiose vision?

Language Schmozzle

Timmins Daily Press

On the Neighborly News program, Arthur Phelps, in charge of that popular CBC program, quoted a story printed in a Montreal district weekly newspaper. It might be termed a tale of mutual astonishment on the part of the lassy of the house and the plumber's assistant sent there to do a minor repair job. While in the house, he remarked in chatelaine that "the joint smells." He was promptly ordered from the premises, an action followed up by indignant complaints to the young man's employer and to the lady's lesser half.

The last-named, though, was overseas in the last war and was able to soothe his spouse's ruffled feelings once all the facts were established. The unwilling offender, who comes from the Channel Islands and (not obviously is not well informed on Canadian colloquialisms, had been trying to tell the housewife that the roast she had in the oven was burning. In doing so he fell back on the term with which he was most familiar, and which he would naturally employ it in his own country.

It was not intimated whose face was the reddest once the matter had been straightened out or if any apologies were tendered in this connection about a pot and a joint. The latter term may be thought of as of no particular significance in view of its general use as a slang expression and doubtless would have been accepted by the lady's as nothing more than the natural exuberance of youth, but the other verb also employed. For that matter, nothing was said of the face of the young man, but it was beef, pork, veal or lamb.

The incident affords an illustration, if any is needed, in meaning attached to the same word on opposite sides of the Atlantic. Another is the possibility is that term homely, cause of misunderstanding in either case. Across the water it is associated with home and, hence, familiar, friendly, folksy, on this side of the ocean it has a much less flattering connotation, as the newcomer from abroad relying innocently on the other meaning is likely to run into, at least temporarily, the proverbial peck of trouble in Canadian circles.

Need Arrow, Cost too High

Montreal Gazette

Air Marshall Roy Slemon, RCAF, has stated flatly what aviation authorities have been saying ever since the Russians announced they had developed intercontinental ballistic missiles: the manned bomber and the manned interceptor to meet it are on the way out or soon to come.

The statements have been backed by the fact that Russia and the United States the two countries which are about to declare war on both, are still building both missiles and manned aircraft of both types. Britain, which, although not yet committed to plans to eliminate both bomber and fighter commands within a few years, is also planning a new jet interceptor, the "Lightning" into service.

Air Marshal Slemon has made his statement before. But he has made it in the light of understanding that he was speaking for a country which is a member of the North American Air Defence system.

Monday's statement left no room for doubt. Not only was his superior, U.S.A.F. General Pete Ridge mentioned, but Slemon also stated that the United States has no intercept in operation and no plan for the next five years which can match the abilities of the Canadian CF-105 Arrow in doing the interceptor job.

Defence Minister Pearkes, from the time the first Arrow rolled out of the Avro factory at Malton, Ontario, more than a year ago, has made the same declaration that manned interceptors will be needed for years to come. In September, Prime Minister Diefenbaker repeated that the costly Arrow program may be cancelled on the ground that it is replaced by the purchase of American Bomarc missiles.

Now, Canada's Air Marshal Slemon's statement, Mr. Pearkes has stated that Canada may not accept the Arrow program unless that it still must be reconsidered.

The most important thing for Canadians, perhaps, is the AM Slemon has indicated that the US Air Force, as well as the RCAF, considers the Arrow the ideal weapon for the duties required. If the US Government would accept that judgment, and order a few squadrons of Arrows for its use, then Canada could afford to proceed with the Arrow program.

As it is, the powerful aviation industry lobby in Washington has blocked the purchase, by the US Government, of any aircraft which is a foreign power, ally or not. This is what blocks the Arrow program in Canada. It is considered too costly for Canada to complete on her own.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Half way to our destination, as nightfall approached, we decided to pull up at a beautiful motel we had stayed at two years ago. So we drove into a service station and telephoned ahead to make sure of accommodation.

An hour later, with a sense of home-coming, we turned in at the familiar highway sign. And got the shock of our lives.

The beautiful motel was beautiful no more. It was shabby. It needed paint. The vegetian blinds on the windows were dirty. There was a rundown look about the whole place.

The crisp little suites we remembered was now cluttered; a soft drink dispensing machine stood lumpily in the midst; empty bottles on the desk. A moroselooking man in shirt sleeves came slowly from in back.

We got a room. It smelt like a lower berth.

We crossed over to the adjoining block to a little restaurant used to glitter. It was steamy and smelt of cheap cigarettes. There were the only customers, and the middle-aged waitress did not appear happy to see us.

"Next morning, at the adjacent service station, we asked what had happened to the place next door.

"Changed owners," said the service man. "Only a certain kind of people should try to run anything well.

It takes a special kind of people to run anything well.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

CLEFT PALATE CAN BE CORRECTED BY SURGERY

"Dear Dr. Molner: My 3 1-2-year-old baby was born with a hare lip and cleft palate. Because he was very ill as an infant, he did not have an operation for the cleft palate until he was almost 2. He is beginning to say some words, but they are not very clear. Do you think he will be able to talk like everyone else? Should I send him to a speech school? Sometimes I just can't sleep at night because I worry about his future. — Mrs. D. V."

Essentially my answer is yes, give the youngster speech training.

Although the operation generally is performed somewhat earlier in life, one or two years because any bad speech habits. After all, with a cleft palate it is impossible to form certain sounds correctly, so naturally a child will develop habits of saying with such substitute sounds as he can create.

Of course, assistance, however, I gather that the little boy, probably because he was ill and in bed so long, hadn't started to make much if any effort to talk before his operation. From that standpoint, he doesn't have any habit he must break.

Without knowing more about the child than appears in the letter, I can't hazard a guess as to whether he will talk as well as the next fellow as he grows older.

However, I can and will say that in many cases there is no noticeable fault in the speech after an operation, and even if sometimes there may be some slight difficulty, it is not enough to be a problem. Readily, I would be surprised at how successfully cleft palates are being corrected these days.

WHERE TO GET TRAINING

There are many communities where youngsters learn to speak correctly, after the operation, is a question. There are many places to place. The best place to start is usually with the surgeon who performed the operation. He and his staff usually will be familiar with the clinics or teachers where such service is available. The County medical societies, speech departments of large city health clinics, hospitals, family service organizations sometimes supply them all good sources of information.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Talking is not my long suit. Everything rabies shots are referred to as 'painful' and if the person is not already terrified by the word, he soon will be. But if we say nothing to our children about rabies shots, they will be terrified when they are told they must be immunized. Is there some way to explain that the shots are unpleasant, but not painful? — Mrs. M. S. L."

The vaccine has to be given daily for 14 or 21 days, and is given in the four quadrants, or quarters, or the agdomen, but certainly not in the umbilicus, or "belly button." Naturally that many shots, and the necessity for the vaccine to be given daily is uncomfortable. It would be wrong and doubtless dangerous, however, to give the impression that the shots are unduly painful. Uncomfortable, yes.

S.V.: The solution for a disobedient child is something that can't be given in a nutshell, of course. The instance you described makes me think the situation needs attention. Many children have "child guidance clinics" which are excellent. If one is not available, I would suggest, even though the little girl is still preschool age, that you ask the advice of the school psychologist, who could tell you where to go.

Why suffer from sinus troubles? Much can be done to help you, and it is explained in my booklet, "You Can Stop Sinus Misery." For a copy, send your request, with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20c in coin to cover handling.

Only City To Own Bar

Financial Post

Calgary's new municipal airport is equipped with a cocktail lounge and Calgary now proudly is the only city in the country that owns a bar.

So it is, no doubt; but it's probably also true that Canada is the only country on earth where the opening of a bar at an airport would make a news story.

Nearly everywhere else in the world the traveller alighting from a plane may look in vain as well as a meal at any hour of the day or night.

There is one at Gander, Newfoundland, possibly unique in that it stays open all business hours every day of every day in the year, and the reason for its existence is the operating of a bar at an airport would make a news story.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON ENCOURAGEMENT

I once wrote that encouragement was oxygen to the soul, that no one ever climbed spiritual heights without it, that no one ever lived without it. But I should have said we need the refreshing voice of encouragement more than we need water.

We all feel better after we have encouraged someone else. "Encouragement" sets in with terrific middle age, and he can no longer be expected to squeeze coin-a-dance out of nature.

No — the last one she has her real estate architect of the Lincoln Square open house has found, on the basis of accidental research, that the house will need wider seats — but for the women it does fine with 14 inches, but for the men. He reports that the American male is becoming more steatopygous — a word that science has saved for fundamental use up to this time. Today a man's middle-aged "set" sets in with terrific middle age, and he can no longer be expected to squeeze coin-a-dance out of nature.

This poses problems of space and acoustics that the architect never anticipated, possibly because he is a man. Now he must have a very great deal more room to build a larger hall. New York's operatic future hangs on the weight issue. Meanwhile it is a glorious day for the ladies. Nothing so good has happened to them since suffrage.

portant a man may become, the more he hungers for encouragement. Appreciation is next door to life. We only live to be appreciated. It is the substance of all goodness.

How many a genius has gone to his grave because of a lack of encouragement! Dr. Samuel Johnson was dying a young girl went to see him. He looked at her fresh, kindly face and said: "God bless you, my child." There were a few moments of silence, then the great Doctor turned to her and said: "The thought comes to me that there will be no letters delivered at the grave."

The greatest need of others must be given here and now. Tomorrow it may be too late. Giving this encouragement is such a simple thing to do. It costs nothing in money. It is one of the spires may travel around the world or save a human being from despair.

Big Men in Cuban News

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS By LARRY ALLEN

Fulgencio Batista, a tough former army sergeant who looks like a boxer, believed himself a man of destiny.

His destiny on New Year's Day was to flee from Cuba rather than continue fighting to maintain his position as strong man.

Batista said he was giving up the presidency "to save the country from further bloodshed." For 25 months he had been battling against Fidel Castro, a bearded 32-year-old former law student who vowed to upset "the tyranny of Batista."

Batista made it the hard way to become Cuba's top man, but he had few setbacks once he got off to a running start as a revolutionary himself in the "sergeants' rebellion" of 1933. He had to keep fighting, however.

ASSASSINATION PLOT

A target for plots that included an attempt in March, 1937, to assassinate or capture him in the presidential palace the chunky ruler of Cuba once said plaintively he only wanted to be loved by his people.

He called himself "an idealist but a practical one" and claimed credit for many advancements in rural hospitals, education and public works during the times he was in and out of the president's office.

Batista insisted he was no dictator. He said he hated communism and Communists, immersed controls only to root out terrorists and acted only for Cuba's welfare.

He was born Fulgencio Batista Y Zaldivar of Spanish, Negro, Indian and Chinese blood, on Jan. 16, 1901. In his youth he worked as a sugar mill timekeeper, railway brakeman and grocer's clerk.

Batista enlisted in the army in 1921. Ambitious, he studied stenography and became stenographer to the general staff.

JOINED REVOLUTION

In that role he learned how the army and government operated and soon joined the ABC, one of several secret revolutionary groups plotting the overthrow of autocratic President Gerardo Machado.

Machado fell in August, 1933, and within a month Batista and his fellow sergeants took over the government. Ramon Grau San Martin became president and made Batista a colonel. From then on, Batista made and broke presidents.

Last Nov. 3, in an election marked by bloodshed and sabotage, Batista's hand-picked successor won the contest for the presidency. Andres Rivero Aguero was elected to take over from Batista Feb. 24.

The opposition candidates charged the election was rigged. When Batista fled, Aguero went with him.

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Husky six-foot, two Fidel Castro voiced confidence from the start that his ragged guerrilla force would eventually topple the dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista.

The 32-year-old, bearded rebel leader has never wavered in this belief since he and 81 armed companions landed one dawn a little more than two years ago on a beach in eastern Oriente province and melted into the nearby hills. For Castro, it was a return home from years of exile.

Despite repeated reverses, the lawyer son of well-to-do planter parents plugged ahead, burning plantations, shattering communications lines, kidnapping, striking where and how he could. His strength, in men and arms, slowly grew.

USED GUERRILLA TACTICS

From the thick woods of eastern Cuba's sierra maestra, the bespectacled revolutionary waged a relentless guerrilla war until he finally had brought down the once powerful Batista machine. From exile, Batista said it was the guerrilla tactics, for which the Cuban army was not trained, that beat him.

Friends describe Castro as a professional rebel who has been in revolt most of his life.

On July 26, 1953 while still a law student at the University of Havana, he led an attack on a military barracks in Santiago, in Oriente province capital. The attack was repulsed, but enemies of Batista hailed the "26th of July movement."

Castro was sentenced to 15 months in prison, then freed when Congress granted an amnesty to political prisoners. He went to Mexico and began plotting his big revolutionary move.

His movement got off to a slow start, but picked up momentum even in the face of overwhelming odds and defeat after defeat.

BOLD KIDNAPPING

The audacious kidnapping of Cuba racing champion Juan Fangio on Feb. 23, 1958, from a hotel lobby in Havana convinced many Cubans that Batista's government had become powerless to check Castro's hit-run tactics.

Batista described Castro as a criminal and a Communist. Followers of the former law student scoffed at the charge. They proclaimed him a fighter against tyranny.

Castro describes himself as a moderate. He advocates amplified social security and a speedup in industrialization to ease the unemployment that plagues Cuba.

Castro is an avid reader of poetry, does not drink, but smokes cigars a day. Associates say he gets along on two to three hours sleep a night.

MONTEZUMA Ya. (AP)—The scurryings of what she thought was a mouse awakened Mrs. W. B. Fokes several nights in a row.

The other night she set a mouse trap and dozed off. The trap snapped shut and there was pandemonium in the bedroom.

Mrs. Fokes said some animal was leaping from floor to bed to dresser to table, carrying the trap with him.

She ran out of the room, slammed the door and spent the remainder of the night in another room.

In the morning she cautiously opened the bedroom door and peered inside.

Caught in the trap was a flying squirrel.

Trip Financed By Series of Armed Holdups

TORONTO (CP)—A 15-year-old Vancouver call girl told a Toronto court Wednesday her trip from the West was financed by a series of grass-country armed holdups.

She was testifying at the trial of Mrs. Bernice Howard, 52, of Toronto. She was fined $100 or 30 days for keeping a common bawdy house—a swank apartment where the girl was found during a police raid.

The girl is charged with juvenile delinquency and will be tried later.

She told Magistrate J. L. Prentice she motored to Toronto last July with a boy friend and another couple. Her boy friend, she said, staged a series of holdups from west to east.

She said when the group reached Toronto she was persuaded to start working in "Chinatown" as a prostitute but quit within a few weeks because she was making "only about $45 a day."

She said she was forced to go to the Toronto apartment by a man to whom she owed $160. She made about $360 a day but "gave about half of it to Mrs. Howard."

Freezing Rain Blamed for Nine Of 10 Fatalities

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A freezing rain which coated Ontario highways with ice early New Year's Day was blamed for nine of the 10 traffic fatalities reported in Canada during the holiday.

The only traffic death outside Ontario occurred in Saskatchewan.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Wednesday to midnight Thursday night showed a national total of 76 accidental deaths including six in fires.

Three children died when flames swept an abandoned house they had entered at Seal Cove, N.B., two youngsters perished when fire destroyed their home at Windsor, Ont., and a man died in a British Columbia blaze.

A year ago the New Year's holiday toll was 17, including 13 traffic deaths.

The 41½-day Christmas holiday period was marked by 35 accidental deaths, 39 in traffic.

DIE IN FIRE

Perishing, two-year-old Sharleen Browning and her sister Gale, 14 months, were asleep upstairs in their small frame house when the fire broke out.

Mrs. Vera Browning, the children's grandmother, was taken to hospital suffering from burns and shock. Parents of the children, Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Browning, are downstairs with the grandmother at the time.

Louis Kosma, 24, of Sherbrook and Joseph Polczer, 23, of Brantford were killed Wednesday night when hit by a car near Delhi. They were standing by the roadside discussing a minor accident in which they had been involved.

Ronald Bandenecele, 22, of Clear Creek, was slightly injured.

A Toronto policeman and a North York woman were killed Thursday when their car skidded 150 feet on icy pavement and hit a tree on Highway 2 a mile east of Trafalgar, about 23 miles southwest of Toronto. Constable Edward Lane, 45, was killed instantly and Mrs. Jean Lowe, 25, died in hospital.

David Stewart, 70, of Guelph was killed and four persons injured in a two-car collision Thursday on Highway 6 two miles north of Aberfoyle. Most seriously injured were Lorna Smith, 28, of Detroit and Hildegarde Zillman, 24, of Toronto.

John T. Jerry, 42, of Toronto was killed early New Year's Day when his car crashed into a traffic safety island on Eglinton Ave. West in North Toronto.

Mrs. Alice Clarke, 47, was killed Thursday when struck by a car as she walked along Highway 400 just north of the city.

Lloyd Caldwell, 17, of Shanty Bay, near Barrie was killed Thursday when his southbound car was cut in half by a northbound car on Highway 11 near Guthrie, five miles north of Barrie. Driver of the other car, Hugh Charles Walker, 48, of Gravenhurst, suffered lacerations and fractured leg.

Robert Louis Berry, 18, of Halifax, an airman, was killed when a car in which he was riding crashed into a hydro pole on Highway 2 early Thursday just west of Chatham. James Edward Davis, 17, of Thorold and Henry Skymore Snow of Halifax suffered undetermined injuries.

Commuters Stage First Revolt In U.K., Win

LONDON (AP)—British commuters, normally an uncomplaining lot, staged their first revolt Thursday night and won.

Indicator boards said the subway train was bound for suburban Dagenham East. Halfway there passengers were ordered to change trains. It had happened many times before.

Some passengers moved out obediently. Then one bowler-hatted commuter gripped his umbrella defiantly and cried out:

"No . . . it says on the front of the train Dagenham East and that's where we're going."

There was a little cheer and the revolt spread rapidly. Those who had got out got in again. The orders of subway officials turned to pleading. The commuters sat tight.

Finally the conductor capitulated. The train moved off toward Dagenham East.

Said an official of the government-owned subway system:

"Quite frankly we were flabbergasted. After all, you don't really expect passengers not to do what they're told."

Forecasts Election

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Express says Prime Minister Macmillan will call a general election in Britain next May.

The newspaper says all signs pointed to the election being held May 14 or May 28—"with the odds on the earlier date."

Queen Approves Large Number Of Photographs

TORONTO (CP) — The Queen and Prince Philip were posing.

Photographer Donald McKague pressed the cable release. Nothing happened. The royal couple waited. He pressed again. The cable release failed again.

"Actually it was very nice it happened—it gave us something to talk about and became a thing of levity," the 37-year-old Toronto photographer said Wednesday on his return from England with his federal government commission completed.

Mr. McKague was picked to do the "official portraits" for the Queen's visit to Canada to open the St. Lawrence Seaway next June. Canadians will get their first glimpses of the pictures next in both color and black and white, were taken in a huge drawing room and around the grand stairway.

"Both the Queen and the prince made things very easy for me. I usually large number of proofs," They didn't do it obviously, but he added.

"They didn't do it very naturally."

Mr. McKague said his pictures, first glimpses of the pictures next April.

He said there was little stiff formality in his session.

New Military Command Chain Set up in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new streamlined U.S. chain of military command, extending down from the White House and Pentagon to five forces at home and overseas, became effective with the new year.

From now on five unified or specified commands will carry out the doctrine and strategy devised by national policy and strategy makers—the Continental Air Defence Command, the Strategic Air Command (both "specified" commands) and three "unified" commands on the Pacific, Atlantic and Eastern Atlantic-Mediterranean headquarters.

Until now, an order issued by the defence secretary had to filter down through the civilian secretary of a service and his military chief of staff to one of the commands in the field.

Among other things, the new arrangement will lighten the control of the Continental Air Defence commander over army, air force and navy units composing his force.

Colorful Wool Print

By VERA WINSTON

Sheer wool, printed in tones of gold, brown and orange, makes a useful and attractive daytime dress. Unfitted in back, it has curved seaming at the front of the bodice that converges to a narrow-waisted look. The velvet ribbon belt slips through to buckle underneath in back. Antique jeweled buttons close the front to below the hipline. The soft collar has gathered draped folds.

Windsor, N.S., Baby First Of New Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A seven - pound one-ounce girl born at Windsor, N.S., at one second after midnight Atlantic Standard Time was the first baby reported in Canada at the New Year arrived.

Payzant Memorial Hospital reported the well-timed arrival of the daughter for Mrs. Robert Oulton of Windsor.

Although the New Year arrived a half-hour earlier in the Newfoundland Standard Time zone there were no births reported in that province until Mrs. William Donovan's girl checked in at St. John's at 1:08 a.m.

The Oulton infant and a girl for Mrs. Gilbert Brizk at Campbellton, N.B., at 12:02 a.m. EST were well ahead of the Newfoundland time.

Births one second after midnight were also reported at Montreal and Winnipeg. Both were girls.

Another girl was reported born at Montreal on the stroke of midnight, causing some controversy as to whether the New Year began at midnight or a second after it.

Mrs. Jean Roy's fourth child was registered by a Montreal hospital one second after the midnight arrival of Mrs. Raymond Montreault's 11th in another hospital.

Ingrid Lorrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Darrah of St. James, Man., arrived one second after midnight.

Ottawa's first baby was also a girl, for Mrs. Hermas Henrie a five seconds after midnight. In Toronto Mrs. Joseph Irvine's fifth child and first daughter arrived 10 seconds after the year began.

OLD COOKING

The primitive method of broiling meat was by burying it in hot ashes.

Baby arrived at 2.00 a.m. New Year's Day. The Stolikers have two other children, a girl, nine, and a boy, four.

Three Babies Born Here On New Year's

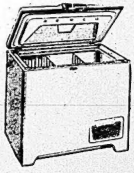
First New Year Day baby was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Stoliker, R. R. 8, Belleville, born just two hours and ten minutes after 1959 was rung in. The baby, still unnamed, has a sister and brother at home.



The other two January 1st babies were born at 8:51 and 7:22 a.m. respectively. A girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Arthur of 11 Golfdale Road, and a boy to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Deryaw, 25 Bettes Street.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Eloise R. — They don't ask me to their parties.

Jim R. — She wouldn't enjoy our parties.

Eloise R. — I am a widow living alone just a few blocks away from my only son. I keep active and I think I'm doing a good job of being independent in spite of my years (nearly 70) and my poor health.

I don't expect anything from my children, but I do think they might have a little more consideration for me. For example, my son and his wife often give parties and they know how much I enjoy getting out among people, but they never ask me.

It often embarrasses me to learn from someone else that my children had a big party and I knew nothing about it. What harm would it do for parties? I am not loud or demanding and people like me. There is no reason for them to be ashamed of me. I have hidden my feelings in the past, but now I feel too hurt to keep quiet about it.

Jim R. — Mother has been hinting for a long time that she would like to be invited to our parties. Of course, we are always glad to ask Mother, but I feel that it is up to my wife to work out a guest list. My wife's idea is that everyone at a party should fit in just right. She thinks people are annoyed and embarrassed when someone of older age or of very different outlook should out at the party like a sore thumb.

I have tried to explain to Mother that she wouldn't enjoy our parties. There is a bit too much drinking for her taste and sometimes things get a little raucous. None of this is actually wild, but we think our friends might feel a bit inhibited if Mother were around and we want them to have a good time.

Mother really has put us on the spot. We didn't mean to hurt her.

The Council: We don't think that older people need to expect to participate in the social gatherings of the younger. They shouldn't feel left out because of this. They ought to have their own social gatherings with their own age group and they are privileged to exclude the younger set at those times. It is rather unfair of Eloise to intimidate her children on this score.

However, we don't entirely go along with Jim's wife's idea that nobody at a party should stand out like a "sore thumb." These sore thumbs can inject a little fresh life into a gathering. Too much sameness is the death of many parties and possibly one of the causes of the need for more alcohol to inject some spirit into the proceedings. There are times an older person or an "odd one" can make quite a social contribution.

In other words, we feel that while Eloise shouldn't expect to be invited, it might be a good idea for Jim and his wife to experiment by inviting her to "drop by for a little while" when they are having a gathering they think might be enjoyable for her. She should make a point of just "dropping by" and not staying for the entire evening. Even fully grown, married children sometimes upset by the presence of a parent. They have a right to independent friendship and entertainment.

Like many elderly persons, Eloise doesn't like the creeping sense she has of being left out of the main stream of things. It is a natural feeling, but participation in the lives of children is no answer. She should try to participate more actively in the life of her generation.

The Experts Say

Older Women Told to Pull Up Nylons, Smarten Up

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Older women in Canada must pull up their nylons and generally smarten up, says Mrs. Jean Miller of Maple, near here.

"Most older Canadian women are drab," she said in an interview. "They should flaunt their age and generally not take a defeatist attitude and imagine that they lose attractiveness as they grow older."

The attractions of elegance can replace the charms of youth; it just takes a little more thought and care, says Mrs. Miller, herself acknowledged to be one of the best-dressed members of the Fashion Group of Toronto, an organization of women in fashion and allied trades.

Blonde Mrs. Miller, who for years drew the fashion pictures in the catalogue of a leading department store, won't tell her own age but she says she won't see 40 again.

POINTS TO WATCH

The younger set can get away with an untidy hairdo but an older woman never can, she points out. So hair should always be well-groomed.

As for hats, older women can wear sophisticated styles which are impossible for a youngster. If they can also wear frivolous headgear and look attractive, they should take every opportunity of doing so.

Older women must take more care of their skin by regular creaming and selection of cosmetics, and their hands need more attention.

"Women often worry about being overweight as they get older," said Mrs. Miller. "Ideally, they should try to be the correct weight for their height. But if they really cannot reduce, they must compensate for it by wearing darker colors and taking more care over the fit of their clothes."

CLOTHES PROBLEM

And clothes for older women in Canada are a real problem, says Mrs. Miller. "Canadian manufacturers and designers do not cater sufficiently for older women, although the mature group will spend more money on clothes than younger women can. "This attitude will change if more older women take an interest in clothes and insist on getting what they want."

Born in Alliston near Barrie, 60 miles north of Toronto, she studied art at Toronto and worked in a commercial art studio for 10 years before marrying a Toronto farmer, at $10 a week during the depression.

She draws fashion pictures for stores and magazines, and advises on fashion illustrations. She makes frequent trips to fashion houses in New York, London, Paris and Rome.

Who are the best-dressed women in the world? "Englishwomen," she said. "But the best-dressed office workers are right here in Toronto."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

CHRISTMAS IN JANUARY

How blessedly heart-warming are the cedarleigh recollections that so joyously flash to us as we open our Christmas cards and greetings! What a treasury of memories of friends and friendships! Such a comforting reassurance to hear from dear friends that they've been and still in touch. Their so-welcome Christmas greetings to us remembered ways of remembered days.

Some friendly messages give us a wonderful opportunity to keep friendships flourishing. There's a new wise old saying that urges "Keep Christmas in January." Why not do just that . . . why not in January (or maybe later, but don't postpone it too long) answer these friendship-highlights that thrilled you in your Christmas mail? Every letter you write can be a strong link in the golden chain of friendship, of treasured relationships. Every letter a warm, friendly-to-friend handshake.

"It was such a joy to hear from you at Christmas-time!" Say these magical words, write these magical words . . . good words to keep friendships alive and brightly flourishing.

GROOM'S FATHER IS HIS BEST MAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The father of my bridegroom-to-be is to be his best man. Also we both wish very much to have our parents in the receiving-line at the reception. I know, of course, that in usual circumstances the best man is not a member of the receiving-line. But what about this circumstance of ours? — Bride-to-be

This circumstances of yours is an exception to the usual rule . . . and when the bridegroom's father is the best man he may, if he wishes, be in the receiving-line.

HER MOTHER SHOULD INVITE FIANCE'S PARENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

On the Sunday before New Year's Day my mother and father want to give an intimate dinner for me, inviting only my fiance and his parents. My Tom and I have been engaged for several weeks, but no one knows it except my parents and his parents. He told his parents immediately after we decided to be engaged, but my parents and I have heard nothing from them, and we have not met them.

Tommy assures me they are very happy about our engagement, but I have come to the conclusion that they just don't realize they should get in touch with me and tell me their welcoming-to-their-family gesture to you, it is too late now for you and your family to stand on ceremony. So I think it wise for your mother to make the first social move.

Since there is so little time, perhaps the best way would be for your mother to telephone to Tommy's mother, inviting her and Tommy's father to come to the engagement-announcement dinner. If telephoning is not possible, a cordial note, special-delivery, should be written by your mother. You yourself should not extend this invitation, and you should not ask your fiance to give the invitation.

NOTE FROM MARY:

My sister tells me you are having a very cold spell in Canada. Here in the Ruhr district of Germany normal weather for this time of year seems to be overcast and about 40 deg. Fahr. So Marianne and I and the boys join the great German walking population and have real roses in our cheeks. I hope today that you are feeling happy inwardly over your New Year's dinner efforts.

FRIDAY

QUESTION:

I would like to have recipes how to use sour milk and cream in cakes . . . G.M.

ANSWER:

I will give you a recipe for Sour Cream Cake and a variation adding spices. A good cake calling for sour milk or buttermilk is a spice cake which I will give you along with a variation made by the method using bananas to produce a lovely banana cake.

SOUR CREAM CAKE:

Three eggs, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 2 1-2 cups sifted cake flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 3-4 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoons each salt, vanilla and lemon extract, 1 1-2 cups rich sour cream. Beat the eggs until very thick — at least 5 minutes, then gradually beat in the sugar taking a 5 minutes at least. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Sift over and stir in alternately with the sour cream and flavorings. Pour into greased layer pans bottoms of which are lined with wax paper or oblong pan 12 x 9" greased the same. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 25 to 30 minutes for layers; 40 to 45 minutes for large cake.

VARIATIONS:

To make Sour Cream Spice Cake omit flavorings from the above and add 1-2 to 1 teaspoon each of cloves and allspice and 1 or 2 teaspoons cinnamon and sift them with the flour.

SOUR MILK SPICE CAKE:

Two and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon each baking powder and salt, 3-4 teaspoon each soda, cinnamon and cloves, 3-4 cup brown sugar, 1-4 cup soft shortening 1 cup sour milk or buttermilk, 2 eggs. Into a large mixing bowl sift together the sifted flour, white sugar, baking powder soda and spices. Make a well in the centre and add the brown sugar, shortening and sour or buttermilk. Now beat for 2 minutes or until the batter is smooth. Add the eggs and beat 2 minutes longer. Grease and line bottoms of 2 layer cake pans or 13" x 9" oblong pan or 9" x 8" x 2" square pan and pour in batter. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 minutes for layers; 45 to 50 minutes for oblongs; 40 to 45 minutes for square.

VARIATION:

STREAM-LINED BANANA CAKE:

Two and one-half cups sifted cake flour, 1 2-3 cups sugar, 1 1-4 teaspoon each baking powder and salt, 1 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup each soft shortening and sour milk or buttermilk, 1 1-4 cups well-mashed ripe bananas (about 3), 2 large or 3 small eggs, 2-3 cup chopped nuts are optional but recommended. As in sour milk spice cake sift dry ingredients together into a bowl — that is flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt. Make a well in the centre and add the bananas and half of the sour milk and all the shortening. Beat 2 minutes until smooth. Add the remaining sour milk and eggs and beat 2 minutes longer. Fold in nuts if used. Bake same as sour milk spice cake above.

Let me know if you would like recipes for sour cream cookies and sour milk Devil's Food, but be sure to repeat request and give name and address on each stamped envelope.

Nova Scotians Pay Sales Tax To Get Care

HALIFAX (CP)—Nova Scotians started paying a three-per-cent retail sales tax Thursday. In exchange they get insured hospital care.

New Year's Day brought into province the national hospital plan, the tax to finance it and two other laws passed during the 1958 session of the legislature.

One assures most Nova Scotia employees of at least a week's vacation with pay. The other turns over to private enterprise the job of protecting motorists financially from the uninsured driver.

The tax, to be collected by retailers on a wide variety of consumer items, will be felt most directly. An intensive publicity campaign to soften the blow has been relatively successful. But retailers are still shaking their heads about collection problems.

Twenty-six classes of articles can be bought tax-free. They include cars, children's clothing, fuels and gasoline, farm equipment and other necessities, fishing boats, groceries and newspapers.

The 33-cent price for 20 cigarets will be boosted to 35 cents. A five-per-cent tax will be put on other tobacco products and liquor.

Earl Mountbatten Becomes Chief Of Defence Staff

LONDON (CP) — Earl Mountbatten of Burma is leaving his post as first sea lord to become chief of defence staff, British's No. 1 defence job outside the cabinet. The appointment was announced Wednesday.

The 58-year - old Mountbatten will take up his new post in July, succeeding Sir William F. Dickson, marshal of the RAF. He will be succeeded as first sea lord by Sir Charles E. Lambe, 58, at present commander-in-chief in the Mediterranean area.

As chief of staff, Mountbatten will occupy one of the key positions in Britain's defence organization. He will be the principal military adviser to Defence Minister Duncan Sandys and it will be his job to find the most effective way of pulling cabinet defence decisions into effect.

He also will take over as Britain's representative on the military committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and on other international defence organizations.

BURMA HERO

The son of the Burma campaign and the last viceroy of India, Mountbatten has occupied the same admiralty office his father—Prince Louis of Battenberg—held more than 40 years ago.

But Prince Louis, though considered a brilliant sailor, was ousted from his office in 1914 by the clamor of public mob didn't like his German name or his German ancestry.

His son, a naval cadet, vowed he would vindicate the family honor by becoming first sea lord himself.

Mountbatten, uncle of Prince Philip, was appointed first sea lord and chief of naval staff in 1956 over the heads of six senior admirals.

He began the Second World War as a captain in command of a destroyer flotilla and finished it through the ice of a sloop near Soviet Russia, in the acting rank of full admiral.

From March, 1947, to June, 1948, Mountbatten was viceroy of India and then the first constitutional governor-general of India. On Aug. 14, 1947, the new dominion of India and Pakistan came into being, and on the same day he received an earldom.

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Kingston's Old Warhorse of the sports typewriter has been relegated to the more or less lush pastures of retirement.

But his pawing copy-punching "hoots" will strike fire in their familiar spirits of comment of the Whig Standard three times weekly.

MICHAEL J. RODDEN

Michael J. Rodden has relinquished the sports editing throne he has occupied faithfully and efficiently since May, 1944. He was no stranger to the chairmanship of the sports board when he took over in Kingston. He won his sports-editing spurs with the old Toronto Globe.

The name of Mike Rodden has been known and revered in sports circles longer than we care to enumerate. His retirement age is given as 68.

As sports editor, football coach, and hockey referee, the fighting Irishman's typewriter, flashy and vernal but couples were equally potent. As a coach many grid-lron Red Granges knew the fire of his spoken word. As an editor his typewriter staccato'ed pungent comment that stirred or baloi'd its targets. As a hockey referee many an amateur and mostly professional puckchaser seldom hesitated when the Rodden thumb ordered penance. Mike stood for no verbal defence of infringement of rules.

The grey-thatched chiter and columnist has had a long and colorful sports career, and in this corner's opinion rates a niche in the Hall of Fame.

How many gridiron menders in Canada or anywhere else as far as that is concerned, can boast 27 championship football teams? These included the famous Hamilton Tigers who won four straight Big Four championships, a feat unparalleled in Canadian sports annals, and the Grey Cup twice.

He was one of the most-feared, best-liked referees that ever tooted a whistle or chimed a bell in the National Hockey League. His ability, along with that of a whistle-shrilling buddy, Lou Marsh, was never questioned.

He is the Rocket Richard of the whistle-and-a-water fraternity. His record of officiating at 2,864 hockey games still stands. He also holds the record of refereeing 1187 National Hockey League games, and the mark of officiating at 117 N.H.L. games in one season.

Mike backed from nobody. He had a ready vocabulary, spiced with an old-fashioned Irish wit. If player or fan waxed belligerent, that was O.K. with Mike. His fists were as ready as his tonsils.

The story is told that when Michael J. was officiating in a wild and woolly game in the north country, an irate lady fan shook her fists under his nose and snrilled, "If you were my husband I would give you poison."

Mike mixed gallantry with repartee: "Madam," he replied graciously. "If I were your husband, I would take it."

He was one of the old school and he stuck by his guns. He never yielded an inch to those of the modern generations who argued today's sports greats were better than those of the Rodden era. He wrote reams in the defence of the Morenzs, Cleghorns, Nighbors and others of those bygone hockey years as well as the Bradleys, Batstones and Conachers of your-but-not-forgotten gridiron glory.

The little match that would kindle the flame of argumentative fire in the veins and eyes of Michael J. would be comparison between the professional hockey and other referees of today with those of the Rodden-Marsh-lon dynasty.

But while his loyalty was beyond question, Mike's opinions were vocal and written were straight to the point. He was never a "yes" and Kingston clubs were criticized as well as praised, depending on performance.

Unknown to many Belleville and Kingston fans, the Rodden criticisms of Belleville teams were written to incite and carry on a columnar feud with this department. Many thought bitter enmity existed between this reporter and Michael J. Such was not the case. A firm, warm friendship has existed down through the years.

We join with other sports scribes of the province and country in regretting the passing from active service of one of Canada's most gifted columnists. He is not "gone forever" as his "Sports Highways" will appear three times a week. We trust Mike and his lovely wife will live long to enjoy a well-earned surcease from the daily toil.

Could Rangers Be Surprise Package Of National?

New Year Party Nets Pair And Clutch on Second Place; Hawks Slip Into Fourth Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers are beginning to look like the surprise of the National Hockey League's 1958-59 season.

At the beginning of the season coaches hoping for a fourth-place spot when the schedule ended were almost unanimous in picking New York as one of the teams they'd beat out.

But with 1959 and the second half of the schedule just begun the Rangers are the league's strongest threat for second place.

Starting the New Year right they beat Boston Bruins 5-2 in Boston to take over second by one point from the idle Detroit Red Wings.

THIRD IN A ROW

It was their third consecutive win. They beat Bruins 4-3 New Year's Eve in New York and now have lost only once in their last eight games—a string that included two ties.

Montreal Canadiens, everybody's pick for first place, also hold 11 points but not at the moment they don't look awfully healthy.

Thursday night they got a two-goal jump on Chicago Black Hawks, then saw the lead slip away and had to settle for a 2-2 tie; and Wednesday night they took a humiliating 7-0 licking at the hands of last-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Hawks took advantage of Bruins' double loss to climb into fourth place by a two-point margin on the strength of their 5-3 victory over Montreal Canadiens.

BEST BIRTHDAY

New York's New Year win probably gave goalie John Cotwill the happiest birthday of his 24-year-old life.

The unheralded newcomer scored two goals—his second and third this season—to celebrate his Jan. 1 birthday and Eddie Shack, whose entry in to the league this year caused much more uproar, got his fifth of the season. Other Ranger goal-getters were Camille Henry, and badman Lou Fontinato on a hippety-hop-ity 80-foot shot.

Goalgetters for the luckless Bruins—who have but four in a row—were leftwinger Vic Stasiuk and Bronco Horvath.

Wednesday the New York Boston took a two-goal lead on first-period goals by Stasiuk and Fleming Mackell, then watched Rangers score four in a row before Don McKenney got their third in the third.)

BATHGATE NETS 21st

Dean Prentice, Andy Hebenton, Andy Bathgate and captain Red Sullivan were the New York marksmen. It was Bathgate's 21st this year and both he and Sullivan also got two assists.

Canadiens invited rookie in the first period on goals by rookie Ab McDonald—his ninth—and leftwinger Dickie Moore. It was Moore's 21st and gave last year's leading scorer a tie with Bathgate for most goals this season.

Then in the same period Chicago roared back on a goal by veteran Ted Lindsay, and Ron Murphy broke up the game at 1:09 of the third.

THIRD SHUTOUT

Wednesday's shutout was goaltender Ed Chadwick's third this season and his second in three games since he replaced Johnny Bower in the Leaf nets.

Canadiens fired 28 shots at the lanky veteran but he was equal to every one.

Toronto goals were scored in the first and third periods. The first came from Billy Harris, his 12th this season, and the second from Gerry Ehman, a right-winger acquired from Detroit.

Black Hawks put on a sustained two-period performance Wednesday for their win over Detroit.

After a scoreless first period Gerry Ferguson put them out in front and after rookie Lou Lander tied it for Detroit. Hawks went to work again.

Lindsay, Bobby Hull and Eddie Litzenberger all scored—Lindsay in the second, the other two in the third—and Wings could only manage Gordie Howe's goal with 24 seconds left in the game.

No games are scheduled until Saturday when New York is in Montreal, Toronto is host to Chicago and Boston visits Detroit.

Marlies, Irish Win Holiday Junior Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers gave Jack Conn the green light to play for St. Michael's College Majors Thursday and Cole promptly scored a goal as Majors edged Barrie 4-3 in OHA Junior A action.

Cole's goal was the second for Majors. Pete Rebellato, Jack Costello and Tom Draper scored the others. Danny Patrick, with a pair, and Bobby Rose scored for Barrie.

EASY FOR PETES

Peterborough Petes had a comparatively easy time as they downed Guelph Biltmores before a home-town crowd.

Petes outscored Guelph 2-1 in the first period and then added two for insurance in the second. George Montagano was only one man scoring display, shooting three of the winners' goals. Larry Balsdon tied the early lead.

Jim Andrea scored the Biltmores' goal.

Toronto Marlboros were forced to the limit in edging Hamilton. They grabbed the lead in the first period on a goal by Jim Curry. Cubs tied the score early in the third on Bob Dillabough's goal. Sonny Osborne scored the winner in the final eight minutes.

By PATRICK McNULTY

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—California rooters and Iowa coach Forest Evashevski are feeling unwell today:

The Californians because Iowa handed their heroes a 38-12 Rose Bowl defeat and the coach because he had to get out of bed to do it.

"I've probably the lousiest-feeling winning coach in Rose Bowl history," said Evy.

Nursing the flu, Evy got off a sick bed Thursday and watched his explosive Hawkeyes plaster the Pacific Coast Conference' standard bearer with the 12th loss in the 13 years of the pact with the Big Ten.

California was never in the game.

GLIMMER OF HOPE

There was a glimmer of hope when, on the third play, Iowa's halfback Willie Fleming fumbled and the bears recovered on the Hawkeye 36. But four plays later Cal gave up the ball on downs and Iowa promptly marched 68 yards in 19 plays for a touchdown.

Iowa then proceeded to give a shirtsleeved crowd of 98,297 a dazzling ground attack exhibition.

A horde of Hawkeye halfbacks led by Bob Jeter made a shambles of Cal's gutty but outgunned line. Iowa backs piled up 429 yards on the ground, breaking the old bowl mark of 220 set by Illinois against UCLA in the opening game of the PCC-Big Ten pact in 1947.

Jeter set two Rose Bowl records himself—one for the longest run from scrimmage (81 yards) and the other for most yardage gained (194).

All - American quarterback Randy Duncan and his able understudy, sophomore Mitchell Ogiego, ran the Hawkeye juggernaut to perfection. They passed only enough to keep Cal's defence on edge.

Duncan hit five of seven tosses for 50 yards and one touchdown. Ogiego connected on four of five for 37 yards.

GROUND STRATEGY

"That was our strategy—stay on the ground and pass only when necessary," Evashevski said.

Fleming scored two touchdowns for Iowa, running 37 yards for one and seven for another. Fullback Don Horn, Duncan, Jeter and Jeff Langstbeth each scored touchdowns.

Cal's young and personable coach, Pete Elliott, concurred that Iowa simply had too many horses.

"We all wish we could have played much better," he said, "and I speak for the whole squad when I guess we gave everything he had."

Evashevski offered this explanation why Cal quarterback Joe Kapp was so successful with his patented split-T option play while marching the Bears 74 yards to a touchdown in the opening minutes of the second half.

"We had our corner men playing back a bit because we figured they'd be passing a lot," Evy said.

But then when Kapp got the Bears six points, Iowa quickly tightened up—and that was that.

DECORATE OLMEDO

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Alejandro Olmedo was acclaimed and decorated in absentia Wednesday by the Peruvian government.

President Manuel Prado cabled congratulations to Olmedo in Australia where his singles victory clinched the Davis Cup for the United States. The Chamber of Deputies gave a standing ovation when the news of Olmedo's victory was received. The Senate decorated him with the Order of Sports.

Louisiana Nips Clemson 7-0, Oklahoma Corrals Syracuse

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Louisiana State's national college football champions won a 7-0 squeaker over Clemson, favored Iowa and Oklahoma scored impressive victories, Maryland's underdog Air Force Academy and Texas Christian battled to a scoreless tie in the New Year's Day bowl classics Thursday.

LSU, the only major college all-winning team and favored by 15 points, beating Clemson in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans on a 10-yard pass from All-American Billy Cannon to Mickey Maglasham. A fumble on a bad pass from centre gave LSU the ball on the Clemson 19 to set up the touchdown.

Iowa's Big Ten kingpings and second-ranked team of the U.S. sent a hizzie of fleet backs loose for a 38-12 romp against California in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena. The Hawkeyes had been favored by 17 points. Mercury-footed Bob Jeter featured Iowa's devastating attack within the Rose Bowl run of 81 yards from scrimmage.

SYRACUSE SHOCKED

Oklahoma's ferocious Sooners shocked Syracuse with three explosive, touchdown-producing plays for a 21-6 triumph in the Orange Bowl at Miami. The Sooners were favored by 12 points.

TCU and the unbeaten, once-tied Air Force Falcons fought to a stalemate in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas in a hard-fought contest marked by 13 fumbles, pass interceptions and one field goal attempts—three by Air Force. TCU was an eight-point choice.

These bowl games were the only ones telecast coast to coast. A total of 231,086 fans attended the games.

In the Prairie View Bowl at Houston, Prairie View's national Negro college champions walloped Langston of Oklahoma 34-6 after trailing 8-6 at the half.

BAD SNAP

A bad pass from centre Paul Synder on a punting situation—fourth down and eight to go in the third quarter — led to a fumble, recovered by LSU tackle Duane Leopard on the Clemson on 17 carries.

12. Three plays later Cannon tossed the game-winning touchdown to Maglasham from an end.

"The ball stuck," explained Clemson coach Frank Howard on the vital break. "Bird kid caught a handful of grass and the ball slipped out of his hand."

LSU, in accomplishing its first Sugar Bowl victory in five tries, got 145 yards on the ground in the half.

The first game when first-string quarterback Warren Rabb fractured his right hand and had to leave the game in the second quarter. The second came when LSU's Jim W. Shocknek fumbled the ball just before reaching the Clemson goal line on a short plunge.

Oklahoma brought the Orange Bowl's 25,281 fans to their feet with two lightning touchdown thrusts in the first quarter and another in the third, to survive fighting to make up for its 61-6 humiliation by Alabama in the Orange Bowl in 1953, scored in the fourth quarter and missed in another threat.

SPEED DEMONS

Iowa's speed demons struck hard and fast and before a packed house of 98,297 fans in the Rose Bowl Jeter broke away on a 56-yard Bowl record by rolling for 194 yards from scrimmage. The old mark was 191.

Jeter was ably assisted in the massacre of Coach Marvin Bundy Duncan, who passed for one touchdown and ran for another. The Hawkeyes won on the previous seven yards for two touchdowns. Don Horn smashed over from the one. The other touchdown came on a 50-yard pass from Duncan to end Jeff Langston.

In the scoreless Cotton Bowl contest before 75,504 fans, the Air Force Falcons' Dick Thornton missed field goal tries from the 12, 22 and 42-yard lines.

POINTERS FROM SIX

Oklahoma Jockey Club's 14-day meeting at Old and New Woodbine, Toronto, topped the money wagered at 6,58,374,00 and the one-day meet at Estevan, Sask., where $1,404 crowed the board, trailed the betting field.

Ontario was a run-away leader in wagering with $83,496,631, followed by British Columbia at $52,300,658, Alberta $11,214,088, Manitoba—which had no racing in 1957—at $6,769,368 and Saskatchewan at $1,857,266.

Officials said that while Manitoba's return was partially responsible for the record this year, all other aspects of the industry were ahead too, particularly in Toronto.

There were 37 racing associations compared with 34 last year. Thoroughbred races totalled 3,242 on a grand 2284 days and days racing 420 against 366.

Of the $116,200,000 wagered in 1958, racing association retained $13,202,814.42 as 18½ per cent deduction. Provincial governments collected $7,595,568.44 in tax and the municipalities took out $5,163,-035 in purse money, compared with $4,662,090 in 1957.

Kenny Lane Verdicts Ortiz

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., won a majority decision over Carlos Ortiz of New York in a close 10-round bout at Miami Beach auditorium Wednesday night. There was no knockdown and neither fighter was in serious trouble.

It was a battle between two skilled boxers all the way. Ortiz in the early rounds showed he knew how to handle Lane's southpaw style, getting over a good straight right hand.

The New York battlers seemed to be the stronger in the early rounds and Lane found a jabbed and steered clear of the close-in fighting.

Lane weighed 137 to Ortiz's 137½.

As the fight progressed the left hander from Muskegon began to take the offensive, and when he kept punching away at a decided edge. It was when he held back that Ortiz stalked him and landed his best punches, particularly to the body.

Lane's left eye was cut in the sixth round and bled the remainder of the fight, but it did not seem to bother him.

The last two rounds won the fight for the slick-boxing southpaw. He carried the fight to Ortiz, and landed his best punch of the fight, a whistling left, in the ninth.

Lane is rated the No. 1 contender by Ring Magazine, and Ortiz is given the top position by the National Boxing Association.

On the Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Merrill, from the stretch, is currently operating out of Charleston Town Race Track at Charles Town, W.Va., as racing leading trainer of the 1958 United States thoroughbred horse racing season.

Merrill, who also took the crown in 1957, saddled 167 winners during the year. He finished ahead of Hall of Fame trainer Charles Town Wednesday afternoon with a two-year-old filly, Miss Merrill Lynch.

Merrill's closest competitor was Frank Catrone, 38, who wagered in 165 winners. He is training at the Fair Grounds track at New Orleans.

The 36-year-old Merrill often has asked for the secret philosophy of racing: "Get your horse in shape and then run him where he belongs."

WANTED TO RIDE

Merrill, born in a youngster he thought of a riding career, but the weight problem ended that ambition before he got well started. He ran the gamut of "backstretch" jobs before graduating from a walker of horses and groom to the ranks of trainers.

Merrill's wife, Lucille, a former jockey, is credited with the inspiration that helped him later. He has been very effective in bringing many satisfy Chicago White Sox to the races and has nursed many horses back to health after they seemed hopelessly broken down.

Merrill has horses registered in his own name and also trains for other owners.

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — U.S. riding champion Willie Shoemaker closed out 1958 at Santa Anita by winning four races, including the $17,650 Los Feliz stakes aboard the 8-to-5 favorite Royal Orbit.

Royal Orbit came from off the pace in the stretch and beat Jungle Dancer by 1½ lengths. It was Shoemaker's 203rd winning ride of 1958 in his fourth season as U.S. champion. No other jockey before has been U.S. riding champion more than three times.

Shoemaker's four victories brought his lifetime total of victories to 3,774 and placed him fourth in the all-time U.S. standings behind Johnny Longden, who has 5,228, Eddie Arcaro has 4,190 and Toronto-born Ted Atkinson 3,794.

GIVEN SULLIVAN AWARD

NEW YORK (AP)—Glenn Davis, 400-metre hurdle champion has been named winner of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Award. The award is presented annually by the United States Amateur Athletic Union to the amateur athlete who "by performance, example and influence did most to advance the cause of good sportsmanship during the year."

Sailing smoothly over ten barrels on the ice, Georges Coulter, 23, a policeman from Montreal, shows fine form as he trains for the world barrel jumping championship. They will be held at the Grossinger, N.Y., Country club on January 10. Leo LeBel of Windsor, Conn., the defending champion, will be on hand to try and protect his title.

Track Betting Set New Record in 1958

OTTAWA (CP)—Recession or no, parimutuel betting at Canada's running race tracks reached a record $116,299,663 in 1958—$14,426,618 up on the previous record hit in 1957.

There were more racing associations, more races, more racing days and purses paid owners and winning horses rose by $500,000. However, Alberta and Saskatchewan tracks showed declines.

The betting statistics for the province-wide sport of horse culture department, charged with supervision of parimutuel betting in all provincer's except Quebec province. Statistics for the harness racing year will be released later.

The Ontario Jockey Club's 14-day meeting at Old and New Woodbine, Toronto, topped the money wagered at $6,58,374,00 and the one-day meet at Estevan, Sask., where $1,404 crowed the board, trailed the betting field.

Ontario was a run-away leader in wagering with $83,496,631, followed by British Columbia at $52,300,658, Alberta $11,214,088, Manitoba—which had no racing race in 1957—at $6,769,368 and Saskatchewan at $1,857,266.

Officials said that while Manitoba's return was partially responsible for the record this year, all other aspects of the industry were ahead too, particularly in Toronto.

There were 37 racing associations compared with 34 last year. Thoroughbred races totalled 3,242 on a grand 2284 days and days racing 420 against 366.

Of the $116,200,000 wagered in 1958, racing association retained $13,202,814.42 as 18½ per cent deduction. Provincial governments collected $7,595,568.44 in tax and the municipalities took out $5,163,-035 in purse money, compared with $4,662,090 in 1957.

Mal Anderson Signs Pro Tennis Contract

BRISBANE (AP)—Mal Anderson of Australia has signed a professional tennis contract guaranteeing him $22,500 a year for the next two years.

Promoter Jack Kramer and Anderson made the announcement simultaneously after the Davis Cup dinner Thursday night honoring the United States players who defeated Australia 3-2 in the challenge round.

At the same time Kramer said he expects soon to sign Ashley Cooper, a fellow member of the Australian Davis Cup tandem, to a three-year contract calling for a minimum of $100,000.

"Cooper was very disappointed at losing to Alex Olmedo in the singles yesterday," Kramer said. "He came to us and said he expected we were no longer interested because of his showing.

"We told him positively were still interested. But it made a great impression on us that this boy would have this attitude."

RUMORS FLY

There had been rumors that Cooper might withdraw from his pledge to turn pro in order to make a bid to recapture the Davis Cup for Australia.

Anderson joins the professional troupe on the basis of 15 per cent of the gate in all matches in which he competes.

Cooper, top amateur in the world on his record of winning the Australian, Wimbledon and United States titles, is to get 20 per cent.

"Pancho Gonzales, the champ, and Cooper, the new top amateur, are the only ones now getting 20 per cent," Kramer said. "All of the others, including Lew Hoad, Ken Rosewall, Tony Trabert and Pancho Segura, take Anderson get $15."

The guarantees are basic. All pros have the opportunity to win bonus money in 11 tournaments which total more than $150,000 in prize money.

Weeck Syndicate Buys Control White Sox

CHICAGO (AP)—Tribune Co. says a syndicate headed by Bill Veeck has bought controlling interests of Chicago White Sox.

Veeck, former head of groups which owned Cleveland Indians and Milwaukee Braves baseball clubs, would make no comment.

Veeck's partners are Ripley, whose wife, Mrs. Dorothy Comiskey Ripley is the majority stockholder in the baseball Associated Press:

"It is not true the sale has been made. Negotiations still are going on."

A member of the Sox board of directors, Roy Egan, also denied completion of the deal.

The Tribune adds:

"Veeck's long-range plans, it was learned, include the likelihood of selling Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox since 1910, and possibly playing in Soldiers' Field or elsewhere."

One of the syndicate members is reported to be Hank Greenberg, who recently sold his minority stock in Cleveland Indians.

SILKY LOOKS BAD

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Comiskey Park's Silky Sullivan started slow and finished slower Thursday in his 1959 racing debut at Santa Anita park. Showing nothing, he finished sixth in the seven-horse field in a sprint. A speedster named Caronet came in first in the 6½-furlong Texas Sandman purse with Gold Cover second and Whatiiddoyu third. Caronet's time was 1:16. Silky's time was 1:17 1-5. Willie Shoemaker rode him. Silky, the so-called heart attack horse who was a sensation last year with his stretch drives, was an odds-on favorite with the crowd of 37,000.

Young Boxer Makes Debut On Television

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Fight fans start the New Year with a look at something brand new in Denny Moyer, 19-year-old welterweight from Portland, Ore., who has won all his 18 pro fights.

Young Moyer, of French-Irish parentage, appears on network television for the first time tonight when he meets Mexico's Gaspar Ortega of Mexicali, Mexico, in Madison Square Garden.

The 10-round match will be carried on NBC, starting at 10 p.m., EST.

It may be that Moyer, a former AAU champ, will open and close in one. On the other hand, it may be the first of many appearances in the big arenas.

Boxing certainly needs new faces badly. It can't afford to wait. However, expert opinion has made Ortega an 8-5 favorite. Moreover, the youngster is being rushed when he is pitted against an experienced opponent who has had 62 pro fights.

Moyer has a brother, Phil, campaigning in middleweight. Their father, Harry, also was a pro fighter. The latter thinks he is the promoter in Portland where the boys have had most of their fights.

Under New York rules a 19-year-old can't appear in the big rounds unless special permission is granted. The permit for Moyer was forthcoming for Denny, who has fought six 10-rounders in other areas. The New Yorker has boxers he has beaten while competing his 15-0 record: four losses to Al Andrews, Johnny Saxton and Tony Dupas. Andrews outpointed all three.

Ortega is well-known to boxing fans, live and TV version. He has been in action every year in the tournament set up to determine who succeeds Sugar Ray Basilio. Virgil Akins eventually won the tournament.

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says today baseball's reserve clause copyright story it has been told by baseball commissioner Ford Frick that Cuba has authorized any major league baseball team to order its players out of Cuba unless they agree to cut the players' contractual obligations to Cuban winter league teams.

The newspaper says Frick, speaking from his home in Bronxville, N.Y., told the baseball club owners Wednesday "advising them of the Cuban baseball authority situation in Cuba, and telling them that my office would be glad to help in any manner if they wish to recall the players."

The Globe and Mail says:

"The commission added, however, that baseball as an entity is powerless to compel players to return to the United States, or to sue Cuban players, who will stop playing baseball, if they did not wish to do so.

"Frick spoke as saying the final decision "is up to the teams themselves."

Kenny Lane Wins Over Ortiz

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., won a majority decision over Carlos Ortiz of New York in a close 10-round bout at Miami Beach auditorium Wednesday night. There was no knockdown and neither fighter was in serious trouble.

It was a battle between two skilled boxers all the way. Ortiz in the early rounds showed he knew how to handle Lane's southpaw style, getting over a good straight right hand.

The New York battlers seemed to be the stronger in the early rounds and Lane found a jabbed and steered clear of the close-in fighting.

Lane weighed 137 to Ortiz's 137½.

As the fight progressed the left hander from Muskegon began to take the offensive, and when he kept punching away at a decided edge. It was when he held back that Ortiz stalked him and landed his best punches, particularly to the body.

Lane's left eye was cut in the sixth round and bled the remainder of the fight, but it did not seem to bother him.

The last two rounds won the fight for the slick-boxing southpaw. He carried the fight to Ortiz, and landed his best punch of the fight, a whistling left, in the ninth.

Lane is rated the No. 1 contender by Ring Magazine, and Ortiz is given the top position by the National Boxing Association.

McCarthy, Canadian-Born Japanese With an Irish Name

By JAMES BACON

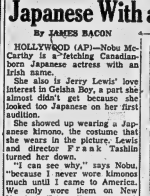
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Nobu McCarthy is a "Canadian-born Japanese actress with an Irish name.

She also is Jerry Lewis' love interest in Geisha Boy, a part she almost didn't get because she looked too Japanese on her first audition.

She showed up wearing a Japanese kimono, the costume that she wears in the picture. Lewis and director Frank Tashlin turned her down.

"I can see why," says Nobu "because I never wore kimonos much until I came to America. We only wore them on New Year's in Tokyo. They are much more popular here."

Two weeks later, Nobu showed up at Lewis' office in sleek American clothes. He and Tashlin took one look and signed her.



"They wanted to change my name to Nobu Akamoto, my maiden name, but I refused. Then I asked every time I met someone the name of the Japanese girl who played Marlon Brando's love in Sayonara. He couldn't, so I said: 'There, that proves it. All Japanese names sound alike to Americans. But Nobu McCarthy, that's a name you can remember.'"

She is married to David McCarthy, an American soldier she met when she was one of Tokyo's leading fashion models.

Nobu is full of paradoxes. Although reared in Japan, she was born in Canada of American and four brothers now live in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Nobu, but my husband says don't ask questions. Just show up for the audition."

AT THE BELLE — Russ Tamblyn receives a lesson in a nursery scene of "tom thumb". Film version of the classic of the beloved children's story, which has been reduced by screen magic to a height of five inches, plays the title of the new MGM production, which combines live action and delight, animated cartoon characters, songs and dances. "tom thumb" is continuing at the Belle Theatre.

This Happened To the One That Got Away

TORONTO — Anglers often wonder as to the fate of the one that got away after breaking the line and taking some form of tackle away with it. Commonly usually range from sudden death to slow lingering death as a result of not being able to eat to sustenance. Quite often a bait is corroded away in a few days by the stomach acids. Not often does it is possible to see what does hap-pen in order to refute or verify these claims.

On September 18, 1958 the Ont-ario Department of Lands and Forests presented Connolly's Lake in Peterborough County. Among the fish killed were a number of pike and Dr. E. J. Crossman of the Royal Ontario Museum was on hand to collect these fish for taxonomic studies of this group. These also were presented to the museum's laboratory. One of them 19 inches total length when examined was found to have in its stomach six pumpkin seed sunfish 3½-4½ inches in length totalling 9 ounces in weight. The stomach was so full that the head was dis-tended to the extent of transpar-ency.

In addition to this large, re-cently eaten, quantity of food there was in the stomach, two inches of 4 lb. test spinning line, a brass swivel and snap-pin and a number 8 snelled hook on 6 inches of heavy nylon. The hook passed through the anterior end of the stomach and the point and barb were imbedded in the liver. The nylon, hook, leader, safety-pin and line were in the posterior portion of the stomach.

It would appear that some spin-fisherman using the bait had set the hook after the pike swallowed the bait, the hook at this time passing through the stomach and into the liver. The spinning line was broken off as the fish took the leader and swivel passed into the stomach.

Although it is impossible to attribute any time element to this incident, there was no sign of capture, scar tissue around the wound in the stomach wall. Nor apparently had the wound or the presence of foreign matter in the stomach prevented the pike from eating.

BUILD NEW MISSION

TORONTO (CP) — The Fred Victor Mission, a 64-year-old city landmark, will be torn down and replaced by a new mission cost-ing $1,000,000. It will provide permanent residence for about 200 elderly men and facilities for transients and a 250 - seat chapel. The United Church of Canada runs the hostel.

May Persuade States to End Restrictions

OTTAWA (CP)—Well-informed authorities here say there is a strong possibility that United States may be persuaded to end restrictions against Canadian oil imports.

They said the issue is to be the to, item on the agenda when Canadian and American ministers meet here Jan. 5 in a two-day attempt to iron out trade problems between the two countries.

There were some indications that if the U.S. agreed to end the curbs against Canadian oil, this would result from joint considera-tion that the flow of oil was part of continental defence—an argu-ment long maintained on the Canadian side.

Other issues are to include wheat, lead and zinc and at-tempts to develop a joint plan to get Europe to push ahead with elimination of quota curbs on Canadian and American goods.

Plan Three Days Of Celebrations At Cornwall

CORNWALL (CP)—Three days of celebrations are planned by this city for international ceremonies marking the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway next summer.

Reports here are that the opening by Queen Elizabeth and President Eisenhower will take place Monday, June 29, shortly after noon on the St. Lawrence River near Cornwall.

Dr. A. A. Phillips, heading a committee newly appointed by this seaway city of 47,000, says tentative plans are for a three-day program tied in with the opening.

The city hopes to attract the RCMP musical ride for one day, the largest regatta ever held in Eastern Ontario for the second, and a bevy of bands, parades and sporting events for the third.

Detailed official plans for the international opening have not been announced.

YACHT CEREMONY

Sources here say tentative plans are that it should take place on the royal yacht Britannia on the international border in the St. Lawrence River. The yacht would be just east of the 76th $7,000,000 international bridge extending from Cornwall Island to Massena, N.Y.

There would be a short speech-making ceremony.

The yacht would then sail two miles west to the Eisenhower lock where all would disembark and travel by cars to the international dam, jointly operated by Ontario and New York state, to unveil a plaque commemorating Canada-U.S. relations.

President Eisenhower then would return to the U.S. while the Queen and Prince Philip visit the relocated seaway villages of Long Sault, Ingleside, Morrisburg and Iroquois.

At Iroquois the royal party would reboard the Britannia and continue to Toronto.

Sunday School Lesson

Religion in a Vacuum

BY ROY L. SMITH

The only religion that is good for anything is that religion which is good for something.

There is a widespread disposition, today, to deny the church the right to speak on the subject of politicis, economics, industry, labor relations, and a long list of other subjects that are associated with the life of the common people. It is some how assumed that because religion is a spiritual matter it is not also a practical matter.

SCRIBES WERE ARGUING

Dr. Halford E. Luccock, the famous Yale professor, in commenting on the case of the scribes in this lesson, once said that they made their mistakes in thinking that they were solving the lad's problems when they were only debating them. There is something very pathetic about the religion that exhausts itself in argument.

An aged man whose piety was the wonder of his generation said of his church, "Thank God, I belong to a denomination that never has a creed. Nothing about anything in our communion that is wrong. Others may boast of their beliefs, but we boast of our activity." And while it is true that good religion is more than action, at least it should be active.

There is a serious question as to whether anyone has ever been converted, made more spiritually minded, as a result of an argument on the subject of religion.

A CHURCH THAT IS NOT ABLE

There is something very serious in indictment that is drawn against the Church in many a community when it is said, "It is not able to do anything about it."

The disciples of Jesus must have been in a most embarrassing position in the presence of the distinguished rabbi. They had been in Jesus' company for many months, and they had witnessed many a miracle, but when left alone with the epileptic boy, they could do nothing.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 4: "Jesus Calls Forth Faith," Mark 5: 1-20; Matthew 17: 14-18.

Let us be charitable of those Galilean fishermen, and consider the causes of our ineffectual lives and efforts.

In one community the churches had developed such a bitter spirit of rivalry that the local high school did not dare invite one minister to speak to the student body without inviting them all. "We could have a lot of religious education in our school," said the principal, "if it were not for the critical attitudes of the ministers of the town." It was a sinful case of being "not able."

BECAUSE THEY BELIEVED

Go back over the records of the great and you will discover that all of them became great because they believed something quite profoundly. It is only the man who can believe in great ness who ever achieves greatly. It was because he believed, that Columbus discovered America. It was because they believed, that the English barons were able to extort Magna Charta from unwilling King John. It was because he believed that Louis Pasteur upset the ancient medical theories and ushered in the new age. It was because He believed ("He trusted in God," they jeered, about the foot of His cross) that Jesus became the redeemer of the world.

A man's beliefs are the most precious and powerful things in his life.

PRAYER GIVES POWER

One can pray without assuming a formal attitude of prayer, or without being in a particular place dedicated to prayer. "No, I cannot say that I have ever failed to put my prayers into words," a young man said, in speaking of the source of his power in the presence of an unusual difficulty. "But I have approached the entire matter in a prayerful attitude, and I have found the situation resolving itself as fast as I have boldly into the undertaking."

Prayer is not a mere matter of reciting words, but the vital and important matter of assuming an attitude.

RUSSIAN ROCKET TO BE PLANET OF SUN

Havana Awaits Triumphal Entry Of Rebel Leader

40 to 50 Believed Dead In Battle for City

Mystery man behind the revolution, bearded rebel leader Fidel Castro, above, gains control of Cuba after two and one-half years of fighting. Castro, who has frequently stated he has no presidential ambitions himself, selected Dr. Manuel Urrutia, a 56 year old lawyer as president. Under the constitution, Castro, only 32, is three years too young to assume the presidency.

HAVANA (AP)—Bearded rebel leader Fidel Castro made arrangement for a quick flight to Havana today to restore authority to this state-torn capital.

A Viscount airliner was warmed up to bring Castro and Judge Manuel Urrutia, the man he has designated temporary president, from their provisional capital of Santiago at the eastern end of the island.

The prospects were good that the provisional government would be set up by nightfall.

Jubilation swept the 1,225,000 people in Havana with the report that a triumphal appearance was not far off for the 32-year-old Castro who drove dictator Fulgencio Batista into exile New Year's Day.

MUST END STRIKE

The first task facing the new regime is to restore order and end a general labor stoppage strike that has paralyzed this big resort capital and created a growing food shortage.

Radio stations broadcast new warnings that anyone caught looting or stirring disturbance would be dealt with severely.

Heavy squads of police, sailors and marines were assigned to watch all vital centres, including government buildings, banks and industrial plants.

Castro's forces are firmly in control of the whole island but they still face the prospect of cleaning up diehard remnants of the Batista regime hiding out in Havana.

Maj.-Gen. Eulogio Cantillo, chief of the armed forces under the short-lived military junta that took over after Batista fled to the Dominican Republic, was arrested.

Castro had accused Cantillo of betraying him after making a deal to hand over Batista (and his aides along with reins of the Cuban government.

Since then Cuba has been without a government.

The situation completed their takeover of the country Friday night when their forces came out of the hills and assumed control of all army garrisons, government buildings and police stations in westernmost Pinar del Rio province.

A fierce and bloody battle between rebel tanks and diehard Batista loyalists accompanied the occupation of Havana by Castro followers Friday. Forty to 50 persons were killed and wild estimates of the wounded ran to 500.

Gunfire was heard in various sections of Havana during the night. Bands of anti-Batista youths roamed the capital hunting enemies of Castro and clashing control of sections of this city of 1,250,000 persons.

AMBASSADORIAL SWITCH

LONDON (AP)—Sir Leslie Fry, British minister in Budapest, today was named ambassador to Indonesia. He replaces F. A. MacDermot, who is returning to London to take up a post at the foreign office.

Mikoyan Wants to Talk Over Problems With Vice-President

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia's Anastas Mikoyan is reported interested in talking over foreign policy problems with Vice-President Richard Nixon when he visits Moscow next week.

It is likely Nixon will agree to meet the Kremlin trouble shooter although during his four- or five-day stay.

Mikoyan, first deputy premier, also is understood to want to meet with President Eisenhower. But the White House has made no move yet to arrange such a meeting, mainly because the visit is billed as "informal."

Mikoyan, accompanied by his son and five aides, is due to arrive Sunday morning in New York for a visit that includes stops in 16 major U.S. cities.

The state department and the Soviet Embassy have placed a cloaking his schedule with myst tery. This is partly due to security precautions aimed at guarding him from anti-Communist demonstrators.

Mikoyan's arrival at New York's Idlewild airport aboard a Scandinavian (SAS) airliner will be guarded by more than 300 New York policemen and at least a dozen state department security agents.

Hungarian groups have announced plans to picket Mikoyan when he visits the Park Avenue

AIR TRANSPORT BOARD SUPPORTS CLAIMS OF CPA

Airlines Likely to Get New Business

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian Pacific Airlines will get an air transport board recommendation for part of the new business it wants.

The board's findings are expected to be handed to the federal cabinet late next week or early in the following week.

The cabinet will make the eventual decision.

An informed source says the air trashport board will recommend some extensions of CPA's franchises, possibly on international routes.

No information was available on what the cabinet might do.

Canadian Pacific has been trying to brain from the board recommendations that would allow it to crack the transcontinental monopoly of the publicly-own.d Trans-Canada Air Lines. Hearings have been held across Canada.

LIMITED COMPETITION

CPA has made a series of proposals to the board for a variety of transcontinental routes which it describes as giving "limited competition" to Trans-Canada. TCA has been operating there could cost it around $12,000,000 a year and run it into deficits.

CPA also offered to take over the Toronto-New York and Montreal-New York routes on which TCA loses money. The government company's big money-maker is the unchallenged transcontinental service.

TCA has had the monopoly on this since its formation in the mid-1930's. It operates services across the Pacific and Atlantic, and some lesser routes within Canada and from Canada to Mexico.

Several years ago, Canadian Pacific applied to the board for a franchise to run a transcontinental air freight service. The application was later turned it down, but it became known that the board had recommended in favor of it.

The current application includes passenger, freight and mail services.

Eisenhower Will Proclaim Alaska 49th State Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today proclaims Alaska the 49th state, pushing the boundaries of the United States 1,500 miles to the west and within eyeview of Russian soil.

The new 49-star flag also will be unfurled.

Several proposed flag designs were presented to the president Friday at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm for his decision. The public and organizations had submitted almost 2,000 suggestions. The new flag becomes official next July 4.

Admission of Alaska as the first new state since 1912 marks the formal end of the territorial status Alaska has held since 1906.

It gives Alaskans control of their government for the first time, as well as a voice in representation in the House of Representatives and Senate.

To reach its goal of statehood, Alaska's first voting members of Congress—Senator-elect E. L. (Bob) Bartlett and Ernest Gruening and Representative - elect Ralph J. Rivers—will take their seats at office when the 86th Congress convenes next Wednesday.

Alaska's entry brings into the union a rich cache of largely unexplored timber, mineral and other natural resources. Its area is one-fifth that of its 48 sister states and more than twice that of Texas.

Politically, the new state government will be solidly Democratic. Democratic Governor William A. Egan—the only elected state official—brought the three-member congressional delegation.

Still unanswered is the question of the terms which Bartlett, for 14 years Alaska's voteless delegate in the House, and Gruening, a former senatorial governor, will serve in the Senate.

This will be determined probably next Wednesday, when they also participate in a Senate election containing three slips of paper marked to denote a term of two, four or six years.

To reach its goal of statehood, Alaska had to beat back the arguments of lawmakers that it was not financially capable of handling statehood and that its separation by Canada from the other 48 states would weaken the union

Will Not Grant Court Trials To Two in Ghana

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters)—Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah's government today indicated Friday that two opposition political leaders, detained for alleged plots to assassinate the premier, will not be granted court trials.

Information Minister Kofi Baako told a press conference the two men are being held under the Preventive Detention Act which permits them to be held for up to five years without trial.

For a trial to take place, he said, the detention order must be withdrawn. He said he saw no reason for this at present.

"Declarations and the use of the preventive detention act, distasteful as they may appear, are necessary to ensure that an irresponsible minority does not destroy the very basis of democratic life in Ghana," Baako said.

The two men detained 45 days ago are R. R. Amponsah, general secretary of the United Party, and J. A. Asafoa, a member of the party's executive.

Government Holds No Fear For 300 Canadians in Cuba

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government today held no fear for the safety of more than 300 Canadians living in revolutionary Cuba.

An official of the external affairs department said that as far as the government is aware, nothing has happened to endanger the lives of Canadians in Cuba.

However, the department could not confirm Friday night reports that Adam Basaraba, 30, of Foxford, Sask., an employee of an American construction company, has been released after being held captive by rebels.

His employer, Clint Murchison, Jr., said in Dallas, Texas, that Basaraba was released after being held several days.

The Canadian Embassy in Havana had been working to bring about Basaraba's release and the man's mother, Mrs. Annie Basaraba, 61, of Prince Albert, Sask., said she planned to appeal to Prime Minister Diefenbaker for help.

While the external affairs department had no fears for Canadians in Cuba, mainly missionaries and bank employees an evacuation plan has been prepared. Decision to use it would rest with the Canadian Embassy in Havana working in co-operation with the British and American embassies.

Ambassador Cuban Ambassador Carlos Carrillo said here he will leave his post and hand it over to a legitimate representative of the new regime.

The ambassador is a supporter of Fulgencio Batista, deposed Cuban dictator who fled Havana New Year's Day, and an opponent of successful rebel leader Fidel Castro.

He said in a statement that "installing a leftist government with strong Communist overtones will affect all Latin American republics."

Why So Slow?

NEW YORK (CP)—If a rocket is capable of a speed of 25,000 miles an hour, why should it take more than a day to reach the vicinity of the moon—about 238,000 miles away?

The answer is that the rocket could not really escape the influence of the earth's gravity.

That force constantly drags at the rocket, slowing it down.

LAMPORT RESIGNS AS CHAIRMAN OF TTC COMMISSION

Clashes Inefficiency, Costly Carelessness

TORONTO (CP)—Willis Lamport quit the chairmanship of the Toronto Transit Commission Friday, disclosing a long-standing feud with his general manager and charging the transportation system has money through carelessness and inefficiency.

Charles Walton, one of the four other commissioners, was named chairman. Mr. Lamport said he would support him.

In resigning from the $15,000-a-year chairmanship, Mr. Lamport made these points:

1. He quit his job—he says as a commissioner at $3,000 a year—to withdraw support of a Rhodes University subway policy decision.

2. Cars on the Yonge street subway system are 10 tons overweight. Mr. Lamport said he didn't discover this until he went to Europe where he also learned it would cost more than $1,100,000 to rectify the problem.

3. Electrical equipment put into the subway trains isn't as good as that in the city's streetcars.

TRACK WEARING OUT

4. Because of the too-heavy cars, trackage supposed to last 15 years is being replaced in four. Mr. Lamport said he had complained across documents and diagrams supporting this claim.

5. Letters dealing with TTC policy reached agreement but never

Will Miss Moon By 5,000 Miles Early On Sunday

Called Last Rehearsal For Real Cosmic Trip

MOSCOW (AP)—The New Soviet cosmic rocket will hurtle past the moon and become "the first artificial planet and satellite of the sun," Moscow radio reported today.

The announcement that the rocket was expected to go into orbit around the sun came as it soared about three-fifths of the distance to the moon, far beyond the height ever reached before by a man-made object.

The rocket will miss the moon by 3,750 to 5,000 miles.

Jubilant Russians already were calling the new rocket Lunik. Students marched through the streets in celebration and some fired flares.

FLARE IN SPACE

The cosmic rocket cut loose a sodium cloud to simulate a comet's tail in the early morning hours. The Moscow Planetarium said bad weather prevented a photograph of the comet tail here but a Soviet astronomer spotted a central Asian observatory got the picture.

A radio broadcast said the rocket, which was launched Friday, was still on course after it had travelled 141,000 miles. The broadcast did not give the time this information was received.

Soviet scientist Anatoli Blagonravov said the rocket's velocity was too great for it to be drawn into the moon's gravitational orbit.

INTO COSMIC SPACE

Blagonravov, head of the Soviet Academy's technical science section, said: "The rocket will not become a satellite of the moon. It will pass by the moon and continue its flight into cosmic space within the solar system."

At 1 p.m. Moscow time (5 a.m. EST), Tass said the moon rocket, launched Friday, had reached a height of 209,000 kilometres (120,-000 miles). This is well over half way to the moon, which is about 240,000 miles from the earth.

The Tass statement said measurements taken on the rocket's course confirm it will pass close to the moon and will become a new planet of the sun."

The Soviet government predicted the rocket will reach the vicinity of the moon about 2 a.m. Sunday, Moscow time (11 p.m. EST Sat.).

It will pass between 3,720 and 5,000 miles from the moon, Moscow radio said.

THOUGHT WOULD BURN

At the time when U.S. scientists thought an American moon shoot would pass the moon and head toward the sun, the Soviet rocket probably would be burned up in the sun.

The Soviet announcement indicated otherwise. The Kremlin expects the rocket to continue its orbit around the centre of the solar system. How, the Russians didn't say.

And there was no indication of how long Soviet scientists expected the rocket to survive as a planet.

The Russians said their rocket's scientific apparatus was working normally. It was reported over northeastern Brazil at 5 a.m. EST today.

Moscow radio said the temperature on the rocket's surface was 15 to 20 degrees centrigrade 127

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia's hammer - and - sickle decorated rocket rushed toward the moon today, leaving another major challenge to the United States in the battle of space prestige.

A congressional demand for more American moon shots came shortly before the Russians reported their rocket had streaked farther into space than any other man-made object.

The Soviet Union predicted the rocket would reach the vicinity of the moon by 7 a.m. Sunday, Moscow time (11 p.m. EST today). At that time the moon will be about 219,000 miles from the earth.

Deputy soviet premier Anastas Mikoyan is expected to arrive in New York a few hours later for his visit to the United States.

DISCUSS MANNED FLIGHT

The Russians say their "cosmic ship" weighs about 3,329 pounds without fuel. A British scientist estimated the weight of all rocket stages at an astounding 26 tons.

Moscow Radio termed the Russian moon probe, launched Friday, the first successful interplanetary flight." Scientists throughout the world tended to agree that the Russian rocket had a good chance of reaching its goal.

The Soviet rocket may prod United States officials into accepting a House of Representatives space committee proposal to rush more shots at the moon.

FOUR ATTEMPTS

The air force and the army have failed to get a three moon shot a rocket beyond it four times. Five times they came very close—but they either missed by 71,300 miles into space—or came one third of the way to the moon.

The Soviets said the rocket had reached "second cosmic speed," the speed needed to send a space ship from earth to a planet.

Reaching this expected speed may have prompted Moscow Radio to announce Soviet preparations are enough an exploration to the moon that "would establish a laboratory and a manned observatory base there for a future space flight."

The broadcast, in English, added no further details.

Hours before the Soviet announcement of the launching, the House space committee Friday told the air force to prepare two more attempts to hit the moon. The new try for a moon shot has been scheduled, possibly for early next month.

The moon rocket is expected to add urgency to the committee's proposals.

MAJOR CHALLENGE

The reported size of the Russian rocket underscored the challenge faced by the United States. There may be enough room in the rocket for a man to eat, breath comfortably and stretch his legs.

They also added to the Russians' chances for success. Leslie Shepherd, director of the British Interplanetary Society, explained in London:

"By using a bigger final stage they are able to incorporate considerably more navigational equipment. It follows that the more equipment of this kind being used, the greater the possibility of success."

The Russians did not announce the weight of all stages of the launching rocket. Shepherd estimated it may have been about 250 tons.

Youth Missing From His Home In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Ont. (CP)—Brent Graham, 16, is missing from his home in this Peterborough district village. He left Wednesday carrying a rifle and ammunition, a hunting knife, two shirts and a Bible, and search parties have been scouring the bush for him for the last two days.

Brent told his brother Peter, 13, that he would not be able to baby-sit for his family while they attended a New Year's Eve party because he was "going away."

Their mother, Mrs. Norman Graham, said Brent told her several times recently that he did not want to return to school after Christmas.

She said he may have decided to go and look for work. His father travelled 50 miles north to Bancroft Thursday to see if he was seeking a job at the uranium mines there, but failed to find him.

Meanwhile, 60 volunteer searchers organized by police hunted unsuccessfully for the youth in the snow-covered bush.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — The cold air that pushed rapidly across Western Canada and the central United States slowed down as it reached the Great Lakes region. Mild weather still covers Southern Ontario this morning. Temperatures however, will begin to drop this afternoon as the colder air moves in, accompanied by a few snowflurries.

An extensive area of snow has developed from Minnesota to Kansas and northern Texas where the cold Arctic air is displacing milder air over the southern United States. In this zone of conflict between very cold and very mild air there is a threat of development of a new storm which would move northeastward toward the Lower Lakes. Present indications from this morning's weather charts suggest that this threat is sufficiently great to warrant a forecast of snow reaching Southern Ontario Sunday afternoon or evening.

Countries Happy With New Deal In Currency

LONDON (Reuters)—The decision of Western European countries to make their currencies convertible is regarded as outstanding success following the first week of financial dealings under the new regulations.

Financial experts also regard France's decision to devalue the franc as a success—mainly because it is accompanied at the time by internal economic reforms.

Britain's gold and dollar reserves fell in December, however, for the first time in 18 months, due to large-scale loan repayments to the United States and Canada.

A treasury announcement said the reserves declined by $145,000,000 and stood at $3,963,000,000 at the end of the year. But the convertibility move was not blamed for the drop, since it came too late in December to be of significant effect.

Sterling and other leading European currencies remained more than looking the dollar in the face since they became convertible—they have held above their parity with it.

IN MEMORIAM

EVANS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, who passed away Dec. 23rd, 1953.
Sweet memories are a treasure,
And in silence I keep them still,
To our hearts there comes a longing
As the only could come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
But they know
When lilies cease to be as smiles,
But they little know the heartache,
Our smiles hide all the while.
Sadly missed by husband John.

EVANS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Annie Evans, who passed away January 3rd, 1957.
Mother, sleep on, take your rest,
Without goodbye you left us all;
In God's garden you lie sleeping,
Peacefully sleeping lies one of the best.
Sadly missed by daughter Gaz Field, daughter-in-law Georgina, and grandchildren Nancy and Ronald.

ASSELSTINE — In loving memory of my dear husband, David Asselstine, who passed away two years ago today, January 3rd, 1957.
In the midst of life we are in death.
We walked with him side by side,
Our hearts were almost broken,
When he said good-bye.
But when we saw you sleeping,
So peacefully free from pain,
We could not wish you back
To suffer that again.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Mabel.

ASSELSTINE — In memory of David S. Asselstine. To my dear dad who passed away two years ago today, January 3rd, 1957.
Memories in our hearts today
Bring back the past so dear,
Although we smile and seem carefree,
Nobody misses you more than we.
Sad by day and lonely by night,
Nothing for cure, but all in vain;
If a beautiful memory could call you back again,
We'd have you here this day.
Without farewell he fell asleep,
To wake in heaven with the blest.
We have lost, but God has gained
One of the best dads we've ever
—Sadly missed by daughter Elsie, son-in-law Walter, granddaughter Judith Anne and Bonnie Lee.

Mothers' March For Dimes Will Be February 2

In more than a hundred Ontario towns plans are again underway for the Annual Mother's March of Dimes to be held in January 31st to February 2. On that night, every home will be visited by a marching mother between 7 and 8 o'clock, with each mother visiting between ten and fifteen homes on her own street.

Last year in a single hour, the marching mothers raised $487,000 in Ontario to finance the rehabilitation of handicapped adults throughout the Province. Part of these funds were used to help to establish rehabilitation centres in six Ontario towns to bring treatment closer to home for hundreds of disabled persons.

Mrs. Dennis Whitaker of Hamilton, resident of the Ontario March of Dimes Board, stated that there are three distinct phases in the March of Dimes program each year.

"The first phases" he said "is Medical Assessment to determine the course of treatment required. Our Medical Advisory members of the Board of Directors take part in this phase of the work.

"The second phase is that phase where the patient is made available to the patient.

VOCATIONAL PHASE

"The third phase made available is phase two" said Mr. Whitaker, "and this can now be done in many instances in the home, or even with the facilities of the new rehabilitation centres established each year.

"Phase three is vocational. Those who, because of their physical disability need not be a handicap. Farmers who cannot walk, but by having wide doors and hand controls on power driven machinery, paraplegic men and women in wheelchairs are performing excellent service as bookkeepers, salesmen, radio announcers, secretaries, machinists, Trenton, Consecon, Carrying Place, Frankford and Belleville.

Ousted Family Of Batista Fears for Lives

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Family and friends of ousted Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista huddled in their homes Friday in fear that rebel sympathizers would kill them.

"We are afraid for our lives," said the ex-dictator's daughter, Mrs. Fulgencio Batista. Daughters arrived here by plane late Thursday in a party of 11 that fled from Jacksonville, Fla., where they said rebel sympathizers threatened their guns.

They said rebel followers in Miami Beach already have vowed to kill them.

Maj. Elmo Fonsdamenech, husband of Batista's eldest child, inquired the lack of luggage.

"If I only had a pistol," he said as he ran his hand over his beard.

The Cuban party included Fulgencio Ruben Batista, the dictator's son by his first wife; his wife; their one-year-old daughter; and Batista's two daughters by his first wife.

The refugees appeared aimless and had no idea of what its next move was.

Felix Valdespino, Cuban commercial attache here, said anonymous callers telephoned his house. They threatened to know the whereabouts of the refugee party and vowing to kill them.

Canadian Highlights of 1958

The dramatic flooding on July 1st of 20,000 acres along the north shore of the St. Lawrence to form part of the new 100 square mile Lake St. Lawrence, headpond for the adjoining U.S.—Canadian generating stations at Cornwall, was the fulfilment of a 30-year dream to develop power in the International Rapids Section of this river. Submerged beneath the artificial lake are all or part of 8 communities from Iroquois to Mille Roches and some 225 farms. Relocation involved the shifting of 6,500 people and 525 homes as well as the construction of 477 new buildings, railways and highways, in surrounding townships.

On April 5 at 31 minutes past 9 on a misty grey morning a mighty explosion whipped the foam-flecked waters of Vancouver's Seymour Narrows into a 1,500 foot fountain tossing huge boulders into the air like pebbles and destroying forever the age-old navigational hazard of twin-peaked Ripple Rock, graveyard of a hundred ships and the men who went down with them. The blast was the spectacular end of a bold enterprise which was 5 years in the planning and preparation; as the boiling waters slowly settled back, the destruction of Ripple Rock took its place as one of the great engineering feats of our time.

In December, Lucile Wheeler of St. Jovite, Que., climaxed a year of sports successes by winning the title Canada's Outstanding Woman Amateur Athlete for 1958. Her double victory in the World Ski Championships held last February in Austria pushed the 23-year-old champion into national prominence.

On May 12th Blackfoot Chief James Gladstone became the first Indian Senator in Canada's history. The 70-year-old rancher from Alberta took the oath of allegiance in cutaway coat and striped trousers, posed happily afterwards in his traditional dress against Ottawa's Parliament buildings.

15-year-old Gail Adams from Drumheller, Alta., walked away with the World Wheat Queen title at the '58 Royal Winter Fair. Britain, France, the United States and Australia were among the countries participating in the international competition. Gail won the award with a sample of disease and drought resistant Chinook wheat.

"The results of the processing of trajectory measurements confirm that the rocket will pass close to the moon and will become a new planet of the sun," the government announcement said.

Director Dimitry Martynov of the Sternberg State Astronomical Institute said he considered the rocket "a true last rehearsal for the real cosmic journey . . . a stage toward interplanetary journeys has been really achieved. . . ."

"The rocket to the sun has already gone farther than the best four unsuccessful U.S. attempts to reach the moon.

The 85-pound, U.S. Air Force moon probe Pioneer I soared 71,200 miles before errors of launching angle and propulsion speed caused it to fall back.

The moon will be about 219,000 miles from the earth at the time the Soviet government says its rocket will get there.

The Russian "cosmic ship" weighs about 3,239 pounds without fuel," Moscow radio reported.

"In view of these developments, preparations will be made to equip an expedition to the moon which would establish an observatory and intermediary base there for a future space flight," the broadcast said.

SPACE STATIONS

The Russians long have talked about setting up space stations in orbit around the earth as the launching point for travels farther into the solar system. The weight of their moon rocket indicates they now can send up a vehicle large enough to carry a man.

But the government did not specify when it would set up an expedition to the moon. No details of the preparations were given.

Even before the rocket had time to leave the earth's atmosphere, the Russians proclaimed it "the first successful interplanetary flight."

They described the space device as a multistage rocket with a Soviet flag and the legend "U.S.S.R., January, 1959" in the nose.

There was no mention of the over - all weight, including the first stages that burned out and dropped off to allow the 3,230-pound final stage to ride on through space. The space vehicle was reported to contain 796½ pounds of instruments. Its dimensions were not given.

GIVES OFF CLOUD

It also carried special equipment to create the sodium cloud of an artificial comet, Moscow radio said. This was supposed to have been visible for two to five minutes in the constellation of Virgo at 3:57 a.m. (7:57 p.m. EST Thursday).

A Soviet scientist was quoted as saying a high-altitude observatory near Alma Ata in Soviet central Asia had photographed the cloud. The photographs were not immediately made public.

"The rocket's instrumentation functions normally," Tass news agency said. "According to the received data, the temperature and pressure inside the instrumentation container remains within the set-limits."

Those limits determine whether the instruments can work properly. Measuring the limits also helps determine whether a human could withstand the trip. There was nothing to indicate any living thing in the rocket.

Some of the instruments reported to be aboard measured the earth's magnetic field as it receded, radioactivity, the gas components of interplanetary matter and the intensity of cosmic rays.

"A colossal amount of information has been received," said Alexander Topchiet, vice-president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences.

Data was being received by radio signals heard at many points throughout the world. Radio technicians in the West who lacked the Soviet code to interpret the signals said they had a high-pitched tone, of varying frequency. The rocket was transmitting from three radio sets.

Bureau Officer Gives Report

TRENTON — In presenting his annual report to the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion, Bureau Officer James Patterson stated that during the past year he concluded 14 cases, and in conjunction with the Dominion Service Bureau, Harold Moyer of Ottawa, investigated and assisted in an additional 38 cases.

These cases involved matters pertaining to disability pensions, medical treatment for veterans, War Veterans Allowances, and the general welfare of veterans their families and dependents.

In addition to local problems, Mr. Patterson also was on cases in Frankford, Carrying Place, Brighton, Smithfield, and one care in Mission City, B.C.

Of the 52 cases dealt with by Mr. Patterson, he was successful in obtaining new pensions or pension increases in 20 instances.

Legion Membership Target Is Exceeded

TRENTON—Final figures released by Provincial Secretary Pat Biggs reveal that the target set by the Trenton Legion Branch of 850 members was exceeded by 31 members.

It is also indicated that the Trenton branch boasts the largest membership of any town of comparable size in Canada and ranks as one of the largest half dozen branches in Ontario.

The membership target for the year 1959, although not yet established, is believed to be in the vicinity of 1,000 members.

Veteran Loses Part of Both Feet by Frostbite

TRENTON — James Spence of Carrying Place Road, Trenton, is recuperating in Kingston General Hospital following an operation which necessitated amputating part of both of his feet.

Mr. Spence was found lying unconscious on the roadside on Christmas Eve, with both his feet frozen. He was transferred to Kingston General Hospital by Weaver Funeral Home where he was admitted to the veterans ward.

At one time Mr. Spence was the Trenton branch's first caretaker, and during the erection of the new legion building last year, he was employed on the construction.

It is believed that Mr. Spence was on his way home to Carrying Place at the time he was taken ill and apparently fainted at the spot where he was discovered.

Cars Damaged In Collision

TRENTON — A two-car collision occurred Friday afternoon at 2.35 o'clock at the intersection of Dundas Street West and Dufferin Avp. A vehicle driven by Harry Lee of the Bloton Cafe, Trenton, had been proceeding north on Dufferin and had stopped for the traffic lights. According to the police report the Lee vehicle then proceeded onto Dundas Street where it struck the second vehicle driven by Robert Ostrum, of Brighton, whose vehicle was proceeding east along Dundas Street West. The combined damage to both vehicles was estimated at $250.

Is Your WILL Up to Date?

Many people review their Will at the beginning of each year. Your executor may have moved away or become ill or become unable to give sufficient time and attention to administer your estate. In view of the considerable changes in dollar values your Estate has probably changed in value.

You may have given too many legacies, or too large in amount, under your Will and have deprived your wife and children of sufficient to provide for their care and keep. You may have to adjust some of the shares going to beneficiaries. Births, marriages and deaths in your family may have made your estate plans obsolete. Increased succession duties and income taxes may affect the estate plans made by you for your family.

Your Will is one of the most important documents you will ever be called upon to sign. If you have a Will, we suggest that you review it now — and if not make your Will now and appoint Victoria and Grey Trust Company as Executor.

It costs no more to have group judgment and financial responsibility.

A DIFFERENT VIEW ON FLUORIDATION

Despite the formation of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, and its program of assisting municipalities to provide an adequate supply of water for their residents and to dispose of sewage, the provision of water is still a municipal responsibility.

It is well that this is so. Otherwise there might arise a difficult question involving the principle of Cabinet responsibility.

Dr. Matthew B. Dymond became Ontario's Minister of Health on Monday of last week. This week, in an interview, he announced his opposition to fluoridation of municipal water supplies.

Mr. Dymond succeeded Dr. Mackinnon Phillips, who remains in the Cabinet as provincial secretary. For years after he assumed office, Dr. Phillips was under a constant barrage by the advocates of fluoridation to endorse it. With characteristic caution, he declined to take a stand, urging the necessity for further study. Finally, however, as knowledge was accumulated, he intimated he believed fluoridation was desirable. Our memory is not good enough to provide even a reasonable facsimile of the words in which his opinion was couched. We do not know whether he actually urged municipalities to fluoridate their water and, indeed, in view of his naturally cautious temperament, and in the light of the fact that fluoridation is not primarily a provincial problem, we doubt whether he went this far. But he certainly indicated that, in his opinion, fluoridation of water would not be harmful to the health of any drinking it and would probably prove beneficial to many.

Dr. Phillips, we presume, has not changed his views just because he has changed his portfolio. We thus are faced with the fact that the two men in the provincial cabinet who are most expert in how one goes about fluoridation of water hold opposing views on the subject.

It ought to be added that in opposing fluoridation Dr. Dymond makes out a reasonable case, in distinct contrast to the "crack-pot" arguments of many opponents. Evidence tends to show that fluorides are beneficial only to children, under 12, he says. The use of fluoride tablets would be cheaper than the fluoridation of all a municipality's water supply, since only a small fraction of the total supply would be drunk by children under 12.

There would, indeed, as he says, be a great waste of fluoride in water used for washing cars, clothes, dishes and people and in water used in industry. What Dr. Dymond fails to explain is how the proper way to persuade all parents of children under 12 to purchase fluoridation tablets. Some will - - but many will not.

GOING STEADY

We see by the magazines that one of the problems which is worrying parents of teen-agers these days is the custom of "going steady."

Reading some articles, we would almost suppose that this was a new development completely foreign to all our traditions. Yet we recall couples who were "going steady" during their high school days thirty years ago. Some of them are happily married to each other, some are happily married to others and some are divorced, though not from each other.

If there is anything new and alarming about the custom of "going steady" it is the isolation in which such couples now seem to exist. We understand that a boy and girl who are "going steady" dance together throughout a whole evening. This would have been considered deadly dull by even the "steadiest" of couples thirty years ago. Nor is this all. Not only must one not dance except with one's steady - one must not even look.

One authority suggests that the practice of "going steady" may forecast a complete change in the marriage pattern of adults in the years ahead, introducing a system of monogamous alliances of short duration. This seems somewhat similar to marriage customs in the redwood today. It is in distinct contrast to the customs of some other ages, when permanent alliances, with temporary dalliances for the male and even in some societies for the female, were the vogue.

And we wonder, too, whether many parents, worried about their "going steady" offspring, did not miss an opportunity on New Year's Eve. Perhaps the teen-agers should have been given an opportunity to attend an adults' party and to watch the ever-changing partners under the mistletoe.

George Bernard Shaw, who is reported to have said that youth was too precious a thing to be wasted on children, might possibly have been added that "going steady" modern style was too dull to be endured by anybody out of his or her teens.

THE DREAMER

By EDGAR A. GUEST

My part in life—
What is it, pray?
To face the strife
From day to day,
To fight for place
And fame and gold,
And keep the pace
Until I'm old;
To rush along
With visage stern;
One habit, strong,
And that, to earn?

Or may I rest
'Neath sunny skies
And look with zest
And eager eyes
On waters blue
And meadows green,
And faith renew
In what is clean,
And pure and sweet?
May not I dream
And dreaming, meet
The Master's scheme?

Water Can Save Mid-East

By Eric Johnston, in the New York Times Magazine

In the fall of 1953 I had an experience in the desert a few miles from Amman, the capital of Jordan, that downgraded virility and unforgettably what water can mean to the parched land, and to the millions of people who live by the land, in the arid Middle East.

I had driven into the desert with the Jordan director of the United States Technical Assistance mission to Jordan — a Texan with a strong feeling for land and a lot of practical knowledge about how to irrigate it.

For about an hour we sped through barren, sun-baked wasteland. Then my Texas friend veered suddenly off the road, took past straight across the desert, then stopped the car and brought the car to a dusty stop.

Before us was one of the most extraordinary and exciting sights I have ever seen — a green area of lush green grass, waist-high, waving in the gentle wind.

"Come on," the Texan said. He walked toward the car. We left the car and walked 50 yards, to the line — as sharply defined as a property line — where part of the green of the grass met the brown of the desert. On the desert side we were stalking through the tall grass itself while the man from Texas quietly explained what brought this seeming miracle of growth. The explanation was a single word: water. No seed, no fertilizer — only water.

Drawing on his experience in our own arid Southwest, my companion had bulldozed a series of earth dams in a sloping pattern across one of the gentle depressions, or wadis, so common to the deserts of the Middle East. For long annual stretches he had to wait for rain, but when it finally came, in one brief, torrential downpour, the dams had caught and held the water that otherwise would have poured over the wadi in the swift, eroding flood, leaving the land as dry and wasted as it was before.

The water from that one shower, he told me, had been enough to penetrate the baked earth, has produced from the desert soil enough for any farmer in Kentucky or Kansas or Oregon to have been proud to call his own.

I was reminded of that field of rich, green grass in the desert recently when Senator Lyndon Johnson read to the Senate this description of a section of Texas written by a visitor a hundred years ago:

"It is an ocean of desert . . . where the voice of man is seldom heard and where no living being . . . exists. The unusual absence of water causes animals to shun it."

Johnson's description of the rich east states in the richest nation of the world — "a land of infinite diversity," as Senator Johnson put it, "yet held together by a single, unifying challenge. That challenge is water. It is the key to our future."

Today, the Middle East is being visited by many a hundred years ago. And the key to its future, too, is water.

The simple figures tell the plight of people in the Middle East. In the Arab states, population is increasing from 34 a year in Saudi Arabia to 3.1% in Iraq. Only in Israel, with an average worker and industrial economy, is population static.

Ninety per cent of the people, in suffers from one or another of the debilitating diseases endemic to the region. Life expectancy is under 30 years. Infant mortality is 50 per cent in Jordan, 60 per cent in Libya, illiteracy in the Arab countries is 90 per cent and 95 per cent in Saudi Arabia and Yemen, now. than 95 per cent.

The area we are considering embraces some 800,000,000 acres of land. Of this, not more than 50,000,000 acres — is under cultivation now. The crux of the problem is to increase the present total of usable land by utilizing every available source of water and creating new ones.

In addition to the natural resources — rivers, and underground springs — there is an immense precipitation in the prospect that scientists soon will find a way to convert the salt water of the Red Sea and elsewhere at a cost that will allow its use on a vast scale.

When the huge, immense areas of the Middle East can be brought into production by the simple process of pumping water inland through pipe lines from desalinization stations operating on the coast.

It takes little imagination, to foresee what this could mean to all the nations of the Middle East. Egypt would be released from its centuries of bondage to the Nile; great desert regions of Saudi Arabia, Syria and Iraq could be transformed into farms; Jordan could establish an agriculture like that of Israel, most economically viable.

The solution isn't time to wait. It needs to develop its existing water resources with all possible haste. The Middle East's demand for higher standards of living cannot be satisfied by the piecemeal things it has done. Far more must be done by immediate and dynamic action toward the creation of new opportunities and new hope.

With the great potential benefit at stake, why have the nations of the Middle East made so little progress in the development of their rivers?

The United Nations has offered to finance a $200,000,000 program in the Jordan Valley; it has recently offered the government of Jordan for a project on the Yarmuk River, a tributary to the Jordan Dam, despite doubt of its economic soundness, qualified for the World Bank. In the distance until Nasser short-circuited the deal by turning to the east.

If neither plans nor money have been lacking, why has not the pace of river development in the Arab nations been so slow?

The answer, I think, lies in these factors: the basic instability of the region; the intensity of inter-Arab rivalries; the Arab's emotional rejection of Israel, and the modern ideas of Arab nationalism and social ferment that has made the region a hotbed of trouble.

In this charged atmosphere the Arab states have found even a simple fact, fundamental to river development in the Middle East, a matter of politics. This is the fact that rivers ignore political boundaries. Their watersheds are not defined by political lines.

Instead of attacking the rivers on a regional basis, watershed by watershed, each country has preferred to go it alone with its own portion of a river happens to be in its territory. This is the fact that rivers ignore political boundaries. Their watersheds are not defined by political lines.

Instead of attacking the rivers on a regional basis, watershed by watershed, each country has preferred to go it alone with its own portion of a river happens to be in its territory. This is the fact that rivers ignore political boundaries. Their watersheds are not defined by political lines.

The crucial question remains: Can the Arab states prepared to develop these water resources?

No one else can make this decision. It must be made by the Arab states and the Arab states alone. Up to now they have proved themselves unwilling to do so. Their political rivalries and actions have been precisely the reverse of what needs to be done. Nothing is more characteristic of the Arab states than that they keep political interests apart and together on regional watershed developments.

If they do, that field of green grass in the Jordanian desert can spread throughout the Middle East.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON ENTHUSIASM

We grow interested and enthused as we look upon the many enthusiasms of others. Take Bowling, for example. I used to look upon this sport as uninteresting and rather a waste of valuable time. Then one day I thought I would try the game. I became so interested I took up one type of bowling — and became the outstanding player in my local club.

Interest in this game has now become almost phenomenal. New clubs and alleys are being built to expand across the country. It's a fascinating game, taking skill, good temper, and an accurate eye. Rarely has any sport aroused so much interest in so short a time. Both men and women, as well as teenagers, have taken to this revival of a great game, and its new popularity is growing by leaps and bounds.

The exhibition hockey game played here between the local intermediates and the Mic Mac Athletics of Kingston was a good game and resulted in victory for the local team, the score being 7 to 6. The following composed the local team: S. C. Spangenberg, Peggy, Wallace, Allen, Carl Spangenberg, Burke and Reeves.

China Hurts India's Trade

Houston Post

The Communist economic offensive designed to lure free nations into the orbit of Communist influence is not confined to the efforts of the Soviet Union and its immediate satellites. While Soviet trade missions wander over Latin America, much of Africa and the Middle East, Red Chinese are doing a substantial business in Asia and thereby gaining footholds in free world financial markets.

Cheap consumer goods and easy terms are Red China's wedge. Like Moscow, the Peiping government does not limit its trade to essential needs at home when it invades a foreign market. It can undercut the competition without considering about whether a profit is made.

India long has exported textiles to such places as Indonesia, Malaya, Thailand and Burma. Recent reports from them have said that Red Chinese textiles are replacing Indian textiles. Indian exports of textiles this year are almost 50 per cent less than last year.

Besides textiles, India's exports of peanut oil, light engineering products and coal have been hurt by the cut-throat Red Chinese competition.

Ceylon, for example, formerly bought its rice from India and from Indo-China. Last year when Ceylon asked bids on 1.7 million tons of rice, India expected to get the order. But Red China got half of it, in a barter deal for Ceylon's rubber. Indian traders try to avoid barter deals.

But as India's textile manufacturers who are bearing the brunt of the Red Chinese offensive, have learned, it is not done by standards in this country, or even those of India and Italy, but Red China is selling textiles in Southeast Asia at 10 to 15 per cent below Indian prices. Burma, for example, imported 3.9 million yards of Indian cloth in May, 1957. In May of this year the total was only 232,000 yards. Similar collapses have occurred in the countries.

Thus far the government of India has not protested. Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru at a recent press conference said he did would have to face the fact of Chinese competition.

But Bombay's traders may not be so philosophical. It is not impossible that they will demand more than philosophy to assuage their pain.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

THE VEINS HAVE A BLOOD PUMPING MECHANISM OF THEIR OWN

Your veins aren't just a drain to carry used blood back to the heart — they do some active work.

This, I think, is a fact that has escaped most of us for a long time. I admit that I escaped myself until recently read an article written by Dr. Arthur C. Guyton in a technical bulletin published by the American Heart Association.

There's no reason to bore you with much of the article, which happens to be of absorbing interest to physicians who must prepare and interpret the pressures in the circulatory system.

The central thought, however, can be of interest and use to all of us, doctors or not. Dr. Guyton points out that the veins have by a blood-pumping mechanism of their own. It isn't just a matter of blood being pushed into the arteries by the heart, and this outward pressure in turn pushing the blood, by force, back through the veins to the lungs to be purified, and the heart to be pumped again.

There are many little valves in the veins so that as the blood moves onward (especially upward through the veins of the legs) it cannot fall back. Each valve holds it, waiting for a further push.

The next "push" doesn't have to be another heart beat. It may be simply the contraction of muscles, which squeezes the blood onward, always past the valve.

As little a movement as shifting the weight from one foot to the other, when you are standing still, contributes something to the flow of blood. Dr. Guyton remarks. Even small movements have an effect.

VALUE OF EXERCISE

Now, you ask me, why make such a to-do about this? Quite aside from the scholarly significance, I would say that this is of some use to all of us. We live in a lot about the size of a circle. What good is exercise? One of the benefits is that it helps the circulation in the veins as well as in the arteries.

Further, it is an exaggeration of the reason for something that has been voiced in the past in this column. If you suffer from leg cramps, or varicose veins, and still have to stand in one position for long periods, move your feet a bit, change position, shift weight! Don't stand still. It's the nature of the veins is the answer. It helps improve your circulation by moving blood upward through the veins of your feet and legs.

This isn't wholly a new thought by any means. But the importance has been generously neglected. And it may prove, to personal gain, light engineering products and coal have been hurt by the cut-throat Red Chinese competition.

Ceylon, for example, formerly bought its rice from India and from Indo-China. Last year when Ceylon asked bids on 1.7 million tons of rice, India expected to get the order. But Red China got half of it, in a barter deal for Ceylon's rubber. Indian traders try to avoid barter deals.

Dear Dr. Molner:

My son had measles three years ago and is in bed 47 days. Would you advise penicillin once a month?
— Mrs. J. L.

I gather that your doctor already has expressed that. I heartily agree. A slow-acting, long-lasting type of penicillin is used for this purpose. I would say that this practice has been used to effect, with success, that it is virtually a routine procedure for such cases. The point, of course, is to prevent another attack of rheumatic fever, and the method works well.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that epileptics can't take civil service examinations? If they can't why not when it is said their I.Q. is above average?
— Disgusted."

I can't answer for all the civil service commissions in the country. They may have different views. However, the attitude toward epileptics is far more enlightened today than it was 10 years ago — and I think every year brings further progress. You can't join trailer camps about I.Q. any longer. I. Q. varies from person to person, and from epilepsy to epilepsy, but

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Epiphany, Holy Day of Lights

By E. HOWAR V. HARPER

Tuesday, Jan. 6 — Today is Epiphany, one of the big festival days in the Christian calendar. It is also called Twelfth Night, because it falls 12 days after Christmas and marks the end of the liturgical Christmas season. The Greek word "Epiphany" means "showing" or "manifesting." The reference here is to the showing of the Baby Lord to the Three Wise Men, and, by extension, through them to the whole Gentile world.

The Greek name of this festival shows that it was of Greek origin. It was, and still is, a very big day in the Greek church. They also call it the "Holy Day of Lights." "Light" here refers especially to the illumination that comes with baptism, for tradition says it is on this day that Jesus was baptized by John in the river Jordan.

Far more important to western Christians, who do not emphasize this as the Lord's baptismal day, is the light of the star the Wise Men followed to the manger in Bethlehem. But whether the light is associated with the star or with inner illumination, Epiphany has come, particularly in recent years, to be the occasion of a special and lovely candlelight service in many churches, Protestant as well as Catholic, All across the country, tonight or next Sunday night, congregations will thrill to the beauty of glimmering processions in otherwise darkened churches, dramatizing the fact that on this day centuries ago the Light of the World was first recognized beyond the confines of Jewish tradition.

Candles have been used for religious purposes since long before the beginnings of Christianity. Of course they were familiar to all early Christians who had a Jewish background, for candles were an important part of Temple furniture and ritual. But they were just as well known to people of pagan nations, and most of the superstitions we have about candlelight come to us from the heathen.

For example, the belief that a ring of candles around the baby's crib will keep evil away is hooked up with the worship of Vesta, the Romans' mother-goddess. Nothing pleases Vesta so much as flame. Remember the Vestal Virgins, the girls who kept the fire going in the Temple of Vesta? You can take the circle of candles as a personal tribute to her, and will not allow any evil spirits to enter it.

There was good practical reason why candles became connected with Christian ceremonies very early. During the first 300 years of Christian history there was always the danger of Roman persecutions. For safety, Christians met either in someone's home before dawn or in the eternal darkness of the catacombs. There they needed candlelight just to see what they were doing, but eventually worshippers found that the lights attracted attention, so they gave up the practice.

Though the church is brilliantly lighted by electricity, Some historians believe the two "eucharistical" or "mass" candles, which now stand one at each end of the altar, go back to two candles or lamps set at the ends of the coffins that served as altars in the catacombs.

In Ireland on Epiphany it's an old custom to fill a sieve with oats and then set twelve candles around it. In the center a taller candle is placed. This is done in memory of the Lord and His apostles, all of whom were — and are — the lights of the world.

A tradition, not of Christian origin but followed by many Christians, requires that candles used in religious ceremonies be made of beeswax. The reason for this is said to be the ancient belief that bees came from paradise and therefore the wax they supply is in itself heavenly material.

If your candle burns with a blue flame there is a ghost about. If it sputters and gives off sparks, you are going to get a letter.

The Bible Today

New Year's resolutions will be formulated this week by many well meaning people. Good resolutions will have to do with matters of religion and morals.

Faith can be forfeited by regular reading of the Bible and daily prayer. Here are suggestions:

1. Set apart a definite time each day for reading your Bible.
2. Take up your Bible with expectancy.
3. Pray for understanding.
4. Look for both comfort and challenge in the passage for the day.
5. Commit to memory any key verse which seems to speak directly to you.

The Bible Society will send you a list of daily Bible readings to stimulate your faith and nurture for each day.

The Fringe of Fashion

By ALICE ALDEN

This is a season for fashion accessories... That one pair of gloves or that one handbag, handsome though they be, just won't do for all occasions. Every type of dress, every occasion, has its proper accessories. For instance, Josef does a handsome fringed pouch of shirred peau de soie. The animation of the gently swaying fringe adds interest to the trapeze line of the bag. A self-covered frame, plus the touch of a delicate, silver-pleated clasp, add the final accents of elegance.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Annexation is for the birds or so it seems. T and T wonders if others saw flocks of large black birds yesterday morning. There were dozens of them, but we did not get a close enough look to tell whether they were black birds or not. They certainly were not sparrows. On the 31st morning, we were amused to see a large truck driving up our road. By its very bearing we guessed that it was a truck with a purpose rather than a test vehicle. The driver got out and seemed to be making a reconnaissance.

Hurriedly we dressed to see what it was all about. We will get accustomed to our new status. Probably the driver thought we were a little stupid and that early on January the second in a spanking new year we were slightly befuddled. Little did we realize or think or remember, that, of course, we were Bellevillians in point of fact as well as spirit." At any rate the driver was cheerful and wide awake. He called out a "Happy New Year" to us and said, "I'm just exploring my new garbage collection route." "Hardly that," left unsaid but we saw two separate flocks of birds, "Hardly that" left unsaid but we saw two separate flocks of birds, "Hardly that" left unsaid but we saw two separate flocks of birds, "Hardly that"

Second Glance

"Ciad Mile Failte". ("A Hundred thousand welcomes.").
Gaelic greeting.

We'd like to add that Cape Breton is a "Keeper of the B's", as well. Just look: Bras d'Or, Baddeck (accent the last syllable, never mind if the accent is on the first in Antigonish—"The sort of thing keeps you very busy while travelling in Scots, Scotch," comments one travel writer), Bay Basin Shreigh, Boats, Brilliant Benefactor, Beloved Building, Bird, Bell . . .

Even a benign finger touches the pulse of a distant B—our own city of Belleville, with the U.S.S. in our midst and Trenton Air Field our cousin and . . .

But to clarify - -

Baddeck - - (the source of Alexander Will Bird's fabulous story of a local Scotch farmer who put his rooster under a clap-board washtub in his bed-room to serve as Dawn's alarm clock, that he might arise in time to ride with the neighbor farmer to town - and awoke around ten) - - find the suffocated rooster dead. He cried out, " . . . and a mighty good thing ye are!" - - lies, as you perhaps well know, about fifty miles south west of Sydney. A beautifully situated area of Bras d'Or lake, and harbors the famous Inland Yacht Yard. The owner, Mr. Pinaud, designer and builder of many fine boats, now in his seventies, is very active.

"My father", said his daughter who paused from cutting grass that grows around their white clap-board "Cape-Cod" house to the Bay's edge, is now one of Baddeck's oldest living men who worked with Dr. Bell and Glenn H. Curtiss, in his experimental work."

Dr. Bell? Who was he? Bell — a common enough name just conveys nothing at this point.

" . . . and yonder across the bay — you can just see the white sails — is the yacht which my father designed and built for Dr. Bell who presented it to his daughter as a wedding gift, and which my father has serviced for Dr. Bell ever since. In fact, this is some kind of a record. And that boat at anchor, just there — behind — is Bell's speed boat."

" . . . This Dr. Bell", we begin — A short pause.

"Surely — you know; Alexander Graham Bell? Why his estate is across the bay where that baseball is — by the yacht" . . . and right, for that, and our sakes, we say, we "booked up" on the Dr. Bell booklet, obtained at the hotel, the minute we returned from this discourse!)

BORN IN SCOTLAND

Discovered — (you'll likely know us this) — he was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on March 3, 1847. He was bullied, (due to a father and grandfather with same) interest in speech-training, which led to formal studies at both Edinburgh and London Universities.

From threat of tuberculosis, the Bell family came to Canada and settled at Tutela Heights, near Brantford, Ontario, where Alexander not only regained his health, but conceived the principal of transmitting sound which ultimately led to his telephone invention in the States, where he had gone to engage in teaching and science — and become a citizen.

Learned— that the 70's, though difficult career — wise and met with courage and spirit, did bring him love and marriage.

But that the 80's gave rise to fame and fortune is the result of his telephone invention, (which brought security), as bestowal of the Volta Prize by France, an honorary Doctorate of Medicine from the celebrated Heidelberg University. And, a decision to return to Canada to do his experimental work during summers — due to a chance steamer trip through the Bras d'Or lakes to make a brief stop at Baddeck. The scenery stirred fond memories of his native Scotland. He returned the following year and bought an estate.

" . . . he called it Beinn Bhreagh (Beautiful Mountain)" Miss Pinaud said. "He not only built a lovely home, but a fine laboratory where he carried on his many experiments.

"He's even buried there—high on the side of what he always called his beautiful mountain in a spot he loved very much. It was his wish.

"Canada has dedicated a museum to Dr. Bell and his associates, which is generously filled with authentic records offered by his daughters, (Mrs. David Fairchild and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor). It was built after I believe and well worth seeing."

"That's a promise," we answered, to cover our confusion and over our appalling ignorance. Very first thing — in the morning!

KITE FLYING PAID OFF

After breakfast, in the pine-panelled hotel dining-room, cosy and cheery with a dancing fire (summer mornings are often really chilly here), in the huge fire place, semi-circled with inviting wicker chairs for coffee cup "seconds" and chats with fellow guests, we hear said from —

"Kite flying paid off. At least for Bell it did. Led to his discovery that aircraft heavier-than-air could be flown. Experiments with his kites for best shape and came up with a geometric form called the tetrahedron cell. Was a form of three-side pyramid resting on a triangular base.

"The Dominion Government kept this theme in mind architecturally, as a kind of tribute. Actually it is very in keeping with Bell the experimenter, as a collector of stamps — for that building is so ultra-modern, it is a museum piece of three-side cell thing you'd expect to be called a museum."

Which recalled these words upon our first sight of the museum. "Impressive, certainly" we think, as we behold a creation of huge triangles pressed together (wood, steel and real glass) even the window panes are triangular in shape.

To see the museum is one thing. To enter it, is another. "Graphic" and "Magnificent" Sam Bell ceases to be just a name. A realization seeps through one's consciousness here looms a tremendous force that is responsible for the wheels set in motion today pertaining to science, eugenics, aerodynamics residence, marine engineering, electricity, and speech.

"And I thought he'd only invented the telephone," commented my companion.

"This feller was a sure-nuff wizard," exclaimed another.

"Where'd he find time to have ideas on the iron lung, radium for tuberculosis, tracing over 2,000 members of one family to a single ancestor, the Acadian families, the hydrofoil boat, submarines, sheep breeding, (wanted a sheep with extra protein-content) — why, you'd need a couple of life times. It's positively dizzying!" and not to mention aviation"

We pause to take a second glance of the Beautiful Mountain as seen from the picture-window that over-looks Baddeck Bay and beyond. We know for a certainty once back in Belleville, we shall never pass the O.S.D. or the Trenton Air Field again — with indifferent eyes.

RECALL FIRST FLIGHT

For instance, the glittering plane at Trenton with the inscription: Baddeck Bay here, where we used the thrilling first flight by a British subject in Canada and the British Empire" was taken (in the Silver Dart (Feb. 23 1909) and flown by J. A. D. McCurdy — the first to make a "figure eight" in the air, the first to send and receive an aerial wireless message and one of the first to "advocate aerial bombing."

How appropriate that a school for the deaf and an aviation field should be so placed as in Belleville's vicinity. For the one, Bell's devotion will be remembered, the way derived from the other as are ripples from a pebble dropped in a pool.

What, in Dr. Bell's case, was the pebble that was dropped in the pool of science?

It was his dedication to free the deaf from an almost impenetrable barrier from normal life. Deafness was considered a curse by the feeble-minded, hidden away or confined to institutions. One of his pupils was Helen Keller, who wrote later: "Hearing is the most human-humanizing philosophical statesman possessor, and lonely ones all over the world, because of Dr. Bell's efforts, have been brought into the pleasant social ways of mankind."

She also spoke of deafness as: "that inhuman silence which severs and estranges," and Mabel Lenerz, the French writer, wrote: "Deafness is suffering more inhuman than deafness."

And yet — was there some spot to such dedication?

Perhaps you can decide the answer when reminded that the two women in his life and work — had both lost their hearing.

His mother — who became deaf when he was twelve. And:

Because of this brilliant benefactor, now a small integral part of Cape-Breton, the reply to Ciad Mile Failte are on the lips from Canada at large and all the world.

Next to Dr. Martin Luther, the Rev. Paul Gerhardt was Germany's most gifted and influ-ri- our writer of hymns.

He wrote many very precious religious songs including "O Sacred Head, Now Wounded", "Jesus, Thy Boundless Love To Me", and this beautiful Nativity hymn, "All My Heart This Night Rejoices".

The latter hymn was written in 1653 and was translated into English for wide use more than 200 years later by Miss Catherine Winkworth. Miss Winkworth, as an English woman, was born in London in 1829. She won world-

"ALL MY HEART THIS NIGHT REJOICES"

All my heart this night rejoices,
As I hear, Far and near,
Sweetest angel voices;
"Christ is born", the choirs are singing.
Till the air, Everywhere,
Now with joy is ringing.
Hark! a voice from yonder manger,
Soft and sweet, Doth entreat,
Free from woe and danger;
Brethren, come! from all that grieves you
You are freed: All you need
I will surely give you."
Come, then, let us hasten yonder:

Kneel in awe and wonder;

Much of Mr. Gerhardt's life was marred by tragedy and tribulation. He was the son of a German burgomaster and was born at Grafenhainichen, near Wittenberg, in 1607. He attended Wittenberg University and later settled in Berlin, in 1651, when the Thirty Years' War ended. He was ordained to the ministry. Forty years later he resigned his pastorate because he enjoyed high esteem as one of Germany's outstanding clergymen.

Then, in 1663, along with other ministers of his day, he was ordered to sign an edict issued by Elector Frederick William, banishing Calvinism. He refused to sign the church post. His wife and four of his children died. He spent 10 more unhappy years in preaching at Lubben and it was here that he died, in 1676. The world will treasure always those bright songs which he wrote during his hapless years — including his Nativity verses:

"All my heart this night rejoices,
As I hear, Far and near,
Sweetest angel voices;
"Christ is born", the choirs are singing,
Till the air, Everywhere,
Now with joy is ringing."

A Lift for Living

Putting Your Best Into Life

By R. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Firmly embedded in the m[illegible] of our race is the old maxim, "Self-preservation is nature's first law." When a person is up against the choice between life, death, the popular assumption is that he will struggle to the last ditch in order to save himself.

Sometime ago the press reported the death of a young Hollywood actress. Her career had begun with great promise. But a few months after she injured her spine and suffered a partial paralysis. Her physician in announcing her death said, "I felt that for the last few months she had not the will to live." So untrue is such a state of mind that it received hesitant attention.

In view of this prevailing will to live, what are we to say about the words as given in the [illegible] eyes and ears of those around her? Listen: "For whoever would save his life shall lose it; but whosoever loses his life for my sake, he will save it." Jesus counsel us against trying to save our physical lives?

Some modern skeptic [illegible] the words as applying to the martyrs of the first Christian century. They were true to the gospels were just reassuring the early Christians who were being persecuted that if they gave up their lives for their faith, they would surely enter into heaven.

But to leave it at that is not quite in line with Jesus' general teaching. Jesus did not work on the principle of bartering earthly possessions for heavenly ones. That He came to enrich life here in this world was made clear in His first sermon in the synagogue at Nazareth, when He announced that He had been anointed "to preach the acceptable year of the Lord" — to bring sight to the blind, healing to the bruised, deliverance to the captives, and good tidings to the poor. Jesus Himself was not a mere "preacher of pie in the sky bye and bye," as the Communists sneer.

MORE THAN PROMISE

Hence when He said: "Whosoever would save his life shall lose it and whoever loses his life for My sake, he will save it," He was not promising a reward of broader and deeper meaning than a promise of heaven to human martyrs.

For one thing by always trying to save life we lose by trying to lose it.

Jesus described the kind of life He desired in His followers in the parable of the talents. The man with five talents and the man with two talents were willing to invest and they doubled their investments. Investment always involves some risk. They took it and were counted worthy to receive greater trusts. The man with one talent was so careful to protect himself from losing that his talent and had it taken away. The parable is the [illegible] expressed by Ecclesiastes: "Who observes the wind will not sow, and he who regards the clouds will not reap." The fruits of the soil and the fruits of the spirit come to us from those who take the sowers and not settlers. We [illegible] ourselves to the [illegible] plenty if the Pilgrim Fathers and George Washington had played safe.

CANNOT HOARD HEALTH

Then some one who would save their lives lose them by trying to [illegible] too hard to conserve their energy. We cannot hoard our health as we can money. Persons who are constantly watching for symptoms of illness and guarding their complaints become slaves to their hypochondria. Suppose we refrain from germs and strangers to the joy of living.

Only a fool would think he could strengthen his mind by [illegible] expedition of not thought. A sheltered woman asked that she not be made to [illegible] because it might cause sympathy out such a [illegible] emotions. So it is with persons avoid funerals because they do not want their feelings [illegible] "What a shame to bring children across [illegible] ourselves from our friends! [illegible] in the end [illegible] fund ourselves being left out. Love and sympathy are dissipated not by use but by disuse. Those who are trying to save ourselves from being cast on the scrap-heap are [illegible] ourselves. God made us that way.

SATURDAY

ANSWER:

Hurrah for us! Thanks for the post.

SOFT ROLLED COOKIES:

One-third cup soft shortening, 1-3 cup white sugar, 1 egg, 2-3 cup honey, 2¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon each soda and salt and lemon extract. Cream the shortening then cream the sugar into it well. Beat the egg and add to the mixture. Sour milk, soda, salt and stir them in. Add lemon extract. Chill dough. Roll out to ¼ inch thickness on lightly floured board. Cut into desired shapes. Sift flute 3-inch round cutter is good. Place 1-inch apart on lightly greased cookie sheet and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 8 to 10 minutes.

YEAST RAISED DOUGHNUTS:

One-half cup each lukewarm water and lukewarm milk, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tsp. salt, 1 package granular yeast, 1 egg, 1-4 cup soft shortening, 3 1-3 to 3 1-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour. To the 1-2 cup warm water add 1 teaspoon sugar from the 1-4 cup amount, and sprinkle the package of granular yeast over the top and let stand 5 minutes then stir. Meanwhile mix together the 1-2 cups lukewarm milk, remainder of sugar, and salt. When yeast fluid is ready, add to milk mixture. Ingredients. Then stir in the egg and shortening. Now add the flour in two additions, — adding half and stirring with a spoon, then add half and mix by hand, adding just enough to make it mix readily. Sprinkle board down, knead on floured boards until it speaks, then let rise covered until doubled. Now punch down and roll out to 1-3 inch thickness and cut with floured 3-inch doughnut cutter. Let rise covered, until doughnuts are light — at least an hour. They are left uncovered at this time to prevent a crust from forming. Drop carefully into hot fat at 375 deg. Fahr. — carrying board to stove and lifting carefully with spatula and sliding into fat. Add as many only as will turn easily and when they rise to the surface and show a little color turn them over. Fry to golden brown. Remove to brown. both sides — but remember being that the temperature of 375 must be maintained if they are to be done in 3 min. Drain first on fat will long fork without prickling. Drain over bottle for a moment and then on absorbent paper on warm plate.

To Sugar Doughnuts just before serving shake doughnuts one at a time in a paper bag with a little icing sugar or granulated sugar, and if desired a little cinnamon or nutmeg.

BROTHER SHOULD SPONSOR HER WEDDING INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 33 years of age, have never been married, but am now planning to be married next March. Since our parents died, my other brother and I (we have no sisters) have lived together, in our family home. He is 38 years of age, unmarried, and we have always been very close pals. He is to give me in marriage. Would it be proper for me to use his name on our formal wedding invitations, or (as I've been told by several people) is this correct only for an older, married brother? If you say that we shouldn't use his name, then please tell me what form should we use? — Ellen

Please do give this devoted brother all the credit and compliment of having him sponsor your wedding invitations, of course you want this . . . I'm sure this is just what he wants to do, and it is entirely proper. The fact that he is young, or single, does not matter. Indeed, makes no difference whatever in the propriety of this procedure.

THIS REPLY MUST HAVE TWO PARTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I am leaving after an introduction, and my hostess says, "I am very glad to have met you," what is the proper reply to this? Is "Thank you" correct?

Margaret

"Thank you" is not enough as a response to this pleasant remark. Merely to reply "Thank you," as one so often hears it as a response to "I am very glad to meet you," is rude. You are not sorry for yourself; that even if the hostess is glad about the meeting, you're not glad about her.

Here's the important thing to remember . . . your reply to this remark is to be very glad to meet you" must have two parts. (1) you should thank the hostess for her kindness in saying it. You naturally should say something that indicates that you too enjoyed the meeting. For example: "Thank you, I enjoyed so much meeting you too, Mrs. Clark." Or: "Thank you, Mr. Robinson. I enjoyed so much having had that with you about San Francisco. I hope we'll meet again and soon." Or: "Thank you. I was so delighted to meet you, too."

Bernice: . . . But remember, the field that is never plowed or harrowed becomes barren and hard. When we shut ourselves off from things that would stir our sympathies, we harden our natures. When we withhold ourselves from our friends . . . we shut them out. We find ourselves being left out. Love and sympathy are dissipated not by use but by disuse. Those who are trying to save ourselves from being cast on the scrap-heap are losing ourselves. God made us that way.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of, a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council's reports are guaranteed to have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Gertrude S. — I want to make up for the child we lost.

Louis S. — We must put the past behind us.

Gertrude S. — My husband and I have been married six years and have two children. We both are very happy, but I have a terrible thing preying on my mind.

My husband and I were intimately involved before we got married. I became pregnant and resorted to illegal methods to get out of this difficulty. This was really my husband's fault. I wanted to have the child, but he said it was impossible — he did not have a decent job, etc.

I had a religious upbringing, but my husband did not. He cannot understand how I feel about this. I want now to have another child to make up for the one we lost, but Louis doesn't see things my way. If only he would try to understand me, I would probably not have to bear this burden alone.

Louis S. — I do understand Gertrude's feelings and I sympathize with her. It was not an easy thing to do and perhaps it wasn't the right thing to do, but it's done. What's done is done and we must put the past behind us.

We have two wonderful healthy children now. I think we should be a fine little family. It's all I'll ever be able to do right by. My job, but the ups and things are going today I'll never keep up with the rest of living.

I feel that it's unfair of Gertrude to blame me for what happened in the past. I'm sorry that I urged it, but she didn't talk me into it then she was willing enough. How was I to know that she would have so many regrets? I may have done wrong, but I'm no monster.

The Council: We think that Gertrude is going to the wrong source and seeking the wrong remedy for her oppressive sense of guilt. Her husband cannot give her forgiveness or comfort on this score and she has no right to think in terms of putting such a burden on a child.

Psychologists and family case workers find that when a child is conceived for the purpose of righting some wrong or to correct or alleviate a bad situation things work out very poorly for both child and parents. A child should be wanted purely for itself and as the flowering of the love of the parents. When Gertrude sees that the new child doesn't really relieve her sense of guilt, she will unconsciously resent it. It is unfair to ask that one child serve as a crutch for another or as a sop to a parent's needs.

Gertrude is apparently writhing in many different directions in her effort to relieve her guilt. Her attempt to place the blame on Louis is a futile tactic. She can lash out at him, but she can't hide from herself the fact that she has failed her husband as being and did not behave according to her own standards of right.

Gertrude's guilt is so strong that she fears going to the only source from which there is the possibility of a little relief, the new understanding — a clergyman of her own faith. Possibly she could help her find her very soul of the destructive tangle she is building for herself and her family.

Your Car

Winter Driving Requires Some Additional Care

By EUGENE MILMOE

A good tune up, antifreeze and winter lubrication doesn't equip you for severe weather. You must also be sure of such things as heater, defroster, thermostat, windshield wipers, snow tires (or chains) . . . and a leak-free exhaust system. But equally important is driving know-how. With any snow or ice on the road, reduced pull must be your space between you and the car ahead should be automatic. Braking on slick roads requires special techniques, too . . . e.g., gentle, rapid pedal action to avoid skidding. And, learn how to pull out of a skid — just in case. The idea is to steer in the direction of the skid, but keep that foot away from the brake pedal! When you have the car under control, you can then bring it to a stop by rapidly dabbing the brake pedal.

P. F. asks: "There seems to be something preventing the water in my cooling system from circulating rapidly enough. Would the thermostat be holding it back?"

(A) Maybe, but a more likely trouble is soft or rotted radiator hose.

From A. R.: "My '56 engine has lost its power and uses more gas and oil. A compression test shows that two cylinders are low. Rings and valves should be in excellent condition since I have only done on them only six months ago. Could carbon be responsible?"

(A) Heavy carbon formation would increase rather than decrease compression. If valves add rings or blameless, look for damaged spark plug and cylinder head gaskets or loose head bolts.

F. S. writes: "The generator's red warning light on my dash board doesn't go on at any time. Does this mean the generator is OK, or is something wrong?"

(A) It should light up when you turn on the ignition switch. You will probably find that a bad bulb or a loose connection is the troublemaker. . . .

W. S. asks: "I have new snow tires on my '56 sedan. If I should need extra traction can I use chains, too?"

(A) Why not? Many drivers mount chains over snow tires when road conditions are bad enough.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

High speeds are especially dangerous when the car is overloaded — the extra burden can be too much for brakes.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

WINTERING BIRDS

If you have never gone on a December field trip with an enthusiastic birder you can have no idea how many birds are still to be found in settled Canada at this date. All year round residents, like English sparrows, you expect to encounter, but migrants are thought of as enjoying the warmth of more southerly districts than are to be found on Canadian soil — with the exception of southern Ontario.

Surrounded as it is by large lakes, southern Ontario is unique, with a climate mild enough to entice birds even in winter. Here we may find samples of those that breed quite far north a n d then leave most parts of Canada. Tree sparrows come into t h i s group. Among permanent residents are birds that, with just a few exceptions, are to be seen anywhere else in Canada — as cardinals. Other birds, like bluegrey gnatcatchers, are never to be seen anywhere on census day except in this favoured section of Canada, where they do winter.

In all parts of our country we find in winter some birds t i s a "winter finch" and Bohemian Waxwings. These are representatives of a large number of species which ordinarily spend winter in localities where they are seldom hampered by low temperatures and deep snow. Song sparrows and goldencrowned kinglets are birds there are the wanderers, whose comings and goings are unpredictable. Some of us are fortunate enough to have visits from flocks of pine grosbeaks, evening grosbeaks, redpolls, crossbills, and many black-capped chickadees do not cross the southern boundary.

An early riser will see the first chorus of birds. Be on hand when the sun is just coming up — but unless you dress warmly you will be in no mind to be able to see the flocks of pine siskins, redpolls, or cedar waxwings which are on the move. Anybody who really knows h i s birds and has the opportunity of getting into the open can make quite a formidable list in December.

TABLE BIRDS

On this continent both Christmas and New Year dinners seem to indicate "turkey." Of course it is the domestic variety that we cook, however, there are still wild turkeys to be found in parts of the southern states. All are vegetarians. Indeed, if that were not so we would not want to eat them.

When we come to think of it, the flesh of wild birds is delicious. The food of many ducks consists of the roots and seeds of water plants, and of the animal life which they like the seeds of pondweeds, sedges and grass, wild celery and various species of duck-weed. Some (perhaps particularly the mallard) at times prefer the seeds of oak hickory, or hackberry, while others eat waste grain from stubble fields, and berries. But certain ones, especially some diving ducks, are fish eaters. An inexpected hunter who has shot a merganser and attempted to eat it will find it will not enjoy the fishy flavor.

Geese also are largely vegetarians in habit. Grain fields are favorite feeding grounds for the Canada goose and because they are able to feed, under water on the tender leaves, tubers, and roots of aquatic plants, such as eelgrass and pond lettuce. Goose is the traditional Christmas fare.

Another favorite table bird is the ruffed grouse, known to sportsmen as the partridge, although that name rightfully belongs to a bird of quite another family. This grouse, which is to be found nearly all woodedregions across Canada, is a permanent resident, acclimated to our great changes in weather, and able to subsist on what is to be had within the close area of about 25 acres.

Dense woodland is not desirable. For the breeding season delicious trees are preferred, interspersed with berries and open sunny openings, where both adults and young may hide and find food. The leaves of certain plants, seeds, and fruits in season are taken by the old birds, but the young are at first brought up on an insect diet. Later in the summer all are looking for blueberries and blackberries. Raspberries, the fruits of dogwood, hawthorn, grape, and so on. Their territory must be such that in winter they have conifers in which to roost and where buds of birch, apple or cherry may supply food.

Such a food list for the ruffed grouse makes it one of our most desired table birds. But at the Christmas and New Year season our thoughts turn to "turkey".

Chihawks Flap Wings In Playoff Air-And Like It

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Two Russian hockey teams played western squads this side of the Atlantic on New Year's night. One tussle took place on the ice in Madison Square Garden between a Red all-star squad and the American national team which will play in the world tournament, the other took place on motion picture film in the city hall here between the Russian national team of a year ago and the Whitby Dunlops.

The game in New York could have been a rehearsal of an American sports motion picture feature of the thirties, with the exception that the Frank Merriwell hero did not rush through the entire opposing team to score the winner with a second to go, and fail gasping on the ice to murmur "I'll die for dear old Rutgers."

The game in the city hall strangely enough had some of the same figures in Russian uniforms, but the battle was one of dogged determination between two champion squads with the score reading two-all with two minutes to go and the scales of battle swaying first one way, then the other. It was the final game of the world tournament in Oslo last year between Russian and Canada's Whitby Dunlops.

The New York game was the first ever played in the United States between a Russian team and an American squad. And from press reports of the game, the average Canadian fan would have been bored to death. He would have gotten more "kick" out of a senior club's practice grind.

The teams played under international rules; not a hair was ruffled, but each team earned four penalties when elbows were lifted above the conventional level which calls for a sentence whether you're doing it for exercise with no enemy around, or batting out a foemen's teeth.

Significant perhaps, but the Russians on the screen in the city hall, played a vastly different game to their counterparts who waltzed through three periods with the Yankees in New York.

A press report said: "In Canadian eyes the game was classy, full of picture plays . . . and good for international relations, if nothing else. Sportsmanship was conspicuous on both sides . . . But many who are familiar with National Hockey League play were heard to murmur at a lack of body contact . . . None of the plays was particularly inspired, although there was considerable speed at times . . . The Americans grabbed the puck and skated with great energy. The Russians were good at position-pattern stuff."

The Russians grabbed a first period 4-2 lead. Then the United States cavalry appeared on the scene and the Americans drew on their reserve to emerge on the long end of a 5-4 count at the end of the second chapter. The Reds took advantage of a Yankee penalty to score the only goal of the final heat and the hockey honor of both countries remained unsullied.

There were no hard feelings. The boys fraternized and as the press report added, "there was a lot of handshaking and the impression at the end of the game was that everybody was trying to be nice to everybody else."

It is stated the Russian team is pretty much the same squad that toured Canada last year, winning five, losing two and tying one. Three of the players, at least, are well known outstanding Russian stars who are world tournament veterans.

They play eight games during their United States tour, hooking up with college and other squads, some of which are liberally sprinkled with Canadians. It will be interesting to note the results of these games.

If the Russian squad is the same that toured Canada, or is as good, it should have no trouble in sweeping its United States series. If you take into consideration the difference of the American squads and the senior "A" teams the Russians met here.

The Ruskys are nobody's fools. They know the eyes of hockey Canada will be on them during their tour south of the border.

And what was that remark Wren Blair made after the Kelowna Packers-Russian tour, about the Reds "playing possum?"

Undefeated in Four Games Soaring Birds Divide Third; Hull One of Starry Family

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks are beginning to sniff the heady scent of a National Hockey League league play-off position.

To the underprivileged Hawks it is truly an exotic atmosphere, one they have breathed only once during the last 12 NHL seasons, but this year it may become a reality.

Just past the halfway mark in their schedule, Black Hawks have gone four games without a loss and are tied for third—one of the best records they have managed to compile over the past decade.

Perennially the weak sisters of the NHL, the Hawks have also been one of the perennial candidates for "most-improved team" in preseason guessing.

Yet each year, after a torrid start, they have let themselves and their supporters down.

Once again this season they started off with a winning streak, then slumped, and to most observers it looked like the same old Chicago story.

THE DIFFERENCE

But this season there was a difference. Chicago refused to lie down and let the rest of the league's teams were forced to take notice of them.

There is no single reason for their success.

Perhaps part of it is due to coach Rudy Pilous, who refused to accept the Hawk tradition of losing and who has tried to have his players with the same bumptious spirit he displayed in his playing through hockey's minor leagues.

In addition, the Hawk trades for once seem to be living up to expectations.

Though left-winger Ted Lindsay is not the high-scoring forward he was with Detroit Red Wings for so many seasons he is a vast improvement for the dispirited and lack-luster forwards in the Chicago last year—his first away from Detroit.

Coach Pilous credits him with being an invaluable teacher to younger players and a great inspiration to the whole team.

Then there is centre Ted Sloan, who came to Chicago from Toronto Maple Leafs as just another has-been but appears to have found new life in his 31-year-old legs.

NO LONGER BEWILDERED

And Eric Nesterenko, a far different player from the bewildered "million - dollar prospect" who retired from hockey altogether in 1956 after four disappointing seasons in the Toronto chain.

And best of all, perhaps of the newcomers, Ron Murphy, who bounced between New York Rangers and the minors for five seasons before coming to Chicago and who now is needed for the best season of his career.

Then there is Bobby Hull, the young centre who came within an ace of winning the rookie-of-the-year award last season and is one of the first stars developed within the Chicago farm system.

And of course there are big Ed-die Litzenberger and goalie Glenn Hall, the Hawks' only two established stars.

Both came to Chicago from other clubs — Litzenberger from Montreal Canadiens when there was a move several years ago to strengthen the Hawks', and Hall from long-time trading partner Detroit—and both may be back in the play-offs this season to haunt Hawks benefactors.

Free to Call Ball Players From Cuba

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick has advised each of 16 major club owners they are free to recall any players they have been loaning to the Cuban winter league without violating any agreement.

Frick told the owners by wire late Wednesday afternoon when the revolutionary change in government appeared certain.

Charles Segar, secretary of baseball, said Frick told the owners of the situation and advised them to use their own judgment in deciding about their players. He pointed out that, if they thought a recall justified, it would be upheld by the commissioner's office as any violation of any agreement. Frick said he would support this view.

The league has been shut down during the revolution. However, Art Fowler of the Spokane Indians, a former major leaguer, reported by phone from Havana to Spokane that he, and Jim Baxes, also of Spokane, had been advised play would resume Sunday.

The International Baseball League plans no action concerning players performing in the Cuban league.

Russ, Yanks Play Today In Minnesota

Held to an unexpected, 5-5 tie by the U.S. national team in Madison Square Garden Thursday night, the touring Russian squad carries its series with Uncle Sam's best amateurs into Minnesota.

This is native soil for 10 of the 16 American players. And the University of Minnesota's Williams Arena here is virtually home ice to the entire team.

The Soviet set here in the midst of a "Minnesota special." A full-house crowd was what was expected to send the mercury diving to from 10 to 15 below zero Friday night.

The international battle will be watched by 6,000 or more as they fill the arenas 8,000-seat capacity.

If the Russians were dismayed by their failure to win the series opener the public seemed unaware of their coach, Anatoly Tarasov, failed to show it.

"Both teams won," Tarasov told newsmen after th game. He acknowledged that the American team was definitely improved over the one which lost twice to Russia in 1957.

Nor did the Russians appear to be offended by the early start of the American style. Four penalties were called on each team.

Denny Moyer Gets Verdict Over Ortega

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Some kids want to grow up to be railroad engineers. Some want to be policemen. Some doctors. Denny Moyer always wanted to be a fighter.

It was natural. Denny's father, Harry, was a pretty fair welter in the Seattle area about a year ago. His uncle, Tommy, now a newspaper in Portland, Ore., was a great amateur boxer. His older brother, Phil, is a good looking middleweight prospect.

At the age of 19, this handsome youngster from Portland is a professional boxer with 19 straight victories and no defeats. He almost lost his first bout Friday night at Madison Square Garden when he scraped by on a controversial split 10-round decision.

OFFICIALS SPLIT

Judge Julius Aldala thought Mexico's Gaspar Ortega deserved the decision 5-4-1. But the other officials voted for Moyer. Referee Arthur Mercante had it 6-3-1 and Judge Nick Gambeli 5-4-1. The Associated Press card had it 6-4 for Ortega.

The experienced Ortega, ranked No. 5 by Ring and No. 6 by the National Boxing Association in the welterweight class, had been idle for almost two years. His late switch made Moyer a 6 to 5 favorite.

"It was very close," admitted Moyer and his manager, Sid Flaherty, in the dressing room. "I stuck in there with him," said Moyer.

Ortega, a sad - faced warrior from Mexicali, Mexico, has been in with the best in the class. He fought Basilio early in the round of the welter tournament held to determine a successor to Carmen Basilio and lost two decisions to Don Jordan, the latest welter champion to fall by the wayside.

The Mexican put pressure on Moyer who used a darting left jab and a sharp right uppercut with effectiveness early in the fight. Ortega bulled him with steady pressure in the middle rounds, shaking him up in the third and again in the fifth with a long overhand right to the head. Moyer regained control in the eighth.

Sports Officials' Consensus Leave Grey Cup Final as Is

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The old questions of a two-game or three-game Grey Cup final and unlimited importation of American football players are likely to be discussed at the Jan. 15-18 Canadian Football League annual meeting. Both are due for the same old treatment — shelved for future reference.

These are points that most football officials and Canada's sports columnists and broadcasters agree upon. Asked their opinion on the subjects in the 24th annual Canadian Press year - end poll, the editors and broadcasters said in effect there should be no change as they are—a sudden-death Cup final and the imports to remain with seven changes up to Oct. 15.

The voting in each case amounted to the participants was almost 5 to 1.

TWO BIG BACKERS

The staunchest supporter of a two-game Grey Cup final is Tec Workman, president of Montreal Alouettes in the Big Four. Close behind him is Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts. Both are determined about it, but they haven't had much luck getting their point across to the other seven teams in the CFL.

The last time Workman talked about it he was laughed down. It happened at an informal meeting of the CFL two days before the Nov. 29 Grey Cup game in Vancouver. "I just got the words out of my mouth when the big guffaw started," Workman said with a grin.

"I didn't bother to pursue the matter, but I'll keep talking it up."

Workman believes the two-game Grey Cup is an "economic necessity" and that, apart from this will ease the demand for tickets.

His theories were expounded before the Grey Cup game. Capacity at Empire Stadium was almost 30,000 and only 34,468 fans, compared with the record 39,417 in 1953 when the Cup was played in Vancouver for the first time were in the stands to see Winnipeg Blue Bombers defeat Hamilton Tiger-Cats 35-28.

TICKETS UNSOLD

Tickets — at regular prices — were still being sold the day of the game. This was the first time this had occurred since the record setting crowd since 1948 and it provided fodder for the dissenting officials.

Twenty voters in the CP poll favored the two-game final. Most of them said it was unfair to the best two teams, that it would eliminate the possibility of a team losing because it was off-color in one game and that the doubleheader date makes a greater spectacle and prove conclusively which is the better team.

One-game proponents said two games would take away much of the glamor, rumor and excitement of a one-shot deal.

Only 6 voters plumped for unlimited importation. Included in the list were Gorde Hunter of the Toronto Herald and Alf Cordell of the Vancouver Province who said: "It would be fairer to the best teams, that it would eliminate the possibility of a team losing because it was off-color in one game and that the doubleheader date makes a greater spectacle and prove conclusively which is the better team."

Battle-Of-Champions Thriller Ends In Three-All Tie

McFarlands Match Dunlops Vaunted Third-Frame Drive After Killing Two-Goal Lead

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Ripping back to wipe out a second-period two-goal deficit, the McFarlands matched the Whitby Dunlops' vaunted third-frame offensive here last night, and a battle-of-champions thriller ended in a three-all stalemate.

Claude Dufour, the Macs' new goalie, had his baptism of fire and came through with an outstanding performance, especially in the dying minutes of the game when the Dunnies threw all their power at him in an effort to snatch the victory.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way with the Dunnies grabbing a goal lead in the first period and adding another in the second before the Macs struck back victously to knot the count. The teams split two goals in a sizzling final frame that had some 2,500 spectators on seat edge.

While the Macs outshot the world champions 28-24 on the nightly play they fought an uphill battle all the way, forcing Long John Henderson to come up with one of his best displays on Belleville ice. The Whitby defence threw back the Macs' power play on five occasions while the Dunnies could not beat Dufour when they had numerical power advantage on four penalties. Sid Smith threw a misconduct early in the game.

Jean Paul Lamirande pulled the game out of the fire for the Macs midway through the third period with the team trailing 3-2. His blistering drive struck the skate of a Dunlop defender and whistled past a surprised Henderson to put the teams on even terms.

Bart Bradley and Lou Smrke were the other Mac sharpshooters with Menard having two assists and Smrke, Crawford, MacDonald and Brown one each. Etcher, Tremblay and Orlando scored for the Dunlops. Bobby Attersley the league top scorer did not get a point.

The Macs had the manpower advantage three times in the first period outshooting the Dunnies 9-6 but failing to get the puck past Henderson.

Smrke and Smith the latter also dueling a misconduct were the first to go but no damage was done. Then McBeth was hewed out a minute later Tremblay O'Connor followed him giving the Macs a two-man advantage. They swarmed around the Whitby goal but a tight-knit defence and Henderson threw back their efforts.

O'Connor had scarcely got back on the ice than the fast-skating Dunnies quickly organized a stand and drove in on Dufour. Freddie Etcher swept the puck from the left for the first goal of the game on the drive with Myles and Ted O'Connor assisting.

The Macs had a 12-8 shooting edge on the Dunnies in the fast, tempo'd third period, but failed to count when Ted O'Connor was chased early in the period. He was hardly back when Treen r and Schultz broke in the clear with one man back. Etcher fell when checked but slipped the puck to Treen in front of the goal and the defencemen made no mistake to put the Dunnies two up.

The Macs took over at this point and swept on a gauging offensive with Bart Bradley slinging the crowd to its feet when he blasted MacDonald's pass into the rigging with Brown also assisting.

Crawford was chased for highsticking but Dufour and the Macs defence held the fort. Three minutes later Crawford sent Menard and Smrke away had on a short passing play with Lou scoring a beauty from close in to tie the count. The Macs held the edge with Long John kicking out labelled drives. Dufour handled himself like a veteran near the period-end when the Dunnies returned to the offensive.

The Duplops followed their regular pattern driving to the attack in the opening minutes of the third period. The Macs hurled them back until the final minute mark when Samolenko spearheaded a drive his hard blast bouncing off Dufour's pads, Babando racing in smash-ed home the rebound and the Dunnies took a 3-2 lead.

The Macs fought back but then offensive was stalemated when MacDonald was heaved for elbowing but no damage resulted. The Dunnies protested strongly when Referee Vern Tower Sinden out for holding but the Macs failed to capitalize on the man advantage.

They were still driving when Sloden returned and he had no sooner stepped on the ice than Lamirande freed off his blast that squared the score. The Dunlops outshot the Macs 10-7 in the period, three of them scoring in the last minute of play with Babando picked off by Dufour in sensational fashion.

The "Headless Horseman" of literary fame had nothing on this "headless" horse during the Novices' Steeplechase at Kempton Park, England. "King Riff" tumbled to the turf just two jumps from the finish line, parting company with rider M. Scudamore, who had to walk the rest of the way.

Fighting Cop Chooses Gun Over Gloves

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Gloves or gun?

Newark's punching policeman Eddie Dixon, has chosen the gun for the time in his short career. He would rather pound a beat as a $4,600 a - year patrolman than pound opponents as a boxer.

The decision could cost him $25,000 this year, said his manager, Bobby Nelson, including a $4,000 television fee for a scheduled appearance in New York next Friday.

Dixon was to have met 10th ranked middleweight Gene Armstrong. But if he did, police director Joseph V. Weldon said he would have to leave the force.

Dixon couldn't hold both jobs, Weldon, who is opposed by officers having outside work.

"If just couldn't walk away from my job," said Dixon, a promising middleweight of 28. But Friday night — at Madison Square Garden—would have been the first main event for the young Negro. He has a record of 14 wins, four losses and two draws.

Dixon signed a contract with the International Boxing Club for the Armstrong fight before he learned of Weldon's order.

The IBC said it will not take legal action. "We certainly don't want to cost him his job."

Says NFL Teams Will Supply College Talent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sports-mark Jo Ha Deb says he has a verbal agreement with National Football League teams to supply Ameworthy, Oilers and Harry-ys team arrangement to British Columbia Lions if he is successful in buying the Lions.

He declined to name the United States teams signed so far. "These NFL clubs will send top college players to Vancouver every year."

Bailey, who owns Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast Football League, said he has plans for some time to purchase the Lions from the Western Interprovincial Football Union. The team now is owned by club members.

No purchase price has been mentioned. Word of a possible NFL connection came in an open letter Bailey sent to Lions club members.

There was no immediate reaction from either officials of the Canadian Football League or the NFL.

The letter lists Dick Lane as vice-president of the new group of B.C. Lions Football Corporation. Frank Griffiths is named as secretary-treasurer and Don Mackenzie and Fred Dietrich as directors.

Maroons Turn to Grab Lead After Muzzling Soo Hounds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Leadership of the OHA-NOHA Senior A race changed hands Friday night for the fourth time in less than a week.

Chatham Maroons turned back the visiting Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 3-1 to move one point ahead of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and shunt the Dutchmen into second.

Twice in the last week Kitchener has beaten Chatham to take first spot but each time Chatham has followed up with a win over another club. Tomorrow has a chance to turn the tables tonight when they take on the Soo with Chatham idle.

In other OHA - NOHA action Sudbury Wolves moved up a 6-4 home ice win over North Bay Trappers to engage the 8-3 whipping they took on North Bay ice the previous evening.

TOP CLUBS TIE

The top clubs in the OHA Eastern Senior A division, Whitby Dunlops and Belleville McFarlands, fought to a 3-3 tie in Belleville. Whitby still leads the loop.

Chatham had trouble handling the rugged Soo club until a pair of goals 18 seconds apart in the second period salted away the decision.

Don Lumley got the visitors off to a 1-0 lead in first but Don McGregor tied it up late in the period and Chatham ended the scoring in the second with Jim Connolly and Copper Leyte doing the honors.

John Bobenic, who started the season with North Bay, scored two for Sudbury with Gord Neale, Pete Pilote, Hank Marcerzak and Joe Zorica supplying the others.

It was a rousing battle at Belleville where Claude Dufour made his auspicious debut in the Belleville nets. He was obtained recently from Chicoutimi of the Quebec League. John Henderson was tremendous in the Whitby goal.

Canned Meney Good As Any Says 'Snipe'

"Snipe" Matheus, chief fund-raising gimmick producer of the Macs' Booster Club, has an idea last fall.

He figured money, like fruit and vegetables, could be preserved in cans. So he did something about it.

He "wangled" a hundred or so tin cans from somewhere, perhaps a Japanese salmon-canning plant, dressed them in colorful red wrappers and dispensed them to his booster buddies with instructions to place them where they would be tempts for loose coins of the friends of the Macs.

Just how well the project will pay off will not be known until the next week or so.

"Snipe" expects to go canvassing about that time, and hopes each container is brimming with the coin of the realm.

Meanwhile he urges all supporters of the Macs and others to drop their brown and white money into the cans, so a substantial amount can be raised for the Macs' Overseas Fund.

Insecticides Endanger Wildlife

Not long ago there appeared in Wildlife in North America an article by Federal Chemist, James B. De Witt of U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The piece dealt with insecticide dangers and it gives just about any reader, whether he be an outdoorsman or not, ample material for serious thought.

Mr. DeWitt reports that estimates of 1958 indicate that Americans spend annually $400,000,00 for insect control — largely aldrin, dieldrin, chlordane and DDT. That, my friends, is a whale of a lot of poison to be scattering about the Countryside in the course of one year approximately 140,000,000 pounds of it.

While these poisons are intended as insect control, don't think for one minute that wildlife is immune. For example, one of the less toxic compounds, endrin, will kill a rabbit if the little fellow ingests one-tenth of an ounce of the stuff. A smaller dose will make him mighty sick. Also, should the poison be aldrin or dieldrin, one one-hundreth of this amount would be fatal.

The insidious quality of those poisons lies in the fact that they are cumulative. Small doses, once ingested by an animal, bird or fish, they are not passed off with other body wastes. They are chemically stable and do not break down quickly. Thus, little by little wildlife accumulates the fatal dosage.

Another serious aspect of these poisons is this — it has been shown by conclusive experiment that in no case has it been possible to obtain reproduction from quail or pheasants which have been reared or maintained on foods which contain mild amounts of insecticides. No reproduction — no natural stocking of our covers. The dose does not have to be lethal to do incalculable damage.

Here and there we pick up disquieting news about insecticides. From Florida comes a news release stating that the number of male bald eagles who can sire baby eagles rapidly is being run down because of the wide scattering of DDT.

From Pennsylvania comes the repeated warning to farmers that insecticides, used in the spraying of orchards, eventually find their way into our streams, lakes and ponds, being carried there by the run-off of rain. We know from sad experience what a mild, wet, cold, dosage of DDT and the more powerful poisons can do to our fish population.

Congress, thank goodness, has enacted a pesticides law (and Ike has signed it) which includes herbicides which puts a brake on the use of poison sprays. Also, $125,000.00 has been allocated especially to finance Government experimentation with pesticides. This measure will, without question, alleviate the present unrest, but the over-all picture is not a pretty one.

WOMAN AND FISH

Publicity is a wonderful and powerful thing. It is this very publicity which keeps our advertising companies in business and which is the basic law which makes it possible to have the radio and television broadcasts. Human nature being what it is the more you hear a credo repeated, the oftener you see it mentioned in the T. V. screen, the more apt are you, subconsciously, to believe it. Truism or not, it can be hammered home so that you eventually accept it. With this in mind, the outboard motor companies keep on banging away at the public subconscious and the obvious statement that outboard motor noise does not in any way disturb fish or influence the behavior of fish except, possibly, to improve matters by drowning out the noise of an approaching fisherman, not the fish!

An outdoor writer, which I happen to be, is, after all, a reporter. It is the duty of any reporter to state facts, not opinions. Facts create news; opinions create impressions and all too often cause trouble. Thus, when I tell you here that it is a fact that outboard motors do disturb fish and influence the quality of your fishing for the worse, not the better, you can take my word for it that the statement is perfectly true.

In writing this, it must be understood that this reporter has no axe to grind. Also, each year I spend countless hours in boats and skiffs powered by outboard motors. Properly used, outboard motors are grand things. They take you places which otherwise you would never see. The fact remains, however, that outboard motor noise can, and often does, ruin the fishing, so we use our motors accordingly.

It so happens that most of our fishing is done with fly rod. Not that we don't like casting plugs and, in certain waters, spinning rigs. We like to fish with these also, but we prefer the fly rod. So, we fish for all sorts of fish with all sorts of fly rods, from very small to the big, powerful casters we use for tarpon.

The kind of food on which game fish live they find in shallow water. Thus, most of our fly-casting is done in shallow water. Try running an outboard motor or even a big sand flat on which a school of bonefish is feeding and see what happens. Those fish move off into deep water.

Try running an outboard through a school of smallmouth bass, busily feeding to a writhing batch of May flies. The bass disappear and the fishing for that evening is over. We can go on you countless examples of the havoc which is being wrought by motor fishing by outboard motor noise.

This is no attempt to influence outboard motor sales in any way. Properly used, they are wonderful things and we couldn't do without them. But selling outboard motors through the dubious practice of establishing habits which is being the outcome of all of what he pays for — the solid, reliable information that he wants.

Petes Rally in Third to Defeat Juniors 10-7 in Rough Battle

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — In a rough OHA Junior "B" game here Friday, winding up in a players' free-for-all, Lalon Petes defeated Belleville 10-7 to take over top place in the Central Ontario group race. After a 3-3 first frame, it was sewed up as 6-all going into the third when Petes finished stronger to earn the verdict before a fair-sized crowd of 600 fans.

Belleville drew 13 of the 24 penalties handed out. Major for fighting in the second went to Hull and Daly, while Maveety and Nicholls slangled to draw majors late in the third, and Petes are the final gunner rounded a free-for-all broke out. Titterington started it by charging, and Pat Rowbotham, Daly and Horton were assessed fighting majors when peace was finally restored.

It was a free-scoring, wide-open game, quite close till out in the third stanza, though not panicked by brilliant hockey over the distance. The score seesawed for two heats, first one side scoring and then the other knotting the count. In the third, the Petes got rolling to pull ahead by three tallies. A lot of minor penalties built up till the explosion at the game finished.

Frank Daly and Cy Coombes counted two goals each for Lalon Petes, singles going to Fitz Fitzgerald, Bill Watson, Paul Wakely, John Horton, Don Kelly and Jo. English. Besides his goal, Wakely had six assists in a fine defensive effort. Coombes got two, and Nicholls, Horton, Fitzgerald, Kelly, Bugler and Daly one apiece.

For Belleville, Roger Drake and Ron Hull each rapped in two markers, and Gary Rowbotham, Jim Ellis and Don Kelly one apiece. Rowbotham also aided on four goals, and Mann on the other. Tales of Wells Fargo One Of Better Horse Operas

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everybody knows that westerns are the most popular form on television. But, why?

Let's look at Tales of Wells Fargo, consistently one of the better horse operas. Maybe a behind-the-scenes visit can clue us to what makes this and other western series entertaining.

Dale Robertson, the Oklahoman who stars, lays it all to teamwork. Practically all the crew has been with the series since it started three years ago.

Producer is Nat Holt, an old timer at making action pictures. Director is Earl Bellamy, long associated with Holt in movie-making and now on his 68th Wells Fargo segment. Chief writer is Frank Gruber, among the most prolific of western writers.

Everyone is compatible. Sometimes knives wielded out early. Each show is filmed in 2½ days — two a week. That leaves no time for temperament.

PROS ONLY

Featured actors are TV and movie pros. Robertson, who owns 51 per cent of the series, won't hire one raw cup of Actor's Studio talent.

"Sweat-shirted idiots," he calls them.

Both Bellamy and Robertson are against memorizing scripts and long rehearsals.

"I don't want anyone on the show fully knowing the lines," says Robertson. "The viewers sense the unnaturalness immediately."

Seldom is more than one take needed for a scene.

"Once you repeat a scene, the actors begin spontaneity," says Bellamy.

Informality is encouraged. Robertson helps keep things informal, and he never takes himself or his acting seriously.

But this year he will gross more than $1,000,000 from the series—and that's serious money.

On the Tracks

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Trainer M. Kerr's Round Table, the turf's all - time leading money winner and 1958 horse of the year, topped a field of 10 runners entered in the $50,000 added Sen Carlos Handicap at Santa Anita Park today.

The sturdy five-year-old will be ridden by his regular pilot, Willie Shoemaker, and will carry high weight of 122 pounds over the seven-furlong route.

Named opposite Round Table were such threats as C. W. Smith-Hillsdale, impressive winner of the Malibu Stakes last week, and Neil S. McCarthy's Seaneen, the Polished who won set Round Table in the $100,000 Californian at Hollywood Park last summer.

Petes Nipped By Bilts 3-1

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph Biltmores held Peterborough Petes scoreless while playing two men short late in the third period Friday night and preserved a 3-1 junior A victory.

Goalie Don Rich backed up a fine penalty-killing performance by Randy McGregor, Bob Erkel and John Lowes to fend off a Peterborough power attack.

It was a tight contest until the early part of the third when Guelph got loose two goals six minutes apart to put the issue beyond reach.

Lowes, Erkel and McGregor were in the penalty box in the first period when Peters scored their lone tally.

Gregor scored for Guelph with 3:27 left in the first period.

Gray Darling getting the Peterborough counter.

In Toronto Friday night Bill Manfield announced Ray Timgren, former Toronto Marlie local favorite who came to the Hub Toronto Junior B club, would coach Marlies until Turk Broda recovers from a shoulder injury.

Broda, who played goal for the National Hockey League Leafs for many years, has been ordered to take a month off to rest.

BEAT 9 TEAM

AURORA (CP)—Hull - Ottawa Junior A Canadiens exploded for six goals in the third period Friday night to whip Aurora Tecumseths 9-1 in the opening Ray Proteau and Paul Tatlow Aurora's fifth Junior B Cup. The visitors were held to big chance.

GIANT WAR SHOW
(First Showing)

A current new war combination from American International Pictures, "Tank Battalion" and "Hell Squad," will make its local debut at the Park Theatre, starting Monday, for a two-day showing.

"Hell Squad" is heralded as one of the outstanding films to be born of the World War II theme in terms of individual personalities gathered together by small groups. It tells the gruelling, true story of the men in the Libyan Desert. Wally Cassino stars as the bearded, cigar-smoking G.I. platoon Sergeant fighting to lead his squad of men out of the enemy infested desert. One by one the Sergeant's boys meet violent deaths until finally the German officer, with the sub-machine gun, stands face to face with the grizzled old Sergeant.

"Tank Battalion" recounts the heroic exploits of the men in the Korean conflict. The consultant tension of the daily battle is registered in the eyes of the women they loved behind the lines.

TV TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

We have mentioned before about the quality of television reception falling off due to the gradual aging and weakening of tubes and other components. However, the fault isn't always in the set itself . . . it quite often can be blamed on the aerial or the lead-in.

Although aerials do not actually "wear out", they do suffer from old age . . . contacts become dirty or corroded . . . lead-ins deteriorate . . . and your favorite programs don't come in the way they used to. Your antenna could be out of date — for just as TV sets have been improved over the past few years, aerials today are more efficient than very early models.

Always remember that the quality of Television reception depends a great deal on the condition of the antenna. If you suspect that your reception isn't as good as it should be, an inexpensive antenna tune - up might make a tremendous improvement. CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 388 Coleman St. will be glad to give you a free estimate on putting your aerial in top condition. Just call WO 8-8791 (in Trenton EX 2-7609).

HAVANA AWAITS

fighting men arrived in Havana before dawn from Las Villas province. They were led by Ernesto Guevara, an Argentine medical doctor who as one of Castro's lieutenants was a commander in the crucial battle of Santa Clara.

FOOD SHORTAGE

Although a general strike called by the rebels until Urrutia takes over is only 48 hours old, food is already in short supply. Some grocery stores were broken into and looted during the night in central Havana. Police were rushed to the scenes to break up raids.

Unless the strike ends and there is a halt to the violence arising out of the general strike, bloody riots may also develop.

A spokesman at the Canadian Embassy said it hopes to arrange transportation for some 45 Canadian tourists and students who are in the island but none is believed in danger.

In Dallas, Tex., a spokesman for Texon Construction Company of Dallas said Adolfo Rivero Alaba, a Canadian employee in Cuba, had been released by the rebels. It had been reported earlier that Bazaraba, a native of Foxford, Alta., had been held for ransom.

DENY RANSOM REPORT

The company spokesman denied the report that ransom had been demanded for Basaraba's release.

Two rebels were shot dead Friday night near Havana's Hilton Hotel and another near the University of Havana.

The strike shut down transportation except for a few taxis. Buses were closed; and it was impossible to buy many necessities.

Rebels kept pedestrians and automobiles from the Hotel Nacional, where many Americans were waiting for transportation home.

A rebel leader told them they could not be allowed to continue to the hotel because they were in danger of being shot by snipers from another rebel faction. The rebel promised escort to a nearby hotel for the night.

Three AP staffers, Larry Allen, George Kalmbach and Oswald Valentine, were taken from their cars by rebel soldiers Friday. Driven to a police station, they were later released.

TOURISTS LEAVE

About 470 American tourists and vacationing students left on the ocean-going ferry City of Havana for Key West, Fla. The U.S. state department sent the ferry because of the cancellation of normal shipping and airline service.

An international airline executive said Friday night that nearly all offices and foreign airlines in the city were attacked and looted by mobs during the last two days.

The looting began early Friday as Castro followers streamed into the city from all directions. Now in control of the army, the rebels poured its tanks and troops into the threatened fight within sight of the presidential palace.

Several hundred followers of fallen dictator Fulgencio Batista apparently were defeated — but there could be more fighting.

The battle swirled in a three-mile block lasted from shortly before noon until around 3 p.m. Informed sources in Havana said no accurate count of casualties was possible because of the unsettled conditions.

CUBAN LAMPART

of Batista turned over to the rebels' victory. "We were told to catch a plane and get out," he said.

In New York, city detectives were on the lookout for the reported American gamblers whose casinos were looted in Cuba. The gamblers were wanted for questioning in the 1957 murder of racketeer Albert Anastasia and other New York crimes.

FERRY WILL RETURN

The U.S. Embassy announced the ferry would return tonight to pick up any other Americans who wanted to leave. The embassy reiterated that it was not advising Americans to get out.

Plans to return to Cuba are being made by New York by four members of the family of Dr. Manuel Urrutia, picked by Castro as Cuba's provisional president.

Constantino N. Kangles, lawyer in the U.S. for Castro, said consular documents are being impounded by Batista for use in the new government as evidence in war criminal trials. A move will be made to return war criminals who fled to the United States," he added.

headquarters of the Soviet United Nations delegation before his departure for Washington.

Most authorities believe Mikoyan's Washington trip is connected with the visit of Anastas Mikoyan may have been given an assignment to see Eisenhower to make known the Kremlin's eagerness to settle the Berlin dispute.

But, officials who believe this acknowledge that they are making informed guesses. Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov is back in Washington and has steadfastly declined to give any hint of what Mikoyan's diplomatic post, if any.

Mikoyan, a smooth talking Armenian with a reputation as a trade expert, can be expected to urge the Kremlin's current program for more trade with the United States.

MECHANICAL LUNG STOLEN

CHICAGO (AP)—A thief stole a polio victim's lightweight mechanical lung while he was getting a post-surgery check. Hess Messerschmidt, 32, of Elkhorn, Wis., left the 100-pound multiling equipment in a parked car while he entered a clinic Friday at a hospital. He can get along without an artificial lung about two hours.

Each year it is exciting to see what new plants have made the coveted All American Awards. A great deal of effort is put into these trials and the plants must come through on many points as well as quality under different conditions at the several trial grounds.

This year there are two flowers, and two vegetables. Many new plants — vegetables, flowers and trees will be offered this year for the first time. Use them to give new interest to your garden.

Peppermint pinks Dianthus an award winner is a mixture of many forms and color combinations from white to deep maroon. They are single double and frilled. The delightful clove perfume is another asset. Since they are hardy perennials they need seed direct. For a fine effect plant them in front of a bed of annual hrdpink. Given early care, they will stand cold ground and will bloom early next spring.

Sweetheart camellia is the full double white one that is a sport of Bleichroeder. The flowers are 3 inches across, pure and a half dozen across. Plants much have acid soil, heavy mulch to conserve moisture and protection from sun.

Of course the petunias come in for attention. There are four fine new ones. Cherry Tart petunia is full double with dee rose and white variegations. It withstands drought and wet conditions well.

SPACE AGE PETUNIAS

Satellite petunia is one of the group called Space Age petunias. Satellite is free blooming rose with a sharply defined white star. The plants are compact and have a long season of bloom. A new color in petunias is Lavender Lace. It is rich orchid with dark veinings which radiate from the deep colored throat. The flowers are large and frilled. Plants are upright and compact. Sabre Dance petunia has four and a half inches across, slightly ruffled with a huge white star with deep rose edge. Splendid for solid beds or for borders or with other annuals. As the blended dwarf compact habit and uniformity of growth.

Super Cascade is a new type with smaller compact plants. The stems are 12 to 15 inches tall, plenty long enough for cutting. The shades range from apple-blossom white, pink lavender and bi-colors. They bloom profusely. As the blended these annual lupines need an alkaline soil. Leaf mold, or peat moss dug in deeply and a little lime stone.

Splendor Verbena is a new introduction in brilliant royal purple with a large white eye which gives size and richness of the purple. Use it with solid white, or scarlet type.

Crested Calendulas are new too. Centres are quilld petals. Many flowers have dark outer petals tipped with the centre colors. These were originally from Germany but five years of work on them in the States have improved them greatly. Colors orange, gold and lemon. Sow early as calendulas bloom best in cool weather.

Another quilled flower is the new Pompontette Dahlia. The small double blooms are made up of a tight mass of firmly quilled petals. Height six inches. Colors white and pink. Sow in early spring for annual flowers or sow in summer as other biennials.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Retirement at Home Is Different From That Short Vacation 'Visit'

By THOMAS COLLINS

This is how it is.

Now it is during the daytime hours in the place where you eat your first relish and hurry off to work, where you come back to supper, TV, and bed. The place where the wife and you have lived in the store.

The report is supplied by a retired man, and may be a good guide for you if you are planning to retire and feel you can take it easy for a spell.

The man, Robert M. Boyd, retired last August. He had an income funder $300" a month, a small car, and a paid-for home in a moderate city neighborhood.

"There are two phases to coming home to stay all day," he says. "One is the vacation or visiting phase when your wife knows you'll be going back to work and makes-all-while you're around. The other is the settling-down phase when you work up household arrangements for the long pull.

"There is a big difference in the two phases. And the man who knows this on a vacation and thinks he has a picture of what retirement at home will be like is heading himself in."

Mr. Boyd says the problems and the adjustments of retirement at home are larger than he had expected.

"There are three main problems," he says. "The first is getting the wife with the world of women a-ad children that a neighborhood is on processing. I never saw as many children in my life, or as many young mothers rushing them to and from school, shoe store, grocery store, doctor's office, and Lord knows where. There are three of them around. There are five retired men who like watching divorce of my house, and I know them all. But from August to Dec. 1, I had no conversation with them at all—except an occasional greeting on the street. Most fathers-in-law they retire and their wives tend to also . . . and I don't know why.

The only other men around, he explains, are mailmen, milkman, garbageman, store people and such who have no time to play with you.

A RUNNING RELATIONSHIP

"You've got to establish a running relationship with your kids and their mothers, or you hibernate."

The second problem, says Mr. Boyd, is allowing yourself to be designed by silence. "I've loaf for three weeks, and you find you get down to bring in the milk off the back step, or walk to the store. You begin skeletons in the television, which incidentally, is so insipid, it's an insult to you — and you watch for the mailman, or door in a chair, or chance a live bab, or jumble through the house. . . .

Even if it kills you, he says, you must get in the habit of starting off each day with a job to do — right after coffee. "I you'll force yourself to work at finding until lunch, you're O.K. If you don't, you're done for."

The third problem, in Mr. Boyd's opinion, is setting up a working relationship with your wife. "And this is strictly personality matter. You believe you should share the housework, or you don't. I'm one of those who believe you should. And that the wife is better qualified to assign the duties than the husband is.

"I clean out the toilet bowl every morning, for instance, which is pretty demeaning. My wife washes my shorts and socks — which is, too. We're doing fine, thank you."

Mr. Boyd thinks that if a retired man will make peace with these three problems, a magnificent vista opens up before him. Freedom for anything after the chores are done by 9 A.M. And a companion to share it with — a wife. He says companionship is a great asset in the business of life, and he would prefer his wife to a man.

HERE'S THEIR SCHEDULE

What he and his wife have done, from 9 A.M. on:

Started a mobile library and taken out three books on the War — 1812 and the pirate Lafitte, after seeing a movie called "The Buccaneer," which dealt with both. They read them aloud to each other.

Started a collection of second-hand books (usually at 25 cents each at old stores) on the American West. They have written all the good guy-bad guy movies on TV and decided it just could not possibly have been that way.

Started writing two letters a day — without fail — to somebody. To school friends they haven't seen in 40 years, to second cousins 500 miles away, to nice people they knew once, to the paper boy and to the paper inside the door last time it rained. To the wife of their next door parliament or congressman because she doesn't get many letters. To newspapers to aging relatives. But two a day, every day.

Started in their basement, with an outlay of about $26, what they call "The Wood Grain Shop" where they refinish neighbors' furniture, but only in natural wood finish, at about half the professional cost. They're getting all the jobs they can handle. Their system: dinner at six, reading the newspaper and talking over the news to eight; then to the basement, where they have their TV set, and working on furniture while they watch.

Gore

GORE — Among Christmas guests were the following: Mrs. B. L. Redner, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Daboll and Chris of Fenwick; Mr. and Mrs. Bev Gray and Scott of Garden Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Vandewater of Belleville, and Mr. Roger Redner of Kempville, Agricultural School with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Redner.

Mr. Mr. and Mrs. Strickman and Miss Margaret, of Belleville and Mr. Joe Foley of Kingston with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Coleman, Miss Audra and Miss Irma Boner.

Mrs. Kenneth Cronk, Ronald and Sandra; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Green with Mrs. Ray Fox, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver and children with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks, River Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Fox with Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield and boys.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Pulver, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pulver, Mr. E. Humphrey and John and Mr. and Mrs. Wing on Pulver, Beverly and Howard.

Mr. Peterly and Miss C. Allison of Belleville, with Mr. and Mrs. H. Townsend and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Hubbs and Haviland, Bayshore.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fox and Gerald spent Mrs. Minnie Fox with Mr. and Mrs. Keith Redner, Osborne.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Fox, Ottawa and Mrs. Earl Fox, Belleville, were Boxing Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fox.

For old friends and neighbors here the Christmas festivities were overshadowed by the sudden passing of Mr. Harry Cunningham of Rosemore. Many attended his funeral on Friday in Belleville. Sincerest sympathy is extended to Miss Cunningham.

On Christmas noon word was received of the passing of another former resident, Mrs. Rhoda Sager, at the home of her nephew, Mr. Leonard Bryant, near Wellington. Mr. Brickman, Miss Audra and Miss Bonner attended the funeral in Wellington on Saturday.

The Women's Institute sponsored a euchre party at Victoria Hall on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Hubbs and family spent Christmas gathering on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Milnes.

Russian Rocket Third Of Million Miles From Earth

Due to Go Into Orbit Around Sun Wednesday

MOSCOW (CP)—Russia's cosmic rocket plunged on into the void of space today, heading in a great course toward the sun and an orbit it may follow for the rest of time.

It was announced in Moscow that the radio transmitter which has been flashing back information since the rocket was fired Friday fell silent early this morning.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the signals stopped at midnight EST and "the program of tracking the rocket and the scientific research connected with it have been thereby closed."

The announcement said the rocket would finally enter its orbit around the sun Wednesday or Thursday. It then will orbit regularly between the orbits of earth and Mars with a frequency of 447 days — the new planet's "year."

371,000 MILES AWAY

Tass said that this morning, 62 hours after the launching, the rocket had reached a point 371,000 miles from the earth after leaving the moon far behind. It missed the moon by 4,660 miles and was slightly deflected by its gravitational pull.

Today's radio silence was as complete as the announcement of the firing said the radio range was expected to operate for 48 hours.

Tass said the rocket will next come near the earth on its orbit around the sun in five years, but it will not move closer than some 6,000,000 miles.

MAJESTIC EVENT

Tass termed the launching "a majestic event of our era of Communist construction which opened the epoch of interplanetary flight."

"The task laid down at the launching of the cosmic rocket have been completed," and the scientific results obtained would be published.

Moscow radio announced the missile—called Lunik, from Soviet talk about the moon or moon — was travelling at a maximum speed of 7.45 kilometres (4.58 miles) a second when it passed near the moon Sunday.

This speed, equivalent to 5,472 miles an hour, corresponded approximately with the speed of 9,000 kilometres (5,592 miles) an hour announced by the Russians before launch.

It passed the moon at a distance of about 5,000 miles at 5:59 a.m. Moscow time Sunday (9:59 p.m. EST Saturday).

Tass news agency said the rocket would enter its orbit around the sun in 7 or 8.

The Russians calculate this orbit would have a maximum distance of 214,250,000 miles. The closest it would get to the sun would be about 91,250,000 miles. This point would be reached Jan. 14.

The nearest point of the earth's orbit to the sun is about 91,250,000

GROCERY TRADE WARNED AGAINST PRICING PACTS

Report Does Not Single Out Firms

OTTAWA (CP)—A special committee report has cautioned the grocery trade against unfair pricing practices in the flow of foods from manufacturer to grocery store.

But the report makes no attempt to single out any of the offenders. Justice Minister Fulton, releasing the report today said that the matter of price discriminations will "continue to be studied by the combines branch."

The detailed study stemmed from complaints by smaller retailers that big competitors could obtain supplies more cheaply than they could.

The combines branch made a general study of the nature and extent of price differentials applying to different types of buyers in the grocery trade. But it did not make a specific inquiry of the Dominion Stores Ltd. chain transgression of the anti-combines law is suspected.

Its 196-page report did not attempt to assess the effect on retail prices now or in the future by the pricing of foods before they reach the store.

LACK OF DISCOUNTS

Instead it dealt with the variety in price differentials allowed by suppliers to different types of wholesalers and smaller retailers, and with a general practice of granting special discounts and allowances—so-called advertising and promotional allowances—by the suppliers.

The report said these special discounts appear to be the major source of differential treatment

New Bid to Ease Canada-U.S. Trade Clashs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States opened a new round of high-powered talks tonight aimed at reducing friction in trade totalling in excess of $1,000,000,000 worth of across-the-border exchanges—a world high for any two countries.

With Canada holding a stiff line against U.S. anti-dumping laws, the four - man Canadian cabinet team headed by Finance Minister Fleming likely will seek American assurances that lead and zinc and wheat shipments say, will not be subjected to the two-day talks, to open officially at 9 p.m., will eventually lead to a reduction in U.S. import duties or lessening of the effect Canada now is overcharged with United States restrictions on lead and zinc appears likely.

Fleming, a man U.S. cabinet group, headed by State Secretary Christian Herter, will seek assurances that Canada won't be using her tough anti-dumping laws to discriminate against American textiles and other exports.

Shame to Waste Bottle on Bing Answer of Miss Callas to Question

NEW YORK (AP) — The emicent conductor asked the renowned soprano whether she had ever boomed a bottle of the head of Rudolf Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera.

No, said the soprano.

"It would be a shame for the bottle," Miss Callas is said to have added.

Maria Callas, who excels in heavy operatic roles, indulged chiefly in light comedy Sunday night when she appeared top with Sir Thomas Beecham and Victor Borge on the CBS-TV program "Small World".

Borge, who has held audiences captive in one - man shows of piano-playing and joking, didn't yet a chance to do much of either.

Bing looked in from the side of the screen. Afterwards, he told a reporter:

"I wouldn't have missed the program for anything. Sir Thomas has always been one of my favorites and Maria Callas is simply one of my favorites".

Sir Thomas did not mention Bing by name when he told Miss Callas that London musical critics had described his wife's soprano had the "misguided idea of opera in New York" over the head with a bottle of champagne.

"Did you?" Sir Thomas asked.

Miss Callas said: "I never threw anything at any one—but fortunately, I wish I did."

"Never!" asked Sir Thomas. Sighed Miss Callas: "Oh, what a lost opportunity."

Finance Minister Outlines Plans to Fight Inflation

TORONTO (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming indicated today he plans to fight inflation by arresting the rise in Canada's money supply and by restraining increases in federal spending.

"The economic policy of government are high," he told a Canadian Club luncheon as he defended the government's interest - boosting conversion loan, deprecated too much loose talk about inflation and anticipated his budget deficit won't go much higher than his estimated $700,000,000.

"The Canadian people continue to enjoy a high standard of services and social benefits," he said. "These must be paid for. I wish that fact were always remembered."

While Mr. Fleming could do little to curb these higher payments, now to be increased by Ottawa federal expenditures for national hospital insurance, "nevertheless, the treasury board

Consumer Price Index Shaved Tenth of Point in November

OTTAWA (CP)—Sharply lower prices for a number of foods shaved the consumer price index by a tenth of a point during November, cutting the cost-of-living yardstick to 126.3 on Dec. 1 from the record 126.3 on Nov. 1, the bureau of statistics reported today.

This first decline following four consecutive months of rises in living costs occurred as a decline in average food prices offset rises in virtually every other segment of the price index. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

The index of average industrial wages and salaries at Nov. 1, latest date for which figures are available—was 155.2, based on 1949 equalling 100. This was up from 164.9 at Oct. 1 and 161.2 at Dec. 1, 1957.

This latest, computed from a survey of firms employing more than 15 persons and covering a wide range of industries, represents an average of total wages paid.

The consumer price index standing of 126.2, while down slightly from Nov. 15, is still 2 points higher than the 123.1 on Dec. 1, 1957.

During November, retail prices dropped sharply for eggs, oranges, declines for pork, chicken, bacon and grapefruit along with smaller declines for pork, chicken, beef and vegetables and fruits. These offset rises for beef, fresh vegetables, apples and butter to drag the food sub-index by a full point 122.2 from 123.2.

Prices for other food prices declined, prices rose for home ownership costs, some clothing, telephone rates in eastern Canada, laundry, dry cleaning and transportation supplies, along with higher street car and bus fares in some cities.

The shelter sub-index rose to a new high of 139.4, up one-tenth of a point from November; the clothing column to a record 110.5, also up one-tenth of a point; the household operations column to a record 122, up one-half point; the miscellaneous column called other commodities and services moved up by a tenth of 123.4, a rise of three-tenths of a point.

Wholesale prices during December showed downward trends. The industrial materials index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, dropped one point to 234.2 in the week ended Dec. 31 from 235.2 in the week ended Nov. 28. But the Canadian farm products index, also based on 1935-39 prices, increased by 3.6 points to 218 from 214.4.

Treat All Areas Of City Alike Mayor's Pledge

Need More Industries To Match Area Growth

Careful planning for a greater Belleville and the necessity of industrial growth are the two major needs for the city following the annexation of some 3,500 acres from Sidney and Thurlow townships and the consequent addition of approximately 6,600 in population.

This was stated by Mayor Gerald R. Hyde at the inaugural session of city council held in the council chambers this morning. The inaugural session was attended by government, civic and district municipal officials.

The mayor said that one of the greatest problems confronting council will be that of smoothly integrating the annexed area into greater Belleville.

"It will be our job to make these residents feel confident that the thinking of those of us on their council has broadened to the point where all sections of the city, new and old, will be given equal consideration when a decision is to be made."

The morning inaugural session saw Mayor Hyde invested with the chain and insignia of office and Mayor Hyde and members of council give the oath of allegiance. Appointments to the various civic boards and committees were also made.

Selected from the Belleville high school band under the direction of Band Leader Al Cooper, were 12 musicians who led the inaugural, commencing proceedings with the playing of O Canada and later following the swearing in of aldermen, playing the National Anthem.

Newspaper Columnist Marie Torre Starts Serving Contempt Sentence

NEW YORK (AP)—Newspaper columnist Marie Torre surrendered today to begin serving a 10-day jail sentence rather than disclose a news source.

Miss Torre, (pronounced Tawray) who writes a syndicated television and radio column for the New York Herald Tribune, appeared before Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan and was remanded to custody of a marshal.

Ryan gave her time to get her action will lead to legislation which will protect a newsman's confidence. She was released as she arrived at the courthouse.

The 34-year-old mother of two children was accompanied to the courthouse by her husband, Hal Gardiam, a television producer.

Ryan had found Miss Torre in contempt for refusing to disclose the source of a story she wrote in 1957 concerning movie star Judy Garland.

She invoked the First Amendment to the United States constitution — which guarantees that freedom — in her defence.

The contempt conviction stemmed from a column that appeared in the Herald Tribune Jan. 10, 1957. In it, Miss Torre quoted an executive of CBS in criticism of Miss Garfield.

The entertainer filed a $1,333,333 libel suit against CBS. Neither Miss Torre nor The Herald Tribune was named as a defendant.

In her suit, Miss Garland claimed that a certain CBS executive employee had been quoted in newspapers as saying, among other things, that Miss Garland "is known for a highly developed persecution complex."

In a pre-trial examination, Miss Torre was asked to identify the CBS executive, but refused.

Miss Torre and her employer cited the need for a shield law to protection of sources as "essential to the effective dissemination of information to the public" and argued that "forced divulgence would inflict upon the reporter permanent and irreparable harm" by probably causing the loss of news sources.

Judge Ryan found Miss Torre in contempt last November. "I sympathize with you," he told her then, "but your position is improperly taken and you have no judicial support."

The Herald Tribune appealed the case to the U.S. Court of Appeals, which upheld the conviction. The case then went to the U.S. Supreme Court, but that tribunal declined to review it.

H.C. Scarlett Remanded on Murder Charge

COBOURG (CP)—Harold Curtis Scarlett, 32, of nearby Trenton, charged with murder in the shooting death of Constable Lorne Wright, was remanded for a preliminary hearing today and was remanded to Friday.

Mrs. Julia Scarlett, 21, died of wounds in hospital Tuesday night.

Mikoyan says he will be happy to talk about anything Dulles wants, including Berlin. Dulles has described the Soviet Mikoyan says he would be pleased to talk to President Eisenhower before the summit conference. The White House says it is up to Mikoyan to ask.

Mikoyan is expected to take off Tuesday on a 10-day visit to the United States and Canada. He is reported considering stops at Philadelphia, Detroit, Dearborn, Ind., Boston, Dallas, San Francisco and Los Angeles. He will meet with Communists Club in New York City Jan. 14 and the National Press Club in Washington Jan. 19.

But any attempt to learn details of his plans draws a shrug at the embassy and such comments from Mikoyan as, "I will be on holiday and I am a free man."

Automobile Club For City, District Seems Assured

The formation of an automobile club in Belleville and District seems imminent. Thirty people from Trenton, Belleville, and the surrounding district gathered Saturday afternoon to discuss the proposal of the St. Lawrence Automobile Club Ltd. which has its headquarters in Kingston, to establish a chapter in Belleville. After an explanation of the Kingston club's aims and purposes, a brief history of the St. Lawrence Automobile Club (St. LAC) and its activities in this area was given by the chairman, Doug Falpson, and other St. LAC members, Dave Fraser of Trenton and Jim Graham of Belleville.

An outline of the sport in Canada was also given and the position of the Canadian Automobile Sports Club, the governing body for motorsport activities in Canada, was described.

It is proposed that the Belleville chapter of St. LAC will be set up as a more or less independent body under the St. LAC name with frequent liaison between the Kingston and Belleville groups to co-ordinate activities and programs. This proposal met with the approval of those present.

First executive of the club will be elected after several meetings and events have been held giving the members a chance to get to know each other. Several meetings are being planned, a rally is to behold, organized by Doug Falpson and Doug Phipps on January 25th. The next club meeting, held under the direction of the executive committee will be held on January 28th. Any person interested in obtaining more information regarding the club and its activities is requested to write to P.O. Box 86, Belleville.

There were also three calls from off areas during the month of September when a 10-year-old Trenton boy set fire to rubbish collars being Yolles Furniture Store on Dundas Street West and the Trenton Cleaners on Ontario Street. The third attempt by the youth was in the Weaver block on Dundas Street West in the hallway of the apartments above the Dominion Store. Damage in all three was very small and the case was turned over to the local police department who investigated and charged the youth.

During the year the fire trucks and firemen answered a total of 61 calls with a total of 21 alarms over the previous year. On two occasions did the firemen on the run more than any other type of calls. They were called out 11 times.

Two calls were made under the Mutual Aid Program, with both of them to Belleville. On September 6th the Canada Metal Limited on Coleman Street burned and on December 5th the Quinte Dairy Grill on Front Street in Belleville was destroyed.

BREAKDOWN OF CALLS

In a breakdown of the calls the department found that 135 calls came in during the daytime (from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.) and 80 calls came in during the evening hours (5 p.m. to 8 a.m.) Firemen rushed to the east side of the Trent River 87 times compared to 43 calls that came in from the west side of the town. They made 13 calls to fires outside town limits and in Murray township and six to fires in Sidney township.

Besides fires the department members also made four emergency calls during the year. On January 2nd, 1958, a boy fell into Trent River behind the Bata Shoe Company and Archie Williams had drowned. August 4 they were unable to revive a second drowning victim, D. Davy. On September 28 they were called out to a boy who had suffocated and on October 1 assisted in reviving the victim of a house fire.

The present equipment in charge of the department consists of a 1951 Bickle - Seagrave 400 IGPM pumper with a total pump and hose capacity of 400 and one mid-ship pumper of 750 GPM. A 1952 Fargo hose truck with 1,500 feet of hose and a 1943 Dodge 500 IGPM pumper with total mileage of 52,000 miles. Combination of all vehicles during the year amounted to 602 gallons. Mileage figures are kept during the time the trucks were operated by the Trenton Fire Department.

EXPECT PUMPER SOON

A Thibaudeau combination pumper and aerial ladder was ordered by the town during the year and delivery is expected in the near future.

In his report the Fire Chief said that during the year there were 1,000 man hours registered and these being of a minor nature only. Injuries suffered due to accidents during a fire were: one man suffered a cut hand which required a stitches to close and another man was overcome by smoke and hospitalized for two days.

During the year and at the fire which destroyed the Central Cold Storage the late Fire Chief Cameron was called from a heart attack while directing his men. The late chief had served as a voluntary fireman with the department for 42 years and had another three years on active service with the department as chief.

In summing up his report Fire Chief Ellis expressed his thanks to the many groups and individuals who had assisted the department during the past year and stated, "this has been the most disastrous year in the history of the town and my department with one major fire following another. The only relief and enjoyment we have had is the Christmas and New Year's pass without fires spoiling these joyful events."

THANKS DEPARTMENT

The Fire Chief added, "the officers and members of the department have been most loyal and their co-operation has been unlimited in every operation and function of the department since I have been made chief of the department, for this I am deeply grateful."

Members of the permanent portion of the department at the end of the year are Lieutenants Gerald Lewis and Gordon Coughlin and firemen Elmer Stacey, Marjorie Mills, Robert Haker, Frank Coleman and Duane Foshay. The voluntary staff consists of one Honorary Captain, Frank Sager and 11 men.

Major fires during the year with estimated loss of each in brackets are as follows: January 18, Farrar Furniture, ($125,000); January 29, Yeofes Block, ($88,-$207,400); August 12, Titus Bldg. ($30); May 12, Beamish Store Block, ($76,609); September 18, Central Cold Storage, ($848,663); October 6, Lee Block, ($14,-169.44); December 10, Weaver Lumber Company, ($27,901).

Town Briefs

TRENTON — Trenton's new town council members were sworn into office in a special meeting at the town hall last Friday. The meeting was held so the civic holiday will not be thought that more towns people will turn out to see it. However only a few did so with about 10 or 12 reported to have been on hand. Rev. G. A. Puttenham officiated at the ceremonies and following the swearing-in the Mayor Ross Hurst gave a lengthy address on the problems facing the town for the coming year and the projects which will be facing the chairmen of the various committees. Headed by the mayor the council for 1959 will consist of Councillors Vern Lapon, Lloyd Worrall, Claude Graham, Bill Bradshaw, Howard Aziz and Lloyd Weaver. The council's first meeting of the year will be held in the Board Room of the Municipal Building tonight at 8 p.m.

FIRST CONCERT

The Trenton Community Concert Association will present the vivacious Beverly Bower at the Capitol Theatre on January 8th. The blonde soprano has already been heard by audiences in the United States and has been much in demand for both concerts and radio appearances ever since her debut performance in the Windy City in the spring of 1956. She has also appeared before TV cameras quite frequently. Miss Bower will be presented to the members of the TCCA at the Capitol Theatre production tonight and Miss Bower will be assisted by Nathan Price at the piano.

BOARD TO MEET

The new members of the Trenton Board of Education will be sworn into office at a special meeting to be held in the North Trenton School tonight at 8 p.m. It is not known if the Board will hold a special meeting this night or if business will be held over until the regular meeting night which is next Monday. New members elected to the board at elections last December are: Mrs. Elizabeth Bedford, Paul Tripp and Robert Barlow.

WILL CHOOSE OFFICERS

It is expected the new town councillors will decide on one of the 10 who have occupied the post as Welfare Officer for the town of Trenton at their first meeting to be held tonight. All applicants for the job were given a review of their performance since taking office. The post was left vacant when Mrs. Lorraine Emma Connell was last held the position as Welfare Officer for nearly years. It is understood however, that town council will ask Mr. Connell to stay on for a few more weeks to allow the new man trained and to familiarize him with the records, etc.

WILL PICK UP TREES

Town Engineer Eric Alderson said yesterday that Christmas trees will be picked up during the week by the town's garbage collecting crews and will be disposed of at the town dump. It is also learned that the Boy Scouts will again this year collect trees and will ask for a regular donation. The Scouts had undertaken this job last year and after piling up the trees on the ice of the river had set fire to them when they held a sing song. Last year the Fire Department had sent a truck down to the site but had to be on hand to side and it is expected they will this year if the Scouts decide to repeat their project. It is hoped the trees the Scouts do not collect may be picked up by the garbage men on their regular rounds but definite plans for this collection will be announced in the morrow.

Town Crews Busy As Sudden Cold Makes Roads Icy

TRENTON — The bitter cold of which everyone is complaining yesterday afternoon brought Trenton thermometers down to 10 degrees below zero at night and turned streets into icy and dangerous thoroughfares.

Work crews early or earlier in the day had left the streets wet, and this proved unfavorable to the will of Jack Frost.

However, the icy streets also proved a boon to those who with the sanding trucks and working all through the night to keep the roads compartively safe for traffic. Only a few mishaps were reported yesterday where they were all in the minor category. There was damage to vehicles belnt to bumpers, fenders and trunk doors.

The town's engineer was also seen heading out Dundas Street West yesterday afternoon where he reported heavy drifting of freshly frozen snow had slowed traffic on the Dundas Street area and had to be cleared away.

Eric Alderson, town engineer, reports that the plumber checked the vacuum that heats the new heating units in the town sheds has finished the work with the exception of putting the vents out through the roof of the municipal building. The company which put the roof on the building will have to be covered before the vents can be put in to enable the guarantee on the heating units to be kept. This will be done the first of this week and, with the gas line in the building expected to also be installed this week, the new heating units will probably be in operation by Saturday at the latest.

The engineer also reports that at present nine men have been assigned to the job of clearing town-owned property off Stanley Street. This area has been reserved for industrial sites and the clearing of the bush will make it more attractive to any prospective industry which may be looking for a place to establish. Several sites have been hired under the federal-provincial development plan to create new work and decrease the unemployment during the "off-season".

Following is the text of the address by Mayor Gerald B. Hyde to this morning's inaugural meeting of the 1959 Belleville City Council:

Members of Council, Ladies and Gentlemen:

This morning's ceremonies have marked the inauguration into office of the Mayor and the Council of the City of Belleville for the year 1959. This year's council is embarking on the 346th administration. We are greatly expanded in area and population as a result of the boundary readings begun two years ago. Our city has increased in area from 6,000 acres to 8,800 acres. Our population has increased from some 21,000 persons to over 30,000 persons. The problems which will confront the Council during the year 1959 will be many, but I'm sure that as a result of monthly meetings in camera these can be solved to the best interests of the City. It will be our job to make these decisions for the best interests of the citizens of those of us on their Council has broadened to the point where each section of the city, new and old, will be given equal consideration when a decision is to be made.

The history of this community dates back 122 years to its incorporation in 1834. Some 42 years later the inhabitants of this area of what amounted then to 1,767 acres were incorporated as a city. It was not until 1949 that a further 127 acres were annexed from the Township of Sidney. The following year 896 acres were from the Township of Thurlow. Five days ago, approximately 2,600 acres were added from both these areas to the largest centre of population on the lake shore between Oshawa and Kingston. We are unique in certain lines of trading area extending some 25 miles in all directions. We stand today on the threshold of a great new era for the citizens of this community.

PLANNING

Planning for Greater Belleville is the vital need!

During the past few months an appointed committee has dealt with the first steps in planning Greater Belleville. Planning consultants have been engaged and are busily at work in drafting suggested zoning for the new city. It is the intention of the City of 1959 Council that a planning committee be reappointed to carry on and complete the work of the present committee. This onerous task. The Bay shore area, school sites, parks and green spots, streets and sewers, and all of the other matters which will affect the citizens of this community will be given very careful consideration during this coming year. It is the intention of your Council that the suggested zoning plan will be presented at a public meetings to be held in two-car collision on Highway 11, two-car collision on Highway 11, north of North Bay.

Mrs. Walter Shwetz, 58, and her brother-in-law, Joseph Shwetz, 73, of Smooth Rock Falls, in a collision near Cochrane Saturday.

Plowed Streets In Annexed Area Before Jan. 1

Although the past weekend with its snow and sudden freeze brought the first occasion since Jan. 1st, for city public works department to use its streets maintenance equipment in the newly annexed area, City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull said today he had been considered advisable for city public works personnel to get accustomed to streets in the new area before annexation was actually effective.

"We have been doing plowing in the annexed area for two weeks just to keep things in shape in case there was a sudden big snowstorm and freeze-up," noted the engineer.

Sanding equipment was out over the weekend in the annexed area applying sand to keep traffic flowing.

Despite the increased street mileage added to the city since annexation, it is felt that present snowplowing equipment will be able to handle any normal snowstorm.

Mr. Fleming will preside. He was to greet Mr. Dillon and his colleagues on their arrival at nearby Uplands airport at 4:45 p.m. They depart Wednesday for return to Washington late Tuesday.

The committee was set up in 1953 as an annual conference in Washington. It has been known as trade issues that could lead to trade friction. But it has also shown no spectacular success, the committee was found by Canadians to be a valuable forum in which to reach the ears of Washington's cabinet-level advisers.

The Canadian government will take the opportunity to present new proposals with legislation through the majority government, which can change them without recourse to Congress.

PLANNING

Planning for Greater Belleville is the vital need!

During the past few months an appointed committee has dealt with the first steps in planning Greater Belleville. Planning consultants have been engaged and are busily at work in drafting suggested zoning for the new city. It is the intention of the City of 1959 Council that a planning committee be reappointed to carry on and complete the work of the present committee. This onerous task. The proper establishment of residential districts, school sites, parks and green spots, streets and sewers, and all of the other matters which will affect the citizens of this community will be given very careful consideration during this coming year. It is the intention of your Council that the suggested zoning plan will be presented at a public meetings to be held in various sections of the city so that our people may be thoroughly acquainted with the proposals of their elected representatives. In this way everyone will have the opportunity of expressing their opinion before a final decision is made.

Coupled with proper planning is the necessity for Industrial Growth in Greater Belleville. One of the chief reasons for undertaking annexation proceedings was the desire to secure land within the city limits available for industrial development. There are a number of parcels of property very much suited for this type of development and I see by the city plan to take the necessary steps to acquire the land and look into the provision of suitable service roads, sewers and water. This will, of course, require a capital outlay of considerable proportion but it would be overcome from the sale of the property and it would defer speculative purchases by individuals who might have only the thought of personal gain in mind and not the growth and development of this community and the welfare of all its people.

Our Industrial Commission report is a most larger holder than in previous years and it requires no lengthy speech to those who can devote virtually all of his time to this vital need. While it may be that concrete results will be slow in materializing in this field and that future industrial commissions and councils may reap the acclaim of the people when plants are erected and men are employed, it nevertheless is the definite responsibility of the 1959 Industrial Commission to instill new vigour and life into this branch of our municipal government. I confidently expect this type of action from the members of this year's commission.

BELLEVILLE WATERLANDS

Favorable publicity can be of great assistance in encouraging the location of industry in a community. I am told that an industry considers many things as a co-operative labor force, suitable shipping facilities, available recreation areas, suitable industrial facilities, and low utility rates.

They also consider the attitude of a community's officials and the pride those officials display in the progress of the community they represent and the manner in which they seek to keep their community active in the public eye.

Two months from today the Belleville McFarland Hockey Club will commence its efforts to retain for the city of Belleville championship emblematic of World Amateur Hockey supremacy. As one of the individuals responsible for seeking the opportunity to have this city's hockey club represent Canada, I would again draw to your attention that Belleville has an unprecedented opportunity, unlikely to occur again in our lifetime, to emphasize the good name of the "Friendly City" throughout the world.

No stone should be left unturned to take full advantage of this opportunity to emphasize the name of this community and all its fine citizens in every country that the team will visit. Our team management and our sponsor, His Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton, are determined that the club which ultimately represents the city of Belleville in 1959 will be one in which we can all take a great deal of pride and will be one that will bring credit to the community from which they hail.

In my view this is an opportunity for our industrial commission to take full advantage of the publicity which the City of Belleville will receive throughout the many countries in Europe which the team will visit, to strengthen the representations which they have on expanding their operations to this country. I am fully confident that the people of Belleville will respond to the opportunity which is ours in gaining publicity of a type that we can probably never again attain and urge all Belleville citizens, financial and moral support to this event.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL

The matter of a sewage disposal solution for City of Belleville has received approval in principle from the council. We have also received approval to date report from our consulting engineers relating to certain aspects of the proposal and undertake this work. I am confident that during this year progress of great will be taken by your council to implement this worthy undertaking.

While the suggested cost may seem astronomical to all of us, it is inconceivable to me that any of our citizens believe that we should continue to pollute our Moira River and our Bay of Quinte by the continued dumping of our sewage.

COUNCIL OPERATION

Today marks the start of my seventh consecutive year as a member of your city council. As its leader again this year may I extend a word of warm welcome to the council chamber to the two new members with us this year, Aldermen Ellis and Elliott. Each of you brings to the deliberations of the council a background of individual public service and business experience. I expect that each of you will make a real contribution to the draw to your attention that work in the council. Both you and I know that I speak for all the members in extending this welcome to you. And, to Aldermen Wishart, McCabe, Graham, Gerard again this year, Collins, who have been returned by the citizenry for further term of office my warmest congratulations and welcome!

We have a full task to work very harmoniously together, during the next two years, or months, and I look forward to receiving your assistance and co-operation in this regard.

Together with the seven other aldermen who are commencing today the second year of their two-year terms of office we will be called upon to make many decisions affecting the lives of the people who have elected us to office. As I did in my inaugural address last year, may I once again ask only of each of you that we face up to each problem squarely, deal with it de-

Billy Reay Is Appointed Macs' Asst. General Manager

Billy Reay, former coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs and a star for many years of the Montreal Canadiens, was today appointed assistant general manager of the Belleville McFarland senior "A" hockey club.

The announcement was made at a press conference given by Mayor Gerald Hyde in the city hall.

Mr. Reay's duties are to commence immediately.

The new assistant general manager will be in complete charge of the team from February 2nd when they leave for Europe until early March when Manager Drury Denyes will take over for the world tournament proper.

Reay's appointment has the complete approval of the team management, playing coach Joe Hildebrand, and H. J. McFarland, godfather of the club who will make a generous contribution to the overseas fund.

Reay, it was stated, will not interfere with the coaching duties but will have a free hand in making whatever player changes, additions etc., he sees fit.

Mayor Hyde said he was very happy to see Mr. Reay appointed to the staff where Manager Denyes, who is city manager, can relieve of some of the hockey duties.

Lapalms Lead Fish Tournament In Florida

BOYNTON BEACH, Florida — Kenneth LaPalme, Sr. and Jr., of Trent Road, Belleville, are showing the other anglers in the fifth annual Boynton Beach Chamber of Commerce fishing tournament a thing or two about catching sailfish.

Mr. LaPalm, Sr., has hooked and brought into the sails to the boat while fishing with Capt. Kenny Lyman aboard the chartered boat, Lucky Penny docked at Boynton Beach. Mr. LaPalm has hooked all twelve sails to pull him way out in front in the tournament for the largest number of sailfish released.

Young LaPalm hooked and landed a 48-lb. sailfish to put his name on the tournament record board for the largest fish caught by any lady under 12 years of age. Ken, Jr., is 11 years old.

The fishing tournament will continue until April 15th when the winners for the more than 20 different classifications of freshwater and saltwater fish that abound in this area will be awarded prizes. The Gulfstream is at present fishing at Boynton Beach — only five minutes by boat from the docks. This makes Boynton Beach one of the finest fishing spots in the world.

A SAFE SPORT

We see that an American senator has let loose a tirade against motor car racing as a sport, condemning it as a sport for sadists and for those who have a desire towards self destruction, destruction of property, and a few other nasty things. He particularly condemns the sports and racing car enthusiasts and cites a few examples to back up his opinion.

We decided to examine the plight of the sport especially in Canada, to see just how far the senator's accusations could be applied. We were especially pleased to find that organized sports car racing (we do not include stock car racing on an oval quarter-mile track in the sport because of its unorganized condition and somewhat limited appeal), is in a very healthy state in Canada.

High speed competitions, organized by various motorsport clubs across Canada, have been going on since about 1950. Since 1953 these races have been organized according to the regulations and provisions of the Canadian Automobile Sport Club, the governing body for motorsport activities in Canada, which organization has provided insurance - - life, property damage, and public liability - - to cover all participants and spectators attending each sanctioned race meet. To date no claim has been made against the extremely comprehensive policy which the Canadian Automobile Sport Club (CASC) has been carrying for a number of years.

By rough estimate anywhere from 6,000 to about 18,000 miles are covered during the course of an event, depending on its nature. Anywhere from ten to a dozen events are held annually in Ontario alone. Since the CASC has been supervising these race meets possibly one million miles have been travelled in high speed racing in Canada alone over closed road circuits on private property. Not one fatality has occurred - - a phenomenal record.

A few accidents have happened but none of a nature where anyone has suffered serious injury or has been maimed. In all fairness it should be stated that there were several fatalities, three in fact, a number of years ago before the CASC started sanctioning and covering insurance for events.

Enthusiasts will find cause to be proud of this fine record because, proportionately, Canada has more motoring enthusiasts than the United States yet we lead that country in the safe organization of this fine sport. There seems to be no reason to support the senator's claim that sports car racing should be banned because of a high fatality and injury rate when, as a sport, it has fewer fatalities and injuries in the course of the past few years than football, hockey, skiing, baseball, hunting or swimming.

Potentially it is dangerous, yes, but through the efforts of the CASC and sponsoring clubs it has become another of the fine sports which many Canadians enjoy.

HARDLY TIME TO START A SWEATER

"Hardly time to start a sweater."

A very few years ago, there would have been something comical about the suggestion that anybody would attempt to knit a sweater during a trans-Atlantic flight.

What was once high adventure, though, has become commonplace and the ways in which passengers while away the time during the trip include all the commonplace methods long associated with other forms of travel, knitting, reading, dozing, chatting.

A century from now Boeing may be writing another advertisement:

"Hardly time to raise a family" it may say of its new spaceship, speeding to some planet a few light-years beyond the sun.

The people of Afghanistan like their own flat, crusty bread in preference to the European-type bread from a Russian-built bakery. As a result they eat the crust of the new bread and throw the middle section to the birds. —(St. Catharines Standard.)

THE LITTLE DIARY

By EDGAR A. GUEST

If I want to know the way to polish tinware,
Or the proper way to care for leather belts,
I consult my little diary—it is in there;
Or the heat at which a certain metal melts.

If I want to know the time in Yokohama
When it's twelve o'clock in Washington, D.C.,
Or the proper place to use a little comma,
My little diary tells it all to me.

If a friend of mine takes married bird,
Excitedly I neeleh to raise a hue,
But proceed in manner very calm and placid,
As my little diary tells me I should do.

If I want to know the value of a peso,
A sucre, a piaster or a tael,
I needn't take another fellow's say so,
My little diary has it, without fail.

If I want to waterproof a bit of leather
Or out of linen take a spot of ink,
Or read the flags that indicate the weather,
My diary tells me how to, in a wink.

I've every sort of handy information
In tabloid form, prepared for you to read.
I've every sort of curious explanation,
But nothing that I ever really need.

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

(Article 61 contributed by members of the Hastings County Historical Society)

THE NEW YEAR

Our month of January is well named, the ancient Roman household god after whom it is named, was two headed so that from his position beside the front door, he might protect the household from unwelcome intruders and at the same time watch over the outgoing members of the household.

Similarly, Janus' month is a time for looking both backward and ahead, a time for summing up the events of the preceding twelve months and anticipating the happenings of the new year.

It is appropriate therefore that we should pause at this time to consider some of the events of the past, anniversaries of which will be celebrated in 1959, several of which will form the basis for future articles in this series:

170 Years Ago (1789)

About 30 United Empire Loyalist families arrived near the mouth of the Moira, forming the first U.E.L. settlement at Belleville and adjoining territory. Township survey was begun at Thurlow Village.

160 Years Ago (1799)

The Lennox and Addington Militia was organized.

150 Years Ago (1829)

The first pastor of the Parish of St. Michael the Archangel at Belleville arrived in the person of Michael Brennan. In the same year, the land occupied by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Belleville was conveyed by the Crown to a group of trustees including John Turnbull, William Zwick, W. H. Wallbridge, and Anthony Manahan.

125 Years Ago (1834)

Belleville was incorporated as a Police Village, and the "intelligencer" commenced publication.

120 Years Ago (1839)

The County of Hastings (then known as Ameliasburgh District) was separated from the Midland District of Upper Canada. The first sheriff of the District was J. W. Dunbar Moodie.

110 Years Ago (1849)

Approval was given by the Canadian Government for the incorporation of Belleville as a town. The first mayor was B. F. Davy.

80 Years Ago (1879)

A licence was issued to James Anderson to operate a steam ferry between Belleville and Prince Edward County. Also, the Women's Christian Association of Belleville was formed. For many years this Association has conducted and defeated the Belleville Hospital and the Home for the Aged.

75 Years Ago (1884)

The 10th Corps of the Salvation Army was organized at Belleville. Also, the University, or degree-conferring, power of Albert College was transferred to Victoria University.

70 Years Ago (1889)

The Murray Canal was completed, and the Belleville Harbor Commission was established. Alexander Walker was the first Harbor Master.

60 Years Ago (1899)

40 Years Ago (1919)

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce was organized to succeed the Board of Trade, and the Royal Bank of Canada opened a branch at Belleville.

30 Years Ago (1929)

Celebrations were held at Deseronto commemorating the anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada by the U.E. Loyalists. (A similar celebration had been held at Belleville 5 years before.) And the Deseronto Historic Sites Laboratory was started at Belleville.

25 Years Ago (1934)

Belleville celebrated its Centennial and the 100th anniversary of the settlement of the Loyalists. Also, the Belleville Kinsmen Club was organized.

These are some of the events that should be remembered in 1959.

Surgeons Now Cure Dobbin

Montreal Gazette

It is not among the human beings only that progress in medicine opens new doors to health. These conquests are now largely extended to the animal world.

Recent developments have brought about a "change of heart" in man's faithful servant and companion, the dog.

Not so long ago, if Dobbin injured a joint or a tendon, his active career was over. It was indeed all too likely that a bullet would be employed "to put him out of his misery."

Gone are those days, according to a report from Cornell University's College of Veterinary Medicine, where some highly significant facts are brought out by Dr. Gordon Danks, head of surgery.

Veterinarians, according to Dr. Danks, can now perform operations that restore to a horse full use of an injured leg. More and more horses are enabled to "recover from surgery on joints, bones, tendons and the abdominal region."

Injured race horses are dealt with differently when they are merely gain a new lease of life but — more remarkable — can "perform" even better than themselves on the race course.

Today there is nothing "rough and ready" about the practice of the vet. "New methods and equipment, for instance, have made operations on horses as scientific and efficient as operations on humans. The kind of equipment used in human surgery has been in large part "taken over by the veterinarian." This extends even to the use of transfusion "before and during operations," and to "a new emphasis on sterilization."

It appears that most of the horses brought into the Cornell clinic suffer from lameness. Even our cruel and disabling enemy, arthritis, is apparently a common affliction of the horse.

Upper Class Laughs Most

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Laugh and scale the social ladder!

That advice is based on an observation by a Harvard sociologist. Lecturing at the University of Michigan, Prof. Alex Bavelas said the men who laughs the higher he or she is likely to rank socially.

Then of course, there is the admonition: "Laugh and the world laughs with you. Weep and you weep alone."

There is also a reason for real fear that gatherings of social climbers will develop into laughing contests. And there also is the saying "Laugh and grow fat."

Can a woman climb the social ladder with a lot of added weight?

How to Win From Bookie

London Observer

Glasgow must be the only place where you can be sure of making money from bookmakers.

What you do is to get caught in a raid on a betting shop. The magistrate will fine you next morning, but you make money about that. The bookie pays.

That afternoon you call again at the betting shop and the proprietor will give you £1 for your trouble—if you're a policeman. If it is one of the better ones. You were not expecting him to be raided. If you dont know where to look ask a policeman.

The seat of the disease is very generally the "hock joint," comparable to a man's ankle.

It is clear that as men and horse must for long have been endurance a common suffering. It seems mere justice that they should now be sharing the benefits of rehabilitation.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The new year really begins today. After the explosion of Christmas and new Years, we now begin to pick up the pieces and patch life back into its normal shape again. By the middle of this week, most of us will feel that life explosion never took place. We'll be right back in the old routine.

Small strange creatures we humans are. Every race and tribe of us, from the immemorial, have staged these periodic explosions comparable to our Christmas and New Years. Sometimes, as in Babylon or Egypt, they lasted for weeks, declared certain days or seasons to be the occasion of universal celebration and lavishness. Often, I think, it was the emperors who dedicated days or weeks to triumphs and circuses that kept the populace happy and profitably exhausted. Long before the organized era of Babylon or Rome, the skin-clad tribes of Europe, even, were the progenitors of most of us, had set aside certain days and weeks in celebration of the coming of spring, the harvest and the gathering of leaves. In India, China, Africa, even, I am told, among the naked Eskimos, there is feasting and the happy lodgigenes of the whole family. Instinct has told periodic whoop-ups in honor of something or other is as fundamental and ingrained as is our Christmas in us.

It would be preferable, doubtless, to think of ourselves, in this enlightened age, as differing from primitive man. But the evidence does not support that belief.

Horses' Hats Cause Row

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Why wear in the outer confines of the Commonwealth, the Sydney, Australia, Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has asked that hats be compulsory for horses in summer time. As this is summertime over there right now, that means the proposal is ripe for adoption.

Mean a group of horse lovers in Sydney protest against the plan. They say that the horse is a sensitive animal, and will even hang its head in humiliation at having its ears stuck out of straw hat on its head.

A horse wearing a straw hat with its ears sticking out does look funny, but Australia's summers are very hot and something needs to be done to give horses protection against sunstroke. Yes, there is the model on its head, while, the head salesman's horse proudly wears a fine straw hat of the model. Just as a new hat does a lot for a woman's morale, a stylish new hat could give a knock-kneed old horse quite a lift.

If a horse observes what goes on in the stable, he will get a lot of amusement when it sees the funny hats women wear — but if their ears don't protrude through the top.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NO ONE KNOWS!

In talking with people I so often hear this phrase: "No one knows!"

Well, probably that very one spoken to is going through something infinitely more difficult than the one who says this. It is true that few know the inner battles and defeats, as well as victories, which take place within our little spheres of action. When we think we are having an unusually hard time, we only have to look around to see someone who is worse off than we and who may at that very hour be handling his or her fate with superb patience and courage.

It is best that no one does know. It is best that we battle our problems as best we can and let the results tell our story in time.

The good and bad, the happy and unhappy in life are pretty evenly divided in each of our lives. The real courage is not to let any occurrence of fate make us bitter, too critical or sour.

I want as a friend that one who has gone through much that I have, who is able to understand with sympathy, kindness and heart within is ever kept warm, no matter how cold the world may be outside.

After all, words are so futile. There are times when a pressure of the hand, or a look, is able to quell a hurricane of worry, disappointment, or loss.

It is probably much better if no one knows!

Try as we may, other people know too much about our private interior affairs. And they know all too little about the fineness which lives in the most distressed of lives.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molnor, M.D.

BABY AFFLICTED WITH SOMETHING OTHER THAN ORDINARY AILMENT OF CHILDHOOD

In passing I want to make mention of another reference in the letter: Loss of a child through tetanus. In the country or in the city, don't neglect or postpone giving the basic vaccinations. Tetanus, because of vaccinations, has become relatively uncommon but, like the other diseases, remains a threat wherever a door is left unlocked.

"Dear Dr. Molnor: Do you consider it advisable to massage the liver as a remedy for constipation? — M.J.C."

I'll put it this way, sir. Your liver is tucked up under your ribs and doesn't like to be felt. "Massage of the liver," therefore, can't be done. All you could do would be to thump your abdomen. Considering the anatomy in general, this would do no good as far as constipation is concerned.

For cramps and foot pains? Both can be stopped! To learn how, write to me care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., requesting my pamphlet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." And enclose a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

Compromise On Yardstick

Montreal Gazette

The Canadian flair for compromise has been demonstrated in many fields, from spelling to geography. It is expected, now, that it will show its value in something much more minute and specialized.

The imperial yard, a metal bar guarded in London by the British Board of Trade and the British unit of length; the American yard is guarded similarly in Washington by the Bureau of Standards. The difference between the two is less than that bothers carpenters or dressmakers — the difference is five millionths of an inch.

It is a bother in scientific circles, however, and in the precision instrument industry. The fine threading of bolts and screws also requires more and precision instruments cannot be exchanged across the Atlantic because of it. It is also peculiarly important in NATO, where the ideal is to make equipment as possible to be interchangeable.

Canada solved the problem years ago by splitting the difference and adopting a measurement midway between. It is understood, now, that London and Washington have come to the same decision; their measurement, in future, will lie halfway between the two countries, that it will adopt the Canadian yard as their basic measurement.

Ottawa and Canadians generally can find considerable satisfaction in the decision.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DISCIPLINE DOES IT

Everyone who writes a newspaper feature of any kind receives letters from readers. I appreciate greatly the letters I receive. Generally they are letters couched in terms of appreciation and spiritual aggrement. Sometimes the opposite. But always they are helpful.

Let me give you a meter-ial message which I received recently from a reader:

"Those who step by step learn to live His way—

Every day—

And on the daily Sabbath pay

A loyal homage to the giver of all good things—

Let us pray and sing.

And truly strive to spread the word of life."

This is sound doctrine well stated in a form of words suitable to the dignity of the matter discussed.

I like the spiritual feeling and the development of our spiritual life indicated by the last step in the letter-writer's formula — prayer, striving, reflection, and then witnessing to the word of life. Anyone who believes that he can be back on his couch, as it were, and allow God's blessings to come down upon him like rain from heaven is due for a shocking awakening if he does not proceed in that fashion. Jesus spoke about walking the narrow pathway and striving to enter through a narrow gate.

The letter of the confessor is hard, but the way of the Christian is not easy. Discipline does it.

Fidel Castro Baited Batista Into Series of Rash Actions Paving Way for His Downfall

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro forged Cuba's popular revolution in the hot flame of hatred for a dictator.

After five years of bitter reverses and frustrations, the rebel chieftain succeeded where the outside world may have been justified in believing that yet another disastrous failure was staring him in the face.

What brought about this swift change in the fortunes of the bearded young man of 32 who darted from the mountains of eastern Cuba to push dictator President Fulgencio Batista into the climactic debacle of New Year's Day?

Basically it was a matter of two strong personalities locked in a stubborn struggle. Castro proved the stronger and more shubborn of the two, but he could not have done it if Batista had not helped defeat himself.

RESENTMENT PLANTED

Graft and corruption have marked Cuban regimes for years. Perhaps it was a national habit which Cuba might have lived with, but a repressive and often wantonly cruel dictatorial regime produced glowing resentment which Castro fanned into brilliant fire of revolution.

Castro accomplished his goal by persistently nagging, harrassing and baiting Batista into a long series of furiously rash acts. These led inevitably to Batista's downfall and ignominious flight as the protecting arms of a fellow dictator in the Dominican Republic.

Castro's long uphill and seemingly impossible crusade began July 26, 1953—and his movement from then on was named for that date. Then, as a young lawyer of 27, he led an attack on the Batista army's Moncada barracks in Santiago de Cuba, capital of Oriente province in eastern Cuba where the rebel leader was born.

That attack failed. Castro was captured and sentenced to 15 years in prison. To a dictator who had taken over at gunpoint the year before it had been no more painful than a mosquito bite.

MISCALCULATED

Then Batista made a miscalculation. Realizing the bitterness he had created among those Cubans who dreamed of a respectable form of constitutional democracy, he proclaimed an amnesty for political prisoners.

Castro, among those set free, went to Mexico to plot with fellow Cuban exiles against Batista.

Batista failed to legalize himself. He remained an unconstitutional ruler. Not all the showy public works he planned, not all the handsome roads he built, not all the foreign investment he attracted to Cuba could overshadow two facts—

Cubans were ruled by a dictator who gave no freedoms; and Batista's followers and family amassed fortunes at public expense.

LANDS ON COAST

On Dec. 2, 1956, Castro landed on the northeast coast of Oriente province from Mexico with 81 of his Cuban exile followers. Batista forces wiped out all but Castro and 11 others.

Batista considered the threat over. But Castro, with his handful of ragged refugees, hid out in the rugged Maestra Mountains, made friends with peasants and won their confidence. They attracted new followers. Little by little, a trickle of arms and ammunition seeped in by sea.

By September of 1957 Castro had about 1,000 armed men around him. Batista scoffed at him as a "Communist brigand." To the United States rich exiled Cuban politicians, all enemies of Batista, took notice, Castro was their only hope of going home. They began the financing and smuggling of arms to Oriente.

Batista now made another mistake. The dictator sent planes and tanks to batter rebel positions in the city mercilessly, without regard for civilians. Many were killed.

Castro became a glamorous figure to many, an idealist who fought the tyrant and helped the oppressed.

SIGN AGREEMENT

Midsummer 1958 brought the pact of Caracas, a crucial turning point. Represent a t i v e s of about 15 anti-Batista organizations in Cuba met to sign an agreement supporting Castro's movement to overthrow Batista. Castro became strong enough to impose taxes on the sugar industry.

In Havana rebels patiently built a fifth column 5,000 strong with hidden arms. Castro's force in other provinces numbered 8,000 to 10,000. It was enough for hard-hitting guerrilla warfare.

Castro baited Batista into his final big mistake. The 26 of July forces drove deep into Santa Clara province. The rebels made it appear they intended to occupy its cities.

Batista gambled, throwing everything he had into a payoff offensive in Las Villas. A bitter battle raged through Christmas week. Government announcements made it appear that the rebels at last were on the run.

HAD TO WIN

Castro could afford to lose and retreat, but Batista had to win quickly or sacrifice support inside his own military establishment. Casualties sustained in an offensive battle could be enormous.

Suddenly Batista decided that while he might hold on for some time he probably would never give up. With each mistake he made enemies. His life was unsafe outside his heavily guarded quarters.

On New Year's Day he gave up. Two flights of civilians and hundreds who supported him demoralized the army and police. Castro had only to order his fifth column out in Havana and send columns on the march in the provinces.

The revolution had succeeded.

Bodies of Two Missing Since Dec. 23rd Found

HEARST (CP)—The bodies of two men missing in their light aircraft since Dec. 23 were recovered Sunday from bush five miles west of here by a ground party using a department of lands and forests snowmobile.

Maurice Begin, 38, pilot and owner of the plane, and his passenger, Roland Marrier, 35, are believed to have died instantly when their ski-equipped Aeronca nosed into the ground 100 feet from a trans - Canada pipeline clearing.

The bodies were found pinned in the two-seater aircraft.

The missing plane was sighted on a search flight, and the location radioed to search headquarters in Hearst.

Cpl. F. M. Meads of the provincial police detachment here said the cause of the crash is not yet known but there will be an investigation.

Marrier, 35, the proprietor of a drycleaning shop here, was the father of five children. Begin was a department of lands and forests employee. He was married with three children.

Icebreaker Only 3 Miles From Trapped Ships

MONTREAL (CP) — The Icebreaker d'Iberville was expected today to reach one of the 13 foreign freighters ice - bound in Montreal harbor since early December.

Department of transport officials said Sunday night the icebreaker is only three miles from an oil company wharf at the eastern edge of Montreal harbor and is expected to reach the nearest ship, the German Poseidon, early in the afternoon.

Eight miles of ice still separate the d'Iberville from the other 12 ships, berthed in Montreal's inner harbor. It would take her two or three more days to reach them and start them on the 800-mile voyage to the Atlantic.

The D'Iberville has broken through 20 miles of ice piled up to 20 feet thick downstream from Montreal Island during the last three days.

Two other icebreakers are to start upstream Tuesday from Lake St. Peter—about 60 miles from Montreal — to help the D'Iberville.

Delivery Boy Nearly Killed By Missile

TORONTO (CP)—A 15-year-old delivery boy was knocked unconscious Saturday when a marble fired from a home-made toy cannon bounded off a lamppost and lodged a half inch above his right eye.

Police said Robert L. Logue of suburban Scarborough might have been killed had he been nearer to the 16-inch-long cannon, which they described as a deadly weapon.

Robert underwent an operation to remoral of the missile. His condition was reported satisfactory.

Police seized one partly-completed cannon from a 13-year-old boy and later confiscated three more from other boys. No charges were laid.

The missiles are fired from the copper barrels by igniting firecrackers rammed inside. The detonation hurls the pellets with surprising force and speed, police said.

3 Indian Girls Found Dead Alone in Cabin

CUT BANK, Mont. (AP)—Three little Blackfoot Indian girls were found dead alone in their cabin Saturday just outside this northern Montana city.

Welch said their mother, Margaret Running Rabbit, 25, and unmarried, had been held in jail last month on a charge of child neglect. She said the children were Romona May, 6; Dorene Fay, 4, and Marcella, 2.

The official said a man who reported finding the girls was being held without charge for questioning. The girls' maternal grandmother, Minnie Running Rabbit, had been caring for the children. Officials said she had left them and gone downtown.

Officials said the bodies bore no marks, the cabin was warm and tidy and a stove was well ventilated.

Hammarskjold Shortens Tour of Refugee Camps

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations cut short a tour of refugee camps Sunday after a peaceful demonstration by 2,000 Palestine Arab refugees.

Now on a Middle East and east African tour, he was visiting one of the camps in Jericho, 30 miles west of here, when the demonstration was staged.

"We want to return to our beloved country—we shall march to Palestine," many of the demonstrators shouted.

Before the demonstration, Hammarskjold, accompanied by government officials and escorted by four jeeps full of armed police and troops, met about 60 leaders representing the 500,000 refugees in Jordan.

These refugees constitute about one-third of Jordan's population and about half the total number of Palestine refugees now living in four main areas—Jordan, Lebanon, the Gaza Strip between Egypt and Israel, and Syria.

A legacy of the 1948 Arab-Israeli war, the refugees have repeatedly demanded repatriation and compensation for property lost or damaged.

Hammarskjold was scheduled to inspect other camps, but instead drove back to Amman to meet Prime Minister Samir Rifai for final talks before he left for Saudi Arabia, Cairo and Libya.

Two Wounded By Gun Pellets

CAYUGA, Ont. (CP)—Two Toronto men were wounded by shotgun pellets Saturday in a freak hunting accident near this Hamilton area village.

Vincent Virzi, 39, and Nick Barbera, 34, had pellets extracted from their faces at a Hamilton Hospital.

They told police Mr. Barbera shot at a rabbit and a ricochetting pellet struck Mr. Virzi in the head near the right eye. He threw his own shotgun into the air and it fired, part of the charge hitting Barbera.

The injured men were assisted by two hunting companions.

Wedding

HOGRATH — CLAIRMONT

KARMORA — Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church was the setting for a very pretty winter wedding on Saturday, December 27th, when Louise Anne, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Clairmont, became the bride of F/O James Paul McGrath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Desmond McGrath, of Oshawa.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. P. Healey.

Mrs. Hugh Brady played the wedding music and also sang three solos: "Mother at Thy Fe la Kneeling"; "Oh Sacred Heart," and "Panis Angelicus".

Floral decorations in the sanctuary of the church were of white chrysanthemums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white slipper satin with, scalloped neck line and long lily-pointee sleeves. Her tiara headdress, studded with seed pearls, held the nylon illusion net veil.

Attending her were her sisters, Miss Patricia Clairmont, as maid of honor, and Miss Theresa Clairmont and a cousin, Miss Margaret Shannon, as bridesmaids.

They were identical street-length dresses of winter red velvet with red slippers, and carried white fur muffs with holly adornments, and wore matching headdresses.

Mr. Michael McGrath attended his brother and ushers were: Charles Clairmont, brother of the bride, and Thomas Callery, of Reid, a cousin of the bridegroom.

At the reception held in the parish hall, the guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore dusty blue lace over rayon with matching accessories. Her corsage was of white garden-ias. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in a hammered red taffeta sheath, with white profile hat and corsage of white gardenias.

The young couple left for White Plains, Mich., on their honeymoon; the bride wearing a green and blue Paisley dress, white cloche hat, with black accessories and a sheared racoon coat.

On their return they will reside in North Bay, where the bridegroom is stationed and Mrs. McGrath is attending teachers' college.

Prior to her marriage, Miss Wilma McKinnon was hostess at a miscellaneous shower where the bride received varied and beautiful gifts; also in North Bay her college associates showered her with miscellaneous gifts.

Mrs. Fairclough Takes Issue With Critics of Immigration

OSHAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Fairclough today took issue with criticism that immigrants are taking jobs away from native Canadians.

She also indicated in a speech to the Oshawa Rotary Club that the government plans to hold immigration closely in line with what it is sure the country can absorb.

Mrs. Fairclough said "critics still claim that newcomers are taking jobs away from native-born Canadians. I am not going to argue this point but perhaps I might mention a few facts."

MANY SPONSORED

During the first 11 months of 1958 nearly 60,000 immigrants entered Canada as workers, she said. Of these, 43,340 either were sponsored or were self-establishment cases—meaning they had employment awaiting them. Another 4,577 were professional men, agriculturists or domestic servants, for whom there was a demand.

"This left 13,866 persons who actually competed for jobs on the Canadian labor market during the first 11 months of 1958," said Mrs. Fairclough. And even some of these had skills badly needed in this country, such as nurses, lab technicians and stenographers.

Notes of her speech were released to the press in advance of delivery.

While some criticized the government for allowing too many immigrants into Canada, others criticized it "for not bringing in even more immigrants to populate the empty spaces of Canada," and increase economic output.

WILL BE CAREFUL

The government was going to be careful, though.

Mrs. Fairclough said immigration "is closely tied to the economic absorptive capacity of our country."

"If more people come to Canada this year or next year or in fact in any year, they will do so only because Canadian employers have created more jobs through the expansion and development of their businesses."

The minister at another point urged New Canadians to integrate as quickly as possible, and old Canadians to welcome them.

Immigrants would never force the habits and customs of their adoptive land, nor would this be desirable, but "nevertheless, the newcomer must accept our customs if he is to be reasonably happy in Canada."

Hall of Fashion Free Created For Eight of Elegant Old Guard

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—A new generation has taken over the list of the world's best-dressed women, with the elegant old guard retired to permanent honors in a newly created fashion hall of fame.

Two New Yorkers are tied for first place in the annual list, issued by the couture group of the New York Dress Institute and selected by written ballots of 2,500 fashion experts throughout the world.

FAULTLESS TASTE

Eight perennial holders of the best-dressed title were elevated to fashion's hall of fame because, the Institute said, "their faultless taste in dress, without ostentation or extravagance, places them above annual comparison." They are:

Others of the new and youthful 1959 best-dressed list are:

Mrs. Henry Ford II, Princess Margaret, Countess Quintanilla of Madrid, Mme. Arturo Lopez-Willshaw of Paris, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Jr., Mrs. Ren Harrison of London (film star Kay Kendall), Mrs. Thomas Bancroft Jr., of New York, Mrs. Norman K. Winston of New York, Mrs. Mel Ferrer (film star Audrey Hepburn), Mrs. Stanley Rumbough Jr., (Dina Merrill, actress of New York), Mrs. David K. Bruce (wife of the United States ambassador to West Germany), and Mrs. Bruno Paglisi of Mexico (actress Merle Oberon).

The new leaders of world fashion are notable in several ways. More than two-thirds are well below middle age, the majority are American and most all are active in careers, sports or other interest that lift them out of the old category of "clothes horse."

Plan Busy Season For Women's Classes

The New Year brings with it much activity for the women's classes on Thursday evenings at the Y.M.C.A.

The first eight weeks will be devoted to a special program designed for weight control. Classes have been planned to include helpful hints for dieting, exercising and common sharing of home exercising by the "buddy" system.

The women's swim instruction class will begin again Thursday evening.

Magnificent Mock Mink

BY ALICE ALDEN

Of course you want a mink coat — but what do you do when the social calendar is better filled than the bank account? One answer is to purchase one of the new synthetic mink coats. Each year these become more handsome and less distinguishable from the real thing. This one is wonderfully soft, light and warm. It dry cleans beautifully and resists matting. Cut on chemise lines. It has a shirred cape collar, tucked back and push-up sleeves. And who would think this "mink" is acrylic fibre?

Eunice K. — My husband and I have been married two years and are quite happy. Our one and only problem is in-law trouble.

My own home life was quite happy. I was an only child and my parents doted on me without spoiling me. My husband was one of a family of six. All the others were girls and they have always pampered him. He turned out fine in spite of them, but they insist upon telling me what they can still run his life.

My sisters-in-law and my mother-in-law keep calling us long distance to find out if Henry is being properly cared for. They send me long lists of instructions about what to do for him. You'd think he's a hothouse plant. When we visit her, my mother-in-law has constant criticisms about the way I dress or act and tells me Henry likes-to-and-so. As a result I don't feel like visiting her anymore.

Henry K. — It's true that my mother and sisters make too much of me. I've always known that and told Eunice about it before we were married. But she doesn't understand that they also want to make a fuss over her because she is my wife. She takes it as criticism if they give her advice but I happen to know that they only mean to help both of us.

Eunice claims my mother and sisters don't know a thing about homemaking or how to dress well. She says she knows a lot more than they do. She may be right, but I say it's not important enough to make a fuss about. As far as I'm concerned Eunice is fine the way she is — except I don't think she ought to get up her fighting blood against my family. They mean well, even if they are a little annoying at times.

My family will be very offended if Eunice doesn't come to visit. Why hurt them?

The Council: In spite of the fact that Eunice was an only child, she seems to have gotten from somewhere the sharp sense of rivalry which is more common with the offspring of bigger families. At the same time we think it likely that she has been "spoiled" in the sense she cannot easily accept a position of partial importance. Although she is Number One with her husband, she is irritated by her awareness of the hovering females in the background of Henry's life.

We don't want to overlook the fact that hovering females can be irritating. One doting mother and five equally doting sisters are rich fare, and a young wife might easily have some bad moments when confronted with such a situation.

However, there are many different ways of handling the problem and Eunice seems to be taking the most childish one. She knows very well that she is offending the family and making her husband unhappy by her refusal to pay the customary family visits. She is creating ugliness and bad feeling, and her husband is the person who will suffer most by it.

At bottom, Eunice must have a poor opinion of herself or she would not be so quick to scent criticism and resent it. She should try to be more objective — to correct her own failings and slough off any implied criticism that may be unjustified. Eunice needs to learn to laugh at her own sulky reaction to a commonplace family problem.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

POPULAR HOURS FOR CERTAIN KINDS OF PARTIES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Our Fifth Wedding Anniversary is the first Tuesday in March, and we would like to give quite a large late-afternoon party on this day. My husband is rabidly against our style giving a party that would seem to call for a gift, and so he says that we can give this party, and that I can invite as many guests as I wish to, but that I mustn't say on the invitation anything about it being our Wedding Anniversary. Would this be proper?

2. Now about the hours of the party. We don't want it to be just a cocktail party ending, say, at 7 o'clock or thereabouts. Nor do we want it to be a buffet supper, because then, with our space, we would not be able to invite as many people as I'd like to. So would it be at all permissible to name the hours 5:30 — 8:30, if I plan to serve a few more substantial foods than I would ordinarily serve at a cocktail party? — Peg

1. Yes, this is an entirely proper plan, and is the procedure when the hosts do not wish to reveal the "theme" of the party. Of course you, and particularly your husband, must be prepared for the idea that some of your relatives — and friends will undoubtedly remember the date and may wish to send presents or bring them.!

2. Yes, the 5:30 — 8:30 hours for this kind of party are permissible, and indeed are so flexible that they are becoming increasingly popular. Especially popular on a day not a weekend day, when busy men and women feel they can leave at an early hour when they wish to, and other guests may come, perhaps semi-formally dressed, for an evening's festivity and then leave in time for, say, a 7:30 or 8 o'clock dinner, either at home or at a restaurant.

Perhaps these 5:30 — 8:30 hours are more or less the exception of the "Five-and-Ten" parties which were popular for so long in certain communities at one time you wish to enter 5, but leave at or before 10!

NO "MISS" IN SIGNATURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm 18 years old and single. When I write a business letter or a letter to a stranger (for example, this letter to you), shouldn't I sign my name "Miss Mary Smith"? I've been told I should not, but to me it makes sense that I should sign the "Miss" before my name for the information of the store or the stranger to whom I am writing.

— Miss Mary Smith (?)

You should not sign a letter, any kind of letter to anyone, "Miss Mary Smith." Mary Smith is your correct signature . . . a title is not a part of a signature. When a letter is signed "Mary Smith," the reader takes it for granted that the title is "Miss." Therefore, whenever you think it is necessary to indicate the title, write Miss in parentheses before your name. Like this:

(Miss) Mary Smith

Sincerely yours,

IMPORTANT WEDDING GIFT FROM BRIDGE PARTNERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For several years four of us "gals" have played bridge together, and we've been wonderful friends. Three are married, one unmarried. Now this girl is to be married, and we know of a quite expensive cooking item she particularly wants, as she has seen and admired it in the "location" in our kitchens. So we three, with our husbands, would like to pool our gift-budgets and give this to her. Would this be considered proper, and is it permissible? — Reader

Yes, entirely proper for you three couples to give the bride-to-be your good and lasting gift. This kind of gift for which she yearns. A most practical and sensible thing to do, and it would be to her a wonderful reminder of The Bridge Friendship-Foursome!

INSTEAD OF "SINCERELY" A GREETING-SENTENCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'd like your advice as to how to "sign off" a letter to an acquaintance or to a pen-pal. I know "Sincerely" is usually recommended, but so often it does not seem quite suitable. However, I also seem difficult to find a substitute. — Anne

Right you are about "Sincerely"! However, a good substitute is I think, a sentence of greeting or good wishes. For example: "Every good wish to you, for your business and well-being. Anne Edwards"

Or: "The friendliest of greetings to you, Betty, best wishes, and the hope to see you very soon. Anne Edwards"

MONDAY

Boiled Cured Ox Tongue; Quick-Steamed in Butter Green Cabbage; Sliced Pears in Jelly; Iced Cupcakes; Coffee.

The HiSpeed Beef Casserole is a one-dish meal that is economical and may be prepared in advance. If you are a career girl or a mother who needs an afternoon out to buy a dress or get your hair done, try it.

HISPEED BEEF CASSEROLE:

One pound of ground beef, 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate, 2-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 tin condensed mushroom soup, 1 1-3 cups water, 1 1-3 cups cooked rice (1-2 cup raw rice), 4 slices process cheese. Sprinkle beef with MSG, salt and pepper and mix. Brown beef and onion in melted butter in frying pan, breaking up with a fork. Remove beef from frying pan; pile into centre of a baking dish. Combine soup and water in frying pan; heat until soup comes to a boil. Add rice; spoon around beef. Cover tightly with aluminum foil. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes. Cut cheese slices or quarters diagonally. Remove foil from baking dish and place cheese on top to melt. Serves 4.

The next discovery is a new way to give round steak the Swiss treatment. Instead of tomato juice, or vinegar or lemon juice as the tenderizing agent you use economical grapefruit juice.

PALM-BEACH SWISS STEAK:

One and one-half lbs. round steak, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons shortening, 2 medium onions sliced, 1 cup canned grapefruit juice, 2 teaspoons brown sugar.

Have the steak cut 1 1-2-in. thick. Mix the flour, 1-2 teaspoons salt and pepper. Place the steak on waxed paper or cutting board. Sprinkle with half flour mixture and pound with wooden mallet or edge of a heavy plate, until all the flour has been taken up by the meat. Turn meat and pound in remaining flour mix. Reserve the flour that has not been taken up by the meat. If desired cut meat into serving sized pieces. Heat shortening in frying pan, and brown steak on both sides. Remove steak from frying pan and add onions and cook until lightly browned. Add seasoned flour remaining 1 teaspoon salt and sugar and stir to a paste. Stir in grapefruit juice; add meat. Cover tightly and cook slowly until tender, about 2 1-2 hours, or bake in a moderate oven of 375 deg. Fahr. for 2 1-2 hours. Serve hot with gravy. Serves 4 to 6.

THE BOOSTER CLUB

When the final history of the 1958-59 Belleville McFarlands is written, much honor and glory will be given to the principals of the drama of the Icelanes, with little given to the supporting cast.

Yet the McFarlands boast one of the finest "supporting casts" that ever backed and helped finance a Canadian national championship hockey club.

This is the McFarlands' Booster Club.

Organized and operated at first along the lines of the Whitby Dunlops' Booster Club, the Macs' behind-the-scenes organization flourished and mushroomed into the largest of its kind in amateur hockey.

Under the administrative aegis of its first president, Dick Beare and a strong willing executive, the club in its first year of operation boasted over 1,700 members. Its primary objective was to raise money to assist the hockey team in the purchase of players in its quest of the Allan Cup. Incidentally, it has presented the club with two substantial amounts for this purpose.

With the winning of the Eastern Ontario league championship, the Eastern Canada title and finally the coveted Allan Cup, the Booster Club activities were doubled. It organized receptions and other welcoming projects for the home-coming heroes. It's Allan Cup parade was one of the best ever seen in the city.

During the playing seasons of its two-year existence the Booster Club has, through its committees, helped find apartments and jobs for incoming players.

Under its two presidents, Dick Beare, and the present head, Armand Duffy, the club has done a dozen and one things for the betterment of the hockey club that have never come to public light.

With the winning of the Allan Cup and the subsequent appointment of the McFarlands as Canada's representatives at the world tournament in Prague this year, the Booster Club took on exceptional additional commitments.

Under Canadian hockey regulations, a world tournament representative club must finance its own way to and from Europe. Representatives of the hockey team at a Toronto meeting with the national powers-that-be guaranteed travelling expenses of the club.

The Booster Club acted immediately. President Duffy and his executive organized several fund-raising projects, the proceeds of which go to the Booster Club Overseas Fund. Draws were held. Two tickets in Prague, or in lieu, $1,000 were offered as a draw prize. Blotzos were and are being held at McFarland home games. "Donation cans" were placed in offices, stores and plants. The Boosters went and are still going all-out to help finance the Macs' trip to Europe.

It was announced at a recent meeting of the Civic Overseas Fund, that the Booster Club had raised $10,000 in its overseas fund efforts.

This, unfortunately, was a mistake. Yesterday Booster Club president Duffy said an error had occurred somewhere since the Boosters had raised to the moment some $7,000.

"We hope to raise $10,000," president Duffy told this reporter, "but we must have the wholehearted support of the public, as well as the loyal hockey fans."

"The general public can help by becoming members of the Booster Club," he said. "We have been running a membership ad in the newspaper. We hope a lot more people will clip it, add a dollar and send it in. The last insertion will appear today. If they cannot do this any Booster will sell them a ticket or they can be procured at Bill Cook's tobacco store, Don Stanton's or Jack Diamond's."

While the bingo games at the arena have been more or less successful, Duffy pointed out there are only three more nights on which the game can be played. He urged hockey fans attending the games to purchase the cards and help swell the overseas fund.

The "donation cans" supplied by Jim "Snipe" Matthews and which will be picked up in the near future are another source of fund help and Booster officials ask the public to drop in their loose change.

"Similiar cans," President Duffy said, "will be passed around as collection plate during the remaining home games of the McFarlands, and as time change and any folding money will be gratefully accepted."

JUNIORS PLAY TONIGHT

Belleville's battling Junior "B" Lambert-Eollins, who have been raising eyebrows in Eastern Ontario Junior "B" circles with their fighting spirit and rugged play, take on the Prince-Edward Combines in Memorial Arena tonight in a scheduled tussle.

The L-R's haven't been winning too many games lately, but there is not a club in the league but what knows they have been in a hockey match before the final whistle blows. Tonight the local youngsters are out for victory, and a few customers in the pews would help them no end. How about giving the kids some support.

Zooming Chihawks Fly High, Settle In Second Place

Clobber Maple Leafs, Bruins For Six Games Without Loss; Wings, Rangers Lose Ground

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First and last places haven't changed hands but the rest of the National Hockey League is topsy-turvy.

Chicago Black Hawks, fifth a week ago, are in second place today by a two-point margin.

New York Rangers, second Friday and on a hot winning streak, are barely clinging to third.

Detroit Red Wings, runners-up a week ago, are fourth and Boston Bruins, tied for third last week are fifth.

But to bring an air of normalcy back to the standings, Montreal Canadiens are still on top with a 12-point lead, and Toronto Maple Leafs are still in the cellar.

Chicago beat Toronto 2-1 Saturday and Boston "3 Sunday to make it six games without a defeat.

Rangers, who had lost only one game in eight before the week-end, took a 5-1 licking from Canadiens in Montreal Saturday and clipped 4-2 to Toronto at home Sunday.

Red-Wings suffered their most humiliating defeat at home since the Second World War when the hot-and-cold Bruins beat them 8-2 Saturday. Detroit bounced back with one of their finest games—a 2-2 tie with Canadiens Sunday.

The hero of Hawks' Saturday victory was rookie Eric Nesterenko who scored in the third period to break a 1-1 tie in Toronto.

To tell Leaf Chagrin, the first Hawk goal was scored by Earl Balfour, another rookie, and Bob Pulford scored Toronto's only goal.

Sunday the Chicago win over Boston was made possible by a three-goal splurge in the second period by Ron Lindsay's two-goal effort. Bobby Hull, Jack McKenzie and Ted Lindsay also scored for Chicago.

McKenney's goal was his 22nd and gives him the league lead.

FIGHT AT FINISH

Saturday's game in Montreal was a dull affair until moments before the end when Canadiens S. S. Marie goalie Jacques Plante, irritated at losing his shutout, cut down Ranger captain Red Sullivan in front of the net.

Everyone got into the resulting brawl except Canadiens Lorne (Gump) Worsley. New York's Jim Bartlett got two majors, a misconduct and a $25 fine for his trouble; Plante, Rangers' Lou Fontinato and Canadiens' Doug Harvey got majors.

The Montreal scoring was attended to by Harvey, who got his, Maurice Richard, Tom Johnson and Ab McDonald. Fontinato scored Rangers' goal just before the brawl began.

Sunday's New York Rangers and Toronto were tied 2-2 in the third when Parker Maynard scored a shot off Worsley's back into the net and at 19:26 George Armstrong fired a shot with a goal into an empty net.

Leafs jumped into a 2-0 lead on two goals by Billy Harris before Red Sullivan and Andy Hebenton tied it for Rangers.

Baston's scoring spree Saturday broke a four-game stretch without a win. Don McKenney and Johnny Bucyk each had two goals. The others came from Earl Ricbel, Vic Stasiuk, Leo Labine and Fleming Mackell.

Howe gave them a 1-0 lead. Canadiens went ahead 2-1 on goals by Claude Provost and Andre Pronovost.

Len Lunde tied it up at 9:33 of the third with a soft 15-footer while two Canadiens clung to him.

Teepees Whip Marlies 8-4; Cubs Play Ties

St. Catharines TeePees are hot on home ice in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

They came up with another powerful display Saturday night to defeat Toronto Marlboros 8-4 for their 23rd win in the season. TeePees lead the league race by eight points.

The last-place Hamilton Cubs held the second-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors and sixth-place Barrie Flyers to 2-2 ties. In other weekend action Barrie edged Marlboros 3-2.

Chico Maki led TeePees with three goals and one assist. Jim Hayward, Stan Mikita, Rav Cullen, Duke Harris and Bob Corupe added singles. The home club stormed to a 4-0 lead in the first seven minutes and although Marlboros cut it back to 4-3, TeePees clinched the game with a three-goal outburst in the second period.

Gaston Brassard, Jim Pappen, Jack Kidd and Jim Wilcox scored for Marlboros, with Len Broderick playing an impressive performance in the Dukes' nets for the last 40 minutes.

TESSIER HERO

Cubs led Flyers for the first two periods of their Saturday game but were saved by Marcel Tessier in the final session provided the deadlock.

Pat Stapleton and Don Wilcox scored for Hamilton early in the first period but Barrie drew six of the nine penalties.

Majors, playing their third game in as many days, had to come from behind to tie Hamilton Saturday. Majors got their four points ahead of the third-place Peterborough Petes.

Stu Sibbald scored first for Hamilton, Larry Keenan tied it up but Cubs went ahead again in the same session on Neil Forth's goal. Dave Keon scored the equalizer in the third.

Hamilton outshot St. Michael's 34-18, with Majors drawing five of eight penalties.

Barrie led 2-0 going into the third period against Marlboros on the other half of the double-header at Toronto before 2,819 fans. Tessier, Pierre Gagne and Dale Rolfe scored for the Flyers. Jim White and Don Curry accounted for the Marlboro goals.

Steve O'Neill Is Released By Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Steve O'Neill, a 67-year-old veteran of major league baseball as player, manager, coach and scout, and father of Cubs' manager Harry Dillard, former Olympic hurdles and dash star, were dropped from Cleveland Indians staff, effective with the new year.

Neither O'Neill nor Dillard will be replaced, a front office spokesman said. O'Neill had served since 1934 as a scout-at-large, and Dillard had been with the club nearly 10 years, most of it in public relations before becoming secretary for the farm club system.

He rowed out to a blind and waited vainly for ducks.

When he decided to return home, it took two friends and sheriff's deputies to break his 1-oot of the ice.

McFarlands Rack Up Two Victories Over Weekend

Turn Back Cornwall Chevies After Dumping Kingston 4-2; Gain Two Points on Dunnies

The McFarlands rounded into the home stretch of their Eastern Ontario Senior League schedule in an auspicious manner over the weekend, chalking up two victories and a tie to creep closer to the league-leading Whitby Dunlops.

The Macs after that three-all Friday night thriller with the Dunnies "hit the road," dumping their ancient foemen from Kingston 4-2 on Saturday night, then grabbing a 3-2 victory from the Cornwall Chevies in the seaway city Sunday afternoon.

The Dunlops hit a snag down Hull-Ottawa way Sunday. They hit full stride Saturday night at home, trouncing the Canadiens 8-0, but bowed 6-3 to the Sammy Pollock crew in the return game yesterday.

The Macs' Claude Dufour who made a fine debut in the nets here Friday night suffered an eight-inch gash over an eye in the Cornwall game, and was forced to retire. Gordie Bell took over and came up with a fine performance.

KINGSTON (Special) — Belleville's Pragueshund McFarlands, paced by Jean Paul Lamirande and Ike Hildebrand and starring Gordon Bell in a goalkeeping masterpiece, were full value for their 4-2 victory registered over the local Merchants in the Community Memorial Centre on Saturday night. The Allan Cup holders operating without three services of the injured "Moe" Benoit and Flori Goegan, played heads-up hockey all the way with a seasonal record crowd of 3,239 customers gazing at the swift and exciting action.

Most of the excitement was jammed into the final session when goals by two defencemen, "Red" Olsen at 12.01 and "Rags" Raglan at 12.50, put Belleville's 4-0 lead in half, and revived hopes that the Merchants would pull the verdict from the fire.

An injury to goalkeeper Lynn Davis at 10.22 in the opening period forced cessation of play, the while Davis was taken to the dressing room for repairs. At 14.18 Floyd Crawford drew the initial penalty, the charge being interference. Those who were left played smartly during his absence, with Bell and Lamirande outstanding.

Late in the session John McLennan's drive was stopped by Davis but the latter in clearing passed the puck to the incoming Keith MacDonald who promptly fired it into the cage.

Penalties in the middle period to Gagnon at 3.13 and to "Minnie" Menard at 5.32 were served with no outward damage done and that 1-0 status quo remained unbroken until Lou Smrke, aided by Menard and Paul Payette, hit the rigging at 12.24. A neat, smart pass had put Smrke in the clear behind the Merchants' defence. A penalty to Hildebrand at 18.40 found the Belles equal to the challenge.

Hildebrand, with Al Dewsbury assisting, scored a picture goal at 5.58 in the final period. A hooking penalty to Gagnon was called at 8.34, the Macs ganged in an all-out attempt to pull their ahead but from out of the pack came Frank Chiarelli to score and then discover that he had been whistled down by linesman Darrell Walton on a blueline offside.

With the teams at full strength Hildebrand, aided by Crawford and "Wiener" Brown, fled past the Olsen - Toppazzini defence to score at 10.58. The locals moved in force to the attack and following failure encountered by McLellan on a breakaway Rush Ted Toppazzini sparked the shutout - breaking assault in which Olsen tallied from close range. Forty - nine seconds later "Rags" Raglan brought the tallying to a close.

CORNWALL (Special) — The Belleville McFarlands added a third link to an unbeaten chain here on Sunday defeating the Cornwall Chevies 3-2 before 943 fans.

The Allan Cup champions fresh from their defeat of the Kingston Merchants the night previous spotted the Chevies a 2-0 lead in the first period, saw the score tied 2-2 and flung home the winner in the final chapter.

At 3.47 of the first period Claude Dufour the Macs goalie was dropped by a shot from the stick of LaPlante. He suffered a cut over an eye that necessitated eight stitches, and did not finish the game, Gordie Bell took over and did an exceptional job especially in the fast minute of the third period.

The Chevies opened the scoring when Ray LaPlante took a pass from Ron Muir to hit the hemp. Marcel Goyette started the play while the Chevies were a man short with Ernst in the penalty box.

In the second period the McFarlands outscored Cornwall 2-1 the chapter ending in a 2-2 stalemate.

Lou Smrke tied the score at 4.36 with McLellan and Bolley picking up assists.

Denis Boucher a former pro playing his first game for the Chevies shot the locale into the lead on a power play with Guy Henri helping. Five minutes later Johnny McLellan let go a screened shot that Chevies never saw to once again knot the count.

The game was a see-saw affair in the third period with McLellan firing home his second goal, and the winner midway through the best.

The Chevies bounced back in an all-out effort to save the game or at least settle for a tie but they failed to crack the Macs defence and the outstanding performance of Gordie Bell in the nets.

Coach Bob Bingley was unable to pull his goalie in the dying seconds when the Macs refused to give the Chevies a face-off in their defending zone.

USED CAR FACTS

ROCK AND ROLL

A quick check of the shock absorbers will tell you if a car will ride smoothly and safely over rough roads, or if it will act like a drunken jack rabbit.

Stand on the front bumper and make the car bounce up and down . . . then hop off. If the shocks are good, the car should immediately stop bouncing . . . and it will give you a good ride. Repeat this test on the rear.

You needn't be too concerned if a car fails in several tests if it is above average in other respects. Many items — such as shocks — are comparatively easy and inexpensive to replace.

Some dealers may talk about the lower prices . . . the cheaper cars . . . or the biggest selection, but remember — you'll save money in the long run by buying a car that doesn't need expensive parts replacement — that's why the cars at KENDER LTD., are a better value and give more trouble-free driving. Russians Drub Yankees Twice After 'Confusing' Style Fails

By JIM KLOBUCHAR

HIBBING Minn. (AP)—Russian hockey players are amazing the American way of life trapped in a theater Sunday night to view a unique U.S. artform—the western movie.

Reactions were mixed. Some of the players stayed with the movie, The Sheriff of Fractured Jaw, to the finish. Others left early.

A cordial chamber of commerce host tried to make the evening complete by passing out boxes of popcorn. This was munched by most of the players but there was no immediate verdict.

Russian interpreter Ramon Kiselev, who has rassled goodwill and appreciation during the Russians' stay in this country, had to admit he has seen better things in the United States than western movies.

"We saw one on television in New York," he said. "There really isn't much to interest us in them. The players don't speak English, of course, and that makes it even more of a problem."

Before going to the movie they exchanged smiles and handshakes with members of the American team, city officials and others at a reception after their 7-1 victory.

"We would like everyone in this country to know how grateful we are for the warm reception we have received," said Vasili Sysoev, the Russian team manager, who spoke through the interpreter.

"I am certain exchanges such as this one of hockey teams will help better relations between our countries. I say that unconditionally."

Relations between the Russian team and the American crowds

HIBBING, Minn. (AP) — "The only way we'll beat the Russians is by confusing them" the coach of the U.S. national hockey team said after two weekend drubbings at the Russian hands.

For a while Sunday, the Yanks' befuddling tactics worked. But the touring Soviets shrugged off their momentary discomfort and poured in five goals in the third period to hand the Americans a 7-1 licking.

"We tried to break up their passing pattern by keeping our men on top of their wings," said U.S. coach Marsh Ryman. "As soon as we lost control of the puck in the attacking zone, we concentrated on sticking as close to them as possible.

"For a while they seemed to be lost. But I guess we couldn't hold them down forever."

The Russians' answer was to apply more pressure and to attack in the third period. Held to two goals for the first 40 minutes by goalie Don Cooper of Wrentham, Mass., the Russians shook the U.S. team by scoring twice inside of 13 seconds early in the third period and it was easy after that.

The fans were stirred by the clutch brilliance of the Russians' third period offensive. Their passing knocked the grisgrams of Saturday's 8-3 victory but their shooting was as deadly.

The victory gave Russia a record of two wins in three games. The first game ended in a 5-5 tie.

have been friendly. The Soviets have been applauded before and after both games in Minnesota.

Whitby Blanks Hull-Ottawa Then Loses 6-5 on Sunday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Whitby Dunlops have been running away with the OHA Eastern Senior A division honors all season but they're still having problems with the third-place Hull-Ottawa Canadiens.

Hull and Whitby split a weekend series, allowing the second-place Belleville McFarlands to gain ground with victories over Cornwall Chevies and Kingston Merchants.

Whitby hammered Hull 8-0 at Whitby Saturday to avenge their fortunes in consecutive losses to the Canadiens but Hull skaters came roaring back on home ice Sunday to edge the world champions 6-5.

Belleville turned back Kingston 4-2 and Cornwall 3-2 in a weekend road tour.

SECOND SHUTOUT

Connie Broden, former Whitby player who now coaches Hull, was put out of the game in the first period when he picked up two misconduct penalties on one play.

It was a different story at Hull where the home crew ran up a 6-0 lead before the Whitby forwards got untangled. Hull ran up six goals in the first half of the game and then held on grimly against a fierce Whitby comeback drive that almost succeeded.

Bobby Boucher, Hull's leading scorer, collected three goals while Broden, John Annable and newcomer Leo Gravelle were matching his virtuoso. Sinden scored a pair for Whitby and the rest went to Sandy Air, Pete Babando and Smith.

Not Worried Over Star Loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, says he is not upset over the loss of top draft choice Don Allard to Canadian football.

Marshall admitted former coach Joe Kuharich made an unwise decision in selecting Allard, a Boston College quarterback, in the National Football League draft.

"But Allard's not so good that we're especially worried about losing him," the Redskins owner said after watching the Senior Bowl game on television Saturday. Allard, who has signed with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four for next season, played for the losing north squad.

Marshall said Kuharich drafted Allard on the advice of Boston College coach Mike Holovak.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders appear set to give Edmonton Flyers a battle for first place in the Western Hockey League's prairie divisional.

The Stamps beat Seattle Totems, leaders of the coast division, 3-1 Saturday and moved within four points of Edmonton. They have played four games fewer than Edmonton.

Hounds Lose Three Games On Road Trip

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, beset by financial troubles at home, haven't been able to find much solace on the road.

The OHA-VOHA Senior A club dropped a 3-3 decision to Windsor Bulldogs Sunday, the third loss in three starts on its current road tour. Saturday the league-leading Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen won 5-3 and Friday they lost 3-1 to Chatham Maroons.

Windsor now threatens the Soo's hold on fourth place as the northern club hits the homeward trail with stops in North Bay Tuesday and Sudbury Wednesday.

In the loop's only other weekend action North Bay Trappers edged the visiting Sudbury Wolves 3-2 in the rubber match of a three-game series.

SEE SAW BATTLE

Kitchener took over the league leadership from Owen Sound Saturday for the third time in a week. Chatham, idle on the weekend, can regain it as Windsor Tuesday while Kitchener has a night off.

Ken Lautman scored his 24th and 25th goals of the season to lead the Kitchener victory over Greyhounds. Other Kitchener scorers were Dutch Martin, Larry Mussellman and Jack Mckenzie. The lone Soo goal was fired by Jim McGarney.

Windsor had to come from behind a 2-0 deficit to whip the Soo and climb to within two points of the Soo's league position. The visitors' were outshot 33-33 but goalie Bill Tibbs played a tremendous game.

Joe Nanne fired two for Windsor with Len Stock, John Ulmanis and Bob Brown getting the others. Soo scorers were Lou Dietrich, Tom Walker and Birkett Bannister.

At North Bay it was a goal-tender battle with Mark Edwards of Troopers and Ray Fredericks of Sudbury performing in sensational style.

Captain Stan Maxwell fired the winner with less than 30 seconds left in the game after George Sesick had tied it up for Sudbury in the third period.

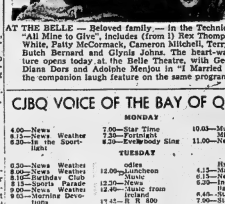
At The Park

TODAY - TUESDAY
ALL-WAR SHOW
(First Showings)

"Hell Squad" and "Tank Battalion" two new shattering war dramas from American International, are currently showing at the Park Theatre today and Tuesday only.

"Hell Squad" is a violent telling of the terrible war experiences of eight American G.I.'s cut off from their command post in the Libyan Desert campaign against the Germans in World War II. "Hell Squad" boasts an authenticity seldom found in war films, and because of its realness it is not for the squeamish. Here is the war of the hardened professionals, and when a story calls for scenes where the enemy kills G.I.s, rips them of their uniforms and leave their bodies to decay in the desert sun, it is done in full view.



"Tank Battalion" stars Lee Ward & Bowman, Jr., as beautiful Marjorie Reed. The strong young love is what can Robin-on into an inflamed Ranger on the battlefront, fighting to return to the girl of his dream.

Broadway Stage Found Sudden Enchantment in Oriental Shows; 53 Dared Stem, 21 Remained

NEW YORK (AP) — Theatre fan's scrapbook of 1958, a year of cheers and tears, new faces and old magic.

Altogether, 53 shows dared Broadway, 21 remained. The stage found sudden enchantment in oriental shows, and a lot of film actors started trekking to the boards.

The big dramas were The Visit, starring the Lunts; Look Homeward, Angel which swept all the prizes; J.B. that brought poet Archibald MacLeish to Broadway and Canadian actor Christopher Plummer back again.

Outstanding comedy plays included The Pleasure of His Company, Two for the Seesaw and The Marriage-Go-Round. Musical comedy settled, however, for less fresh brilliance, and My Fair Lady remained the tune queen although nearly three years old.

The year started with damsels dominant (Lena Horne, Anne Bancroft, Kaiulani Lee, Helen Hayes but late events focused the spotlight on the men (Eli Wallach, Jason Robards Jr., Pat Hingle, Walter Slezak, Cyril Ritchard).

Eddie Hodges romped as the theatre's kid of the year in The Music Man, Peter Lind Hayes of TV fame plunged into the Broadway whirl for his first stage workout; a dry-cleaning shop won the oddest program credit of the season: Portofino and Jane Eyre entered the records as the surest and costliest misses of all.

Moments of wild mischance abounded, including a weird lightning storm that disrupted Tallulah Bankhead performance in Rennebunkport, Maine; and a 9-year-old girl kicked Frank Sinatra during a showing in Los Angeles of A View from the Bridge and gave the actor a ruptured blood vessel.

Fervent press agentry inspired a woman spectator to walk onto a Broadway stage and slap a performer in Look Back in Anger and a couple of players clouted each other over — emphatically during a barn showing of Kiss Me, Kate.

The censor had his way and put a ria on a statuesque miss in The Entertainer in New York after more thorough covering of the dialogue in Boston.

The theatre lost two of its sharpest - tongued, shrewdest judges with the passing of George Jean Nathan, 76, and Wolcott Gibbs, 56.

The final curtain also descended for famous players, present although many years old and past, including Canadian Margaret Anglin, 81, the theatre's Lady of Tears at the start of the century, and Edith Fallaferro, 64, original Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.

GROCERY TRADE

of grocery distributors. There was "substantial" differences in the rate of these special discounts as between chain stores and wholesalers.

It said it would "appear very desirable" for suppliers to review their policies of granting discounts against imposing unfair disadvantages on any type of distributor and to see that such special discounts "are available on reasonably proportionate terms to all customers."

QUEEN'S PROFESSOR

The report, prepared by commissioner Dr. J. A. Skeoch, now an economics professor at Queen's University, was submitted to the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission last summer.

Copies of the report were widely distributed within the business world to more than 800 individuals, business firms and organizations. But non-commercial The Eaton Association of Consumers—adopted the committee's invitation to send in submissions on the report.

The commission said that in the absence of further submissions "it does not appear necessary for the commission to pursue the inquiry further at this time."

The report said manufacturers had told of a chain store action whereby "shelf prices" were reduced 5% a week for each store in the chain "with the alternative of removing the product from the entire chain."

GOT EXTRA SHARE

Extent of the chain stores success in getting special discounts is shown in a summary of information from 336 suppliers.

The suppliers reported that corporate-owned chains, buying 17.7 per cent of their output, got 49.4 per cent of the special discounts given by the suppliers. Voluntary chain-store groups also got a "disproportionate share" and received twice as large as their share of total purchases.

Whole-biers, taking one third of the suppliers' sales, got 26.4 per cent of the special discounts and other buyers, taking 37.9 per cent of supplies' sales, got 19.5 per cent of discounts.

As for straight price discounts, the committee said the chief basis for discrimination was in volume purchases. In some cases the differential was substantial.

But it said there was no evidence that the differential advantage of the chain stores generally took the form of lower buying prices.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"or have an awful feeling I've forgotten something."

RUSSIAN ROCKET FINANCE

chasing power of the Canadian dollar. That degree of concern will, I think, assist governments and others in grappling with the problem.

"I am concerned, however, that the discussion of this subject should be realistic and balanced. The danger of inflation exists, as has existed for the last 20 years. We will not, however, overcome it by exaggerating it beyond all recognition."

INDEX UP 20% p.c.

During 1958 the consumer price index has increased by a "moderate" 2.5 per cent—compared with a rise of 3 per cent in 1948; 15 per cent in 1947; seven per cent in 1946; 10 per cent in 1951. The wholesale price index has remained unchanged from a year ago. It was down seven per cent from 1951.

What inflation existed could be blamed largely on the government. In a free economy, every citizen had a responsibility to maintain the purchasing power of the dollar. The government could put a lid on price controls in time of peace.

Mr. Fleming recalled his June 17 budget speech when he urged both management and labor to have regard for the general interest" in seeking higher profits and wages.

DEFENDS CONVERSION

He defended the conversion loan—harshly criticized by political opposition forces — as the "largest and most successful financial operation in Canada's history."

The conversion of 90 per cent of $5,416,000,000 worth of three-per-cent wartime victory bonds into longer-term bonds bearing up to 4½ per cent interest had been undertaken last August at a time when the government was urgently in need of money and faced a depressed bond market both in Canada and the United States.

It would have been regarded as "downright irresponsible" if the government had resorted to the banks for large-scale borrowing—which would in fact be shift more of the government debt into short-term bonds, to stabilize the bond market and eliminate the "overhang" of continual short-term refinancing.

The conversion loan added $48,225,000 in federal interest expense with the coupon rate of all bonds converted averaging 3.83 per cent compared with the 3 per cent paid in the victory bonds.

As for the decline in the market value of the conversion bonds, Mr. Fleming said the government never had promised support for their prices. The sagging Canadian bond market was largely a reflection of the continued "erosion" of the U.S. market.

Solid Fuels One of Big Hopes For Powering Man Into Space, Or to the Moon or Mars

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Into an ashtray on his desk, Harold Ritchey dropped a thumb nail sized piece of the black, rubbery rocket fuel.

Then he touched it with a lighted match.

Instantly it blazed furiously, with a big glow and a shower of sparkles. In a moment it disappeared. Nothing remained but an acrid odor.

LIKE FAN BELT

Joseph W. Wiggins, assistant manager, picked up a long piece of the same material, shaped and looking and feeling like the fan belt of an auto engine.

Wiggins whacked it vigorously on his desk, like a whip.

"It hasn't ever exploded yet," he said contentedly. "Solid fuels like this will take a lot of banging around. That's one of their advantages."

But ignite it, even with a stray spark, and it turns into a cloud of hot gas supplying the energy to drive rockets.

Solid fuels now are one of the big hopes for powering man into space, to the moon or Mars.

TESTED ENGINE

A solid fuel rocket engine packing 450,000 pounds of thrust energy was static-fired here recently. That is power equal to the huge liquid-fuel rockets with which the Russians launched their astonishingly heavy Sputniks.

Some solid-fuel experts predict engines delivering a million or more pounds of thrust will soon be developed. They believe they are just beginning to tap the tremendous potential of solid rockets.

All Sputniks, Explorers, Vanguards and moon shots launched so far have used liquid fuels in their first or booster stage. The liquid fuels include liquid oxygen, kerosene, nitric acid, hydrazine.

Solid fuels are what they sound like—solid chemicals ready to burn. They contain the source of oxygen or oxidizer to burn the chemical fuel. A comparison could be a piece of coal with the oxygen to burn it already mixed in. But the rocket fuels burn without leaving any coals or ash. They create hot gases rushing out the rear of the engine to provide forward thrust.

OF TWO TYPES

Solid rocket fuels are of two main types. One has a double base—a material like cellulose nitrate plasticized or formed in solid shape with some kind of energy material, like glycerol trinitrate.

Many are composites, with the fuel and oxygen source already intimately mixed together in a rubber-like material.

Liquid and solid fuels both have their advantages, and disadvantages.

Liquid fuels must be pumped into a combustion chamber at a very high and precise rate, sometimes hundreds of gallons a minute. So the liquid engine has many complicated and moving parts, which must be checked out. Fuels are loaded aboard at the launching site. This calls for an elaborate preparation or countdown.

READY TO GO

Solid fuel rockets need no more countdown than striking a match to a cigaret. They are ready to go, anytime. They are highly reliable, and more predictable now than liquid rockets in their performance.

Solid fuels power some of the smaller, upper stages of space rockets, and military missiles such as the Sergeant, Matador, the submarine-launched Polaris, the Nike and Pershing.

Coming is the Minuteman, an intercontinental ballistic missile using rocket stages all containing solid fuels. It would be instantly poised to zoom 5,000 miles or more to strike a target with a nuclear warhead. Thiokol scientists are doing some of the development work on these engines.

But, as yet anyhow, liquid fuel engines deliver greater specific impulse or power than solid fuels, for weight of the fuel used. They also leave no smoke trail, by which an enemy could pinpoint the launching site more easily.

Canada Feels Cold Grip of Mid-Winter

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A storm that swept through Ontario and Quebec during the weekend blustered into the Maritimes today as all Canada felt the cold grip of mid-winter.

The weather office said the Maritimes can expect wind and drifting snow with more snow falling.

The prediction for most of Canada was clear and cold with some snow expected in the Montreal and Ottawa area today.

Drifting was heavy in Montreal and Ottawa yesterday. Some roads in Ontario were impassable until plowing was completed.

But Ontario never ran what cloud was on tap today after temperatures fell by as much as 30 degrees with the arrival of cold air from the west. Up to six inches fell Saturday and Sunday.

59 BELOW AT MAYO

The coldest spot in Canada during the weekend was Mayo in the Yukon, where it was 59 degrees below zero. It was 10 below during the day at Edmonton. It was slightly warmer in Calgary. Saskatoon had a 13-below reading. It was 10 below at Winnipeg.

Northern Ontario temperatures ranged from zero to 30 below at 8 a.m. today. Temperatures were expected to drop slightly tonight.

In Southern Ontario and much of Quebec temperatures Sunday were in the high 20s but the mercury was expected to drop to the just-above-zero range today.

Vancouver expected snow today after getting four inches Sunday. Lakes in southern British Columbia were frozen — a rare sight—with skating permitted on a few of them.

Contract Dispute With Hydro Men Near Crisis Stage

82 Per Cent of Employees Favor Strike Action

TORONTO (CP)—Armed with power to call a strike if necessary, officials of the 10,000-member Hydro employees union today sought another meeting with Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission negotiators as a province-wide contract dispute neared the crisis stage.

Results of a ballot announced by the union Monday showed 82 per cent of those voting favored strike action. The announcement followed a series of membership meetings throughout the province.

A union spokesman said an immediate meeting would be sought with Hydro officials.

"If the bargaining committee gets an acceptable offer it will be sent out to the membership with another ballot. Otherwise, the committee now is authorized to set a strike deadline," he said.

Meanwhile, it was reported today that the Ontario cabinet will discuss calling a special session of the legislature if such action is necessary to prevent a strike.

One report, received today, may take the first step later this week by calling in both commissioners and employees to advise on both parties that legislation providing compulsory arbitration of the dispute will be introduced unless a settlement is reached.

TO SEEK PEACE

In the event of a strike, the union has offered to maintain peace-time hospital and municipal hydro commissions to services. But it has warned that these employees will be withdrawn if Hydro attempts to use supervisory personnel to serve industry.

Hydro officials have argued it is not practical to ration power to only a few customers. There was no comment from the publicly-owned utility on the strike vote result.

The union spokesman said 6,132 members voted against the commission's offer of a 15-per-cent wage increase in each year of a two-year agreement. He said 1,320 voted in favor.

The spokesman said tradesmen voted 2,801 to 419 against the company offer, salaried workers 2,448

Seven Students Die in Blaze At Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A windblown fire that killed at least seven student airmen and injured 13 today as they fought to escape from their barracks dormitory at Syracuse University.

"It was like animals trying to get out of a cage," said Sgt. Peter Dowling, 25, of Kalamazoo, Mich., in his hospital bed.

The one-storey, prefabricated barracks housed 45 U.S. Air Force men assigned to the university to study Russian.

The names of the dead were withheld until next-of-kin could be notified.

Fire officials said the fire apparently started from a heating unit as the students slept.

RIVER IS RISE FREE

Winds up to 50 miles an hour whipped the flames into "a river of fire" said Donald Dowling, 19, of Rochester, N.Y., another of the injured.

"I heard a crackling sound. I thought it was the man who comes around to wake us up. I saw an orange light filtering through the door. I got out of bed and opened the door. It was like a river of fire going down the hall. I was terrified."

Peter Dowling, unrelated to Donald, told of trying to reach a fire extinguisher outside his room.

"But the fire and smoke were so great that I couldn't stand it," he told reporters. "Everybody was jumping out of windows."

The 22-room, clapboard building in the university's Skytop housing development was a landmark in the city, "went up like a matchbox," Dowling said.

WORSE TO COME

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—It was 26 below in Yorkton early Monday but cafe proprietor Joe Yeo says residents haven't seen anything yet. Following the pattern of his Chinese almanac, Yeo has predicted temperatures will hit at least 40 below Jan. 15 and 17. Mr. Yeo said the almanac, which dates back 100 years, had forecast 35 below for Monday.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Ontario's weather remains unsettled. Most places reported temperatures a few degrees higher than zero Monday by day, but still as low as 45 to 50 degrees below zero in Northwestern Ontario, and just a few degrees above zero in Southwestern Ontario. Snowflurries continued with little let up near Lake Huron and Georgian Bay early today. Sunny and cold is the forecast for today with flurries scattered in the southern areas. Wednesday should bring some moderation in temperatures and increased cloudiness in most sections.

SNOW AND BITTER COLD GRIP MOST OF CANADA

Hundreds of Miles Of Road Clogged

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winter retained a chilling grip on Canada today, in some areas piled snow and bitter cold in the continuing onslaught.

The Yukon—where Dawson hit 59 degrees below zero and Snag 57 below—headed a parade of subzero temperatures which reached into every province except Newfoundland.

In the Montreal and Toronto areas cloud formation tempered the weather and temperatures did not fall as low as anticipated. Montreal, braced for 25 below, wound up with an overnight low of 11 degrees below zero.

VICTORIA WARMEST SPOT

The warmest spot in the country through the night was Victoria in British Columbia with 31 degrees. It had a close rival in Indian House River in the remote interior of Northwestern Quebec with a minimum of 30 above.

In British Columbia, where snowfalls were reported today, Prince George was the coldest point with 13 below. It was 11 below at Prince Albert in Saskatchewan and at Churchill, Man. In Ontario's lowest reading was 52 below at Pickle Lake, 200 miles north of Fort Williams.

A weekend snowfall of 12 to 14 inches blocked practically all roads and highways in Quebec's Eastern Townships.

ONE HIGHWAY CLEARED

Strong winds and severe cold are hampering efforts to reopen the roads to traffic. Only main Sherbrooke to Montreal highway has so far been cleared.

Non-Catholic schools reopened in Sherbrooke Monday on schedule. But in other Eastern Townships centres the schools were not expected to reopen until the highways and roads were cleared.

Fresh snow was in prospect today for B.C., Northern Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, parts of Ontario and Quebec and the Maritimes.

Firemen estimated the loss at $500,000.

They brought the blaze under control at 1 a.m. EST, four hours after it started. Three firemen were injured, none severely.

Hundreds of spectators watched the flames engulf the brick-and-frame structure, the planist building at the corner of Falls and Second Streets.

About 100 persons at a dinner dance in the Astor Hotel next door broke out.

At one time the fire threatened a bank building across a narrow alley from the fire and the Niagara Falls Municipal Station across the street. Both escaped with minor damage.

Firemen say the blaze apparently started in a men's wear store. The cause has not yet been determined.

Fishermen Signal Their Safety To Search Planes, Then to Work

EDMONTON (CP) — Twenty-five fishermen signalled their safety to search planes Monday, then went back to dodging widening ice cracks and netting trout and whitefish on Great Slave Lake.

They had not been seen since Nov. 7 when they left Hay River on their base at Hay River, N.W.T., on the north shore of the lake, with snowmobiles for fishing spots as far as 100 miles across the lake's 11,170-square-mile frozen surface.

There were 45 in the original group. They were not late for when a blizzard set in. Temperatures dropped as low as 29 degrees below zero.

Twenty men returned quickly to Hay River, reporting numerous ice cracks. Fears mounted for the others.

When sighted late Monday in the third day of a search by civilian planes the men were returning to their ice-base fishing. The area is about 500 miles north of Edmonton.

An RCMP radio message reaching here said one of the fishermen, Ken Fisher, apparently had plunged into an ice crack 15 miles long and two miles wide. The crew escaped.

Ten of the men were employees of Bocthman Fisheries Ltd., Hay River. Eight were working for Carter Fisher Company of Hay River; the remaining seven for Alaska Fisheries Limited of Edmonton.

Fishermen often stay on the lake for weeks. They get supplied by a snowmobile shuttle service from Hay River.

WORKED FOR CASTRO

Andrew R. L. McNaughton, 42-year-old son of General A. G. L. McNaughton of Ottawa, is shown in his Montreal office shortly after he disclosed that he had served 18 months as international agent for Fidel Castro, leader of the successful revolt in Cuba. (CP Wirephoto).

McNaughton Tells of Double Life He Led for 18 Months

MONTREAL (CP)—An intense, mustached Canadian consulting engineer who looks like everybody's version of a rising young executive has disclosed how he led a double life for 18 months as an agent of Cuban revolutionaries.

No one has a more unlikely background for such quixotic adventures than 42-year-old Andrew McNaughton, yet his cloak-and-dagger efforts in the Caribbean, described in an interview Monday, were in his first several years a aid of the international underdog.

The son of Canada's famed Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton he followed the military tradition by entering Royal Military College, Kingston, after high school at Loyola College in Montreal.

After graduating from RMC he spent a year at McGill University here then joined the artillery at the outbreak of the Second World War, but switched to the RCAF, and ended the war as a test pilot.

After the war he went to Noranda, his consulting engineering firm, and settled down to make money. He then has romantic spurts that was fired by the cause of the Jewish refugees attempting to establish themselves in Israel, and for his undercover work in getting arms to Israeli forces he was presented with a hand-bound Hebrew Torah—the Jewish book of religious law—by president David Ben-Gurion of Israel.

As in Israel, his Cuban adventures stemmed from financial reward, but he was honored by being made an honorary citizen of the republic by Manuel Urrutia, provisional president of Cuba.

McNaughton's service to Cuban leader Fidel Castro and his 26th of July movement consisted of trying to discover where dictator Fulgencio Batista was obtaining arms and then in attempting to divert them "to a place where they could be put to better use."

His task took him to United States, Certain Latin American republics, and to Canada, where he was authorized by Cuban am-

Small World's Crew Safe After 24-Day Ocean Crossing

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — The balloon trip of four Britons trying to span the Atlantic lasted only three days, it was disclosed today. They spent 21 more days floating at sea in the balloon's gondola, constructed for double duty as a lifeboat.

They had travelled about 1,200 miles by air and more than 2,000 miles by sea.

They had to cut loose the balloon in a storm far from land after losing their way over the Azores. Unable to control and the bag would expand and lose its gas, they said, they after they had jettisoned a radio receiver and sleeping bags to lighten the balloon.

A fishing boat Monday spotted the crew of the balloon Small World—three men and a woman who were sitting slowly along in their gondola-boat four hours off Barbados. The fishing boat towed them into a Bridgetown welcome.

The intrepid quartet floated off from the Canary Islands, Dec. 12 in an open, 7½-by-15½-foot plastic boat suspended from the 47-foot balloon. The Small World Indian island 3,000 miles across the Atlantic. It was their hope to purpose a scientific study of Atlantic trade winds. The balloon crossing had never been made before.

Part way across they came down in the ocean, cut the balloon loose, and sailed the rest of the way in the gondola. They landed tired, hungry for fresh food and vegetables and thirsty for carbonated drinks. Their gondola was still well stocked with food and water.

The four refused to say how they had been able to stay so long on the water, explaining they had told their story to the London Daily Mail, which backed their expedition.

The expedition was a member of the Royal Aero Club of Great Britain. Leader of the group was Col. Richard Abercrombie, 51-year-old London manufacturer of ash trays and knicknacks. The rest of the crew were Eldart's son Timothy Jr., an engineering student at Cambridge and the radio man-marine architect Colin Mudie, 32, the navigator, and Mudie's wife, Rosemary, 30, the expedition's cook.

WOMAN IS SPRYEST

Mr. Mudie was the brightest of the four as they came ashore at a hotel beach on the island's southeast coast at 1 p.m. Monday through the gathering crowd and said: "Is there a doctor around? "Can anyone lend me some hair clips?"

The elder Eldart, known as "Bushy" for his mane of blond hair, was greeted on the beach by directors of the jubilant crowd, his son and Mudie looked tired and somewhat shaky.

The fishing boat that rescued them was a Small World, the gondola into Bridgetown harbor, where its arrival caused a near riot as a crowd intent on getting souvenirs.

ECONOMIC TALKS BY MINISTERS MAKING HEADWAY

Trying to Heal U.K. France Trade Rift

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States were reported making progress in their ministerial economic talks designed to ease frictions and strengthen economic relations between the two countries.

As the first three-hour round ended Monday at midnight, Finance Minister Flemming emerged with a smile and told reporters that progress was made, amicably, on both sides.

He heads the talks by eight cabinet ministers—five from Canada and three from the U.S.and some 24 advisers, participating in the first discussion of the joint Canada-U.S. committee on trade and economic affairs.

Mr. Fleming said initial discussions were of a general nature, dealing with the North American and world economic outlook. Conclusions reached were "heartening."

GIVES NO DETAILS

There have been reports that Canada sought to win that the U.S. would use its influence to break the trade deadlock between France and Britain, but Mr. Fleming maintained that discussions did not get down to this far. He declined to spell out details.

There also were reports that Canada sought American views on the current state of trade agreements in which both Russia and Communist China have a substantial but here again there was no official indication of how far discussions went or what conclusions had been reached.

Gardner Wants To Know Reason For Resignation

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Gardner, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto council, said Metro won't put any money into proposed Bloor-University subway line unless he can first get a full explanation of why Controller Jim Lamport to quit as Toronto Transportation chairman.

Mr. Lamport resigned as chairman last week because, he said, two of his colleagues withdrew support for a TTC policy decision which he had been promised backing.

Mr. Gardiner, vacationing in Bermuda, said Monday night by phone he will demand a complete investigation of the affair when he returns to Toronto Saturday.

"This ridiculous situation must be clarified or Metro will not do any more financing", Mr. Gardiner said.

Mr. Lamport, meanwhile, said there were communications between Mr. Gardiner and Charles Walton, the new TTC chairman, which indicated strong political interference in the affairs of the public transportation system.

"If the commission is to be under Metro's thumb, I will leave it entirely", Mr. Lamport said. At the moment, he remains a commissioner at $8,000 a year.

Report Mikoyan Promises West Access To Berlin

Major Concession Seen In Dispute About City

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan was reported today to have assured the United States of continued free Western access to Berlin.

Such a pledge would signal a major concession by the Kremlin to the West's objections to Soviet demands to make a "free city" of Berlin. ...

Mikoyan was understood to have told high-level state department, business and congressional leaders Monday night:

1. Russia is determined to turn over administration of East Berlin to the East German Communist regime, regardless of U.S.-British - French denunciation of this plan.

2. Russia is not trying to throw the Allies out of West Berlin, even though Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, in his Nov. 27 note, suggested withdrawal of all Allied troops from the city.

3. Russia feels the time has come, 13 years after the end of the war, to give Berlin a new status.

The United States, Britain and France, in replying last week to Khrushchev's note, were remiss in not coming up with any counterproposal which might have provided the basis for negotiation.

5. The Soviet decision to hand East Berlin over to the Communist regime would pass.

Henri Gosselin and a Mr. Valcourt, both described as being more than 70 years old, were reported missing from the ebes-folks home. Some 20 persons were evacuated from it.

A search of the ruins was to begin today.

Cause of the fire and estimate of the damage were not immediately available.

34 Are Killed In Rioting in Belgian Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP) — Thirty-four persons are reported killed and about 100 severely injured as far as two days of fighting in Leopoldville, the Belgian Congo capital.

Shops have been set on fire. Roman Catholic missions ransacked, and post, police and police headquarters burned out.

Europeans have been stoned or shot at as mid-air missions have been beaten by the rioting Africans.

Most of the death were believed to be Africans shot by police or troops.

A state of siege has been proclaimed, and jeep loads of police armed with machine - guns are patrolling the main avenue of the city's native African quarter.

Barbed wire barricades are being set up. Firearms are being distributed to the European population.

Road blocks have been set up around the Leopoldville area. Movement on the river from Leopoldville to French Equator Val Africa, is stopped.

The rioting on Sunday, Easter Monday night the sound of automatic weapon fire could be heard.

RESTORE PARTIAL ORDER

But the situation remained highly explosive because native leaders apparently had lost control of the masses.

The riots started Sunday with a political meeting of Conakat party at which future independence for the Congo was mentioned. The crowd started shouting, "We want independence now".

The crowd began dispersing but grew into a large mob that started setting up road blocks and stoning European-driven cars.

Leopoldville is situated directly across the Congo River from the French Equatorial Africa capital of Brazzaville. Its African population at least 300,000 recently received some self-government. Belgium is trying to move more slowly toward granting Africans a voice in government.

Efforts have been made by European authorities to build bridges between the Africans, but most of the huge native settlement is a maze of clay and mud huts.

In contrast, alongside the African city is the spacious, comfortable European Loop, as it is known by its inhabitants.

Thousands of Africans work in the European city. They pour out of their slums every day by bicycle, on foot and in buses, and return at day's end to their mud huts and brightly lit cafes where Europeans are banned at night.

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Petes, currently in third place in the OHA Junior A standings, have signed a three-year agreement to affiliate with the OHA junior B Latons. It was announced today.

The agreement also includes Peterborough's minor hockey set-up, which have some 100 teams.

Note in their third year in Junior A competition, the Petes had previously no junior B affiliate which to draw players in case of injury; and teams had to be made up of mostly out-of-town players.

The Petes also announced the signing of a 16-year-old defenceman, Larry Fish of Thorold, Ont. Fish was a midget player in his district last year and has been playing for St. Jerome's of the Montreal Junior league this season.

Disputed Letter Perhaps Reached Its Destination

TORONTO (CP)— Dr. W. C. Lockhart, principal of United College in Winnipeg, says in his impression that two detectives who investigated the Pembina Mountain Post office believe that a disputed letter written by Prof. Crowe reached its destination.

Dr. Lockhart Monday supplied further information to his interview Sunday night when he said the police were satisfied that the letter was lost by its addressee, Prof. W. A. Pinkerton.

The Sunday remarks drew reply from Chief Tait who said he and Taft of the Winnipeg police and from Prof. Crowe.

Chief Taft said he did not know where Dr. Lockhart got his information and that the letter being lost. No one authority had made such a statement.

And Prof. Crowe, in a prepared statement issued in Winnipeg, said the principal's remark about the letter being lost is untrue.

Prof. Crowe has since been reinstated and Dr. Lockhart resigned effective Aug. 31.

Dr. Lockhart said Monday the police had given him a formal statement on their letter investigation.

"Two detectives investigated the case and they found no evidence of tampering with the mails," he said.

In further talking with the detectives, it was his impression that they believed "the logical explanation was that Prof. Packer received the letter and lost it and that it had been found by someone."

Dr. Lockhart says he accepts Prof. Packer's statement that he had never seen the letter.

He also said that several times that the disputed letter was sent to him in another envelope with an unsigned note attached.

Canada Again Protests Lawsuit By United States

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada today took steps to make its third protest to the United States concerning a U.S. lawsuit against Canadian companies. Officials here claim the case impinges on Canadian sovereignty.

The forum for the protest was a meeting of the Canada - U.S. cabinet economic committee and the bearer was Justice Minister Fulton.

The Canadian government would like the U.S. justice department to drop the case, but no such immediate action is expected.

The anti-trust suit was brought by the U.S. justice department against eight Canadian companies as well as General Electric and Westinghouse Electric of the United States and N. V. Philips' Gloeilampenfabrieken, a Dutch electronics firm.

TRADE SAID RESTRAINED

The justice department alleges that those three firms, operating through Canadian subsidiaries, conspired to restrain trade between Canada and the U. S. in radio and television receiving sets.

The suit claims restraint of trade was effected through negotiation of a Canadian patent pool which prevented importation into Canada of U. S. radio and TV sets.

It claims Canadian Radio Patents Limited instituted patent infringement suits against Canadian companies which were importing radio or TV sets made in the U. S. and refused to license dealers who indicated they might import such sets into Canada.

The U.S. government charges that the Canadian firms named in the suit, their subsidiaries or U. S. companies, have not broken any Canadian laws and therefore cannot be charged by the U. S. government.

CANADIAN FIRMS

The eight Canadian companies charged are: Canadian Radio Patents Limited, Toronto; Canadian General Electric Company Limited, Toronto; Canadian Marconi Company, Montreal; Northern Electric Company Limited, Toronto; Canadian Marconi Company, Montreal,

How to Pay for New Sewage Disposal Plant Not Decided

TRENTON — By-law 1344R, which has appeared on three different council meeting agendas seeking at least first and second reading failed to make the grade again last night as the new council decided more investigation should be undertaken before it is sent to the Ontario Municipal Board for their approval.

The by-law concerns the method in which town taxpayers should pay for the new sewage disposal plant which the town hopes to start this year, what percentage the various sections of town should pay and how this money should be collected. The councillors decided to ask the clerk-treasurer, O.W. Larry, to phone the Ontario Municipal Board to get their opinion on the matter and to ask them to recommend a legal adviser, who is familiar with this type of municipal law and to get a sound legal opinion on how far the town can go collecting the payments, etc.

The by-law was thoroughly discussed by the old council members last year at two meetings and they ended up each time with a vote leaving it to the new council. Tonight up again last night and after considerable discussion it was again left over.

Mayor Ross Burtt, at all three meetings, maintained that the by-law should be given the first and second reading, sent in for the Board's approval and then have all the wrinkles ironed out before the third reading is given. The Mayor said he has been informed that once the OMB approves the by-law after the contracts for the first stages can be let out and the work get started and under way while the council gives the matter further discussing before the third reading.

Gordon Davis, 62, Named Welfare Officer for Town

TRENTON — The new town council met in its first regular business session of the year in the board room of the Municipal Building Monday night with all members present.

Many of the items listed on the agenda were concerning grants for the new year and they were left over until the budget is drawn up later this year. Two separate increases in pay were also asked and they, like the grants, will be dealt with at budget time. These latter requests were asked by William Ayers, janitor at the town's municipal building and by the seven men who act as school guards.

No delegations were heard at the opening meeting and there were no reports from any of the regular committees of the town's government.

A report was tabled from Trenton's fire chief concerning the fire loss for the year and a resolution was passed by the councillors that a letter be written to the fire chief thanking him for the complete and interesting report. Councillors felt it was an excellent report and was one of the most detailed they have received.

The councillors also passed a resolution of thanks to the assessor, J. Allan Smith, for his annual report of the assessment department for the town. In remarking on the report Mayor Ross Burtt said, "the assessor has done a wonderful job for us in the past months and into his first report and I must say it is a good one."

The councillors also officially approved the list of committee chairmen and the committee members for the coming year and gave first, second and final reading to two new by-laws. One by-law was to authorize the town to borrow $200,000, to meet current expenses until the first of the taxes are collected in May.

They also passed a resolution naming Gordon Davis, 62, as welfare officer for the town. Mr. Davis was picked, the councillors said, on the basis of government committee because of his previous work in this line while mayor of Oshawa.

Free Elections Planned in Cuba Within 2 Years

By LARRY ALLEN

HAVANA (AP) — Provisional President Manuel Urrutia put his government into high gear today after taking control of the presidential palace and cancelling martial law in Cuba.

Acting speedily after his arrival in the capital Monday night, Urrutia:

1. Named Jose Miro Cardona, president of the Havana Bar Association, to be premier of his government;

2. Announced free elections will be held within 18 months to two years;

3. Summoned his new cabinet into a post-midnight meeting;

4. Rescinded the martial law proclamation and curfew extension decreed earlier by the provisional government's military chief for Havana province.

Urrutia flew to Havana from Camaguey following a talk with Fidel Castro, leader of the uprising that ousted dictator Fulgencio Batista and put Urrutia in power.

Castro continued his victory procession toward Havana with 3,000 of his guerrilla warriors and new supporters from Batista's military forces. He is expected in Havana Wednesday.

Urrutia said the rebel chief prefers to remain outside the cabinet to observe developments.

The president also announced his government would not allow gambling, which under Batista had grown to a multi - million dollar business, carried on in slavery.

Urrutia told reporters his government would demand the extradition of Batista from the Dominican Republic and other "war criminals" who fled the country.

He said supporters of the fallen Venezuelan dictator, Marcos Perez Jimenez, who took refuge here would be expelled.

Urrutia also appointed Luis Orlando Rodriguez to the key post of interior minister.

The elected period of martial law in Havana province had been decreed Monday by Maj. Camilo Cienfuegos, Castro's army-navy chief for the province, during a dispute with a rival group of rebels over possession of the presidential palace.

The rival Revolutionary Directorate, made up mostly of students, had seized the palace after Batista fled.

Castro's partisans restored order in the city but the Revolutionary Directorate continued to hold the palace and some Batista guards as bargaining points for a voice in the provisional government.

Cienfuegos also threatened resumption of the general strike, and the student group buckled.

Havana generally was returning to normal.

Swift military trials were promised for more than 1,100 persons jailed since the rebels took power. They include civilians, more than 600 members of Batista's national police and 500 army aviation men. Batista had jailed fliers for refusing to attack towns harboring rebels; the fliers now jailed presumably are accused of carrying out those attacks which hit civilians as well as rebel soldiers.

The United States has not yet recognized Urrutia's government, but a state department statement in Washington indicated recognition might not be far away.

Venezuela, Mexico, Ecuador and Bolivia recognized the provisional government Monday, the first governments to do so.

Bonarlaw Fox Trees Two Boys

BONARLAW — The village of Bonarlaw is being plagued by a fox or foxes which never stay in sight long enough for residents to go for a gun.

Garry McComb, 12, was chased up a tree with a friend by a bedraggled fox. Clarke McIntoy reported a fox chased at the wheels of his truck. Gerald Burkitt was in sleigh drawn by two horses when a fox, frothing at the mouth, leaped from a clump of bushes.

Mrs. Gerald McFaul was preparing dinner when she saw a fox by her verandah. Her brother, Arnold Hinds, went for his gun, but both his fox as children were playing nearby.

Paul Cabezas, pilot of a Cuban airliner which arrived at a New York airport, tells reporters how passengers on his plane forced him to take off from Cuba at gunpoint. The plane carried former Cuban government officials and sympathizers fleeing from the revolu - tern country. Some were carrying arms, which were taken away by New York police upon their arrival. About 40 other passengers aboard the plane were ordinary passengers. Cabezas said he refused to take off for New York until two Batista intelligence serve men waved pistols at him. The plane is met by 50 demonstrators, sympathizers of Cuban rebel leader Fidel Castro.

RCMP to Shelve Musical Ride For Next Year

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP will shelve its musical ride for the present and develop a riding team this year to do team jumping and stunt riding.

The force announced it hopes to have a team of 24 men and horses ready to participate in summer and winter fairs in Eastern—Canada, the Atlantic provinces and possibly the eastern United States.

One advantage to putting a stunt riding team on the show circuit, the force said, is that it costs the sponsors of the show less than for the 39 men and horses needed in the musical ride.

Railways Seek Another Boost In Freight Rates

By JOHN LeBLANC

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The railways today moved to obtain another freight rate increase of an unspecified amount.

The last increase—17 per cent—went into effect Dec. 1 after the cabinet rejected an appeal against the increase entered by eight provinces. That boost was designed to cover the cost of a wage settlement with railway employees.

Today the railways served notice on the board of transport commissioners that they would apply Jan. 23 for a date for hearings on their new application. The application was contained originally in one final paragraph December. At that time the railways asked for an increase to cover wage costs and also a later one of an indeterminate amount to cover general operating costs.

It is this second part which the railways now seek to have heard by the board.

The last rate increase of 17 per cent was designed to raise $60,000,000 a year, was upheld by the cabinet Nov. 26 thus averting a threatened Dec. 1 general rail strike.

A cabinet statement said the boost was allowed "although this type of freight rate increase is not in accord with the government's long-range plans." It said there were serious inequities in the present freight rate structure which were aggravated by straight percentage increases.

Diaper and Note Clues in Hunt For Missing Baby

NEW YORK (AP)—The search for a kidnapped infant has shifted to Coney Island after a note with a foreboding message was found pinned to a diaper in a subway station there.

The unsigned note, found Monday in the women's room of the station read:

"Please return to St. Peter's Hospital. Didn't want to hurt anyone. Everything is so hard. Tired. Sick. The ocean is so inviting. Maybe now I will find peace. I tried to keep her warm. Dear God forgive me."

St. Peter's is the hospital in downtown Brooklyn where the baby daughter of Mr and Mrs. Frank Cionchio was kidnapped Friday night, 2 1-2 hours after birth.

Police said the note might be the work of a crank but hoped it might provide some lead to the baby's whereabouts.

THE ONLY PROGRESS

Except for the note, the search remained fruitless.

It was difficult to determine whether the note-bearing diaper had clothed the Cionchio child. When news of the baby's girl ments were found in a vacant move in Brooklyn Saturday, a diaper was not among them.

However, the Cascade Diaper Service, which supplies the hospital, said the diaper in the subway was not one of theirs.

Police are convinced the abductor is a frustrated mother. They are checking hospital bassinets for the names of women whose children died at birth.

The kidnaped baby, believed to be a heavy-set bleached blonde, between 20 and 32, who was seen at the hospital Friday night.

WHAT ABOUT CHINA?

Recently, in newspapers and on television, there has been a spate of articles and discussions about China's industrial revolution, proceeding at a pace which has awed those who have witnessed it.

Just as we get from so many sources this new picture of a China which, far from struggling feebly in chains, is arising and flexing its muscles, Joseph C. Harsch says it isn't so.

Other voices have been heard questioning this story of a new giant entering the international arena, but Mr. Harsch is in a different category from most. He is not only a special correspondent for one of the world's most respected and highly factual newspapers, the Christian Science Monitor, but his reputation as a man of insight is above the average for the Monitor's excellent staff.

Mr. Harsch does not dismiss the retirement of Mao from the position of head of state as a meaningless maneuvre. He maintains that the Chinese Communists have run into trouble, that the move towards communes has had to be slowed and that by stepping back into the relative obscurity of leadership of the Communist Party in China, Mao "is leaving others to take the blame for whatever damage may result from the four-month drive which now has had to be slowed down so drastically."

If this is good news to the West, it is ironic that, in Mr. Harsch's view, it is also good news for Khrushchev. "Had Mao dared to continue at the speed of September and October he would have been headed for the rear leadership of the Communist bloc," he says.

Perhaps, though, both Mr. Khrushchev and we in the West ought to accept the analysis by Mr. Harsch with considerable caution. When such a man speaks, great weight must be given to his opinions. But, without being wrong, it is possible that he is only partly right. That China has achieved much in industrialization appears generally admitted. The reputation of the Chinese for patience suggests that, once having started on what they must have known was a long and hard road, once having begun to lift themselves by their boot-straps, they will not be easily turned from the task. Mao himself probably regards the slowing down of the pace as no more than a resting period, a halt in keeping with the spirit of Lenin's advice to be willing always to take a step backwards in order to later take two steps forward.

ATOMS-FOR-PEACE PROJECTS

The London Daily Mail says that contracts have been signed for the U.S. to provide the nuclear reactor to drive Britain's first atomic-powered submarine.

This makes somewhat strange reading, not because the two countries are co-operating in a project important to their mutual defence but because U.S. assistance should be necessary in this particular field. Britain has considered itself to be in the forefront of nations engaged in putting atomic power to peaceful purposes, with her Calder Hall project being an impressive exhibit in the field of using atomic power to produce electricity. Evidently, though, as might be guessed, there is considerable difference between the type of atomic reactor necessary to generate electrical power for distribution to homes and factories and the type of atomic reactor needed to drive a ship. The U.S. has pioneered in the field of atomic propulsion units for submarines and purchasing the necessary nuclear reactor from America will almost certainly be much cheaper than any project by the British to develop their own unit. Still, unless the impact which atomic power will make has been grossly over-estimated, we would expect Britain to move into this field eventually. Might it not perhaps have been advantageous, from the long-term view, to have given them this opportunity to test their abilities?

Meanwhile, on the same day, there was interesting news regarding Canada's progress in another, and vastly different, phase of the utilization of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. We were informed that Communist China has purchased two cobalt therapy units and that the purchase brought to 23 the number of nations which have acquired Canadian-built "cobalt bomb" units for the treatment of cancer. This seems to be a field in which Canadian ingenuity and research have provided us with a comfortable lead.

TO THE QUITTER

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The world won't care if you quit,
And the world won't whine if you fail.
The busy world won't notice it
No matter how loudly you wail.
Nobody will worry that you
Have relinquished the fight and gone down.
For it's only the things that you do
That are worth while that get you renown.

You needn't make good if you don't Think the struggle to do so worth while
But weep over that, the world won't,
For the world will continue to smile.

You can't harm the world by your pout,
Or refusing to give it your part
There are too many good men about
Who are eager to face any test.

The quitters are quickly forgot.
On them the world spends little time;
And few ever care that you've not
The courage or patience to climb.

So give up and quit in despair,
And take your place back on the shelf
But don't think the world's going to care;
You are injuring only yourself.

Velocipede Vs. Horse

Millersburg Journal

Fundamentally, New Mexico's great velocipede race came about through Jeff Higdon and Doc Bolton, in common with a host of other folk, did not especially like Tommy Jones, a well liked fellow to do rancher with a widely known eagerness to be on anything he could turn into a deal.

So it was novise by chance that, as Lyons entered the barroom of the Timmer Hotel in Silver City in the spring of 1888, Clayton and Bolton were discussing Jones. Also by chance that, ridden by an expert, a velocipede is the high wheeled bicycle of the period — could beat any horse.

"The this and that it could," Lyons roared. "I got a horse that can beat any velocipede ever made."

His claim was answered by snorts, most of them alcoholic.

After a day of argument, bet-wrangling a bet was whomped up: Three thousand head of Lyons' steers against 5,000 of Clayton's critters, with the wager of 10,000 in quality, and a side stake of $1,000 cash. Even for the time and place, the wager was unique.

A day in September was finally set for the race. The course: From the Timmer Hotel in Silver City, past the boundary at Hudson's Hot Springs to the Cabinet Saloon in Deming, a distance of 130 miles. Jones himself, on the other might die from exhaustion, but there was no chance of its dying from thirst.

The original belief that, in backing the bicycle, Clayton and Bolton had given themselves into a sucker bet soon disappeared. It became known that a Mexican rancher living in man named Ashenfelter, who had formerly been noted as a bike racer, had competed against and beaten two good horses down Texas way.

Ashenfelter showed up some days before the race, a little before the betting began. He had medals he displayed and the confidence in his backers. On that runs against the bike. He showed that on his velocipede he could maintain a gallop of 22 royos like a mountain goat. And when he encountered his horse rival on the course, he zipped by it contemptuously.

The horse was a beast known originally as Rattlesnake, because of a brand mark, but later called Figure Two, because of a brand mark.

He had been brought in Billy King, sometime ranch foreman, sometime gambler, sometime prize fighter, but just then deputy to Sheriff John Slaughter, a picturesque rip of the tough characters around Tombstone, Ariz., by the effective process of buying him.

King was brought into Silver City by Lyons' agent and Jones' agent, Hall. Inasmuch as he was one of the most widely known men in the Southwest, his word, by itself, was accepted as good as the word

Sun Main Focus of IGY And Under Constant Watch By Observatories for 18 Mos.

Editor's Note: The 18-month International Geophysical Year is over. What did scientists learn from their concentrated study of the earth and the space around it? Here is a report of some results from observations of the sun and space. First in a three-part series.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Over a luncheon table, Germany's Dr. Julius Bartels searched a moment for the right words:

"We set out traps for nature. Then when nature does something, we often learn her secrets."

To Bartels, professor of geomagnetism at the University of Goettingen, this was the essence of the IGY, the 18-month International Geophysical Year just ended.

It brought the greatest single hunt in history for knowledge—about earth, sun, weather, and the new province of space into which humans are eagerly reaching.

CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT

The traps for nature were tended by 30,000 scientists and volunteers from 66 nations in a huge co-operative effort.

Now nature is yielding a treasury of secrets, some of them totally unexpected.

The full wealth of meaning and significance, however, must await months or years while scientists analyze the literally millions of observations concerning weather, gravity, electrical phenomena and other forces and events.

SUN MAIN FOCUS

The sun was one main focus of IGY.

For every minute of 18 months, the sun was held under constant patrol watch by 100 observatories around the world, to count its stormy sunspots, record its gigantic flares or explosions which often choke off radio communications and hang shimmering Northern Lights in our sky.

And the sun obliged, staging the greatest sunspot activity since 1778.

Special rockets soaring up for brief glimpses discovered that flares shoot out great bursts of X-rays. X-rays always are beaming out of the sun. It's the added X-rays from flares that apparently cause radio fadeouts on earth.

For the first time, rockets reached above obscuring clouds during an eclipse of the sun, learning that the solar x - rays come from the sun's corona or atmosphere, not its disk. The sun wears a bright x-ray halo.

STAR RADIATION

Other rockets looking into space with eyes tuned to see only ultraviolet light, found that some stars are wrapped with nebulous radiation not explainable by the energy the stars are thought to possess.

Geared for quick action when the sun boiled with major explosions, IGY scientists set their traps to learn what these bombardments do to the earth's magnetism and electrified ionosphere, and what actually happens on the sun. Out of it all could come knowledge to achieve limitless energy for man's machines and power stations on earth.

There were more indications that the earth actually swims in the far outer reaches of the sun's tenuous atmosphere.

ATMOSPHERE DENSER

Rockets flying 50 to 150 miles up found the earth's atmosphere to be perhaps 10 times denser at high altitudes than had been thought, with strong daily and seasonal variations — factors influencing weather.

Paced by Russia's astounding Sputniks, man zoomed into the space age.

The dog Laika aboard Sputnik II indicated humans could tolerate the strain of rocket takeoff, and the peculiar weightless state of space flying.

But a huge surprise was discovery through U.S. satellites of two great and hazardous bands of radiation ringing the earth at altitudes of 1,400 to 8,000 miles.

COULD BLOCK FLIGHTS

They're deadly enough to block space flights, unless man is protected, or can pass through quickly, or dart through what seem to be holes in the radiation above the earth's poles.

This radiation appear to consist of atomic particles streaming from the sun, then trapped in the earth's magnetic field.

Radiation leaking down from the trap could cause the auroras, and perhaps cause some healing of the earth's atmosphere — another fact useful in understanding weather.

IGY observations changed the picture of the shape of the earth's magnetic field out in space, and indicate the earth often wheels through curious magnetic clouds.

Rockets and satellites measuring space dust indicated that 3,000 tons of meteoritic dust fall daily upon the earth. The Russians said it might be as much as 1,000,000 tons a day.

USEFUL VOYAGER

Vanguard—the little grapefruit-sized satellite — turns out to be one of the most useful space voyagers.

Swinging far out in a highly faithful orbit, it is so precise in its journey that it is being used in place of stars to get accurate navigational "fixes" on earth, and to check guidance instruments and devices at missile test centres.

Coming — fairly soon — are weather satellites which can track hurricanes, take a global view to tell man what is coming in climate, droughts or floods, help determine whether the earth is warming or cooling.

To all this, it was IGY that opened the door.

14 Aldermen To Be Elected Next Election

The city of Belleville will in all probability have a brand new council for 1960 with the terms of all present aldermen being concluded at the end of this year.

This will be the basis of the city's application to the Ontario Legislature for a private bill carrying out the wishes of the city electorate who at the last municipal election voted in favor of a 14-man council.

The vote in effect reversed the wish of the electorate a year ago when an eight-man council and mayor was approved.

In its application for a private bill the city will ask that the terms of all present aldermen be ended as of December 31st of this year with election to be held next December for 14 aldermen and mayor.

The seven aldermen receiving the greatest number of votes would be elected for a two-year term, and the next seven candidates for a one-year term. Following this, seven aldermen would be elected each year for a two-year term.

Ratepayers Elect Two Trustees

WHITE'S DISTRICT — The ratepayers of S.S. 2 Sidney township held their annual meeting at Bayside public school on Wednesday afternoon to elect two trustees and to discuss general school business.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. E. R. Valcamp, chairman of the school board. Mr. Byron Harder was nominated as chairman for the annual meeting. Major Earl Cooper was nominated as secretary.

Mr. George Caves, of R.R. 2, Trenton, was elected trustee for three years replacing former trustee Mr. George Day, who was retired due to residing in the annexed area.

Mr. J. Morris Smith, R.R. 3, Belleville, was elected for two years to complete the unexpired term of Mr. E. R. Valcamp, who is also in the annexed area. The new board will hold its first meeting early in the new year.

Court Sharron Aids Mentally Retarded Infants

Court Sharron of the Canadian Order of Foresters, Belleville, played host to one of the largest crowds ever seen at Tobe's County Gardens on Friday night last. Over 300 attended. This event called the Big Party, was held in aid of Mentally Retarded Infants Home at Plainfield Ont., and a substantial sum of money was realized.

The response to the appeal that went out was wonderful, not only was the gardens packed but many bought tickets who could not attend.

For those who could attend the Foresters came through with a program of entertainment that will long be remembered as one of the best.

The highlights were, special entertainment by the talented Freddine Smith, and her troupe of four little girls who gave a floor show, made up of baton swinging drills, spectr-tap numbers, etc. The services of this group were offered free of charge to help the Infants Home. Monarchs Orchestra performed superbly, in fact all concerned came through with an effort that insured success.

There were lucky hat draws, door prize, spot dance prizes, old time and modern dancing. District representative Russ Hunt can expressed his appreciation on behalf of the Foresters and was confident with the number of new applications coming in for membership that 1959 would be the biggest year ever in Canadian Forestry.

Ottawa City Fathers Stand Pat on Vote

In a secret caucus they voted 14-11 to stand by an earlier decision to appoint a man to a public library board seat formerly held by a woman.

The capital's fiery former woman mayor, Charlotte Whitton, now a columnist for The Citizen, sat grimly at the council press table after the result was announced.

"The women are not satisfied," she said.

The council refused the withdrawal from the library board of lawyer Anthony Dulier who had been appointed last Monday to succeed Mrs. Robert Dorman.

Council said the withdrawal offer was made under pressure after protests from Ottawa women's organizations.

Mrs. F. S. Brown, president of the Local Council of Women, among a handful of women who observed proceedings from the gallery, said the council will meet to plan further action.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

PEGGY J. — I'm going to tell if he doesn't.

MR. F. N. — I'm sick of taking orders from her.

PEGGY J. — I am having a terrible problem with my aged, widowed father. Mother died two years ago and Dad, now 72, wants to marry again.

I would be all for the idea if Dad weren't set on a woman who loves to go places and do things.

Dad has gotten a big kick out of going out with her, but she does not realize that he comes home from his "dates" completely exhausted. The worst of it is that Dad has told her that he's ten years younger than he really is.

I have begged Dad to tell this woman the truth and I've threatened to do it myself if he does not. I know it's not a nice thing to do, but I feel that it is only right. After all, if this woman up and leaves Dad when she finds out the truth he'll come running to me to comfort him and I am the core of him. He has a nice home and good care with me now, why should he upset everything?

MR. F. N. — It's a fine thing when your own daughter seems to think she's your mother and must tell you what to do and how to do it. Ever since I came to live with Peggy, I've been taking orders, and I'm a little sick of it.

It happens that I have the appearance, health and energy of a person ten years younger. Many doctors have told me so. This woman, herself, took me for 63 and I didn't feel like disillusioning her. Why should I? It would give her the wrong impression — that I'm an old man. My doctor says there isn't any reason why I shouldn't last until 90 the way I'm going, so why shouldn't I live it up as much as I can?

I've told Peggy that if she goes telling stories behind my back, I'm going to get out of her house right now, I don't think children have a right to take over the upper hand just because their parents aren't as young as they used to be. My relationship with this woman is a personal matter.

The Council: We think Peggy is right about the fact that the woman involved should know the truth, but we are not so sure she should turn informer on her father. She should continue to try to persuade him to do the telling. Her threat is an insult to his dignity.

Peggy should recognize that her high-handed general attitude toward her father may have been a strong factor in his getting involved with this woman in the first place. If it is true that she has been giving him orders, he undoubtedly has been chafing at the bit for some time. If her father is far from helpless and must feel intense resentment at being treated like a child. Perhaps he felt the need to go out and prove his real mettle by courting a woman so much younger.

On the other hand, Mr. F. N. owes it to himself and his (even-tempered) self to remain 100 per cent unconscious of the fact that old age symptoms could set in suddenly.

If Mr. F. N. were a little more courageous about facing the facts, he would stand a better chance of making a happy second marriage.

year age difference is not a vital matter. His doctors have been reassuring, but they do not really expect him to consider himself 63 and to remain 100

GOOD MANNERS

INVITATIONS TO COCKTAIL PARTIES

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My husband and I (we have been married two years) have just moved into our new house, and will be settled soon. We don't particularly like the idea of giving a big housewarming party, and have decided instead to give several cocktail parties on successive Sunday afternoons. Would the printed cocktail invitation cards sold in stores be correct for me to use for the invitations? — L. M.

Yes . . . but please do not choose ones too fancy, bizarre, or "cute," or ones with the same old pictures on the front. Very refreshing and pleasant are those with script "An Invitation" on the front, or the simple "You are invited." Or, if you have time, you might have informals engraved or printed with your names and your new address on the front page . . . extremely practical and convenient for the new household. Or you might buy plain informals, write your names and address on the first page, and the invitation on the inside pages. A good idea to include your new telephone number also.

GROOM'S COUSIN TO BE ORGANIST AT WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My bridegroom-to-be has a cousin who is a well-known organist, and he would very much like to ask him to play the organ at our wedding. I'm sure a special arrangement must be made about this, but we have no idea what it is. Will you tell us, please?—Bride-to-be

Yes, there is a professional courtesy that should be considered about this, so that there will be no indifference and no hurt feelings. First you (and your bridegroom-to-be. If possible) should go to consult with the clergyman of your church telling him your wish, which I am sure he will grant. Since you should take for granted that you will be expected to pay the organist of your church his professional fee, the clergyman may suggest you consult with the church sexton, who will inform you about this procedure.

SEATING OF MINISTER AND HIS WIFE AT PARENTS' TABLE

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

When there is a Parents' Table at the wedding reception, are the minister and his wife invited to sit there? I am referring to my wedding reception. I am devoted to our minister and his wife, and I want to do what is right. If they are to be seated at this table, what is the correct position? — Bride-to-be

Yes indeed, the minister and his wife should be seated at the Parents' Table . . . and there is a definite protocol about this seating. The minister is seated at your mother's left (the groom's father is seated at her right) and the minister's wife is seated at your father's left (the groom's mother is seated at his right).

Home Canned Chicken & Meat

by Mary Moore

During the Fall of 1958 I received several requests from thrifty farm wives for a foolproof method of canning chicken or old hens who were due for retirement.

I know that some of the enquirers planned to process the canned chicken in a boiling water bath. This will not do, for after many conferences with my colleagues and authorities, not one of us will recommend the processing of canned meats and poultry by boiling water bath. You must use a pressure cooker to be sure the product is sterilized.

The following method is approved by the Consumer Section — Marketing Service, Canada Department of Agriculture.

Fowl or chicken may be canned by the "Raw Pack" or "Pre-Cooked" method. After the fowl or chicken is killed, it should be drawn and washed thoroughly and allowed to stand twenty-four hours before canning.

RAW PACK METHOD

Remove skin and excess fat. Cut into large pieces (drum sticks, thighs, breasts, back and wings). Remove meat from breast, back and leg pieces. Pack the raw meat into glass sealers or tin cans. Meat may be packed either solidly, with no bone or, if desired, one piece with bone may be placed in centre of container. This will allow heat to penetrate to the centre during the exhausting and processing period and will also improve the flavor of the meat. Add ½ inch headspace for glass sealers and ¼ inch for tin cans. Add salt allowing ½ teaspoon to a pint sealer or 20-ounce tin can. Do not add any liquid.

When using the "Raw Pack" method, all containers should be "exhausted" before processing. To exhaust, place open containers on a rack in a large kettle and add water until it reaches about two inches from top of containers. Cover kettle and bring water to boiling point. Reduce heat just enough to keep water at a slow boil. Continue boiling, allowing exhausting time given in Table tomorrow, or until temperature at centre of container reaches 170 deg. Fahr. when tested with a thermometer. As each sealer or tin can is removed from water, press meat below rim of container. Partially seal glass sealers and completely seal tin cans.

Process in the pressure canner following the Table given tomorrow. Fuller details on use of pressure canner are given in bulletin "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" page 12 available without charge from Canada Department of Agriculture. After removing sealers from canner, complete seal of glass sealers and cool in an upright position. Cool tin cans in cold water.

Church Leader Resigns Post At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — The resignation of Ven. L. G. Davis, 74, as Archdeacon of Kingston was announced Saturday by Rt. Rev. R. O. Evans, Anglican Bishop of Ontario.

American Motors, Rambler Only Automaker to Build, Sell More Cars Than in 1957

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors, created in 1954 through a merger of Nash — Kelvinator Corporation and Hudson Motor Car Company, supplied the auto industry's success story of 1958.

In the poorest year in recent U.S. auto industry history American Motors was the only automaker to build and sell more cars than in the preceding year.

When final figures are tabulated they will show the company built approximately 210,000 cars and counted about 194,000 retail deliveries. The 1957 count was 114,084 assemblies and 117,330 deliveries. The excess of sales over production was accounted for by cars in inventory at the start of the year.

More important than the unit showing, however, was the face American Motors pulled itself out of a long period of deficit operation, was able to declare a modest stock dividend and to embark on a $10,000,000 expansion program.

American Motors rode into the profit column on a smaller automobile—a 108 - inch wheelbase number, produced in various body styles, all stressing a compactness of design.

Major credit for the successful operation belongs to George Romney, 51-year-old president and board chairman, long an advocate of the smaller but not smallminded automobile. Romney has been described as possessing precisely what his task requires—a missionary zeal, great physical stamina and an engaging personality—personality he comes by the zeal naturally. He is a devout member of the Mormon Church. He is president of the Detroit stake of the church, a position roughly equivalent to that of bishop in some churches.

Romney maintains his faith in the smaller, compact car as another way to peace and prosperity does his faith in religion. And he is among the most articulate of all the auto industry's top executives.

Romney was born in Chihuahua, Mexico, where his father engaged in farming. As a boy he spent both winters and summers on farms. Later he worked in eastern boiler factories, aluminum and metal fabricating plants.

He became president of American Motors when its top executive officer, George W. Mason, died in 1955. Within a couple of years he dropped the larger Hudson and Nash cars.

The more compact Rambler, he said, could be built to break even at 200,000 sales. The answer apparently came in the financial report for the company's fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1958—a net profit of $6,685,000 (U.S.) or $7.40 a share. It was the first profitable year in American Motors' fourteen-year history.

The future of smaller cars? "The time is coming will take a million small foreign and compact cars," says Romney. "By 1960 General Motors will represent from 50 to 60 per cent of the over-all U.S. car market."

Chihawks Are Just Starting To Roll Says Pilous

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

The Hildebrand has his fingers crossed. In fact if that time-worn gesture still holds as a "warder-off" of bad luck, including mainly the injury FAC. the McFarland coach has his fists clenched.

The Macs have a little less than four weeks before they pack their luggage and leave for the greatest hockey adventure of their puck-chasing lives.

Much can happen them hockey-wise in that short period of time.

The McFarlands have two-thirds of the 48-game schedule under their belts. Up to a couple of weeks ago, they had been fortunate in that none of the team had suffered serious injury.

Then the "hurt lightning" struck suddenly, three times and in the same place. The six-man defence corps was cut in two almost overnight. Al Dewsbury went out with an injured knee. Moe Benoit followed with a leg disability and Fiori Goegan was sidelined with a wrenched knee and a charley-horse. Dewsbury has since returned to the hockey wars but the knee still bothers him.

This left the brunt of the defence work on Jean Paul Lamirande, Lionel Bolley and Floyd Crawford. The trio has done a sterling job with Jean Paul being awisharc'er.

As was mentioned before, the Macs have played two-thirds of the schedule. This left the other third, some 16 games to be played in the month of January. Three of these are already history.

Starting tomorrow night against Kingston, the Macs will package thirteen games in 24 nights, six of them in three-game packets to the eastern and western outposts of the circuit.

On Friday night the Macs entertain the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and return the compliment in the Quebec city on Sunday. Next Tuesday will see another battle of the championa here when the Whitby Dunlops will be the Macs' guests.

On Friday, January 16, they entertain the Kingston Merchants here and trek to Whitby the next night, completing the weekend with a Sunday safari to Cornwall.

Wednesday, January 21, they are guests of the Merchants in Kingston and the following weekend sees other three-game hassle with Cornwall here Friday, January 23, and the Macs visiting Whitby the following night, Saturday, and trekking to Hull on Sunday.

This ends the Macs' search for victory in the fairways places and they end the schedule with two home-and-home games, Hull on January 27 and Cornwall, January 30.

As Michael J. Redden points out, "The Macs will become the all-time tops as iron-men if they successfully navigate these January storms. They've been the false of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Barons in their series played in Italy, prior to the Dutchmen's departure for a tremendous home schedule to which the Dutchies played host. Quite before going overseas.

However, the Mc'Farlands at home does not [illegible] McFarlands pre-tournament schedule here will be heavier [illegible] equal that of the Olympic Dunlopettes last season. Than that undertaken by the Whitby Dunlops last season.

It is recalled, however that Manager Drury Denyes in pre-season schedule arrangements, preferred to play a complete schedule of 48 games with the Dunlops and Barons into Senior "A" circuit rather than embark on a grandiose exhibition series of games like that of Whitby last year which took the Dunnies to all parts of Ontario and to St. Paul, Minnesota, in Yankeeland.

Meanwhile, as was said before, Ike Hildebrand has his fingers crossed. He hopes Old Man Injury will ignore the McFarlands for the next-three weeks, and as far as that goes until March 16. That's the day after the world tournament ends. Mayhap by that time he will be in the baseball training camps.

WELL-KNOWN ANGLER

CAMPBELLTON, N.B. (CP)— Alexander Mowat, well known by anglers throughout North America, died Monday. From 1897 until his retirement in 1945, he was manager of the Riparian group formed by luxury fishing camps on the Restigouche River salmon pools. He played with the New Westminster team that won the first Canadian lacrosse title in 1888. Later he was a member of a national soccer champion team from the same city. He came to Campbellto- and joined his uncle, the late John Mowat, in the lumbering business.

Say Eskimos Season Loss Was $19,435

EDMONTON (CP) — A loss of $19,435 on 1951 operations was reported Monday night by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The deficit cut to $118,949 the club's accumulated surplus at Dec. 31. Total income last year was $433,294, expenditures totalled $452,725.

Biggest single entry on the expense sheet was $362,883 for team salaries, maintenance and travelling.

The financial report, contained in the annual report to the Eskimo Athletic Association club.

Community-owned organization as well all clubs in the conference, the Eskimos are the first of five teams to report a deficit on 1951 operations. Earlier the Canadian champion Winnipeg Blue Bombers showed an estimated profit of $13,522 and the fifth-place Vancouver Lions a $12,955 profit, in the Eskimos had a profit of $2,422.

Club treasurer Bob Purvis said that stricter determination, confidence and the staff needed for a winning team. You don't get on a team, you work to get on and work by merely resting your press clippings.

STOUT WILL SHOOT

"We're getting stout work out on goalie Glenn Hall and veterans Ted Lindsay, Marcel Pronovost and Litzenberger. We're getting steady backchecking from defenceman Edmour Lemay. Vasko. Pierre Pilote, Jack Evans and Al Arbour. Another thing that improved play from Bobby Hull, Ron Murphy, Eric Nesterenko, Earl Reibel and Jack McKenzie.

"We're ready to stay in there and make every work to try to and knock us out. The boys realize they can get that playoff money only if will take a good club to take it away from them."

Want Posts On Goal-Line

By JIM KENSH.

CINCINNATI (AP) — U.S. College football coaches who scorned the two-point conversion rule adopted last year to live and play with it, but they are seeking a compromise.

They want the goal posts moved to the goal line.

The majority of delegates here for the convention of the American Football Coaches Association thinks the two-point rule, enacted a year ago by the National Collegiate Athletic Association football rules committee, has won popularity among the fans and is not likely to be changed.

They contend, however, that putting the posts where they are in Canadian football — on the goal line — would make a more equitable game.

Members of the AFCA rules committee refused to commend on recommendations they would make to the parent NCAA for action at the rules committee meeting next week in Los Angeles, but an announcement was expected today.

The argument for moving the posts forward is that with the posts 10 yards closer to the playing field, the one-point conversion attempt by kicking would be simplified and the two-point try, by running or passing, would take on added stature.

The argument against the move is that serious injuries might result from players hitting the posts.

'They're Ignited' He Claims, Have Stuff of Winning Team; Tough Road Trip Lies Ahead

It's about time. They've finished last in the National Hockey League 9 times in the last 13 seasons and made the Stanley Cup playoffs only once in that span—by finishing 4th in 1953.

The Hawks have a six - game unbeaten streak, longest since 1950-51, and have just come off a rugged schedule of four games in five nights with a 3-3 victory over Boston.

TOUGH PROSPECT

They aggin must play four games in five nights, three of them on the road—against the New York Rangers, currently lead by a mere two points, Wednesday; Boston Thursday; Detroit on Saturday. They end the month again in Chicago as Rangers play Friday.

"This club is finally coming on roll," said Pilous beginning his game after game Pilous. "If we can get this road trip with three points or better, I'll be a happy team to go out of second place.

"The spirit, determination, confidence and the stuff needed for a winning team. You don't get on a team, you work to get on and work by merely resting your press clippings.

Alex Olmedo Not Bothered By Criticism

PERTH, Australia' (AP) —"It hurts but I won mm going to let it get me down," Alex Olmedo said today after reading of more criticism from United States over the U.S. victory in the Davis Cup.

Australian papers have carried dispatches from the U.S. in which prominent persons have called the use of a "foreigner" to carry the tennis trophy back to the U.S.

Some people say these things just to be controversial," the young Peruvian said. "I don't lowned long ago you cannot let such things get you down. I think it was thankful to the United States for giving me an opportunity to play for the country which-I might never have done otherwise. I consider America my tennis home.

"All the tennis I learned I learned up in the U.S. I have lived there five years.

Olmedo was sensational in the U.S. victory over Australia in the Davis Cup challenge round at Brisbane, Australia, last week.

Russians Meet Michigan, State Hockey Combo

DETROIT (AP) — Russia's touring hockey team visits Detroit tonight and a strange alliance has been formed to thwart the invaders' dominance over United States foes.

The smooth visitors meet a college all-star aggregation from Michigan and Michigan State, bitter arch-rivals on most occasions.

The Russians have thus far gained a tie and two victories over the U.S. Nationals in their tour. Tonight the Russians will meet mostly Canadians employed in the Michigan schools.

The Russian brand of hockey has been well-spiced and hitchigan coach Al Renfrew hopes the "prestige of" will help regain some of the lost ground.

BOB WHITE ON TEAM

Bob White, one of his Michigan State wingers, is the only Canadian team that met Russia in the world championships last winter.

And Carrie Burns, a Detroit-bred Wing centre, has been 20-goal scorer with the Russian sharp passing, durable skating and stickhandling.

Burns played for Whitby, the Canadian team that beat Russia in the world championships last winter at Oslo. Most of the Russians are Amateur Athletes.

The Soviets were to watch the Red Wings of the National Hockey League in Detroit Thursday before taking to Detroit Olympia ice themselves for a workout.

On the Tracks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A herd of 1952 thoroughbreds, including the 250,000-added Tropical Park handicap next Saturday.

Among the thoroughbreds nominated are 16 who earned a total of $1,000 or more in 1951, one-Calumet Farm's Bardstown —started his 1952 campaign by winning more money in the $20,000 Orange Bowl handicap at Hialeah last Saturday.

The 16 accounted for a total of 32 stakes victories last year. The stakes which head the 31 candidates included five $100,000-added events, and three $50,000-added.

Hoop Band with five stakes victories and Sharpsburg with four were the leaders from a quantity standpoint, but Bardstown was the standout when it came to quality. His three stakes triumphs were the $100,000-added classic and also boosted his earnings for 1958 to $314,687.

Second in earnings was Claiborne Farm's Nadir with $204,-182. Five other candidates—Hoop Band, Sharpsburg, Dragon Killer, Vestige and Battle Morn—passed the $100,000 mark.

Bardstown, which will share top weight with Clem in the Widener at Hialeah in February, won only one stakes race outside the $50,000 Quaker City handicap.

POMONA, Calif. (AP)—Aliwar, a speedy four-year-old, brought $40,000 from Emil Wolfson's Mad at an auction disposing of the thoroughbred holdings of the late Harry M. Warner.

James Garibaldi of Maywood, Calif., got Aliwar on the second bidding duel with Travis M. Kerr of Oklahoma City, who paid the second highest price, $40,000, for the brood mare Admiral's Lark, also sold at the Wolfson sale.

In all, 28 brood mares, 20 head of racing stock 15 yearlings—and three stallions brought a total of $881,600.

Expect Near-Capacity Crowd For All-Star Junior Battle

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A near-capacity crowd is expected for the second annual Ontario Hockey Association junior "A" all-star game here Wednesday night. Coaches Gardner Arcess manager Lee Blank says the advance sale has surpassed that of last season when close to 5,000 fans watched the inaugural mid-season junior classic in St. Catharines.

The site of the game each year is the home arena of the team in first place in the first week in January.

The TeePees will be out to avenge a 9-4 loss to the all-star aggregation last season.

SIX STARS EACH

Six of the all - star players chosen this year came from our city. Coach Harry Watson, former National Hockey League star in his first season with TeePees as coach, will line up with us against the outstanding players from the rest of the circuit, while I'm not in the habit of tossing out predictions, I think we'll give them the honest battle."

The TeePees will be headed by first-team all-stars goalie Dennis Delordy, defencemen Pat Stapleton and centre Stan Mikita, as well as their second-team nominees: Defenceman Wayne Hillman. Right wing Gerry Ehman and left wing Fred Hiltz.

No Tampering With Rules' Says Campbell

NEW YORK (AP) — Regulations covering the individual scoring championship in the National Hockey League are "sound and should not be tampered with," Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said today.

Campbell took exception to the views exoressed recently by Maurice the Rocket Richard, Montreal Canadiens' star player, and Lynn Patrick, general manager of Boston Bruins. Both Richard and Patrick suggested separate trophies for the leaders in goals and assists.

Under current regulations, a player with the highest combined total of goals and assists receives a trophy and a $1,000 cash prize.

"I've known some good scorers who couldn't carry the puck the length of the ice", Campbell told the Associated Press. "Perhaps we would not be of any benefit. We would not be bogged down with figures."

Habs' Big Guns Were Muffled League Snipers Steal March

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens' big guns were muffled during the last week and the rest of the National Hockey League players made a march on them.

Leftwinger Dickie Moore was the only member of the Montreal elite who managed to collect more than one point in four league games and along with Bernie Geoffrion was one of two Canadiens who maintained their position in the scoring race, NHL statistics released today show.

Boston Bruins' Fern Flaman has had the best week of any of the NHL liars. The all-star defenceman scored four goals in four games, and got an assist as well, to give him a total of 11 for the season — the highest total in the league. Geoffrion, who does his scoring in spurts, had opened up a seven-point margin over runnerup Sid Smith of Toronto Maple Leafs the previous week but in his last four games he registered only one assist and had his lead cut to four points.

Forty-Year-Old Ted Williams Back at Plate Next Season

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ted Williams, generally recognized as the greatest hitter in baseball, will be back at the plate next season.

The leading outfielder of the Boston Red Sox—who at 40 won the American League batting title with a .400 average—made this an informal press conference Monday night.

"I don't know how long I'll be able to continue in baseball," he said. "There for part of the time I'd have said I wouldn't be playing now. You just can't tell.

"However, he expects to play at least 100 games—"I'd hate to think I couldn't."

Williams is here for a sports show in which he gives a fly-casting exhibition.

At the conference, Ted spoke of many things — his 1958 batting title in the bit and Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees and their manager Casey Stengel, the players' squabble with owner Tom Yawkey and what he wants out of baseball.

37 BIG YEAR

He said he was more concerned about the batting championship in 1957 when he won it with a .388 average than he was last year.

"I batted .388 for a long long while and figured it might be my last chance to do it. I had Mickey Mantle on my neck most of the way until I got lucky and pulled away. I really wanted to win that year."

Williams said that the desire to lead the league last year when he edged out teammate Pete Runnels on the last two days of the season wasn't as great as it was in 1957.

"Honestly, I was pulling for Runnels. Pete's a great kid. I wanted to help him. I also don't think I did by advising him to choke up on the bat. In Washington, the day before the season ended, he hit one a country mile but I had him set for a routine fly. Instead catch of. Then I hit a bad one that went for a double. That turned out to be the difference."

As for the Yankees and Stengel, Williams said he'd like to see the beat them was for the other clubs to accomplish.

"The Yankees have a great organization," he said, "they are a well-balanced ball club. Don't look to penalize them because they are good. Build up to them and some day they'll have their downs, even though right now they look invincible."

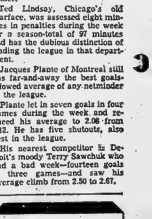
CASEY GREAT

He rated Stengel as one of the great managers of all time. "He's got a real kick out of watching

Minor Hockey

Maple Leafs, Barons, Red Wings and Bruins battled out impressive victories in the squirt division of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association last night.

Leafs downed Canadiens 5-1 with Mike Smith and Rod Ridley each scoring two goals. Gregory Burkitt had the other and Ross McDougall scored the lone Canadiens goal.



Wayne Dall's two-goal performance helped the Barons gain a 3-2 decision over the Brown. Other Baron marksmen were Gary Shannon, Mike Nicksle and Allan Lupinette. Larry Moore scored both of the Brown goals.

Red Wings went on a scoring spree to whip the Black Hawks 7-0. Ron McQuarrie spearheaded the attack with four goals while Bill Hamilton, Bob Bowen and Ted Herrington a pair. Dennis Chambers and Bobby Pringle were the singletons.

Mike Goyer and Jack Holmes scored for the Hawks.

In the only close game the Bruins edged Rangers 3-2. They scored one other goal but it was called back for having too many men on the ice. Tom Hamle, Stephen Thorne and Stephen Casselman fired the Bruin goals. Brian Brooks and Gerry Lowe replied for Rangers.

Juniors Defeat County Combines For 1st Victory In Four Outings

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Lambert-Rollins outscored the Prince Edward Combines by a goal per period here last night to record a free-wheeling 11-6 victory in a penalty-riddled Central Ontario Junior "B" fixture.

The win was the first for Belleville in the last four outings and tied the Lambert-Rollins boys with Prince Edward for third place in the five team grouping, each with two points.

The game was a high-scoring affair from the opening whistle. The County crew led three times in the first period but Eddie Piatta's local club came out of the period with a 4-3 lead. Penalties outnumbered the goals in the last two periods. The winners made it 8-4 after forty minutes and 11-6 in a weird third heat that saw nine goals and 33 minutes in penalties go the referee's books when.

Referees Harry Morgan and Vern Goyer spent a busy evening at the penalty bench as the penalties edged the goals 21-19. Belleville had a hand, decided margin in this department than in goals, drawing 11 minors, one misconduct and a major penalty to seven minors for Prince Edward.

Belleville goalie Bill Moxam drew one of the misconducts at 12:01 of the third when he protested too strongly a Prince Edward goal by Gurney Elliott which made the score 10-7. Dennis Kerrulsh also was assessed a tch-minute red at 18:26 when he spoke out of turn after resolving a minor penalty. The lone major was given to Barry Titterson, with just one second let in the game when he elbowed a visiting player in the face, apparently drawing blood. Titterson was the game's busiest man with three minors to go with his major, Kerrulsh had a pair of minors and the misconduct.

While their mates were serving penalties, Bowbotham and Hull and centred line with Gary Goyer on the wings provided the scoring punch. Hull led the way with four goals and one assist while Goyer clicked for three goals. Gary Bowbotham earned four assists on the play-by-play sheet. Elliott also looked good up front with a pair of goals and three assists. Kerrulsh had one and one. Jim Ellis had Belleville's other goal while single assists were shared by Jim Jones, Gordie St. Louis, Ralph Paine, Titterson and Roger Drake.

Then Kellar and Aylmer nine holes for a course record 30, blast in with a 33, post a 63 for 278 and sit back to see if Wall could crack it.

Wall made a gallant bid but it was not quite good enough by four strokes. The 33-year-old Wall (had gone into the final round with scores of 71-68-68, and his last-round 73 was good enough to beat such threats as Marsh, Bob Souchak and company.

But Wall couldn't overcome Venturi's marvelous round.

COURSE RECORD

Venturi's 30 broke the course nine-hole record of 31 set by Bolt in 1956. His 63 equalled Bolt's course record, also set in 1956.

Wall collected $3,400 for his 280, while the runner-ups were: Maxwell, 72 for 281 and $2,200; and Sarazen, 70 for 282 and $1,600.

Moe Norman of Kitchener, Ont., the only Canadian left in the tournament, carded a 75 for a 292 total. He picked up $15.71 for his efforts. Al Balding and Gerry Magee, both of Toronto, failed to make the final round.

The other American doubles pairs, Buchholz and Chris Crawford, bowed in straight sets to the top-seeded Australian pair Laver and Warren Woodcock 7-5, 6-4.

Allard Likes Canadian Game

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (CP) — Don Allard, Boston College passing star who was signed recently by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four for next season, says he thinks he will have little trouble adapting to Canadian football.

"I like several Canadian games when they were broadcast on television here a couple of years ago," the 21-year-old quarterback said. "I don't think there's really much difference between Canadian and American games."

Rough Rider club secretary Wes Brown acknowledged that Allard has been signed by Ottawa. Announcement that Allard had signed leaked out through Washington Redskins, Allard was No. 2 draft choice of the National Football League team.

Allard, whose passes netted 691 yards for Boston College last season, declined to reveal terms of his Ottawa contract.

During a visit two weeks ago, Allard was impressed with what Ottawa officials told him about the Canadian game.

"I liked the setup very much. They were very kind. I look forward to playing up there," he said.

Yankees Praise Russian Style Of Hockey

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—No cold war ever had a more suitable setting—as for about one hour and a battleground for stick - wielding athletes from the United States and Russia.

But it was a sweet atmosphere of harmony and good fellowship that prevailed in the three games between the amateur hockey teams at the festival powers the last week. There wasn't so much as a dirty scene.

American players seemingly curbed some of the bowl'-em-over impulses that are part of Western hockey. But the U.S.-Russian series, which ended with the Soviet victories, and at times wasn't exactly a game of pitty-pat.

"One of the ways to upset that terrific timing of theirs is to hit them hard," said coach Harold Ryman of the American team. "We certainly didn't try to do anything illegal. But a good wallop can be discouraging."

It also was encouraging if there is a violation. The Russians policed the U.S. national team when it was shorthanded Saturday.

RARELY BODYCHECK

Russian players absorb a solid bodycheck well but rarely deal out any of the same. Several Americans who have faced them before say they are doing more bumping this season.

"Timing is everything in their offense," Ryman said. "They look for spots, and sticks on the ice, to pass to. It was expecting the unexpected thing that amazed me is their stickhandling and passing speed I'd say we're about even.

"The series taught us a lot. Everybody animates somebody who is better in this game. I think our kids may be trying some of the passing tricks they've seen the Russians use."

It's a month and a half when we play them again in Europe we believe, but it's a long time to battle. But they are a wonderful hockey team."

The Russians tonight meet the university of Michigan in Detroit.

Art Stratton Threatens Lead In American

NEW YORK (AP)—Rookie Art Stratton of Cleveland Barons today was only one point behind Ken Schinkel, the American Hockey League's individual scoring leader.

The two the first time in 10 days. Schinkel's individual lead had been seriously threatened.

The official statistics released today showed that Schinkel had 37 points on 20 goals and 17 assists while Stratton had 51 points, the result of 19 goals and 32 assists.

Stratton picked up five points in last night's 8-3 victory and garned only one point — on a goal in Sunday night's game against Buffalo.

Right behind the leaders were Billy Sweeney of Buffalo with 47 points and Billy Dea, another Bison and Harry Pidhirny of Springfield with 44 apiece.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ron Howell, 23, voted the best Canadian amateur football player in 1958 when he played with Hamilton, arrived Monday to join Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Howell is the first of three AHL players coming to Vancouver to place Canucks. Norm Corcoran, 27, also with Buffalo, arrives Wednesday to play right wing or centre while Tony Marcetta, 22, arrives Thursday from Spring field Indians.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Two years ago Canadian football legislators made the value of the game six points, bringing it in line with the United States valuation. Now, some officials want to take another big step towards adoption of the American game by allowing linemen unlimited blocking.

The question is due for discussion at the annual meeting of the Canadian Football League in Winnipeg Jan. 15-18 and, from preliminary feelers put out, the move is likely to be debated. Officials believe that Canadian fans still like to watch the ball carrier on his own.

The unlimited blocking by linemen rule has been knocked around for three or four years. At present they can block up to the third five-yard marker beyond the line of scrimmage but, with club officials talking it up, it likely will come about in a year or two.

SHRINE GAME

Legislators, though, have a more important problem, and that is the future of the East-West all-star Shrine game for crippled children's hospitals in Winnipeg and Montreal. This is one issue they can't duck.

They are convinced, along with every football fan in the country, that it is not feasible to stage the game in December, a week after the Grey Cup classic. Four straight years of horrible weather and playing conditions have killed the game.

A suggestion that the game be held before the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union schedules open in August hasn't met with favor from coaches who fear player-injuries.

Another suggestion has come from Don Dawson of Montreal, a rabid football fan, who said in a letter that a big charity game conceivably could be held in the nine professional football cities from Montreal to Vancouver. Instead of a game, he suggested a while tie and talk affair one week before the Grey Cup final.

LINKED BY TV, RADIO

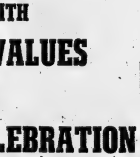
The programs would be linked together by network television and network radio. It would be formal while-tie affairs with a football theme. Tickets would sell at an average price of $25 each, though they would probably vary in each community and the program would consist of a dinner, stage show and dance" Dawson writes.

"As to administration, there would be a central committee with a permanent national co - ordinator. Local committees would run the events in conjunction with the Shriners or each of the cities. A simple calculation indicates to me that it would not be difficult to clear $100,000 for crippled children."

Maybe this is worth consideration.

Bruins Place Four Players On Waivers

BOSTON (AP)—General manager Lynn Patrick of Boston Bruins has admitted that forwards Real Chevrefils, Larry Regan, Tom Williams and Dutch Reibel are the four National League players he has put on waivers.



Patrick, who earlier had refused to name the quartet, did so Monday night after a story in the Boston Record identified the players.

Meanwhile Patrick is seeking to make a trade in a bid to pull the Bruins out of a tailspin which has put them back in fifth place after they had been first. Boston has won only three of its last 17 starts.

The other five NHL clubs have until midnight tonight to claim any or all of the four put on waivers. The waiver price is $15,000 each.

Venturi Wins L.A. Tournament

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The 1959 winter golf season was off to a running start today with good-looking Ken Venturi a spectacular winner of the first tournament on the rich money trail.

As the professionals headed for the next stop, the $30,000 Tijuana open in Mexico Friday, Venturi counted the $5,300 he picked up of his tremendous come-from-behind victory in the $35,000 Los Angeles Open.

At tee - off time Monday the 27-year-old pro from Daly City, Calif., was the forgotten man of the tournament.

lines. Sparked by former Free-dom Fighters in Hungary's abor-tive 1956 revolt against communism, they brandished placards, shook fists and screamed in cadence: "Mik - o - yan the mur-der-er!"

Mikoyan and his party paid no attention to the pickets. Neither did the 48 other guests.

Mikoyan also conferred for 90 minutes with State Secretary Dulles at the state department, primarily about Berlin. He said he will talk about Berlin and other tension topics with President Eisenhower Jan. 19 or 20.

TO VISIT EATON

He is due back in Washington Jan. 21 after visiting several U.S. cities. It was learned he will fly at 8 a.m. EST Wednesday to Cleveland to confer with Canadian - born industrialist Cyrus Eaton who recently conferred in Moscow with Khrushchev and Mikoyan and accepted a Russian sleigh as a gift from the premier.

After Cleveland, Mikoyan goes Thursday to Detroit and Friday to Chicago, with stops later at San Francisco Los Angeles, New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem. Minn.), one of those at Monday night's dinner, told reporters he got the impression from Mikoyan that the Russians are willing to negotiate a Berlin settlement.

MIKOYAN QUOTED

Johnston released quotations from Mikoyan's formal address to the diners. Mikoyan was quoted as saying:

"We think there should be more contacts at all levels—from the lowest to the highest. And it is order not to spend years in trying to work out an agenda, it is best to meet without one. I think that is where we are heading . . .

"Let us complete in having more milk and more meat and more clothing for people. And we hope you won't complain if we do catch up with you."

TODAY'S TOPICS

Today's sessions of the talks were to deal with American export curbs and Canada's hopes to have them removed; U.S. criticism of Canada's anti - dumping laws and Canadian criticism of the American anti - trust acts against American electronics manufacturers operating a patents pool in Canada.

As for oil, Mr. Fleming said Monday: "I think we have a very strong case to present on oil". The U.S. imposed voluntary curbs on imports a year ago and the Canadian hope now is that Canada will be excepted from the restrictions which, possibly, may be made mandatory next month.

With Mr. Fleming at the talks are Trade Minister Churchill, Agriculture Minister Harkness, External Affairs Minister Smith and Justice Minister Fulton.

Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson heads the American delegation which includes Interior Secretary Fred Seaton, Commerce Secretary Lewis Strauss and a number of deputies.

State Secretary Dulles was to have led the U.S. group but was taken ill in Washington, suffering from a virus infection. Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson also was left behind. He was injured in a Yuletide skating accident.

SNOW AND BITTER

Railway plows bored into drifts up to 15 feet in height in the slow job of opening up the line to Clarenville, northwest of St. John's, where three trainloads of passengers have been spending an unexpected holiday since a New Year's storm trapped them.

Spores of cars were trapped on the Avalon and Burin peninsulas. The RCMP hunted for three men who disappeared sometime after leaving St. John's for Port aux Basques, 550 miles away, on New Year's Eve.

Nova Scotia was buried Monday under the heaviest fall of the winter and the eye-watering gales that drove it into deep drifts cleared coastal waters of small vessels. Rural schools were closed. Plows heading out from Halifax got tangled up in stalled cars. The weather office at Halifax-which got eight inches of snow — predicted 50-mile-an-hour gales today.

At this he says: "I was conspicuously unsuccessful," mostly because Ottawa was not interested in supplying the Cuban strong man.

McNaughton admits some may find it hard to understand why he puts his own life in jeopardy to help foreign revolutionaries. In fact President Urrutia himself found it difficult to understand.

In explanation he said: ". . . I have friends in Cuba . . . I got to know their problems. You can't close your eyes to some things. You have to make your decision and I made mine—to help the cause of freedom in Cuba."

And will his life quiet down now?

"I hope it doesn't, I like life to be interesting." McNaughton says.

Italians Biggest Ethnic Group Of Immigrants

OSHAWA (CP)—Italians were the largest ethnic group among Canada's 194,000 immigrants in 1958.

They displaced the British who had been the largest group every year since the Second World War.

Immigration Minister Fairclough released the preliminary figures in a speech to Oshawa Rotary Club Monday.

About 37,500 Italians moved to Canada in the year, compared with 26,800 British persons, said Mrs. Fairclough.

"However, it should be pointed out that 90 per cent of the Italians were sponsored by legal residents of Canada who guaranteed their support.

"These Italians were in fact almost all relatives."

YEAR'S TOTAL DOWN

The year's immigration total was less than half 1957's 282,164 and less than the 1946-56 10-year average of 128,000.

The decline can be attributed largely to the restrictions placed upon the—formerly open—doors in mid-summer 1957 which have since been kept in force," said Mrs. Fairclough. The restrictions served to keep—the immigrant flow at a realistic level. Improved economic conditions in several European countries also contributed to the reduction of immigration."

The third largest ethnic group to enter Canada were Germans numbering 14,300, about 12 per cent of the total.

BRING U.S. CAPITAL

The minister noted a significant aspect in immigrants entering from the United States — the large and increasing number of relatively large number of persons in the professional and managerial classes, as well as those who brought sufficient capital to establish themselves in business.

There were 7,600 Dutch immigrants and 5,380 French among the some 40 nationalities represented in 1958 immigration.

More than half the 1958 immigrants were destined for Ontario.

CONTRACT

to 718, operators 601 to 129 and construction workers 192 to 154.

ALSO COST OF LIVING

The 1½ per cent, equivalent to about three cents an hour, is on top of a three-per-cent cost-of-living allowance which became effective April 3, 1958.

The union, an affiliate of the National Union of Public Service Employees (CLC), has asked for a 3½-per-cent increase in each year of a two-year agreement.

Other demands include reduction in the work week for salaried workers, job reclassifications, rezoning of some areas into higher salary brackets, a limit to contracting out of work and higher commission contributions to health insurance premiums.

Hydro's average hourly rate is $2.16 but the union emphasizes the significance of this figure because such groups as certain draftsmen, electricians and the eye-watering gales that drove it into deep drifts cleared coastal waters of small vessels. Rural schools were closed. Plows heading out from Halifax got tangled up in stalled cars. The weather office at Halifax-which got eight inches of snow — predicted 50-mile-an-hour gales today.

technicians and writers are included in the bargaining unit.

SAY LIMITED

The union claims wage levels of its employees are failing behind prevailing industrial rates and that kept Hydro employees in step with top private industry workers.

Top-rated Hydro tradesmen get $2.25 an hour, with the average for all trade groups is $2.23 an hour, the union claims.

Hydro clerical workers in Toronto receive an average of $80.68 weekly, the union spokesman city getting an average of $65.13, on the basis of union figures.

The last agreement expired April 1, 1958. A conciliation board minority report recommended a 3½-per-cent increase in each year of a two-year agreement with two-year contract also, but with 1½-per-cent increase in each year.

It is understood the provincial government has been kept informed of all developments in the dispute.

Laugh-Loaded "Houseboat" arriving starring Cary Grant, Sophia Loren

By CHARLES MERCER

There's a houseboat-load of entertainment arriving today at Belle Theatre when Paramount's romantic comedy in Technicolor and VistaVision, "Houseboat," starring Cary Grant and Sophia Loren, drops anchor. The attractive duo, last seen together in the dramatic Spanish production, "The Pride and the Passion," does a complete about face in the very American "Houseboat" with uproarious results, liberally spiked with exciting romance and gay, lilting music, surprisingly sung by Miss Loren. "Houseboat" is present-day story about a Washington, D.C. attorney who suddenly finds his three young children on his hands following the death of their mother—from whom he had been estranged for three years. He must find a housekeeper to help with his brood, and fate presents him with the most glamorous and most unlikely housekeeper ever to grace a kitchen. The seductive Miss Loren, herself a runaway from her too-strict musician father, brings home Grant's young runaway son and is mistaken for good housekeeper material. What happens when Sophia, in a spirit of fun, accepts the job which includes making a home out of a broken-down houseboat, bringing the children and their father together, and snatching him from the arms of a determined girl he doesn't love, adds up to making "Houseboat" an outstanding laugh and love hit.

The film co-stars lovely Martha Hyer and stage and television star Harry Guardino. Edmundo Ciannelli plays Sophia's father.

A program of selected short features precede the Feature attraction.

NEW YORK (AP)—For several years we've had agents trailing Bob Hope around the globe, and at last we've collected the goods on him.

Now that he's back from his latest tour to South Aszres, North Africa, Spain, Italy, Germany and Iceland we might as well spill some of his beans before Hope does it himself on his NBC-TV show Jan. 16 (at 9 p.m. EST).

With Hope it's not only one world. It's a small one world as he flits here, there and yonder.

As far as can be learned, he has refused to go only one place. That was once in New York when invited to Greenwich, Conn. Learning that he couldn't fly there but would have to take a train, he declined.

Naturally you can't have so much foreign duty without suffering a wound occasionally.

On a recent tour to a foreign capital he was given a reception after his show by an American dignitary whose wife greeted Hope thus:

"I loved your show, but why didn't you play your violin?"

TALKS WITH GRIFFITH

Again, a couple of weeks ago at Fort Lyautey naval air station in Morocco, Hope's brother, Jack, who produces his NBC-TV shows, was talking with an officer and his wife. As Jack parted, the officer's wife breathed:

"It's been so thrilling to meet Bing Crosby's brother."

Hope has flown almost as many miles as John Foster Dulles. Someone once suggested that he fly ahead of Dulles for every foreign conference as a first act to soften up the opposition.

Blonde Swede From S. Dakota Grossing $250,000 Yearly

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A. T. and T. may have more capital to serve but it can never match the well-round assets of Hollywood's newest corporation — Male van Doren, Incorporated.

The blonde Swede from South Dakota emancipated herself from a steady weekly pay cheque a few years ago and says she now grosses $250,000 yearly.

"Pretty good for a former 4-H club member," boasts Mamie, who doesn't exactly typify the public conception of the farmer's daughter. But Mamie grew up on a farm near Sioux Falls, coming out here in her early teens.

Universal - International signed her five years ago at $250 a week, later raising it to $400. Her then husband, bandleader Ray Anthony, urged her to quit the studio and free-lance.

SECURITY LOOKED GOOD

"Mamie had that farm upbringing," Anthony recalls, "and that steady pay cheque looked too good to give up."

Mamie says: "I never would have had the nerve to do it if I hadn't had a steady-working husband to fall back on."

But quit she did and her first free-lance job at Las Vegas' Riviera Hotel got her $17,500 a week, more than she earned her entire first year at U-I.

Since then she has made movies here and abroad, makes TV appearances and now records.

She thinks the recording business is the wildest of all. She signed a contract with Dot records some months ago. Nothing happened until a few weeks ago when Randy Wood, president of the company, called Mamie at 9 a.m.

He asked her whether she could appear on a local TV show called Juke Box Jury that night.

WINS SLALOM

ADELBODEN, Switzerland (AP) — Fritz Wagnerberger of West Germany captured the giant slalom event of the international ski tournament here Monday. Australa's Gerhard Nenning was second and Wagnerberger's compatriot, Ludwig Leitner, third. Wagnerberger, a 21-year-old Bavarian student, clearly outdistanced a field of top European and North American racers on 2,030-myr-long, 330-metre-drop track with 38 gates.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, January 7

Aries (March 1 to April 19) — The ideal day to do much research work, studying at library, from printed matter, your paper, TV, etc. Your mind is very receptive, and much of the information you store up now will prove invaluable in the near future. Be well informed, succeed.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — By going after the support you need from others, whether financial or emotional, you can acquire that all-important feeling of security. Your mind is very creative, and with your mind at ease, you can then know real happiness.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — See that you converse quite at length with all those who are important to your scheme of living at present, for thereby will come true cooperation and many fine ideas for success. Don't consider today's talk a waste of time.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Imperative you continue to work diligently at chores awaiting your immediate attention so that you will be free when there quickly. Good day to tone up your system by proper diet, exercise, too, and get your wardrobe in order. Work.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You have the need to confide in someone today. Go to the person you love the most and unburden yourself, and you will emerge a happy person and get excellent advice. Be devoted. P.M. spend a delightful evening together having fun.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Don't take offense when a devoted member of family tries to spur you on to greater achievement. You have been operating and thinking rather narrowly and are capable of far greater attainments. Follow ideas and be grateful instead.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Be sure to do any important errand or shopping in A.M. Then you have time to ferret out the data that is so urgent for you to have right now. Be abovebored and to the point.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Determine to find out what is worrisome and wrong in your business affairs. You can then intelligently iron out troubles and make long-range plans for successful operating. Work hard, but take no unnecessary chances.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) —Sit down a while today and think out what you truly want out of life. Are you getting as much out of it and accomplishing all that you may dreamed of? If not, there is no better moment than now to turn failure into success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — It would be the very highest, noble thing today to react toward your loved ones in such a fashion that they will be thoroughly convinced of your loyalty and devotion. Gain their love and respect and this will be a blessing.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Getting together with trusted associate or the right group toward some corporate venture today will prove most successful. Then in P.M. you can have a delightful time and be in the very highest spirits. Be alive, happy.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Through own merit, you have a wonderful backer in business affairs. Think of some way in which you can show your gratitude. This will emerge—even better relations and you gain a real friend as well as increased support.

If your child is born today . . . The hardy little individual born today is the type who must always learn by doing, though it is often the most painful way to gain knowledge and stand on own feet. However, your young ster's word is his or her bond, and this is one of the greatest attributes of life. Give as fine an education as possible, especially in fields of philosophy and geometry. Your progeny will go far in life and travel much.

Castro, With His Fighters, Stages Slow Havana March

By LARRY ALLEN

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — Fidel Castro and thousands of his fighting men today continued their slow western march in triumph to Havana.

Tens of thousands in cities, towns and villages turned out to cheer and wave as the bearded rebel columns made their way from Oriente province, centre of the rebellion that overthrew the dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista last week.

The progress was slow: Camaguey, 200 miles from Havana, Sunday night; Santa Clara, Santa Clara, scene of the defeat that forced Batista to flee, 140 miles farther along the march, and Tuesday Matanzas, 80 miles from the capital.

Castro and his men were expected in the capital Wednesday afternoon for one of the greatest welcomes in Cuban history.

PLAN BIG WELCOME

Manuel Urrutia, named provisional president by Castro, was flying from Santiago de Cuba this morning to take part in the welcome was arranged for him, with government officials and city employees could participate.

The people of Havana awaited Castro the full stonefolding for the first time since the collapse of the Batista government and the dictator's flight to Ciudad Trujillo in the Dominican Republic.

Batista's chief of staff and commander-in-chief of Cuba's armed forces, ordered the end to the paralyzing general strike that had closed stores, business and industry and tied up transport and communications.

He had said he would call off the strike when he was convinced Havana was safely in the hands of the men. There were still some scattered Batista holdouts, but reports from the commanders in Havana assured Castro the situation was fully under control and could upset his hard-won victory.

There were immediate signs of a return to normal in the excited city.

NEWSPAPERS APPEAR

Newspapers began appearing again. Stores flung open their doors. Taxis and buses resumed operation. Industrial workers began preparing to return to their jobs.

Castro's bearded soldiers patrolled the streets with rifles, pistols, and machine - guns, guarded government buildings and banks and manned the lobbies and corridors of hotels.

The situation was enhanced by the rebel high command's order to the thousands of Batista soldiers and police, many of them self-appointed, to turn in their guns. Surprisingly most of them obeyed. Only a few were seen armed on the street.

The long list grew for remnants of the Batista government. Jails were filled with former government officials and persons branded by the rebels as "enemies of the Cuban people."

FIVE EXECUTED

Executions already had been carried out by the rebels of Batista henchmen. They were Capt. Jose Garcia Moracal, a police inspector in the western province of Pinar del Rio' Brig.-Gen. Joaquin Casillo, Batista's commander in Las Villas crovince, and three of his staff officers.

Among those under arrest was Dr. Joaquin Martinez Saenz, president of the National Bank of Cuba.

The exodus of thousands of tourists started off, Scores who had been planning to leave decided to stay. All commercial airlines were given permission to resume flights between the United States and Cuba early today.

Among the saddest men in town were the kingpins of the American gambling syndicates who ran the lavish casinos in the big hotels in almost open defiance of the Batista government.

Those and similar ships or planes out of town were finding it hard to come up with a reason for leaving.

Half or more of the thirteen casinos were smashed by rebels and sympathizers after Batista's flight. The others were closed and their wild night life shut off.

The rot-six long have sworn to destroy the industry that poured millions of dollars into the pockets of the operators and into those of Batista and his associates.

Leaves University Presidency To Become First Chairman Board of Broadcast Governors

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—All his life, it seems, Andrew Stewart has been doing the unexpected.

So it was not unusual for him to leave the presidency of the University of Alberta a few weeks ago to become the first chairman of Canada's new Board of Broadcast Governors. He had had no direct experience in broadcasting except for the fact the university operates its own radio station, CFUA at Edmonton.

He sees the task of the new board as that of a national body reconciling regional diversities into a national whole.

BENT ON FARMING

Since his birth in Edinburgh, Scotland, there have been a number of instances of his doing the unusual. As the ten-age son of a wool manufacturer, he decided to take up farming, although he had never lived on a farm.

After studying at the East Scotland College of Agriculture he left on his own at age 20 to seek his fortune abroad. He looked around Canada, Australia and South Africa before returning to this country to settle on a farm north of Winnipeg.

From farming he went back to his studies, first at the University of Manitoba and later at the University of Edinburgh, taking agricultural science and economics. Mr. Stewart regards himself as an agricultural economist.

He came back to Canada in 1935, before completing work on his doctorate, and took up teaching at the University of Alberta, rising to president there in 1950 at age 46.

CO-OPERATIVE AIM

Now, as chairman of the BBG, there is nothing about him that would cramp him as any sort of czar of Canadian broadcasting. He doesn't regard himself as such, or even as the boss-man of the board which has two other full-time members like himself, and 12 part-time members.

The chairman's job is not to make decisions on his own or to lay down policy," he said in an interview. "That is done by the board as a whole.

"His main function is to act as a sort of catalyst, bringing together the differences of opinion on the board and evolving policy from them.

"His job is to assist the members to express the board's policies, much like the functions of a chairman of a royal commission."

This is where his experience as a member of the Gordon economic commission and as chairman of the royal commission on price spreads, now preparing its report, will come in useful.

LINK REGIONS

His travels across Canada on the two royal commissions taught him one thing:

"There is a great diversity of regional interests, thinking and attitudes in Canada and a national body such as the BBG has the problem of reconciling all of them into a national whole."

Since becoming BBG chairman he finds he watches television and listens to radio with a new, more observant, attitude.

So far, he has found "quite a wide variation in the quality of programming between stations" but is not committing himself on what should be done to raise the general standards of Canadian broadcasting.

One thing he stressed, though, is that "it would be fatal for the board to get into day-to-day operations of broadcasting stations, whether privately- or publicly-owned.

"The board's job will be to make regulations and see that they are observed."

NO SUDDEN CHANGE

For the present, the regulations of the old CBC board of governors, which formerly regulated broadcasting, are being continued under the new regulatory body.

During his 23 years at the University of Alberta, Mr. Stewart carried out a number of major assignments for both provincial and federal governments mostly as an adviser in economic matters.

Besides his service on the two federal royal commissions, he was on the national council on nutrition established by the federal health department in 1938, a member of a provincial royal commission on rural electrification in Alberta in 1944, an adviser to an Alberta royal commission on provincial-municipal relations in 1947-48, and a member of the R. J. Dinning royal commission on Alberta's natural resources in 1948-49.

One-Horn Rhinoceros, Royal Beast of Nepal, Killed Off By Poachers for Sake of Horn

Poachers have been killing the rhinoceros for the sake of its single horn, famous throughout the East for its properties as a love potion.

The horn brings between 6,000 and 13,000 rupees ($1,200 and $2,600), it a ground into a powder and widely used as an aphrodisiac and antidote to poison by the Chinese, Burmese and Siamese.

In addition, rhinoceros blood is highly valued as a medicine, while the skin and horn are used to make vessels for Hindu worship.

Game experts believe that there now are fewer than 100 rhinoceros left in the forests of Nepal's Terai region, on the Indian border, once the most famous big game hunting country in the world.

The one - horned rhinoceros, which at full growth is about 15 feet long and six feet high at the shoulders, once roamed all over southeast Asia. Today, it is found only in Nepal and in northeastern India. If it disappears there, it will become extinct.

E. P. Gee, a British naturalist living in Assam, estimates that there are 48 one - horned rhinoceros left in Nepal, two in Bihar, 43 in Bengal and 347 in Assam.

The beast's main hope of survival is in Assam, where 250 of them are under protection in the Kaziranga game sanctuary.

The royal family in Nepal is particularly fond of the beast, the threatened extinction of the rhinoceros. It long has been a tradition for Nepalese royal and princely families to offer up rhinoceros blood to ensure a safe passage to heaven for their ancestors.

King Mahendra, the present ruler, recently organized a rhinoceros hunting expedition for southwestern Nepal, to perform a libation of rhino blood in memory of his father, King Tribhuvan, who died torce years ago.

It used to be the custom for such rituals to be performed by slitting open the belly of the rhinoceros so that the king or prince could sit inside the animal while he poured the libations of blood from vessels of rhinoceros skin on the changing hymns.

But it is not only the ritual value of the blood and horn of the rhinoceros that makes it so highly sought after. Its meat is also considered royal, while its urine is a value antiseptic and its dung is supposed to act as a charm against evil spirits and disease. Nepalese eat rhino meat cooked or raw and one of the last maharajahs of Nepal used to favor the tender gads or soles of rhinoceros feet as a succulent dish.

Nepalese authorities have taken strong action to try to protect the rhinoceros. Game wardens have orders to shoot poachers at sight.

But the beast's habits have made it easy prey for the poacher. When it leaves its jungle shelter to browse among the 20-foot-high grass and reeds of the marshy Terai country, it is guided on its return by the smell of its own excreta dropped along the way. Poachers merely have to dig pits to trap it, or lie in wait with guns.

PRESERVES VITAMINS

Potatoes are the most nutritious when cooked in their skins after being well scrubbed.

New Cube Regime Dismisses All Local Officials

Office Seekers in Past To Lose Political Rights

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Cuba's new provisional government published today a new interim constitution today as the work of weeding out remnants of Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship went forward.

The new cabinet met far into the night working on a new fundamental law to replace the constitution of 1940 until the holding of free elections.

It was not immediately learned how the new government charter would affect Batista. An old one, which was adopted during Batista's first period of power, presumably the interim constitution will be replaced after a new congress is elected.

Provisional President Manuel Urrutia discussed all provincial governors, mayors and council men in the island's six provinces Tuesday. Presumably a new list of civilian appointees to replace them was ready, although it was not announced immediately.

The new cabinet was reported ready to sign a decree abolishing all political parties and taking away the political rights of all candidates in the 1954 and 1958 elections held by Batista. This would bar the last remaining officials and dates tolerated by Batista from any future role in which Urrutia has promised to hold in 18 to 24 months.

NO EXEMPT

One leading politician appeared easily exempt from the political ban would be former president Carlos Prio Socarras, whom Batista overthrew in a coup in 1952. Prio fled to Miami but is due to return until the victory last week of Fidel Castro's republic.

Informed sources said other cabinet decrees would freeze the private bank accounts of all Batista officials and stop payment on all checks as a safeguard against the treasury. It was problematical, however, how much could be recovered in the government since the custom for Cuban officials profiting while in government has been to bank in the United States or Europe.

Changes Mind On Careless Driving Charges

RENFREW (CP)—Magistrate K. W. McGregor of Pembroke has changed his mind about how to handle careless driving charges, over the objection of Hon. James A. Maloney.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court Dec. 3 ruled the careless driving charge invalid. The province has taken the decision to the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Magistrate McGregor Tuesday adjourned until February cases dealing with charges against Arthus Riopelle Jr. of Calabogie and Mr. A. Johnston of Castleford, represented by Mr. Maloney.

Mr. Maloney, mines minister in the Ontario cabinet, reminded the magistrate he had dismissed a careless driving charge Dec. 23 when Mr. Maloney had argued that "a single" Parliament be added "or" He insisted the precedent was valid and the charges dismissed.

But Magistrate McGregor disagreed. "Since earlier dismissal came "in a moment of weakness," he said.

Ottawa Warned To Beware of Ides of March

REGINA (CP)—Prairie farmers have warned Ottawa to beware the Ides of March.

That is probably when hundreds of westerners will descend by special train on the Canadian capital, demanding deficiency payments for wheat, oats, and barley delivered during the last three years.

President Ali Gleave of the Saskatchewan Farmers Union said Tuesday in an interview that the March 15 march was progressing well, with the Manitoba and Alberta unions, as well as the Alberta and Saskatchewan wheat pools, behind it. No definite date has been set, he said, "but beware the Ides of March." In the days of the Roman Empire, the Ides of March fell on the 15th day of that month.

"While our main purpose is to get consideration for the grain producers and to relax the farmer's purchasing power," Mr. Gleave said, "we are interested in establishment of an over-all agricultural policy to assure farmers a share of the national income and parity of income.

"Our purpose is not to embarrass the government but to inform the government, the press, and the public about the farmer's plight."

CANADA AND U.S. END TALKS IN GOOD HARMONY

Economic Problems Fully Discussed

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States have agreed to hold closer consultation on issues that could hurt each other's trade and at the same time called on Europe to speed up reduction of curbs against North American goods.

Eight high - ranking cabinet ministers and their deputies, completing two days of talks in an atmosphere described by a Canadian as of the "utmost harmony" announced Thursday:

1. Wheat exports of the two countries will be brought together every three months in attempts to resolve Canadian complaints that U.S. farm surplus wheat giveaways on Canada's commercial markets.

2. Further bilateral consultations will take place on oil. Finance Minister Fleming, who headed the talks, said that "only time will tell" whether this will lead to elimination of Canada's curbs against Canadian oil. There was also agreement that continued oil exploration and development are necessary "on defence grounds," Mr. Fleming said for Canada.

MAY LIFT ZINC CURBS

3. The U.S. expressed the hope that Canada will lift its restrictions on lead and zinc once some international agreement is reached covering trade in these suppliers and buyers. The curbs were imposed last September. A U.S. tariff board study now is under way.

4. Canada's position, probably Justice Minister Fulton and U.S. Attorney - General Rogers, will hold talks on U.S. prosecution of three big electronics companies whose subsidiaries operate in Canada. The U.S. said it has no intention of infringing on Canadian sovereignty.

5. Canada agreed to consult with the U.S. before it applied its

The elder Mrs. Duncan's lawyer asked that the trial be held separately from that of the other public opinion here is inflamed against her, that a change of venue is necessary. A technicality but the lawyer said he will resubmit it before trial.

The court set Mrs. Duncan's trial for Feb. 16 and appointed two psychiatrists to examine her.

Mrs. Duncan's co-defendants, Luis Jacinto and Augustine Saldonado, won a week's delay in entering their pleas.

The Duncan pleaded not guilty to four other counts growing out of fraudulent annuity procurement. The paper also added the plea of not guilty by reason of insanity.

WINDSOR (CP)—Police Chief Carl W. Farrow of Windsor stressed the need for more disciplinary action on the part of parents as he called attention to the problem of juvenile delinquency.

The report, presented to Windsor police commissioners, criticized those who held that the policeman should be a "guardian to wayward youth."

"The programming and supervising of wholesome youthful leisure-time activities are the group of theories of institutions—parents, teachers, clergymen and trained social workers," the chief said.

Snowstorms Ebb, Cold Wave Eases Over Most of Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winter relented slightly over most of Canada today and in five provinces the temperature broke out a vast network of roads barred for a snowmobile race and a two-foot avalanche on Argentia, Nfld.

The Toronto weather office reported at 1 a.m. EST that no snow of any consequence had occurred anywhere today. Temperatures were scheduled to rise a few degrees by noon as the cold broke records in scores of centres Monday night and early Tuesday.

The coldest spot in the country Monday night was Beaverlodge, Yukon Territory, which reported 60 below zero. The warmest was Vancouver—which lost out the previous night to, of all places, Cherry Lakeside—with a reading of 37 degrees.

The weather office said the "warmest it got all day yesterday at Mayo Landing was 65 below."

In southern Quebec, snowdrifts filled highways leading from Montreal to the New York State border, stranding 300 travellers at Napierville. Gale warnings were in effect along the 40-mile stretch where reported marooned in their vehicles plows worked overtime to the clock to open up the region.

Many of the travellers who sought shelter at Napierville, 25 miles south of Montreal, were Americans who became bogged down on the highway.

A United States Navy spokesman at Argentia, Nfld., said the snowfall reached 26.8 inches, but that the heaviest drifts were of Kilbride walked seven miles through deep drifts, then gave up. Two others pound, two others baby at the naval station hospital. Both are doing fine, he said.

It took a taxi three hours Monday to travel the 15 miles from Marystown to Burin with an allout effort by a heavy snow plow crews had encountered drifts 12 feet deep.

A rash of fires in the Maritimes caused an estimated $250,000 damage as the mercury took a nosedive Tuesday.

Fredericton was almost the only place where moderate weather wasn't expected today. The province's capital had no zero broke a record set in 1883. Elsewhere, it was the coldest spot in Ontario's coldest spot Tuesday night. The reading there of 35 below zero was recorded at 7 a.m. below at Kapuskasing.

Gimli, Man., had 15 below Tuesday night — 10 degrees warmer than the night before.

Welfare Officers Reviewing Status Of Foster Home

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says Ontario welfare department officials are reviewing the status of Mrs. Bertha Mom Whyte's foster home at Bowmanville.

The paper says the review follows disclosure that Mrs. Whyte placed a child entrusted to her care with an Englehart, Ont., family without first consulting into their background.

Welfare department officials have been concerned for some time with reports from government inspectors and welfare workers at the home that facilities inadequate, the paper says.

Meantime, Mom Whyte said in an interview in Toronto that she does not blame Mrs. Elgin Pate, Donald of Englehart for refusing to give up two-year-old Gary Straub to her mother. The mother, who originally left the child with Mrs. Whyte, has won unsuccessful attempt to get her from the Macdonalds last week.

ON WAY HOME

Mrs. Whyte was interviewed here on her way home from Delehart where she went in an unsuccessful attempt to have the child returned to her foster mother, Mrs. Whyte said: "I don't blame her. She's happy with Gary. Mrs. Straub should have her daughter when she hasn't been heard from since she left her with me at the age of one month. If Mrs. Straub really wants her back, she will have to do so through the courts."

LABOR MINISTER OFFERS SERVICES IN WAGE DISPUTE

Union and Hydro Prefer Lone Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro Employees' Union representatives will meet Thursday with management of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission in the face of an offer by Labor Minister Daley to intercede in their wage dispute.

Union President Keeley Cummings asked Mr. Daley Tuesday to stay on the sidelines after the conference had wired Mr. Cummings and C. B. C. Scott, assistant manager of personnel at Hydro, asking them to meet him at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Mr. Cummings said in his reply to Mr. Daley that union-and management had already arranged a meeting and urged reporters to avoid a third party taking part.

The labor minister said he has proposed the three-way meeting because it might avoid a further strike between union and management.

"They had so many meetings," he declared, "that it seemed to me that they would just be going through the motions."

WILL WAIT FOR ACTION

The labor minister said he is willing to await results of Thursday's meeting without interceding. "If they are happy to meet, let them negotiate and resolve their differences by themselves."

It is reported Tuesday that the Ontario cabinet will meet this week to discuss the situation in sitting of the legislature is dealt with the threatened strike. The House may be summoned by mid-January.

Premier Frost has declined to comment on the dispute.

Of 24 Hydro employees, 83.4 per cent voted to strike if necessary to back up demands for a 10-cent increase. The previously announced figure of 82.3 per cent was raised when ballots were recounted.

WOULDN'T CUT HOMES

The strike would cut off power to all Ontario hospitals and institutions.

The union has demanded a 3½ per-cent increase in each year of a two-year agreement, but the Hydro board offered a 1½-per-cent increase, in addition to the automatic annual living - allowance which became effective April 2.

Hydro's average wage is $2.16 a hour, but the union says this is not significant as it is in such groups as draftsmen, technicians and writers are included in the bargaining unit.

How to Get Home Chief Obstacle To Man Taking Trip Among Planets

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russians say the chief unsolved problem in sending men into outer space to the planets is how to bring them down again.

Soviet scientists expressed this view Tuesday as they reported cosmic rocket No. 3 is still speeding toward an orbit around the sun. One physicist, Prof. Vladimir Dobronravov, commented:

"A perfectly realistic foundation for the interplanetary travel already exists in the form of the cosmic rocket."

But the re-entry problem of getting man back through the atmosphere remains a big one, Vice-President Alexander Topchiev of the Soviet Academy of Sciences told the press conference.

No man has yet flown in a rocket, physicist Anatoly Blagonravov said. Now soon he does fly will depend on how soon we have assurances he will be able to land safely.

The two main problems of re-entry are passing once more from air friction which might burn it up like a meteor and braking the speed of the rocket simply smash into the earth.

But Soviet scientists told reporters that their 1½-ton cosmic rocket had successfully completed all its assigned tasks before its radio batteries failed and it passed out of optical range.

Mechta is expected to go into orbit around the sun today or Thursday, they said. Its course, however, there no longer is any way of tracking it.

'Make Me Offer' Seems Mikoyan's Berlin Position

Red Source Declares Compromise Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russian Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan took off for Cleveland today on a 13-day coast-to-coast U.S. tour.

Behind Mikoyan were two days of probing of the U.S. attitude toward the Berlin crisis. He will return to Washington Jan. 17 for talks with President Eisenhower.

At that time he is expected to press for some U.S. counter-proposal in Soviet demands that the allies clear out of West Berlin.

A Soviet source in Berlin said Tuesday night Mikoyan was prepared to lay a major new Berlin proposal before Eisenhower. The source gave no details.

In Cleveland Mikoyan will visit Canadian-born millionaire industrialist Cyrus Eaton.

In the meantime, State Secretary Dulles and other American officials collected for close scrutiny all the demands, promises, assurances and hints scattered in the Soviet Soliloquy.

It was their impression that Mikoyan was here to plug the theme he set forth.

It reported Tuesday that the Ontario cabinet will meet this week to discuss the situation in sitting of the legislature is dealt with the threatened strike. The House may be summoned by mid-January.

Premier Frost has declined to comment on the dispute.

Letter Stolen From Mail Says Professor

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prof. Harry C. Lowes of United College says a letter that led to his dismissal last fall was "stolen from the mail."

He said college Principal W. C. Lockhart was trying to create mischief by saying police were satisfied the letter had been lost by the addressee.

Prof. Crowe, dismissed last September and reinstated in December, was commenting on remarks made by Dr. Lockhart in Toronto Monday.

Dr. Lockhart, who resigned over the controversy that followed Prof. Crowe's dismissal, said in an interview in Winnipeg detectives who investigated the matter gave him the impression that they believed the letter reached its destination, Prof. W. A. Packer of United College.

Winnipeg Police Chief Robert Taft denied that anyone in authority in his department had ever said the letter was lost and that the police knew where Dr. Lockhart got the idea.

Prof. Crowe, in a 39-word statement, declared:

"Dr. Lockhart seems bent upon the deliberate creation of confusion. Dr. Lockhart knows very well the letter was stolen from the mail and that other letters were stolen, and he knows that no police officer ever suggested anything else."

300 Stranded, Many Families Are Marooned

MONTREAL (CP) — Garages, restaurants, hotels, and homes in Napierville, Que., were jammed today with travellers stranded by snowdrifts on the road between Montreal and the United States.

Snow piled as high as 20 feet clogged highway leading to the New York state border, 40 miles south of Montreal.

It was estimated that some 300 travellers, mostly U.S. citizens, were stranded. Some families were marooned in their homes elsewhere in the district.

Crews were working furiously to clear the roads.

Snowdrifts, mountains and trucks foundered in the wind - driven snow along highways 9 and 9A, between the Canadian centres of Montreal, seemed to be the spot where the stranded motorists converged on after abandoning their vehicles in the snow.

They appeared to be in no immediate danger of freezing or starving. The weather, however, may be running short of food and fuel and may have to resort to snow for water.

FOUR BAD MILES

Most of them live on a four-mile stretch of road between Pireville and Broesaux Station, Que., where Provincial Army have been dependent for their water on tank trucks from Montreal since St. Lawrence Seaway operations lowered the water levels and dried up their wells.

They have been without deliveries of food and fuel since Saturday.

About 130 men, women and children were huddled in a garage-restaurant at a crossroads, near Napierville sleeping on the floors, benches and bar counters.

Fidel Castro's Son, 9, Has Been Living in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—The nine-year-old son of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has been living quietly in New York City, it was learned Tuesday night.

The boy, identified as Fidel Castro, Jr., has been enrolled in a private school.

Castro's average wage is $2.16 a hour, but the union says this is not significant as it is in such groups as draftsmen, technicians and writers are included in the bargaining unit.

Glennon said the former Mrs. Castro sent young Fidel to New York six weeks ago because she was afraid that followers of Fulgencio Batista, deposed Cuban dictator, might take reprisal action against the boy.

Glennon told reporters his wife was a sister-in-law of the boy's mother, Mrs. Mirla Diaz de Nunez, who is divorced from Castro.

In Chilliecothe, Ohio, Robert Murphy is through with flying, mostly because he no longer has an airplane. While he was propping the craft with wheel chocks, it took off by itself and for two hours flew crazily over the landscape, frightening Murphy and dozens of others who thought it would crash into houses or barns. Finally two jets from a nearby air base closed in on it and sheared off its wings, bringing it down on a highway.

Mary Astor Says Diary Changed Into Monster

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I kept a diary because my mother had kept one, . . . I wanted the assurance of individuality and reality and substance that the diary gave me."

Thus Mary Astor explains why she kept a daily record in her heyday as a Hollywood star. In 1936 the diary — with additions Miss Astor says were forged — produced one of filmdom's most blasting scandals. And now it has helped bring forth a frank autobiography, My Story. The actress writes in her new book:

"The diary was my consolation and a reassurance. But when it was finished, it was possessed. It was suddenly transformed into a monster that threatened to destroy me and my friends, and worst of all, Marilyn."

Marilyn was the four-year-old daughter by Dr. Franklyn Thorne. He had won legal custody of the child in a divorce. Miss Astor sued for custody and a court battle ensued. Dr. Thorne was armed with his ex-wife's diary.

FALSE DIARY APPEARED

The diary was locked up by the court, but a purported version was leaked to the press. It featured a host of well-known Hollywood's famous males with purple comments.

Miss Astor claims the book-legged diary was a forgery. It was the work, she believes, of one who appeared in the real diary "and fearing the consequences, sold it by phone one to Hollywood bosses, hoping for a chance for to drop the suit. She refused.

Miss Astor's book sets a high in confessionals by show business personalities. She tells all, from her romance with John Barrymore ("he gave me love, affection, humor and, above all, laughter") to her struggle with alcoholism.

She also tells of finding herself through her conversion to the Roman Catholic Church.

Tour Itinerary Of Royal Couple To Be Given Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — The official itinerary for the Canadian tour of the Queen and Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip is expected to be announced in a week to 10 days, officials of the special government committee organizing the visit said Tuesday.

The royal couple, not accompanied by their children, are to travel from coast to coast between mid-June and the end of July. Highlight of the visit will be the Queen's participation in ceremonies marking the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Until the itinerary is issued, the only events known for sure are Queen and the Canadian government-owned yacht about prince Philip, the royal couple will visit are being described by officials as purely speculative.

Such a report cropped up this week from Chicago, where Richard Revnes, managing director of Chicago's 1959 international fair and exposition, was quoted as saying the city is definitely on the Queen's itinerary. Sydney Smith, director Buckingham Palace would comment on the report other than to point out that the official itinerary has not yet been made public.

Vertical Integration May Drop Farmer to Wage Earner

REGINA (CP) — Vertical integration is presently busy ways of producing some farm commodities, is going to change the farm leaders in Saskatchewan.

A. P. Gleave, president of the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union, says this movement could mean that individuals could control production and processing of some farm commodities, partly dropping the free market, and turning the farmer into a wage earner.

But a packing house official, who says his company has done more than any other to develop vertical integration, says it has not yet reached its limits.

"I'd like to see it expand," said Fred G. Mitchell, producer manager of Canada Packers here.

MAINLY IN POULTRY

Vertical integration, just beginning to spread here from the U.S., and Ontario, is confined mainly to poultry production on the prairie. Under the system a farmer contracts to raise birds —broiler chickens are the main item—for a packing house. The packer supplies the young birds, the feed, and the supervision, buying the farmer a set fee for each bird and perhaps a bonus for good growth. The packer then kills the birds, processes them, and markets them.

The farmer joins the system, says Mr. Gleave, because he often can't obtain capital to build a large flock of his own. Also, under integration, he takes no risk on price and market.

From the packer's viewpoint, the system gives him of the number of birds he needs, and a uniform quality.

SMALL MAN OUT

But there is little room left for the small operator.

"The small specialist is a thing of the past," says Mr. Mitchell. "He can't afford to build a flock of 20,000 to 40,000 birds. The department of agriculture has been saying for years that a flock under 300 isn't worth keeping."

In the U.S., said Mr. Gleave, farmers have formed huge cooperatives to keep their bargaining power from being undermined. If vertical integration increases, and a farmer could be just a wage earner, working eight hours a day under contract.

If integration is to come; the FU would like to see co-operatives, rather than private companies, doing integrating. Farmers could form a co-operative packing house and eventually sell their products through their own co-operative stores.

Belleville Minor Federation Approved by Sports Officials

Groundwork for the merging of all minor sports in the city under one head was laid at a meeting held here last night.

Representatives of hockey, softball, baseball and soccer were present and unanimously endorsed the formation of a Belleville Minor Sports Federation.

Present were William Hurst, hockey, Fire Chief Gerald Vance, softball, Bill Brennan and Russ Soules, baseball and Les Digby soccer, Recreation director Lloyd "Red" Doran chaired the meeting.

The next meeting was called for February 6 when the executive members of the four sports categories, and any others will be in attendance.

In the interim a constitution will be drawn up for presentation to the meeting. It will provide for permanent officers of the new federation will be appointed at this time.

One of the main reasons for the proposed amalgamation was finances. It was stated that there are at a low ebb in practically all phases of sport.

It was stated that the merging of the major sports would result in the elimination of private sponsors. These, with those who can afford a donation but not assessed sponsorship, would be asked to contribute to the federation fund which will finance all sports under its aegis.

Each phase of sport would be operated by its own executive but this in turn would be responsible to the parent federation.

Much consideration will be given to the matter between now and the next meeting. Minor sports federations in other Ontario centres will be contacted with regard to their method of operation.

Kiwanis Officers, Directors Installed by Lieut.-Governor

Officers and directors of the Belleville Kiwanis Club for 1959 were installed Tuesday during the dinner meeting of the club in the Kiwanis Centre. The formal installation ceremony was carried out by Lieut.-Governor for Division 6A Ralph Bell of Lindsay.

During the official ceremony several reins of office were turned over to new Kiwanis "cenials" Gerry Wishart, who will be leading the club's activities in promoting fellowship and community service during the next 12 months. Mr. Wishart succeds past president Charles Lusk who has ably commanded by Lieut. - Gov. Bell for the excellent job he has done during the year.

Other officers installed in office were: vice - president, George Tripp; secretary, Bob Stills and treasurer, Hal Floyd, the latter two for a second term.

Directors for 1959 are Bob Brain, Hal Floyd, Les Fenard, Ralph Graham, Earle Gow, Merle Hill, Wm. Don Rose and Don Templeman.

Prior to installing this year's slate, the Lieut-Governor paid tribute to, and expressed appreciation on behalf of Ontario-Quebec - Maritime district and Kiwanis International to the 1958 officers, directors and committee chairmen. In his remarks he urged last year's committee chairmen to pass on their experience to the next committee chairmen and thus "build a bridge for the men behind them."

A past president's pin was presented to outgoing Kiwanian by the Lieut. - Governor, who emphasized the duties of that office.

The directors, and finally the officers for the coming year, took the front of the hall, charged with their duties and responsibilities, and presented with Kiwanis pins.

In his remarks to president Gerry Wishart, the Lieut.-Governor reminded him to use the mail service in all club's undertakings.

"Remember you are president of a democratic organization, and your one goal is to make it one that is good better, and of more value to your fellow citizens," he said.

STRESSES CO-OPERATION

Speaking to the officers and directors following the installation Governor offered his congratulations and again stressed co-operation.

"Success depends on . . . all of you collectively," he stated.

President Wishart then thanked Lieut.-Gov. Smith and stated that he is 100 per cent behind him.

In a brief address the Lieut.-Governor emphasized the main objective of Kiwanis International and Division 6A for 1959, an increase in membership.

"We are striving for a maximum egresse of one new member per club. This would give us a total of 4,500 new members at the end of the year."

He said at the DQM convention held last fall an increase of one new member per 25-club member was decided on for clubs in the OQM district. A goal of three new members has been set for the Belleville club.

President Wishart noted that the club is shooting for five new members this year."

He also paid tribute to past president Charles Lusk and presented him with a gift on behalf of the club.

MADE HONORARY MEMBER

Prior to the installation of officers, an announcement was made that the directors had proposed Eric Cooper as honorary member of the club in recognition of his successful efforts in organizing and conducting the annual Christmas Toy Project.

Papers Forced To Hike Prices

NEW YORK (CP) — A considerable number of daily newspapers in the United States increased circulation prices in 1958, a survey by the American Newspaper Publishers Association shows.

Some of the details are given by general manager Cranston Williams, who said in effect the survey, not yet completed, shows that up to now 312 daily newspapers in 45 states and the District of Columbia increased circulation prices in 1958. The various increases covered single copy prices, home deliveries, mail subscriptions and combination rates.

Of the 1,743 U.S. daily newspapers, 220 in April 1955 were selling for more than five cents a copy and the number had increased to 509 by Feb. 14, 1958, the date of the last ANPA survey.

Williams said daily newspapers had been forced to increase circulation prices to get additional revenue to meet steadily increasing wages and cost of materials.

Despite the narrowing margins between income and outgo, Williams said many newspapers are improving their news coverage and providing more features.

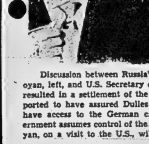
85 Unsolved Murders Since 1935 - - Roberts

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has had 85 unsolved murders since 1935, Attorney General Roberts disclosed today.

A survey by the provincial police showed 17 of the unsolved slayings were in the Metropolitan Toronto area, seven in Hamilton, three in Windsor and two each in London, St. Catharines, Oshawa, Guelph and Port Arthur.

"Interestingly enough there do not appear to be any unsolved murders in Ottawa, the capital of the nation," Mr. Roberts said at opening of the 1959 sittings of the Ontario Supreme Court.



Nor were there any in two of the 18 provincial police districts.

District 9 with headquarters at Belleville and District 10 with headquarters at Perth.

Mr. Roberts said 23 of the unsolved murders involved females but only two involved rape or molestation. One slaying of a provincial policeman remained unsolved, that of a constable at Morrisburg 18 months ago.

Auto Transport Burns But Five Cars Saved

Four members of the Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville turned fire fighters shortly before noon today as they shovelled snow onto a blazing auto transport near Marysville and succeeded in saving five new cars.

Engine and tractor of the Broadway Transport were badly damaged by the flames, but the fire was extinguished before it could spread to the trailer and its load of new autos.

Police said the auto transport, driven by Clifford Bishop of Toronto, was eastbound on No. 2 Highway when about half a mile west of Marysville the engine in some manner caught fire.

Smoke rolling from beneath the engine hood attracted the driver's attention and he stopped his vehicle and jumped clear. Highway patrol officers following directly behind assisted the transport driver to fight the fire with extinguishers and with snow shovelled from the side of the road.

"Snow is one of the best things to fight fire," said OPP Cp. Harry Barker. "It seems to smother the flames and quench as it melts it puts the fire down."

The burned out tractor was hauled to a closeby service station, while the transport was owned by the same company passing in the opposite direction, was re-routed to the scene to pick up five cars to its destination.

Krupp Emerges As W. Germany's Leading Steelman

BONN, Germany (AP)—Alfried Krupp, the German munitions king of the Second World War, has emerged as a rival concern and emerged as West Germany's leading steelmaker.

Krupp has combined the Rheinhausen steel plant capitalized at $27,500,000.

With the Rheinhausen mill going full blast, Krupp interests now will turn out 4,000,000 tons of steel a year.

A FURTHER STEP

The move was a further step in the growing concentration of industrial might in this country which was largely ground into rubble by the victorious allied powers to break up German cartels after the war.

Krupp actually is under orders to sell his coal and steel empire. The Allies signed a treaty with West Germany under which this divestment was to have been accomplished by the end of 1958.

The industrialist has disposed of a large number of his holdings but has yet to fulfill the treaty obligations. The West German government has joined him in complaining that the order is unreasonable. They contend that no German has the money to buy up the Krupp interests, and the government doesn't want them to fall into foreign hands.

NATO PRESSURE

Allied interest these days in German rearmament for the North Atlantic alliance has acted against pressures for further fragmentation of the Krupp empire.

The European coal and steel community has given its approval to Krupp's purchase of Bochumer Verein.

Joseph W. Martin Tossed Out of House Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans in the House of Representatives tossed the veteran Joseph W. Martin out of his House leadership post Tuesday and Martin planned part of the responsibility on aides of President Eisenhower and Vice-President Nixon.

A vote of 74 to 70 in a secret Republican caucus overthrew the Massachusetts congressman who has been the House Republican leader for 20 years and replaced him with Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Martin said he thought some White House aides "thought I was a little more independent than I should be — of them."

"If don't think the president did anything against me," he added.

Martin, when asked whether Vice-President Nixon had a hand in engineering his overthrow, said: "All I know is that all his people were against me — actively against me."

Martin's age, 74, was against him. Halleck is 59 and a sharpto guard Italian ballet.

Oppose Change In Formula for Milk Payments

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League voted down a resolution Tuesday that would have requested a change in the formula for the differential paid on milk with more than a base butter-fat content of 3.4 per cent.

The resolution by Brantford producers proposed that the differential be figured on butter prices. At present, farmers get a basic $4.91 a hundredweight for milk that tests 3.4 per cent butter fat.

They get an additional 32 cents for each one-tenth of one per cent increase in the butter-fat content. The resolution suggested that each five-cent increase in butter prices bring an increase of five cents per hundredweight for milk.

Chief opposition to the measure came from producers of milk with high butterfat content — the Jersey and Guernsey breeders. They felt the higher differential might price them out of the market.

Pheasants Beware!

A fox hunt was organized after fox tracks were seen in the snow.

Melt Ice With Air

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Compressed air is being pumped into shipping berths on the Kaministiquia River here, melting ice and allowing two lake freighters to unload cargoes of cement.

Officials of the St. Lawrence Cement Company said the compressed air churns the water up from the river bottom, melting the ice.

LINDSAY (CP) — Lindsay town council instructed industrial committee chairman Mel De Groat Tuesday night to begin negotiations with the Ontario Institutions Minister Wardrope to have a reform school for girls located here.

Premier Frost told council's inaugural meeting Monday that the provincial government is interested in locating a girl's reform school in Lindsay if town authorities approve.

Councillor Gordon Pepper said he believes the need for the new school was created by overcrowding in a similar institution in Galt.

HOW ABOUT SOME FILM "CLASSICS?"

Most arts have their classics, or masterpieces. Is this true of motion pictures? Some would answer in the negative. We are not so sure they would be correct. The other day an advertisement by a local theatre described its current attraction as the best of its kind since "The Wizard of Oz." It is a long, long time since we saw Judy Garland or Ray Bolger in that film, but our memory of it suggests that it has just as much right to be considered a classic, in its field, as has "Alice in Wonderland" in the field of literature.

The difficulty is that we can walk into any library in the land, in even the smallest of villages, and pick up a copy of Lewis Carroll's incomparable story. We don't know whether even the most exhaustive search would reveal a theatre which is still showing "The Wizard of Oz."

There are other pictures which come to mind. There was Leslie Howard's "Petrified Forest," Greta Garbo's "Anna Christie," more recently such shows as "The Best Years of Our Lives," "Bear Window," "All About Eve" and "The Bridge Over the River Kwai."

Some of the fine films of past years can still be seen on TV, but nobody in his right mind will suggest that the small-sized living room screen can hope to create that illusion of reality which is achieved in the motion picture theatre.

Besides all the great films which have been made, there are all the great films which could be made, faithful pictorial records of the events long familiar to readers in the world's great books. As first-run pictures, these might not pay. But why could not they be kept in constant circulation? Surely every two years would not be too often to expect large audiences to attend a return showing of "The Wizard of Oz." Sir Laurence Olivier's "Richard the Third" should be able to do good business for decades; so, too, with "War and Peace." To these could be added "Almayer's Folly," "The Growth of the Soil," "Babbitt," "An American Tragedy," - - the list is endless. We might even add "Frankenstein," - but not "I Was a Teenage Werewolf."

IMMIGRATION AND INVESTMENT

Few will quarrel with the claim that investment plays a dominant role in the growth and expansion of Canada's economy. Investment provides for the creation of new industry. New industries in turn mean more jobs. And more jobs mean greater demand for goods and services and less unemployment.

Immigration plays an important part in stimulating job-generating new investment. This is clear from an article in the November issue of Foreign Trade, official publication of the Department of Trade & Commerce at Ottawa. According to Foreign Trade, the steady flow of Dutch settlers to Canada in recent years has been followed by a substantial increase in the amount of Netherlands capital being invested in this country.

Some of the new investment from The Netherlands has gone into branch plant establishments. Some forty Dutch firms today have set up branches or subsidiaries in Canada, fifteen are in the importing and distributing field, four in banking and investment, three in insurance, two in general trade, and one handles plants and shrubs. Seven others manufacture beverages, metal goods, clothing, gelatine products, pharmaceuticals, radio and electronic equipment, essences and pipes.

So keen is Dutch interest in investment in Canada that the Amsterdam stock exchange lists a score of well-known Canadian stocks in which trading is active.

"A major reason for the increased investment interest," says Foreign Trade, "is the large number of Netherlands citizens who have immigrated to Canada since the war, over 130,000. Many have purchased farms in all parts of Canada and some have formed such prosperous communities as the Holland Marsh market-gardening area near Toronto. Others have gone into businesses requiring varying amounts of capital, part of which has been supplied from Holland. It is difficult even to guess at the total of such investments but it must be substantial."

Few people stop to consider the stimulating effect of immigration on new investment. Yet it is very important and denies the views of those who feel that immigration jeopardizes employment opportunities for Canadians. The truth is, as Foreign Trade makes clear, that immigration does just the opposite, and creates thousands of new jobs for Canadians as well as for the settlers themselves.

HE'S MARRIED NOW

By EDGAR A. GUEST

She looked at me and sweetly smiled:
No fairer face I'd ever seen.
As winsome as a little child;
I'll bet she wasn't past eighteen.

Her hair was golden like the sun,
Her eyes were orbs of wondrous blue.
She looked at me and smiled as one
That I might well have spoken to.

She sat alone and so did I,
This damsel with the form divine.
Her cheeks were red as cherry pie,
But only once her eyes met mine.

Oh, there was glory in her face,
Her cheeks were pink as any rose;
Her every move was one of grace;
And Grecian was, I think, her nose.

I do not know the maiden's name,
Nor where she got upon the bus.
To tell the truth is now my aim;
I give the facts, it happened thus!

I only know she smiled at me,
And that she smiled at me is vain.
I'm married, - - and though fair was she,
I never looked her way again.

Gas Firm Loses Customer

New York Times

Through the mail the other day the head of the house received an interesting gadget. Square in shape and of a size suitable for the pocket, it contained a legend of foodstuffs as well as a legend. Pull it up above the name of Colonic Content. By turning a small wheel with a thumb, at the same time peering into a sort of window, the reader can add the calories in any given meal. For example, one serving with onion soup (120), continuing with hamburger steak (190) and fried potatoes (140), and ending with apple pie (290), shows a window total of 740 calories. This, of course, is 10 calories less than the 740 arrived at by the head of the house, counting on his fingers. No matter, he often is wrong, and never has done well with gadgets. To add the difference of ten calories in a meal, while beautifully free of vegetables, the gadget is most diverting and he much enjoys spinning the wheels. It is the same thing alone which still puzzles the Dagwoods. Never was a gift sent out by the Gulf Oil Company, acting through the filling station at the corner, which was not accepted by the household trades.

It is perfectly possible to recognize the benign motive which prompts Colonic Content. Many calories really in too much weight - - as all medical authorities assert. Too much weight may result in a shortened life - - or an ill-shaped one, at that, after making due allowance for exceptions. Gulf Oil Company, by the human race to extend as far into tomorrow as it has been into today. Tomorrow the human race must watch such things as peanut butter sandwiches (320), ice cream sundaes (350), cherry pie (340) and toast beef sandwiches with gravy (310). No doubt Gulf Oil was inspired to send out its calorie counter by considerations not thinking that leaner life would mean more sales of gasoline. Business has no crass motives - and besides, such motives in the present case are obviously can become a boomerang. Which sets up another thought, a faster, a car carrying a thin, lightweight man, or one carrying its weight in heavyweight fat.

There is another point, too, which Gulf Oil may not have considered when it sold itself on the idea of distributing calorie Counter. By and large, fatish people are more pleasant to live with than thin. It may be only a personal opinion, but the thin are often thin because they think of this as he munches a midnight snack of cheese sandwiches (300 cal.) and literature, you will find Falstaff a far better pondering companion than Uriah Heep. Particularly brusque is the potentially irgish person who tries to reduce himself to the irreducible minimum through calorie counting. He is always hungry, or thinks he is, which is the same thing. He takes uncommon joy when he wants cocoa (240).

Now consider for the moment the effect on the family of the automobile driver on them were counting calories, trying to do what the good Gulf suggests. On any pleasant week-end afternoon the driver of the coupe is good enough without - - reclining figure. He likes cinnamon buns and cabbage, drivers would light and claw their way along. Hunger makes for better appetites. No right of way would be denied without a settled battle, and courteousness. Would depart from the unchanged.

Imagine if you will, two drivers pulling up at the same gasoline station's pump, meaning to exchange courtesies after clear and fresh plums, they might not put on so spectacular a fist fight as the one presently ally at the Garden, but they would be in there doing their best. They would not be joined in the by the head, of the house, however. He would be home, intends to consider his Calorie Counter as a diverting gadget for those times when he eats cheesecake and other rounded out things from the top of the list, he plans tomorrow to change filling stations. At the sign of the Gulf Oil Co. he will turn down the block, they may be driving away in commuters. Less potential to disaster.

Cannot Lose New Golf Ball

Niagara Falls Review

One of the most fascinating occupations in the game of golf is the search, if a man can find him Ohio is to have his way. The nerve of Franklin Veatch may finally be the history of golf as the inventor of a golf ball that cannot be lost. The man's invention proves its claim, golf may become as mechanical as the game of bowling where all the coach calls every play from Sinnoli will bounce.

There are golfers who will be happy with the unlosable golf ball. They will prefer the man who thought of coating the dimples on the ball with a thin reflective film, which will act like a mirror when the ball soars through the air so as to be seen by the grand. The reflective possibility of this coating will be dulled by repeated drives, the inventor claims, making the ball easier to find as it flies.

We shudder at what this invention may do to the great game of golf, and the business attendant to it. The ancient and honorable game of caddies may be out of existence. Their ranks are being depleted already with the advent of golf carts which carrying clubs of tired golfers. With the unlosable golf ball there will be little use or keen-eyed youngsters to spot the lie of a ball after it has rough, or a wind-blown drive into the bush. There also of what may happen to the manufacturing of golf balls. Here is a thriving business working on a full schedule to supply the demand for replacement of lost balls. Will this become the tension-erasing occupation of thousands of men and women who do not mind what it costs them in the war against par.

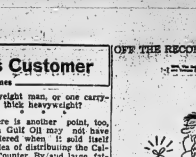
Now Jackass Bosses Range

Victoria Times

According to the story of the camel and the tent the camel sought, first, admission to it, but his head within the shelter. Finally he was permitted to put his head within the shelter. Then his neck and shoulders, and so on and those previously there were pushed out.

Reports from California indicate a similar if unconscious procedure is being followed in the small descendant of the Sinnoli will bounce. Jackass as a beast of burden and since already has been established in much of Washington and Montana and a number of other states, a number of native inhabitants out of leisure and home.

The jackass' natural instinct has an insatiable and completely nonselective appetite for vegetation, browses the native and domesticated stock, takes over the watering holes and is dominant in barn sheep and others away.



The burro, it seems is the man who came to the desert, stayed and stayed and stayed and dined and wined and dined. Birds rank as a problem in wildlife management in the western states and even Dr. Tom Kerr, Ontario who calls himself probably the biggest jackass supervisor in the region can find no solution.

Compared to this former dismal immigrant the burro was a piker. He only took over the whole tent.

Blank Pages Dismayed Him

The Printed Word

Being too lowly a politician to rate a speech out of the party speech mill, a young fellow recently went to a public debate by a large banquet. Not having much time, he wrote a very short speech and did not expect that he would to think of something to say to fill in the beginning. The typist thoughtfully inserted four blank sheets of paper. Then he left. He could make jottings during the meal or while others were speaking. She got a free ticket to the banquet and hopefully awaited her host's turn to speak.

Looking at the typed speech for the first time during the meal to speak, her host examined the first page and then the second and then the third — all blank.

With a terror known to all speakers he looked at an audience he stared around the room blankly. Cicero used to say this, but the young fellow looked down and turned another page — blank.

In a faltering voice he said, "Mr. Chairman and gentlemen."

As he started to sink back in to his chair, he observed that the typed speech started one page five, so he polished himself up and went on to say that he had been betrayed into accepting the invitation to speak without foreseeing the rare, critical quality of the audience, and so on. It was quite a good speech, according to the typist, who had started to sneak out of the hall, but stayed on and still has her job, having promised to be less investive in future.

Dregs to the Blood, and

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

PHLEBITIS IS AN INFLAMMATION OF A VEIN

"Dear Dr. Molner: I would like to know something about phlebitis. I have never seen an article on it. What is the cause? The symptoms? The treatment? - Mrs. L. M."

Often I have a guilty feeling that we forget to keep people informed on the "common" ailments, and I am afraid I must take to heart your comment that you have never seen an article on phlebitis.

We take it for granted that everybody knows about phlebitis. We shouldn't. Sometimes we get so wrapped up with the "glamorous" diseases, if that's the word for them, that we forget about the others — like phlebitis.

Essentially, it is an inflammation of a vein. There may or may not be a complete shutting off of the flow of blood through the vein.

"Thrombo-phlebitis" is a term indicating that a thrombus (a clot, air bubbles, or other form of clogging) has plugged the vein. In other cases, the inflammation may be present in the tissues without entirely shutting off the flow of blood.

The cause? There is no single cause. There are many. A clot or part of a thrombus may get loose at some point. A physical blow or other injury may be responsible. Sometimes this condition follows an operation, and it may also follow childbirth. It occurs when varicose veins have led to poor circulation.

The veins involved become reddened and painful. Ordinarily phlebitis will occur in the legs since it is there in the lower part of the body) that the circulation is most sluggish. After all, the blood is forced back to the heart, must be forced upward through those long veins. That is the reason why the legs most often are affected.

EARLY AMBULATION HELPS

The relative stagnation of the blood in certain cases contributes to starting the trouble. You might keep in mind that "early ambulation" (the process of getting you on your feet as quickly as possible — has reduced greatly reduced phlebitis. Also remember that obese folk suffer more often than those whose weight is held down to normal.

Signs of phlebitis are redness of the affected vein. The area is hot, and painful to the touch, and frequently quite tender. Sometimes there is fever. Swelling often appears beyond the affected area — not all cases of phlebitis in the leg, the foot may swell.

Rest, and heat on the affected area, are basic in treatment, and sometimes the leg is kept raised. After a short period of complete rest, patients usually are encouraged to start moving the leg and foot.

Drugs in the blood, and keep a clot from growing worse, are used quite often. Heparin and dicumaro' are such drugs. However, they require skilled supervision, so this treatment is given only in a hospital.

Ordinarily a case will pass the worst stages after three or four weeks, after which improvement is gradual. It takes time, and it take care, and you become impatient, but be cautious. The inflammation sometimes results in causing abscess elsewhere. And, of course, if a clot is present it from setting pieces free in the bloodstream and porsibly lodge elsewhere, with renewed trouble.

Generosity Is Rewarded

A Springhill girl always wanted a bicycle, but when she got one recently she gave it away.

Elizabeth Calder, 13-years-old, got the bicycle by entering a letter-writing contest sponsored by a candy company. Instead of keeping the prize she gave it to Cherry Allen, also 13.

Cherry's father was one of the miners killed in the mine disaster on October 23. Ali's well that ends beautifully. The sponsoring company, learning of Elizabeth's generosity, sent her another bicycle for herself.

Worth the Risk

Sault Daily Star

In spite of anything anyone says about Russia today and the progress made by the Communist countries, there must be something pretty terrible to make people risk their lives and freedom in an effort to escape.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THREE GREAT PROBLEMS

The Russian people should have their attention called to the fact that capitalism has posed three very serious problems for the people of the North American continent.

The first problem is the parking problem. Capitalism has made us so rich that there are as many automobiles in the United States today as there are families — roughly fifty million families and fifty million automobiles. One need only drive into the centre of the city, or town, on Saturday afternoon to have all certain times of the day to realize how serious the parking problem has become.

The second problem in which capitalism has involved us is the food problem. Thousands of people die every year in the United States and Canada from eating too much good food. Capitalism has produced such plentiful and cheap that almost everybody in the country overeats in terms of thousands as a result, die of heart attacks.

The third great problem in which capitalism has involved us is the problem of people in the world hungry. Communism is the biggest force ever faced as a people. If we could drop ten thousand supermarkets into Russia, communism would be washed up over night.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the past few days there have been no fewer than three TV news shots showing three different high officials reviewing troops on ceremonial occasions. And on each occasion, the notable gentleman doing the so-called reviewing walked briskly along the ranks of soldiers standing at rigid attention without as much as casting a glance at any one of them, or at them as a unit.

Briskly accompanied by the commander of the guard of honor, the distinguished citizen appeared to be reviewing the movie camera. At least that was the only thing he did seem to be looking at.

Times have changed. I don't recall George V doing that. He was the one with the beard. When he reviewed a guard of honor, he did them the honor of looking at them. He walked proudly but respectfully before the guard, his eyes left. He looked into their faces, he looked at their rifles, (and paused) he glanced up at their bayonets, he glanced down at boots. As he marched along the rear rank, he would then turn to take a look at the belts, the buttons and the caps of the men he had seen from behind. He was not a soldier. He was a sailor. And he knew that one way of recognizing within touching distance of him were going to tell their grandchildren about it. forty years later, when his grandchildren would be saying at the one of whom allegiance is sworn.

Maybe our present-day reviewers of guards of honor do not expect to be much remembered.

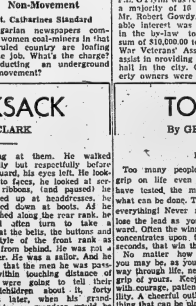
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DON'T LOSE THAT GRIP

Too many people lose their grip on life even before they have tested the means to see what can be done. The starts are enthusiastic. But they lose the lead as you press forward. Often the winner of a race is sometimes the last few seconds, that win the prize.

No matter how discouraged you may be, as you wend your way through life, never lose that grip of yours. Keep feeding it with courage, patience, and humility. A cheerful outlook is something that can be planned. We all need it. We must take a firm grip on it. It is so much needed in this world of fears, loss of faith and a spiritual east of mind. How many times most of us have lost our desire to perform, and our determination to keep right on going an extra cheer in those days when we needed encouragement.



Don't lose that grip on the interests most enriching to you. Believe. Look to God. Do your best to keep a grip on life, and its interests, Walk right past failure. Do not return to take a new start. Associate with those who inspire you, and who keep themselves on a high plane. Relax. Follow out a plan of life that will keep influencing others.

As we enter this New Year; do not blame anyone for anything in the past.

Live out Today, and all the tomorrows will take care of themselves!

CANADA AND U.S.

tough new anti - dumping laws which the American claim violate Canada's international trade obligations. Canada gave assurances it does not intend to use the legislation in "either a discriminatory or an arbitrary manner."

6. Canada also would consult on the impact of recent Canadian food import curbs, particularly turkeys and frozen peas. Most of the curbs are linked with federal price support programs. Both sides agreed that incentives which increase surpluses should be avoided.

7. Canadian study would be given to an American proposal to set up an international development association affiliated with the World Bank. Purpose of this association would be to provide underdeveloped countries with long-term loans on more generous terms than available through the world bank.

EYES ON EUROPE

The two countries also kept an eye on European developments, concluding that recent European currency convertibility moves should make things a little better for North American exporters.

In a 1,500-word communique that took about three hours to prepare, the ministers said:

"Convertibility has removed the financial justification for discriminating against dollar suppliers and should be followed by further moves by the countries concerned to provide non-discriminatory access to their markets for goods from the U.S., Canada and other countries."

At a press conference after Mr. Fleming said goodbye to U.S. Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson and his American group, the Canadian minister was asked whether he suggested the U.S. pay closer attention to European economic developments, particularly the trade clash between France and Britain.

Mr. Fleming said there was "nothing specific" on that point, though it was recognized that both countries had a common interest in Europe's moves towards integration.

UP IN AIR ON REDS

While it seemed Canada and the U.S. had a fairly close view on the European situation, there seemed to be rather nebulous views on the Communist trade front.

The communique suggested the Communist step - up in world trade made it the more necessary to stimulate trade in the free world. There was no suggestion of East and West getting together.

The final session of the two-day talks was prolonged three hours beyond the scheduled deadline, ending at 7:25 p.m. EST. Canadian sources said the Americans took issue with the draft communique, demanding many changes.

Mr. Fleming emphasized that while there were a lot of problems between the two countries, there was no bickering. The talks were conducted in an atmosphere of "utmost harmony."

was reported revolutionary courts will be set up to try Batista, now an exile in the Dominican Republic, and other officials of his regime who may be charged.

SEEK EXTRADITION

Urrutia has said he will demand Batista's extradition from the Dominican Republic. The demand presumably will be rejected by the Dominican dictator, Generalissimo Rafael Trujillo.

Several hundred Batista supporters have taken refuge in various foreign embassies in Havana, but the new regime has not indicated whether it would observe the Latin American tradition of safe conduct out of the country for political opponents.

Castro supporters in Havana impatiently awaited the arrival of their bearded chieftain, who continued his slow triumphal march from the eastern end of the island, stopping at every town and hamlet to address cheering throngs.

Castro had been expected in the capital this afternoon, but it appeared now he might not arrive until Thursday.

Columnist Tries Hand at Cleaning Up Her Cell

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Imprisoned television columnist Marie Torre took a busman's holiday Tuesday. She did some housework and watched television.

When the 34-car-old columnist for the New York Herald Tribune spotted other prisoners scrubbing the floors of their cells, she asked for a mop to clean hers, too.

"No one requested her to do it," said Warden Henry H. McFarland of the Hudson county jail.

She is the sole occupant of the three - bed chamber which is equipped with a stall shower and all facilities.

She was ordered to jail for contempt of court for not revealing a news source in an article about singer Judy Garland.

with Dulles, Nixon, congressional leaders, industrialists, union officials and others. Those were:

1. That Russia might favor formal guarantees of Allied access to Berlin, 110 miles inside East Germany. It was not clear whether this depended upon acceptance of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's seeming ultimatum that West Berlin become a "free city" without Western troops by next May. If that were a condition, any access guarantee would have little meaning since there would be no Allied troops in West Berlin to have access to.

2. That Khrushchev's Berlin demands were merely to break the ice so that new East-West talks, possibly only between Eisenhower and Khrushchev, could grapple with the whole German question.

provides that the board review the case of every prisoner serving two years or more, whether or not a review is applied for by the prisoner.

A major decision facing the board will be how best to provide supervision for parolees. Until now, the remission service has depended on arrangements with provincial probation officers or voluntary social agencies such as the John Howard Society.

THOROLD NATIVE

A native of Thorold, Chairman Street has been magistrate in Welland since 1948 and a deputy judge of the juvenile family court since 1956.

He has made frequent visits to prisons of various kinds, something penal officials say judges and magistrates seldom do.

He won public notice a few years ago for sentencing two youths on breaking and entry charges to six months of conditional freedom instead of to a jail term.

His conditions included their going to work and that they bank half their earnings, keep out of restaurants and theatres and stay home after 7 o'clock every night. Otherwise, they faced a year's imprisonment.

KINGSTON EXPERIENCE

Mr. Miller, a native of Victoria, B.C., became a John Howard Society worker in 1946 and the next year joined the Kingston penitentiary staff as classification officer. He entered the remission service in 1952 and the next year was appointed assistant director.

Mr. Edmison, a native of Chelmsford, Ont., was a member of the committee under Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux of the Supreme Court of Canada that spent three years investigating the Canadian penal system and comparing it with systems in other countries.

The committee's subsequent report is the basis for many changes in the penitentiary system already under way and still being planned.

MONTREAL LAWYER

Until the Second World War a Montreal lawyer, Mr. Edmison visited Kingston penitentiary for the first time as a Queen's University freshman in 1924. His interest in Canada's correction system has expanded steadily since. He currently is a director and board member of several welfare organizations.

A native of Levis, Que., Mr. Dion began his law practice in Quebec City in 1937. After five years' military service during the war, he resumed his law practice in New Carlisle.

In his work as Crown prosecutor in the district, he became known for his fairness and interest in seeing justice carried out in the treatment of law offenders.

BUSCH—SAILEY

On Friday, December 26, at 2.30 p.m., a pretty wedding of wide interest was solemnized in the beautiful new St. Amos' United Church, 3214 West 10th Ave., Vancouver, B.C., by the Reverend T. Oliver, when Florence Cannitf Bailey, of Vancouver, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bailey, Wellington, Ontario, became the bride of Gerald Williams of Phillip Busch, of Vancouver, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Busch.

Lovely bouquets of white carnations were on the altar and the guest pews were tied with white carnations and white ribbons.

The church organist played the traditional wedding music, and the soloist, Mrs. Walter Morrow, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Ross Ketcheson, of Moira, wore a full-length gown of Chantilly lace over satin with fitted bodice, having a Queen Elizabeth neckline and long pointed sleeves. She wore a crown of rhinestones and fingertip veil. Her bouquet was of red roses with white carnations.

The bridesmaid was Miss Shirley Hazzard of Belleville, wearing a full-length gown identical to the bride's, in green net over satin with green headdress. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white 'mums.

The flower girl, Pamela Lynn Foster, of Picton, niece of the bride, was frocked in peach organdy over satin and carried yellow roses and blue 'mums.

The groomsman was Mr. Reg Williams, of Belleville, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Mr. Lyle Williams of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Jack Wallis, of Frankford, brother-in-law of the bride.

The reception was held in the Rose Lowery hall, Frankford, where the bride's mother, gowned in printed blue silk, with corsage of pink roses, received.

For the wedding trip to Elliot Lake and points west and north, the bride chose a royal blue dress of embossed faille with white hat and accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The happy couple will reside in Picton, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were present from Picton, Belleville, Ivanhoe, Foxboro, Ottawa and Moira.

A reception was held for about 25 close relatives and friends in the Jovely Bolero Club lounge. More pictures were taken as they cut their wedding cake. Miss McDowall caught the bride's bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Busch will be residing in their new home, 6380 Doman Street, Vancouver, B.C.

—Prior to moving to British Columbia in 1953, Miss Bailey was a hairdresser at the Vogue Beauty Salon, Belleville, Ont.

To make the bride feel "at home," among those present were: Mr. Charles Sherwin, formerly of Hillier, and Mrs. Sherwin; Miss Ruth Adams, formerly of Wellington, and Mrs. Harry Burley, of Belleville and Wellington, who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Adams in Vancouver.

SOLENTHALER — WILLIAMS

FRANKFORD — A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon, January 3rd, at 2.30 p.m. in Frankford United Church, when the Reverend H. M. Beach, assisted by Mr. T. J. Riddell, united in marriage Annie Kay, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Williams of Belleville, (formerly of Frankford), to Joseph Solenthaler, of Picton, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Solenthaler of Flawil, Switzerland.

The church was decorated with white snapdragons and yellow mums.

Miss Sue Anne Wallace rendered the traditional wedding music, and the soloist, Mrs. Walter Morrow, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

Followers of Mennonite Faith Moving With Times

By GEORGE BARTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ALTONA, Man. (CP)—A girl walking down the main street of this southern Manitoba town wearing high heels and even a trace of facial makeup would have drawn icy stares a few years ago. But not now.

This community, where more than 90 per cent are followers of the Mennonite faith, has moved with the times and there has been some relaxation in the religious group, although all modern trends are not by any means getting unanimous approval.

Smokers no longer are universally frowned upon, even if smoking is still considered "bad form" by some inhabitants. Stores and cafes stock popular cigaret brands.

"Admittedly Mennonites are somewhat more conservative, but we certainly are not living in a wilderness," said Rev. H. J. Gerbrandt, minister of the Bethanier Mennonite Church here.

"The church has moved with the times and we try all the modern techniques we can.

"Use of makeup and wearing of jewelry is frowned upon, and although the church does not act, they are definitely not encouraged."

Teen-agers are not sure that their parents have moved far enough with the times in this town where there are no juke boxes.

"I like a lot of things to do and there's not much here," said 17-year-old Judy Friesen. "People are too narrow-minded and they don't seem to understand us."

Judy, daughter of D. K. Friesen, president of D. W. Friesen and Sons Limited which publishes the weekly newspaper Red River Valley Echo, is a typically light-hearted girl who, like hundreds elsewhere, likes to wear gay clothes, high heels and use makeup.

"Most of the kids like to dress up and our parents get used to new ideas after a while," she said.

But Judy doesn't want to stay in Altona. She would much rather travel and study music, a subject she has been studying for the last seven years.

SATISFIED CLERK

On the other hand, Jake Elias, a 19-year-old clerk, is reasonably satisfied with his lot in life.

"A lot of our students leave for the city but a great many of these would like to stay. Of course it is a lot easier to go to the city and find work but there's no reason why one couldn't make a living here providing one got down to it.

"Admittedly the opportunities are not so great in Altona," he said, "and it would be much better if we had more industry established here."

Altona's population has increased to 2,000 from 800 in 1946, when the town was incorporated, but concern is expressed about the numbers of youth finding their way to larger cities.

The Mennonites first came to this district, just seven miles north of the U.S. border, in 1873 from Russia. Even in the 1930s the Manitoba Mennonites closely followed the ways of their forefathers. Women wore plain clothes and used no makeup. The men did not smoke or drink and they, too, confined themselves to drab garb.

Small groups retain the strict habits of their religious upbringing, but these are generally found out in the country.

MUSIC LOVERS

All love good music. An unusual feature of Altona is its radio station CFAM, which opened in March, 1957. Its library is stacked with 7,000 classical and semi-classical musical recordings, and not one hit record has ever graced its turn-tables.

"Our aim is a folksy program," said production manager Dennis Barkman. "The emphasis is on good music and agricultural news."

The station serves one of the most densely - populated rural areas in the country, with a listening potential of 600,000. It is heard in three provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Ontario—and in Montana, Minnesota and North and South Dakota.

It has its own farm director, Dr. F. J. Olson, a former professor at the University of Manitoba, and its music director, Ben Horch. Under the latter's direction, the station publishes a monthly program guide of classical music.

Mr. Horch has just had a letter from a Toronto Columbia subscribers to the monthly guide: "We can't listen to your good music, so we use your program as a guide for record purchases," they said.

Kum Double Club Holds Supper Meet

HALLOWAY — The Halloway Kum Double club enjoyed a supper meeting held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider on Tuesday evening. There were approximately 30 members to enjoy the lovely supper, served buffet style.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Robson were in charge of the worship service, having as their theme, the beginning of the old year, and the beginning of a new one. The service opened with the singing of the hymn" Ring Out the Old," followed by a poem by Mrs. Robson. The Scripture, taken from Ephesians 5:15, and the meditation were given by Mr. Alvin Donaldson. Mr Darke led in prayer. A lovely duet "I Know Who Holds Tomorrow" was rendered by Mrs. Gordon Roth and Mrs. Coleman Townsend. Mr. Reg Workman gave an article by Padre W. A. Young on the evening's main theme. The offering was received by Mrs. R. F. Darke.

Mrs. Roscoe Robson introduced the guest speaker of the evening Miss Kathleen Homan. Miss Homan showed the slides she had taken of the United Kingdom, with an an exchange visit of young farmers to England, Scotland, and North Ireland. Mr. Snider's were interesting and humorous, more so by Miss Homan's running commentary.

Mr. Snider thanked Miss Homan on behalf of the Kum Double, and Mrs. Robson presented her with a small gift.

The hymn "I Would Be True," was sung. Mr. and Mrs. Snider then took over for the short business period.

The Halloway Howler was given by Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider.

The slate of officers for 1959 is as follow: past presidents — Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider; presidents — Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend; 1st vice-presidents — Mr. and Mrs. John Robson; 2nd vice-presidents —Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson; secretaries — Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roth; treasurers — Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen; 1st conveners — Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Kelly; 2nd conveners — Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Wellman; 3rd conveners — Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan; 4th conveners — Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Donaldson; spare conveners — Mr and Mrs. Robert Darke; pianists — Mrs. Earl Snider and Mrs. Ed. Emerson ; press reporter — Mrs. Ed. Emerson.

Fine Foliage Jewelry

By TRACY ADRIAN

Jewelry has gone back to nature this year, taking its designs from the foliage.

For instance, here is a leaf-inspired necklace. Its shiny-edged, burnished gold leaves have simulated veins. Tiny pearls sprout near the stem-end. With it is a matching pair of earrings.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Sally A. — We are both attractive — and jealous.

Neal A. — She doesn't know how to hold her liquor.

Sally A. — I am 32 and have been married ten years. I have three children. My husband and I have not been very happy together in spite of the fact that we are considered an ideal couple by our friends and neighbors.

One of the factors which has been a problem is that my husband and I are both quite attractive to the opposite sex — and both very jealous. I know I shouldn't be that way but I become furious when I see another woman making up to my husband. On the other hand, I really enjoy the company of other men and my husband hates to see me enjoy myself in harmless flirtatiality at parties.

I feel that I know my limits, but my husband gets carried away by the flattery of other women. He knows that I would not do anything out-of-bounds, but I can't feel the same certainty about him.

Neal A. — It's a laugh to hear Sally say she knows her limits. If I didn't drag her by the hair out of danger, her "sociability" would be far from harmless. She doesn't know how to hold her liquor and she doesn't believe that she behaves the way she actually does at some of our parties. When I bring up some of the things she has said and done, she swears it wasn't her but two other women.

The fact is that I don't particularly seek the company of other women and Sally knows this. These incidents kind of come to me. I don't mean to sound conceited but I can honestly say I haven't gone looking for trouble — ever.

I'd like to straighten out this problem once and for all because I feel that our marriage can easily go on the rocks because of it. We have come to blows.

The Council II sounds as though Sally and Neal have two central problems — alcohol and flirtatiousness.

Instead of viewing their physical attractiveness as a kind of personal bonus or gift they can give one another, they see it as a weapon with which to bludgeon one another. Physical attractiveness gets some attention, but even a great beauty can convert this attention to something other than a flirtation if she wishes. If the attention remains on the level of pure sexual interest it must mean that both partners want it that way.

Sally and Neal are no exceptions to this rule. They are not innocent bystanders while others admire them. The fact that they are so preoccupied with this teenage level of social interest speaks very poorly for both of them.

From this and from the fact that liquor plays its part in the picture, we gather Sally and Neal have done nothing to develop an interest in the larger world outside of their immediate egos. Their marriage must be quite boring since each is them is quite empty from the mental and emotional point of view. They need jealousy in order to stir up a little interest in one another.

The only way out of the vicious circle is an active effort to find larger interests and to make some contribution to the community. When they get involved in a larger area of life they will find more mature and interesting friends among whom unpleasant situations are less likely to arise.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beekman

WORDING OF NEWSPAPER ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

The engagement of our son to an English girl is to be made soon by her parents, who live about half the year in England and, because of the father's business, half the year in Switzerland. We met our son's wonderful fiancee when she was visiting here, before they were engaged but have not met her family. However, we have, of course, corresponded, with them, and they write they will inform us immediately when the date of the announcement is decided on. Then shouldn't we send the announcement to our local newspapers? If so, how would such an announcement begin, since her parents, not we, would be making it? — Fiance's Mother.

This is the customary form for the beginning of this type of announcement: "Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Campbell, of Eaton Square, London, England, to Mr. Paul Dwight Edwards, of this city. Miss Campbell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wells Campbell, of London, and Lausanne, Switzerland. Mr. Edwards is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davis Edwards, of 123 Park Street."

Then you will undoubtedly wish to add other items — school, college, clubs, present positions, and so forth.

SIGNING REGISTER AT FUNERAL HOME

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

When you go to a funeral home, either to make a condolence call or to attend the funeral service, should you take it for granted that you are supposed to sign the register, or should you wait until you are requested to sign? — Reader

It is customary to sign the register at the funeral home without waiting to be asked to sign. At the funeral service itself there is usually an attendant to direct you to the register and ask you to sign, most often as you enter the room for the service.

SUGGESTION ABOUT ATTIRE

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Our Organization is to give a dinner-dance soon, and the Arrangements Committee, of which I am a member, has been discussing the wording of the invitations. Some of the officers and head members are going to wear formal evening attire (white tie), but the majority will be undoubtedly wear dinner-jackets (black tie). I disagree with some of the members of our committee that we should have "Formal" engraved on the invitations, because this, I am quite sure, would give some of the members out yonder the idea that only strictly formal evening attire would be the proper thing to wear. Do you agree with me? And if so, what wording would you suggest? — T. T.

I do agree with you that, in this case, "Formal" might not be a flexible enough word. I suggest the form very often used in this circumstance: at the bottom of the invitation, either at the right or left, have the words, "Black or White Tie." This allows the lee-way you wish to indicate.

PROPER TO GIVE SHOWER AFTER THE WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My best friend was married on very short notice three weeks ago, when her fiance found that he would be given a 10-day leave. So there was no time before the marriage to give her the shower I had planned to give her. Now two other close friends of hers and mine (one a girl who has worked with her in her office for several years) would like to join me in giving her a shower (perhaps a miscellaneous shower. Do you think it would be proper for us to give this shower for her now, after the wedding? — A. C.

Yes, indeed. An entirely proper thing for you and your friends to do, and a thoughtful and generous gesture to make to the bride. I think it would be unfair to deprive her of the shower you had so devotedly planned for her.

Home Canned Chicken And Meat

by Macy Moore

Yesterday I promised to go on with this second instalment of home canning of chicken and meat instructions:

in glass sealers or tin cans. Add salt allowing 1-3 teaspoon to a pint sealer or, 2/3-ounce tin can. Cover with boiling liquid leaving 1-2 inch headspace for glass sealers and 1-4 inch for tin cans. Partially seal glass sealers and completely seal tin cans. Process in pressure cooker following table given below. (Note: This table is the one I promised yesterday to give you. Follow it for pressure canning chicken by raw pack method and pre-cooked method.)

CANNING OF OTHER MEATS

When canning meats such as beef, veal, pork, lamb and large game, cut into pieces suitable for individual servings or into smaller pieces for stews. Remove excess fat from all meats and follow directions as given under "Raw Pack" method for canning chicken.

Use processing times given in Table below for boned chicken. For canning small game, such as rabbit and wild fowl, follow directions given for chicken.

Reminder: Write to Canada Department of Agriculture for bulletin "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables" for fuller details.

Request: I would be grateful if readers who are interested in home canning of chicken and meat would clip this column. I'm awkward to set up and space consuming.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Going Shopping?

If you write a great deal of courage that we finally typed those words again. However, the sensible answer would be in the affirmative, for there are so many real bargains to be had. To be sure, a few special-ized sales are already over, but many of the annual worthwhile January sales are still to come.

One often hears the remark that "this would be the time to buy for next Christmas." Indeed it would, and there are people who do just that. We were talking with one who buys who told us that she had already tabulated what friends and relatives had given her and her family this year, what she and her family had given and had made out tentative guiding lists for selection of next year's gifts.

She said, "If you are careful you can get top quality merchandise at greatly reduced rates now. Buy only good conservative lines; in that way, a year's difference does not show."

Apart from a year in advance Christmas presents, there are the clothing sales, both men's and women's, to fill in those items you did not get for Christmas. Special prices in bedding and linen are always available at this-time of year and are well worth looking into.

Shoes and hats will also be marked down in price, as spring stock in both these commodities is ordered now. From illustrations, it would seem that the pointed toe will still be with us, that glamorous footwear will become more and more decorative. Hats! Well, one never knows.

The newest in furniture is being shown to the public in a special exhibition this month in Toronto. We are told in advance that the austere lines are not so much in fact now, and that more orate and embellished designs will be offered us. We read that one designer claims the change is due to the psychology of our living.

While people felt reasonably secure and were not worried about the future of our way of life and space travel, they could stand the plain, austere lines. Now that these outside worries have crept in, people need the comfort and distraction of ornate things. We were never aware that such deep motivations were needed for style changes in anything, but there may be some truth in the explanation.

It is not too soon to say that predictions about feminine fashions during the later part of 1959 were right. The sack and the chemise and the trapeze — where are they? Without going into the matter in any detail, only very slim traces remain. From illustrations in the latest papers and magazines, the stylelines is with us again and fashions look somewhat familiar. It is too soon, however, to say what innovations will be made. You can be sure there will be some. Good bargains!

If controversy is the spice of life, credits must go to the Atlantic Advocate. In the November issue there is an article by James Hasson, M.D., in which he recommends a "potato diet." According to the January issue of the Atlantic Advocate quite a storm is brewing, but the Bluenose and the Mistimer are accustomed to weathering the storms.

The editor and publisher of the Fredericton magazine describes the physician: "Dr. James Hasson is a famous French physician who practises in England. He was appointed by General de Gaulle Consultant to the Free French Forces 1940-1945." The Peterborough Examiner expressed its bewilderment in an editorial about a "potato diet." The editorial writer wrote "we don't pretend to understand it, and we are starting to Reclaim" which the editor of the A.A. replies "We advise the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner to take a sack of potatoes with him, and he will soon come out again, fit, well and slim."

T and T doubts there will be a woman reader who isn't interested in this good natured repartee because the thought of a "potato diet" will come as a bit of a shocker. The good doctor maintains that he is resorting to propaganda "not to increase the consumption of potatoes but to increase the length of your life." He recommends that we try it. The editor of the A.A. has tried it and he assures us that it works and that he has never felt better in his life. Apparently the reaction to the November article has been instantaneous and voluminous. Many thousands of enquiries have gone in to the Atlantic Advocate for the rather startling diet and your reporter remains neutral for the time being.

Rossmore

ROSSMORE — Those who attended the Candle-light Service on Sunday evening in the United Church here, were well rewarded and all enjoyed the anthems rendered by Miss Self, of Belleville, which were beautifully given.

The Rossmore girls, Misses Patsy Clapp, Patsy Rupert and W. Thompson were at their best.

The message delivered by the minister, Mr. W. H. Farrow, was a New Years Challenge on this, the first Sunday of 1959. May all meet it with patience and fortitude.

The evening turned out to be cold and blustery, even so, a good crowd attended and the strangers were made welcome; all hope they will meet with us again. It would be most appropriate to quote Mr. Farrow's closing lines "and I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year, give me light, that I may tread safely into the unknown, and he replied go out into the darkness and put your hand unto the hand of God, that shall be to you better than light and safer than a known way".

The mild weather of the last few days was welcome after the severe cold of the past month colder air moved in on Sunday evening, with north-west winds and drifting snow and once again, zero weather is here.

But still lucky, as the west is frogs 32 to 42 below as the news came over the air this morning.

Easter is on the 29th of March this year — and old timers say we are due for an early spring, may this old proverb prove true.

Miss May Hannah, of Belleville was at the home of her brother, Mr. A. Hannah and his wife and family, for both of the recent holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Reddick and family, spent the recent holiday with Mr. Reddick's parents, at Wooler.

Mrs. John Box spent the holiday week with her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Box, Kingston.

Bonnie and Patsy Root entertained several of their little friends to a birthday party on Saturday afternoon. Games were played and lots of fun had by all present. A birthday cake with all the trimmings wound up a most delightful party and a tired group wended their way homeward, after wishing them many more birthdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bildee entertained Mrs. Bildee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Belnap on New Year's day.

Mrs. A. Myra was a recent Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Royden Long, Belleville.

Many friends of Mr. Charlie Reddick are sorry to hear he hasn't been enjoying good health the past month. All are hoping that his health improves and all will see him out, when the warm weather returns again.

AC2 Wayne Alyea, RCAF station, Camp Borden was with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Alyea for the weekend.

Christmas trees have been taken down and thrown out, and all are missing the pretty colored lights that made such a happy holiday more beautiful.

A coogregational meeting is being held in the church here on the 14th of January. This meeting will be in the evening and a potluck supper will be served by the ladies, and all of those that have the welfare of the church in their hearts are invited to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Weese entertained company on Sunday.

Sympathy of this community is extended to Mrs. Harry Cuningham in the sudden passing of her husband, at Christmas time.

Ladies' Aid was held on Tuesday at Mrs. Reddick's.

Mrs. John Box spent the New Year's day with Mr. and Mrs. Tory, Canary Gardens, Belleville.

The Ameliasburg pastoral charge of the United Church of Canada includes the communities of Ameliasburg, Mountain View Massanagga and Rossmore.

Mr. W. H. Farrow, a lay minister, has served on the charge since January 1st, 1955, following the retirement of the Reverend H. M. Hills.

Since January 1st, 1955, under the leadership of Mr. Farrow, a new parsonage has been built on highway No. 14 between Massanagga and Mountain View. It is now debt free and has been furnished by the circuit.

Besides the combined effort of the building of the parsonage, each church building has also been improved and new members added. Two T.Y.R.O. groups for Junior boys and a Young Peoples Union have been started and hold meetings nearly every week. There are also two W.M.S. groups and three W.A. organizations for women. Four church services are held every Sunday and there are Sunday Schools held in the four churches.

Relay Findings To Delegates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revising an earlier theory, the United States says new information indicates it is now difficult to distinguish between earthquake and underground nuclear blasts than had been believed.

The White House announced today that this finding has been relayed to British and Soviet delegates attending the Geneva conference on suspension of nuclear weapons test.

The prolonged three-power Geneva talks resumed Monday behind closed doors. There was no report of any progress.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said Monday that the new findings show methods must be developed that would provide greater detection than a proposed network of 180 monitoring stations.

He said he wasn't enough of an expert to know whether more detecting stations would be needed.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT—Christmas Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis were Mr. and Mrs. Ted Trice, Stephen and Cathy, of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pearson and Linda of Trenton, and Mr. and Mrs. Alva Meyers of Johnstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Ritz and family of Thurlow, were Sunday guests of her mother, Mrs. W. A. Jeffery.

New Year's day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Barr were: Mr. and Mrs. George Barr, Sandra, Paul, Jean and Tommy of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis spent Sunday with her daughter Mrs. Ted Trice, Stephen and Cathy of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bowers were New Year's eve guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Barr.

Master Gary Millar spent a few days last week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Sandercock.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jones, Stephen and Debra were New Year's guests of her sister, Mrs. Larry Farrar and Mr. Farrar of Trenton.

Mrs. James Sandercock is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Wilson and Mr. Wilson of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Harder of Johnstown, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sandercock were in attendance at a turkey banquet at Allisonville on New Year's eve.

Miss Sylvia Millar spent a few days last week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock.

Service at White's Church was held on Sunday morning with the Rev. Roy Richard, B.A. speaking on "Behold I Have Set Before Thee an Open Door and No Man Can Close It." The choir rendered "Teach Us to Pray," with Mrs. W. Jeffery as pianist. Mr. Rickard spoke to the junior congregation, telling the story of "The Happiest Man."

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Wilson of Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Auger, Carl, Teddy, Michael and Cathy were Christmas Day guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cotten.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sandercock, George and Lee and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock were New Year's guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Millar of Bayside.

Eastern States Get Relief From Frigid Weather

NEW YORK (AP) — Higher temperatures and lower winds today were expected to provide some relief for the eastern U.S. seaboard battered by icy gales and chilled by frigid cold since Monday.

Violent winds, with gusts up to 75 miles an hour, put below-zero teeth into the fists of sub-freezing weather again Tuesday as they continued to cause widespread damage.

The weather bureau in Washington said winds today would diminish to 30 to 36 m.p.h. along the northern portion of the coast, and be relatively light in the southern section. Rising temperatures may reach a high of 25 to 30 degrees in some areas.

Numerous fires claimed nearly 20 lives Tuesday in the United States.

Winds whistled through most of the northeast at a steady 40 m.p.h. The Weather Bureau said winds at that speed in five-degree temperature created the effect of 30-below cold in a light wind.

FREEZING IN FLORIDA

Temperatures sank below zero in points from New York to Maine and were below freezing all the way to northern Florida. The mercury dropped to 63 in Miami during the night.

Two men died of exposure in Baltimore, a man froze to death in Massachusetts, and three deaths were blamed on the weather in Pennsylvania.

High winds brought down chimneys, trees and power lines, shattered store and house windows, tore off roofs and spilled pedestrians. A powerful gust blew over an empty trailer-tractor on the New Jersey Turnpike, injuring the driver.

MANY LIVES LOST

Fires burned up hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of commercial buildings as well as taking a heavy toll on human life.

The most tragic blaze swept a Syracuse, N.Y., university dormitory, killing seven student airmen and injuring many others.

A wind whirled forest fire blazed along a four-to-five-mile front near Peekskill, N.Y., about 40 miles from the heart of New York City. Firemen battled the fire for more than 10 hours before extinguishing it early today.

A freighter was blown aground off Baltimore and two other ships caught in ice four-to-six-inches thick in the shipping canal between the city and the Delaware Canal.

Red Production Gaining on U.S. Report Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet Union scored substantially again last year in the production of basic materials, figures released by the Soviet government indicate. Production plans were overfulfilled in ferrous metals, coal, petroleum and electric power.

This is the report from Moscow:

In 1958 Soviet steel production hit 55,000,000 metric tons (a metric ton is 2,205 pounds). The gain over 1957 — 7,900,000 tons—more than a million tons better than the production plan announced in December 1957 by economic planning chief Joseph N. Kosmin. By comparison, U.S. steel output in 1957 was 109,000,000 metric tons.

Backing up the steel output was Soviet production in 1958 of 39,600,000 metric tons of pig iron. This represented an increase over 1957 of 2,900,000 tons, or 500,000 tons better than plan. U.S. pig iron production in 1957 was 72,000,000 metric tons.

TOP U.S. IN COAL

Coal output of 493,000,000 metric tons was almost 35,000,000 better than in 1957 and 8,500,000 better than the goal. U.S. output of coal in 1957 was 467,000,000 metric tons. Soviet figures include large amounts of low-grade coal, while American production contains little ash sort.

Soviet petroleum production rose by 15,200,000 metric tons in 1958 to 113,500,000 tons compared with 98,300,000 in 1957. This was 1,900,000 tons better than plan. American oil output in 1957 was 354,000,000 tons.

Soviet electric power production in 1958 reached 233,000,000,000 kilowatt hours. This was 23,900,000,000 more than in 1957 and 2,600,000,000 better than plan. The United States in 1957 produced 719,000,000,000 kilowatt hours.

Comparison of Soviet production in 1958 with U.S. output in 1958 would show the Soviet Union gaining rapidly on the United States — more because of U.S. output declines than because of Soviet gains, though the l... were appreciable in all fields.

Canadian Subsidiaries Problem to Get More Study, Discussion by Two Govts.

OTTAWA (CP) — Relationships between American parent companies and their Canadian subsidiaries — a sometime point of friction in the wider relationship between Canada and the United States—will be further discussed by the two governments.

A communique issued Tuesday night following three meetings in 24 hours by the Canada-U.S. cabinet economic committee announced that this subject will receive a further airing at cabinet level on a date not yet determined.

Presumably the conferees will be Justice Minister Fulton and U.S. Attorney-General Rogers.

Also likely to be raised again are Canada's suggestions that Canadians be allowed to participate in the equity stock of the subsidiaries and to have a bigger voice in their management and that the subsidiaries be given more freedom to hunt for their own markets.

The particular issue raised by Mr. Fulton Tuesday night in Ottawa was previous protests about it — concerns an anti-trust suit brought by the U.S. justice department against eight Canadian companies as well as certain parent U.S. and Dutch firms.

The department maintains that General Electric and Westinghouse Electric Corporation of the U.S. and N. V. Philips Gloeilampenfabrieken, Netherlands electronics firm, operating through Canadian subsidiaries, conspired to restrain trade between Canada and the U.S. in radio and television receiving sets.

The suit claims restraint of trade was carried out by organization of a Canadian patent pool which prevented importation into Canada of U.S. radio and TV sets.

Finance Minister Fleming, chairman of the committee meeting, said afterwards at a press conference that a decision whether the lawsuit against the Canadian companies would be dropped was a matter for the U.S. government.

He added later that no statement in the communique can be regarded as a commitment by either country to alter its policies.

The meeting also reviewed arrangements made here last summer whereby the U.S. government undertook to consider on a case-to-case basis the granting of licences to parent U.S. companies to relieve them from the prohibition against transactions with Communist China insofar as their Canadian subsidiaries are concerned.

A year ago Ford of Canada apparently wanted to export some vehicles to Red China. It could not do so because its parent U.S. company was bound by U.S. regulations relating to trade with China.

Mr. Fleming said that since last summer when the arrangements were made by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower the U.S. has granted "several" licences to U.S. companies to enable their Canadian subsidiaries to export to China.

When a reporter asked whether this meant Canada had to go "cap in hand" to the U.S. every time a Canadian subsidiary wanted to sell goods to China, Mr. Fleming said this country had not lost "one iota" of its sovereignty.

He said he was not sure whether there had been a case of the U.S. refusing a licence.

Belgian Troops Patrol Streets Of Congo Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo—(Reuters)—Burly Belgian paratroops patrolled the European areas of the Congo's capital during the night as tension eased after two days of rioting and looting by Africans.

About 30 Negroes are known to have been killed and at least 100 injured in the violence that started Sunday night. Some 20 Europeans were injured and 300 Africans arrested.

In Belgium, the government Tuesday night ordered an extraordinary session of parliament Thursday—five days before an expected government statement of policy on the Congo. The new policy was officially said to be "both generous and bold."

DEMANDS DEBATE

Parliament was recalled after demands for an immediate debate were put to Premier Gaston Eyskens by a five-man Socialist delegation. Socialist party leader Max Buset urged Eyskens to send an investigating commission to Leopoldville.)

In the Congo capital Tuesday African troops commanded by Belgian officers joined para-troops in arresting looters in three of Leopoldville's seven districts. Security quarters, with a total 300,000 Africans.

Heavy barricades still separated the native and European areas and a curfew was maintained throughout the night.

Reports from the French city of Brazzaville on the opposite bank of the Congo River said many Europeans close to Leopoldville's African section were quitting their homes in a "massive evacuation."

BLOODIEST EVER

The riots were the bloodiest ever in Leopoldville, which has been capital of the Congo for the last 73 years.

The Belgian view is that they were sparked mainly by the "floating mass" of about 50,000 unemployed Africans who are victims of the economic recession in industrial Leopoldville.

Spearhead of last Sunday's demonstrations were leaders of the Abako movement, an ethnical organization which has become a militant political movement to fight to full and early independence of the Congo.

LIBERAL SETTLEMENT

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)— Actress Loretta Young Atwood has a divorce decree, a $2,000-a-month alimony, $375 monthly support for her three children and title to the $700,000 family home. Paying for all this is John H. Harris, 59. The 34-year-old Miss Atwood obtained the divorce Tuesday after telling the court that Harris was rude to her friends and had a bad temper.

West Indian Applies for Job On Police Force

LEEDS, England (Reuters)—A 25-year-old West Indian has applied to join the Leeds police force and, if accepted, will become the first Negro police officer in Britain.

Following this Tuesday, a police spokesman said the application has been forwarded to the home office for comment.

Richard Byron Clarke comes from Trinidad and lives here with his English wife and three children.

Churchill Hails Britain's Record In Middle East

LONDON (Reuters) — Sir Winston Churchill, 84-year-old wartime prime minister, has hailed Britain's Middle East record and growing Franco-German friendship.

Churchill, who leaves Monday for a vacation in Morocco, addressed about 100 members of the executive committee of the Conservative Association in his parliamentary constituency of Woodford, Essex, Tuesday night.

Referring to events in the Middle East last year, Churchill declared:

"Our own record there is a fine one. Our reputation rests on the great traditions of justice, fair government and peace to which our administrators, soldiers and ambassadors have been faithful."

PRAISES TWO LEADERS

He praised French Premier de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, and said he was glad to see his old friend and wartime colleague Gen. de Gaulle now presiding over the destiny of France.

"In Gen. de Gaulle and Dr. Adenauer we are fortunate to have two wise and forceful leaders of their countries who are also proved friends of Great Britain.

"Twelve years ago, I expressed the hope that France would lead Germany by the hand back into the European community.

"I am happy to see such new development of Franco-German friendship and I trust that Britain and the United States, bound increasingly together, will continue always to find them all support and help."

Churchill also confirmed in public what had been assumed for two years—that he recommended to Queen Elizabeth that Harold Macmillan succeed Sir Anthony Eden as prime minister.

R. A. Butler was thought at one time—January, 1957—to be Macmillan's main rival for the post following the retirement of Eden because of ill health.

No Sign of CBC Producers' Strike Being Settled

MONTREAL (CP) — Each side appeared to be waiting for the other to make a concession as a strike of radio and television producers at the CBC's Montreal studios went into its ninth day.

No meetings were planned for today—the first break in daily negotiations since last week—and statements Tuesday night from both camps indicated no moves toward a settlement were impending.

The issue is recognition by the CBC of the Producers' Association (CCCL) as a labor union with collective bargaining rights for 84 Montreal producers.

The CBC's latest stand is that it will recognize the association as a union after the producers agree to a change in status which would make them no longer a part of management.

RECOGNITION FIRST

The producers say they will agree to this change in status as soon as their association has been recognized.

"A corporation spokesman replied "at least we've tried. The producers' attitude makes negotiations very difficult."

The strike has virtually stopped live programming in the CBC's French - language studios here, and has affected English - language productions to a lesser degree.

All other CBC union employees have refused to cross producers' picket lines. At a mass meeting Tuesday, 1,800 of them voted unanimously to continue honoring the picket lines.

Alphonse Oulmet, corporation president, arrived from Ottawa Tuesday to confer with William Dodge, a vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress. A spokesman said the meeting was only "an exchange of information."

Manager of TTC Will Resign if Charges Proved

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Transit Commission General Manager K. E. Duncan, says he will resign if charges of "cozy dealings" in connection with the Yonge Street subway can be proved.

Mr. Duncan made the statement Tuesday during a stormy two-hour meeting called to investigate charges by former TTC chairman Allan Lamport that there were hidden mistakes and bungling in building the north-south subway.

Mr. Lamport resigned as chairman of the five-man board last week after declaring Clive Sinclair and J. Ardagh Scythes, two TTC commissioners, refused to support his motion to put Mr. Duncan in charge of a proposed east-west subway on mid-town Bloor Street.

Mr. Duncan Tuesday demanded a complete investigation of the charges with "all the people named by Mr. Lamport called as witnesses."

Mr. Lamport accused Mr. Duncan of ignoring recommendations for changes in the management of the city-owned transit system and said there were "concealed" errors in subway contract specifications, "hidden accounts," and a mock-up subway car, built by TTC engineers and costing between $35,000 and $50,000, that the commissioners knew nothing about.

Mr. Duncan, a professional engineer, said he considered the charges "a reflection on my ability," and added: "I am not sure it is not defamation of character."

Mr. Duncan later conceded specifications for the Yonge Street subway were changed and that some rails on the subway were being replaced after four years' use. They were supposed to last 15 years under early estimates.

The commission asked Mr. Duncan to make a written report of Mr. Lamport's charges within 30 days at which time the commission will decide whether there will be a public inquiry into the TTC management.

Nobody Convinced Mikoyan Trip Purely Private Visit

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Anastas Mikoyan is quietly probing official Washington, a spot considered by many non-residents to possess almost as many baffling complexities as outer space.

Russia's vice - premier, trade expert and general troubleshooter convinced virtually nobody when he described the trip as a private visit. Because of his standing in the Soviet hierarchy European observers attach profound significance to his presence in the United States.

Like the more publicized Soviet space rocket, the light - lipped Armenian would appear to be primarily engaged in an exploratory mission. Any major development in Russian-American trade relations would require consideration and few political issues occupying the two countries appear to offer prospects of immediate solution.

PERSONAL CONTACT

In sending Mikoyan to Washington, Premier Khrushchev can look to the minimum achievement of establishing personal contact between his No. 2 man and the leaders of the Eisenhower administration. In all probability, he is counting on his special envoy to melt some of the president's hostility toward summit conference.

Beyond the obvious goodwill potential of Mikoyan's visit, speculation on the possible subjects under discussion ranges as widely as the rocket itself, which is seen as lending urgency to an agreement governing space experiments.

The rocket's progress also underlines the importance of international control of nuclear armaments, but there appears to be little chance of progress until the technical experts iron out their difficulties at the current talks in Geneva.

COMPARING NOTES

In the political field, West Berlin is the most likely topic. In his private discussions, Mikoyan appears to have an ideal opportunity to clarify the Russian position and compare notes with State Secretary Dulles on possible avenues for negotiation on the German problem as a whole.

Similar possibilities exist on the questions of the two Chinas, the Middle East and a host of subsidiary problems, always assuming that Mikoyan is prepared to bargain and that the Americans are ready to meet him half way.

It remains questionable whether Washington is prepared to talk turkey with its surprise visitor. Khrushchev's recent diplomatic activities have not been calculated to inspire pro-Russian sentiments in the White House and Mikoyan is likely to face a formidable ice-breaking task.

He is confronted with another barrier in the domestic political situation. The crushing Republican defeat in the November congressional elections has gravely weakened the government's influence over Congress — a body Mikoyan is unlikely to meet and even less likely to sway with his persuasive powers.

The chief grounds for optimism lie in the absence of fanfare from both sides in their approach to Mikoyan's visit. Particularly in Britain, where the vicious of back-room diplomacy continue to be cherished, there is hope that the talks will offer an opportunity to get away from the uncompromising rigidity that inevitably accompanies 'public' debate.

Flynn Enjoyed Campaigning With Castro

HAVANA (AP)—Actor Errol Flynn, nursing a wound he called a scratch, said Monday night he campaigned with Cuban rebel leader Fidel Castro in a real-life episode of his swashbuckling film career.

Flynn told reporters he shared the field hardships and dangers with Castro's forces since Christmas Day because "all my life I've wanted to see what makes an idealist tick."

Flynn, 50, said he hopes to publish a story he has written and photographs he has taken of his Cuban activities.

The actor said he found Castro "one of those men who come along occasionally in human history and fight for ideals."

"And I think he also has lizard blood," Flynn said. "I never saw a man jump around with such energy."

Flynn said he got his wound eight days ago at Central Palma sugar mill in Oriente province.

BEHIND FRONT WHEN HIT

"I was hiding behind a post — as usual — when a bullet hit the post and then my leg," Flynn explained.

He pointed to his right leg and added:

"I lost a little skin and a little blood...now I am getting queries on whether I lost a leg.

"The only thing that really wounded me was not being able to get anything to eat except tangerines."

Another actor, George Raft, also is reported in Havana, where he is part owner of a casino.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a pain healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

This substance was discovered by a Research Institute and is now available to the public under the name Preparation H. Ointment or Suppositories.

Preparation H. is unsurpassed for relieving pain, itching and irritation and for shrinking hemorrhoids. It is also unsurpassed for relieving pain and promoting healing of anal fissures and anal irritation due to other causes.

Ask your druggist for Preparation H. Ointment or Suppositories. Only 60¢ for a tube that lasts for weeks. Money refunded if not satisfied.

This model of the Russian lunik rocket which is now in orbit around the sun is on display in Czechoslovakia. Its gigantic size is shown by the model of the helicopter, shown by arrow beside it. In flight, the missile dropped off its clusters of orbit pods only until its nose cone was propelled by a small charge of fuel. The cone itself weighs 3,245 pounds, and could easily transport a couple of human passengers.

IGY Discoveries May Mean Better Weather Forecasts, Eventually Weather Control

Editor's Note: Will man ever control weather? And what about the Antarctic warming up? In this second of three stories on what the International Geophysical Year learned, an AP science writer assesses discoveries about weather, ice and the sea.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—The trouble with our weather could be that it behaves too much like people.

Little things often make humans blow their stacks.

And suspicions are mounting that little things may set off vast storms, droughts, floods, or changes in our climate.

The triggers could be flares on the sun, a ball of meteors, strange kinds of radiation, or other events.

Discovery of such triggering devices could well be one of the fantastic rewards from the worldwide studies of the International Geophysical Year.

MILLIONS OF YEARS

The earth has been wheeling around for millions of years. By this time, you might expect it to have worn down or become pretty stable in weather, says John Townsend of the U.S. National Aeronautical and Space Agency.

Our sun is very constant and steady in its output of heat and visible light.

But the sun does vary in its outbursts of x-rays and radiation from flares. Could these be triggers for mechanisms high in the atmosphere, which in turn affect surface weather? Do cosmic rays, or radiation leaking from magnetic traps above the earth heat up the air?

Astronomer Walter Orr Roberts of Boulder, Colo., is checking a theory that great electrical storms from solar flares influence a vital weather factory in Alaska.

Some flares could deepen weather troughs or lows so they sweep farther south than usual, bringing rain or snow to Texas rather than the Canadian prairies. Absence of flares—as the sun now is quieting down in its cycle—could mean severe droughts in the U.S. Southwest in 10 years or so.

Australia's E. G. Bowen proposes that dust from meteors supplies seeds for raindrop formation—meaning more rainfall a month or so after the earth intercepts a swarm of meteors.

Whatever the merit of such ideas, IGY is certain to produce far keener and more basic understanding of the why and how of our weather. That means better forecasts, perhaps eventual control of weather control.

Massed around the South Pole is the center of world influence—Antarctica. Ice is a factor in the balance of heat and water on earth, based on weather influence.

Adventurous scientists discovered Antarctica contains nearly half again as much ice as first suspected — ice averages about ½ miles thick over the region's 6,000,000 square miles. At one point in Marie Byrd Land ice lies nearly three miles deep.

Were it all suddenly to melt, seas would rise 300 feet or more, in disastrous floods.

NOT A CONTINENT

Antarctica was stripped of its icy masquerade—it's apparently not a continent after all, but an archipelago—a group of even two separate systems of islands and mountains.

Antarctic weather men at a station in ice Antarctic highlands recorded a record low temperature of 121 degrees below zero. But temperatures on any given day can vary 80 to 90 degrees between South Pole and coastal stations—as great as that ever between Miami and Winnipeg.

Signs were found that Antarctica is warming up, at least in places. Little America is about five degrees warmer now on the average than in 1912, reports Dr. Harry Wexler of the U.S. Weather Bureau.

At Spitsbergen in the Arctic, average winter temperature is 18 degrees warmer than 50 years ago, he adds.

Arctic studies find there is less ice in that region than half a century ago, that the Arctic is being bathed with far more show than Antarctica now.

Ocean currents shuttle vast amounts of the earth's heat from place to place.

Seagoing scientists discovered three vital ocean-circle flow-ing deep under the Gulf Stream, under the Pacific Equatorial Current, and another north of the Equator. They influence not only weather, but the growth marine life reserves of the oceans.

At sea and on land, they sought to learn weather mainly by making the earth grow warmer by the stupendous quantities of carbon dioxide released by burning coal and oil. This gas, if it keeps rising, eventually could exert a greenhouse, warming effect.

The preliminary verdict: All but two or three per cent of it is absorbed by the ocean.

Ships of many nations sounding the ocean depths discovered many new submerged mountains and valleys, recovered specimens of bottom life long thought extinct, charted water temperatures, density and salinity to determine the course of ocean currents and the speed with which cold bottom waters rise to replenish and fertilize sea life.

Drifting on a flimsy ice floe and ice island, daring scientists discovered a new mountain range rising from the Arctic ocean floor, a high plateau with steep drops, and mountains as jagged as the Rockies, took photographs of puzzling tracks made on the Arctic bottom by some strange sea life.

Sea topography can channel currents, and in the Arctic—where the Russians have long concentrated scientific studies—could also be essential for future submarine voyages under the ice cover.

And IGY brought a fabulous prospector's strike.

In the Southeast Pacific, oceanographers discovered a vast area of sea bottom is covered with a sludge of manganese, iron, cobalt and copper—worth perhaps $500,000,000 a square mile. It appears economically feasible to bring it up.

Solving the mystery of how and why it is there could supply important clues to past geologic history of the seas, in which life on earth began.

Bobby Boyd 7-5 Choice Over Holly Mims

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN, CHICAGO (AP)—Bobby Boyd, trying to regain the form that made him the No. 1 middleweight contender in 1956, is a 7-5 choice tonight against veteran Holly Mims.

The 10-rounder in Chicago will be scored under the five-point must system.

Boyd, a lanky 25-year-old Chicagoan who licked the top of the middleweight crop then skidded out of the rankings, counterpunched his way to victory over the crafty Mims in Chicago in 1956. Mims, 30, battled him to a draw in Miami Beach a year ago.

The Washington, D.C., battler went on in 1958 to score a surprising upset of highly - rated Spider Webb, Dick Sammy Walker and stop Johnny Cunningham. He now is ranked No. 7 by the National Boxing Association and No. 4 by Ring magazine.

NEW DESIRE

The odds favoring Boyd are banked on his renewed desire, an ingredient that evidently had been lacking at times in his unpredictable ring ventures. Boyd's defensive lapses have cost him six defeats by knockouts. But he has nailed 23 opponents in winning 51 bouts. He has dropped six decisions and fought three draws.

Last year was an up-and-down campaign for Boyd. He lost to Rory Calhoun, stopped Jimmy Morris, beat-by Jimmy Beecham, defeated Beechman in a rematch, then lighted Earl Sheppard. Mims doesn't have the punching power of Boyd, but he is a sharpshooter who can set his own pace and make an opponent follow it. In 10 years as a pro he never has been knocked out in compiling a 45-16-6 record. His victories include 11 knyocs.

Curtis Estimates $1,500,000 Gross From Two Pictures

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tony Curtis' business advisers have just told him that he made four times more money last year than Universal-International Studio.

That's the studio which first hired Curtis for $75 a week 10 years ago. Of course, last year was a rocky one for the studio but even at the comparison is amazing.

"I can remember not long after I started at U-I," Curtis recalls, "when one of the producers came over to get out of this business—that I had no future in it.

"I also remember telling him: 'I want to be a movie star. That's the only job I want.' I guess that singleness of purpose is what did it."

In one year Curtis shot from a U-I contract player to one of the golden boys who rule Hollywood.

Today estimates that he will gross $1,500,000 from two pictures alone—The Vikings and Kings of Paris. He is due for a healthy cut of The Defiant Ones, which has grossed for a $4,000,000-plus wide gross.

It's the picture that brought him his greatest critical acclaim.

"I knew when I read the script that it would be a critical success but I'm sure even Stanley Kramer never expected it to be commercial," he says.

PLAYS DAVID

Even Curtis' rare television appearances have that Midas touch. He made one last year about a matador who conquers fear. Coming up this month is one where he plays David, the young poor shepherd who conquers fear and slays the giant Goliath.

Curtis feels the picture that was the turning point in his career was Sweet Smell of Success. In it he played the worst kind of heel.

"It was my first outside picture and everybody warned me against doing it but it was my first critical success. And my golden year started with it."

INVITE CRONIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Cronin, Boston Red Sox general manager, has been invited to appear before a screening committee in Cooperstown, N.Y., Jan. 14 for naming a successor to Will Harridge as president of the American League.

Yank Youngsters Won't Have Training School

NEW YORK (AP)—Because of the recently completed Florida Winter Instructional League, the New York Yankees probably will not have a baseball training school for hopeful young farmhands.

The Yanks finished second, beaten one game by Kansas City, in the 46-game winter league that concluded its first season last month. Most of the players had been in the minor leagues, reporting to the winter league after a few weeks layoff.

So does have a school it will be very limited in scope," said Johnson, assistant farm director of the Yanks.

The original idea of the Yanks instructional school was to accelerate the progress of the most promising men in the farm system, perhaps skipping a year or two in the normal graduation process. However, in recent years they have been a mixture of confirmed veterans and rookies. Usually, Yanks' major league roster had triple A players, plus a smattering of class B and C players.

The most unusual double science shock show to chill movie-goers is offered in color's screen treat, "Giant from the Unknown" and "She Demons." Not only are they awe-inspiring and entirely different than anything seen before on the screen, but they are also equally topical as today's headlines.

"Giant from the Unknown" delves deep into the supernatural powers. A giant, supposedly dead for centuries, rises from his grave to wreak terror and death. "She Demons" chills the soul as a mad scientist changes beautiful maidens into terrifying beasts.

National League May Increase Waivers Price

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Hockey League, in a move aimed at discouraging farcial player transactions, has taken the first step forward increasing the waiver price from $15,000 to $25,000.

Clarence Campbell, the league president, met Tuesday with the six NHL owners to discuss what he termed, "our biggest problem of the moment."

The increase in the waiver price is the only realistic solution," Campbell told The Associated Press. "That Wally Hergesheimer deal looked very bad."

Campbell referred to last month's complicated manuevure in which Hergesheimer, a veteran wingman, was sold by the New York Rangers to the Montreal Canadiens on waivers. A week later, he was re-acquired by the Rangers once Montreal attempted to secure waivers without insisting on sending him to Rochester in the American Hockey League. Hergesheimer eventually was sent by Montreal to Buffalo of the AHL.

But not before the deal had thoroughly confused transportation officials, the player's wife and two young children and the four teams involved.

$25,000 DIFFERENT STORY

Montreal was willing to spend $15,000 for Hergesheimer to play for Rochester, Campbell said. "But I don't think anybody would have touched him if the price had been $25,000. Who's going to spend that kind of money to help a farm club?

"We must also make it simpler to get waivers in order to prevent juggling of players . . .

"There are two other possible solutions. The first one might be that if a club claims a player on waivers he would have to remain with that team for 30 days. The other is that the team claiming a player would have to put him on its protective list."

TV Had Share of Booboos During the Past Season

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK AP)—Many people admire polished performances, but the whole world loves a booboo. Television had its share in the year just past.

TV performers sometimes confide in close friends their most embarrassing moments on the air. But it took Jack Paar to rebroadcast his.

Paar's memorable slip was the wayward commercial in which a medicine dropper in his lap and sprayed the entire panel of the program. Paar's cover - up remark, as he drew his face: "I told you this was the most powerful pain remedy on the market."

MAY START NEW TREND

By re-showing the kinescopes of some of his booboos on his NBC-TV New Year's Eve show, Paar may have started a new programming trend. There's certainly a backlog of material to draw from.

Jack Lescoulie, for example, the production of Macbeth in which a stage hand was caught on camera as he set up a cauldron and thereby became the play's fourth witch. There was the production in which an actor labored frantically to light a fire and finally gave up with a muttered "damp wood!"

The most commonplace goofs are simple—but near disastrous—slips of the tongue, such as "it's low loosely," or "NBC presents Pinky Lee." One announcer who meant to say "We're down to our last pack of cigs," heard himself saying, "We're down to our last pack of pigs."

People frequently think the cameras are off them or the show ended before the moment has arrived.

At the end of the puppet show, "Art Carney meets Peter and the Wolf," not long ago, a figure rose and ran across the stage before fade-out. ABC President Oliver Treyz, waiting for the program, called, "Fire that man!" He thought because the man was not an ABC employee. He was master puppeteer Bil Baird, who thought he was helping out.

No anthology of goofs would be worthy of its name if left out the commercial on the Paar show in which an actor demonstrated an electric shaver.

Zsa Zsa Gabor, sitting beside Paar, murmured, "Don't cut off him."

Paar understandably disagreed. "It will not!" he shouted. "It won't cut anything!"

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"The goalkeeping will do, the defence is adequate, but we are going to need more help up front."

That was the opinion of Billy Reay, newly-appointed assistant general manager of the McFarlands after taking the weekend trip "around the horn" and watching the Maes in action three times.

"When Gordie Bell is right, he is good enough for overseas duty and he has an able assistant in Defence Jean Paul Lamirande in the field general of an adequate defence. What is needed is a fast-skating centre and a goal-scoring forward line," was the AGM's summary.

"The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association should do something about giving the club the necessary reinforcements, and it is hoped it will," Reay said.

He said he realized the market for top-flight senior hockey players was practically a closed one, and the only assistance lay in players of clubs eliminated in the OHA and NOHA playoffs rare.

BILLY REAY

He left the city Monday after receiving his appointment on a talent-hunting tour which will take him to western and northern Ontario. He also took in the Russia-Michigan State game in Detroit last night. "He will study the Red style of play closely, and talk some of their best players.

"I would like," Billy told this reporter, "to have the McFarlands hook up with the University of Toronto club, preferably in Belleville, to see how they would stack up against the club that defeated them Whitby Dunlops."

He said he would investigate the possibility of acquiring the services of one or two junior "A" centres at present with American college teams.

One is Billy Masterton, who played with the St. Michael club last year and is with the University of Colorado team at Denver.

The other centre is a player named Berenson who also is with an American college team. Berenson played with the Regina Pats against the Junior Canadiens in the Memorial Cup final last year, and caught the eye of Canadien officials.

"They offered him one of the fattest contracts ever dangled in front of a junior player," Reay said, "but the youngster turned it down and took an American scholarship."

Asked how the acquisition of another centre would affect the club, Billy mused, "we could trade a defenceman for one. It needs be. We have no less than six."

The forty-year-old AGM should know his hockey. Winnipeg-born he played his minor hockey out west before joining the Quebec Aces, then a senior amateur club. Turning pro he played two seasons with Omaha, two with Detroit, and gave eight of his best professional years in the livery of the Montreal Canadiens. His final playing days saw him with the Victoria Cougars for two seasons.

As was mentioned previously, and released by Mayor Gerald Hyde at his press conference, Reay takes over his duties immediately. His appointment has the unqualified approval of the Maes' management, and Senator J. McFarland.

The mayor pointed out that Reay will take some of the load off the shoulders of Manager Drury Devereaux, whose duties as city manager-city treasurer keep him extremely busy.

"Mr. Reay," he said, "will take the team to Europe and manage it for exhibition games and up to the time of the arrival of Manager Denyes."

Mr. Denyes, he pointed out, will arrive in Europe in time for the world tournament. He will be over there from March 1 to March 20.

"This," the mayor said, "is Mr. Denyes' own time and not that of the city. He did not take any vacation last year, and in giving it to this year's holidays in order to make the trip to Prague."

Player Dissension May Have Caused Boston Slump

Clique Formed to Undermine Coach Authority, Is Rumor; Waivers Give Story Impetus

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The hockey world has been deeply troubled by ugly reports of dissension in Boston Bruins' camp.

Few men here as widely respected in the National Hockey League as Boston coach Milt Schmidt and the news that a group of his players had formed a clique to undermine his authority and will apparently go unpunished has disturbed many observers' sense of fair play.

In addition there was a feeling of shock that this team—the toast of hockey a few months ago when they fought the mighty Montreal Canadiens almost to a standstill in the NHL playoffs—had disintegrated into bitter, bickering factions.

MAY EXPLAIN SLUMP

Undoubtedly some trouble has been brewing for some time and with the end of hindsight it can explain the reasons for the disturbing slump that saw Bruins lose 11 of their last 15 games and skid from second place to fifth place today.

The whole story will probably never be known to outsiders but supported by some named signs of trouble came Dec. 28 when Bruins lost 6-1 to Detroit and subsequently Dec. 29 fined Coach Schmidt to reporters.

They complained they weren't being played in their proper positions and in a later meeting with general manager Lynn Patrick they repeated their complaints and received some measure of backing from him.

At least that's one version.

Another Patrick denies he he didn't go over Schmidt's head, and that meeting with the players was made at Schmidt's request.

"Would you speak to the players and find out what's wrong" Patrick says he asked him.

FLAYERS FLABBERGASTED

And, Patrick continues, "I couldn't get anything out of the players about any dissension. The players were flabbergasted when I asked them about the stories of dissension."

The stories were given fresh impetus Tuesday when Patrick placed four players on waivers—Norm Johnson, Real Chevrefils, Larry Regan and Earl Riebel.

No one believes they were behind whatever dissension may have existed, since none is generally regarded as a club leader.

None has been producing much of late, but Johnson's decline dates from about the period of the team's slump.

Sadly, it may be the end of the big league road for some players if no other club is willing to pay the $15,000-per-player waive price for them.

LEAFS GRAB REGAN

Regan got a new lease on life shortly before the midnight deadline when he would have been waived out, as last-place Toronto Maple Leafs grabbed him in a move to give them more strength at centre.

All were players of some repute at one time or another in the not too distant past.

Riebel was the Lady Byng Trophy for his gentlemanly play with Detroit in 1956 and was regarded as one of the NHL's cleanest centres.

Chevrefils scored 21 goals only two seasons ago, was looked upon as a coming super-star, slumped badly the next year and was demoted to Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League for indifference and a cavalier disregard for training rules.

VON ROSEN AWAIT

Regan caught everyone's imagination in the 1956-57 season when he came out of obscurity to win the Calder Trophy as the league's best rookie. Now a knee injury has reduced him to part-time play.

Johnson replaced Chevrefils last season and was one of the leading contenders for the rookie award this year before the strange slump.

To replace them the Bruins called up two AHL forwards in what looked like a desperation move.

Larry Leach, a centre with Providence Reds, has scored 11 goal and nine assists in 35 games with Springfield last season and Gord Redahl a right winger, has not been burning up the league with Rochester Reds. Both were no lightly regarded Bruins loaned them out this season.

But Patrick sees a gleam of hope.

"A year ago at this same time, we won only two games out of 16 and finally recovered," he says with fingers crossed.

Quebec Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Aces haven't been paid for a week but you couldn't tell it by their performance Tuesday night.

The lowly Aces—whose management admitted Tuesday it owes all hands a week's pay and needs $10,000 to finish the season—rose up in Trois-Rivieres Tuesday night to smite the hometown Lions 8-3 and move from last place into third.

In an afternoon game the league-leading Montreal Royals ran true to form and beat the Chicoutimi Sagueneens 3-1 in Chicoutimi. That defeat, coupled with the Aces' win, dumped the Sags back into the league basement.

At Quebec the Aces plight was described by club president Dr. Bruce Cruickshank as more than the team must get $10,000 within a week.

He said when the present administration took over two years ago "we simply wanted to save home hockey. We were prepared to those moneda we've solemn to lose more," we have lost some. Unfortunately it is humanly impossible to lose more."

Unbeaten Swede May Wait for Title Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Sweden's Ingemar Johansson is undefeated, the European heavyweight champion and universally recognized as the No. 1 challenger to world titleholder Floyd Patterson. But he may be third in line for a crack at Patterson's crown this year—if he gets the shot.

Cus D'Amato, Patterson's estimate manager, hinted today that his protege may have a couple of title fights this year before he gets around to Johansson. That is, if he ever gets around to the hard-hitting Swede.

Was the first two possibilities are, Cus wouldn't say during a telephone interview. He did say that he considered Johansson and England's Henry Cooper worthy challengers. He said he had others in mind, too, but declined to name them.

What were Johansson's chances of getting a shot at Patterson?

"Johansson is not imperative to us," replied D'Amato. "We do not need Johansson. Johansson needs us."

The next move appeared to be up to Johansson.

Cooper Loses Pro Debut

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Australian tennis star Ashley Cooper made his professional debut Tuesday night. He played for nothing and lost.

Veteran Pancho Segura of Ecuador defeated the 28-year-old Cooper 8-3 in a one-set match that featured a testimonial program for popular Jack Crawford, sometime Aussie Davis Cup star.

A summary crowd of 12,000 paid about $21,000 to pay tribute to Crawford and to see Cooper, 8 under pressure.

Casey's New York Yankees Made Comeback of the Year

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—The comeback of the year in 1958 was made by New York Yankees in Milwaukee's County Stadium where they won the world series.

Trailing 3-1 after the fourth game, the Yanks scrambled back to win the fifth in New York and swept the last two in Milwaukee. Only the 1925 Pittsburgh Pirates ever had done this to the long favored champions in world series.

Sports writers and sportscasters of the United States gave the Yanks a sizable margin over Pittsburgh Pirates in the annual Associated Press' annual year-end poll. The Louisiana State University baseball team was a distant third, closely pressed by Boston's Pete Runnels who almost won the American League batting title and Robin Roberts who repeated his pitching punch at Philadelphia.

Of the 207 writers participating, 65 put the Yanks first. The Yanks total of 253 points on a 3-2-1 basis compared to Pittsburgh's total of 159 points, including 31 firsts.

UNUSUAL ROLE

The Yankees found themselves in an unusual situation as comeback winners. Normally, they are cast in the role of the heavily favored champs grinding some hapless opponent under their heels.

Milwaukee's 1957 series triumph and the Yanks' woeful performance in the first four games of the '58 series set up the comeback situation.

Bob Turley started it when he shut out the Braves 7-0 in the fifth game—then a day for travel, they went back to Milwaukee where Turley came back to get the final out in the 10th after a brilliant relief job by Ryne Duren, that saved the game for Ben Spahn pitched his heart out and lost.

All square now at 3-3 games, the Yanks finally broke up a tie battle with a four-run blast in the eighth inning of the seventh game with Turley once more shining on relief.

Pittsburgh earned its points with a cellar-to-second rise in the

Adams Says Imlach Won't Trade With Him

DETROIT (CP)—Jack Adams, dean of the National Hockey League managers, says George (Punch) Imlach, new manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, has refused to make any trades with his Detroit Red Wings.

"He says there is no point in making a deal with Detroit because I might blow the Wings beat Toronto out of the playoffs," Adams said. "That's a silly argument if I ever heard one. He's just scared to take a chance."

Imlach is reported to have been talking trades with other clubs in the league, but nothing has materialized yet.

"Imlach has three players he apparently considers a thing of material — defenceman Marc Reaume and Noel Price, and one of the Leaf brothers," Adams added. "He hasn't been playing them."

American Tennis Shake-Up Gave Olmedo His Big Chance

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Alejandro Olmedo of Peru may never have got his chance to win back the Davis Cup for the United States if there had not been a shakeup in the American tennis administration.

A year ago a powerful western block with support from the Middle West and the South seized the reins of the United States Lawn Tennis Association from the eastern group, which controlled the game for years.

Victor Denny, tall, bespectacled Seattle business man, was installed as president. George Barnes of Chicago became the first vice president and Edward Turgille of St. Petersburg, Fla., second vice president. Harold Labair of New York was one of the few influential easterners who hung on to the power.

The western group had been battling for a greater voice in tennis affairs for years. Although most of the game's top players came from California hard courts —Bill Tilden, Ellsworth Vines, Don Budge, Pancho Gonzales, Jack Kramer — westerners felt neglected as grass court men from the east controlled to maintain power.

A WIDE BROOM

Once in control after the 1958 coup, westerners began a general housecleaning. The broom was wide and in some cases unfeeling.

Denny announced the USLTA had for the first time become truly national and was ready to launch an aggressive and progressive policy.

One of its first acts, he said, would be the recapture of the Davis Cup and the man selected for the job was Perry T. Jones, 70-yearold longtime Los Angeles tennis executive.

This was a shock to tennis. William F. Talbert, captain since 1953, got the news of his dismissal in a terse telephone call.

The announcement of Jones' appointment was greeted with disbelief.

Some commented that he was too old for the worldwide journeys to Australia, that he wouldn't be able to sit at the courtside in the hot sun through two matches, and that with no tennis-playing background he would be useless as a tactician.

Jones himself demurred at first. He knew his limitations. For a quarter of a century he had been czar of tennis in southern California. It was from his hatchery that came such stars as Vines, Budge, Kramer, Gonzales and Mike and Bob Connolly.

NO TACTICIAN

But Jones never pretended he was a great tactician.

The first man he contacted was professional tennis player Jack Kramer, whom he asked to serve as his chief counsel. This meant a big sacrifice for Kramer. He had to leave his family two months early. He was forced to shift some of his professional responsibilities.

"But I couldn't turn Mr. Jones down," Kramer said. "He had done so much for me and so much for others through the years. He's never given a chance to keep quiet, and I had to do it."

Kramer became the chief counselor of the team. As such he threw all the resources of his world - wide - encompassed, well - organized behind the Davis Cup campaign. And before the campaign started it was Kramer and his pros who had taken charge and developed the team into a keen fighting unit.

INSISTED ON OLMEDO

Kramer insisted right through Olmedo's selection over, heated arguments in high councils of tennis. Moffett, chairman of the Davis Cup selection committee, was dead set against the use of a foreigner, fearing public criticism, and he was backed by most of the committee over.

Olmedo, a student at the University of Southern California, had been under Jones' wing and Jones knew he had been sold on his potentiality.

Jones and his board of strategy kept faith in Olmedo even when most observers, including Australian captain Harry Hopman, ridiculed his selection for the singles over top-ranked Ham Richardson.

Jones struck to his guns and came out a hero as Olmedo flayed and ulti all three winning points against the favored Aussies.

The victory was a victory for the new administration, which now solidifies its position in the next step may be a Davis Cup challenge round on the Pacific Coast, possibly in Los Angeles.

That's what Perry T. Jones wants, and what he wants he usually gets.

Quebec Aces In Bad Straits Says Player

VANCOUVER (CP)—Defenceman Nelson Bulloch says Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League have fallen on financially bad times and players with the professional club have been getting only part of their salaries during recent weeks.

"We were being paid only part of our salaries," said Bulloch, who arrived here during the weekend to join New Westminster Royals of the Western Hockey League.

"Crowds were so bad," he said in an interview, "I don't think Joe Crozier, our manager, could have done anything else, but it was still tough on the players."

Bulloch said that last Friday, the day he left Quebec City to come west, the club's players called a meeting and demanded that Crozier pay up all salaries in full within two games or place them elsewhere in pro hockey.

Bulloch said Crozier and Punch Imlach, Toronto Maple Leafs general manager, are 51-per-cent owners of the Aces.

"They have threatened to take the club out of Quebec City if crowds don't get better," he said. "But there are a couple of millionaires in the town who don't have to buy the franchise. I don't know why they don't sell out."

Aces, in last place in the QHL, are averaging about 1,500 persons a game in their 16,000-seat Civic Auditorium. It was built during John Beliveau's amateur days to accommodate tremendous crowds who flocked to see the centre-ice star.

Beliveau now is with Montreal Canadiens of the National League.

Bulldogs Upset Chatham 5-4, Hounds Trounce Trappers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons muffed a chance to regain leadership of the OHA Senior A race Tuesday night and it may have been a costly affair.

The surprising Windsor Bulldogs, in fifth place but not acting like it, upset Chatham 5-4 for their fourth win in a row against top-ranking clubs.

Chatham still trails Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen by a single point. Kitchener has a chance to widen the margin in a game against Windsor tonight with Chatham idle.

At North Bay Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds picked up their first win in four road games by trouncing the Trappers 8-3. The result kept the Soo two points up on Windsor and pushed North Bay deeper into the cellar.

HENRY SCORES DOUBLE

A delighted crowd of 1,967 Windsor fans saw defencemen Elmer Henry and Ron Stewart edge with the only goal of the third period — a rebound which snapped Jerry Toppazzini outside the Chatham goal crease.

Lou Bendo scored twice for Windsor with assists from Ottendale and Bob Brown rounding out the Bulldogs' scoring. Cpl. Terry Power, Jim Connelly and Bob Master clicked for Chatham.

Don McLaren led the Soo scoring splurge with two, the rest going to Ted McBurney, John Gallidan, Jim Farrell, Tom Walker, Gary Venna and John Lumley.

Captain Stan Skerwich, Ken Gribbons and Jim Mikol scored for North Bay.

Tempers Flare In Aussie Tennis Match

PERTH (AP) — Americans Barry MacKay and Earl Buchholz swept into the semi-finals of the Western Australian tennis championships today in matches marked by short tempers and flashy rackets.

MacKay crushed Ulf Schmidt of Sweden 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, Buchholz won over Spain's Ilie Nastase 6-3, Arilla, 7-5, 6-4, 5-7, 7-5.

Players were bothered by the intense heat and pesky flies. They showed their impatience with occasional outbursts and outbarrages.

In the second set MacKay missed an easy shot and swung his racquet arm in anger. The racquet flew 30 feet and into the crowded stands about six rows up. The spectators ducked and no one was hit. MacKay shamefacedly looked into the crowd and apologized.

Some of the crowd, however, began to laugh.

After winning the match MacKay walked to the stands and made an apology. He came to the press quarters to explain it was all a regretable accident.

Russians Win Over Michigan By 7-3 Score

DETROIT (AP) — Russia's touring hockey team took on another American foe Tuesday night with the same familiar result.

The Soviets defeated 7-3 a combined Michigan - Michigan State collegiate team composed mainly of Canadians who had played the game since boyhood. The collegians were unable to cope with the Russians' faster skating and sharper passing.

Jack Adams, Detroit Red Wings' general manager, was among the 6,783 who watched the game. He had high praise for the Soviet team.

"These Russians are wonderful stickhandlers and skaters and playmakers, but I wonder how they would stand up against professional bodychecking."

The victory kept the Russians unbeaten in four games on their visit to the United States. They previously had tied and beaten the U.S. Nationals twice.

Led by Alexis Guryahev, the Russians had more stamina than the younger collegians. Guryahev, 31, skated like a veteran, launched rocket and tallied twice. He assisted on two of his teammates' goals.

The well - conditioned visitors waited until the 11:22 mark of the first period before scoring on a 60-footer by Nic. Solnzev, the 24-year-old Russian captain.

The lead lasted only a minute before Michigan - State's Dick Hamilton, a native of Sarnia, tied the score. The stalemate continued until the six-minute mark of the second period.

Then the Russians went into orbit around the collegians' net and tallied four times in 10 minutes. Each club scored twice in the final period.

The other collegiate goals were fired by Dale MacDonald of Saskatoon and Joe Poloso of Sudbury in the third period. Poloso and Hamilton each picked up an assist.

Four of Russia's goals came when the collegians were shorthanded because of penalties. Seven penalties were called, four on the Russians.

They were to depart today for Colorado where they meet Colorado College Friday and Denver University Saturday.

Teepees Tie Biltmores 5-5; Petes Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The league-leading St. Catharines TeePees kept up their five-point pace in OHA Junior A hockey night but as usual, couldn't defeat Guelph Biltmores on Bills' home ice.

TeePees have yet to win on Guelph ice this season. Tuesday night the clubs tied 5-5 in OHA Junior A action. A tie to Biltmore fans means a win for their club is looking for—they've seen it in 19 games.

At Barrie, Flyers lost a chance to take over fifth place as they were edged by Peterborough Petes 3-1.

The TeePees, who have scored 150 goals in 29 games, were in front 3-4 with two minutes left when Leon Rochefort scored for Guelph. With just 12 seconds left, Don McGregor, who picked up three scoring points, and Jean Ratelle made it 2-0 for Guelph after the first with Fred Hillis and Doug Robinson scoring for TeePees and Larry Favero for Bilts in the second.

Eno Kraft made it 4-2 early in the third but TeePees quickly counted three in a row by Wayne Hillman, Terry McGuire and Stan Miklita.

At Barrie, Flyers opened fast with Larry Jones, who had gained from Guelph, scoring on a pass from Danny Patrick. Peterborough's Carl Roberts blasted home a screened shot from the blueline at 11:35 of the first period to tie.

With less than two minutes remaining in the second period, Wayne Boddy slapped home a shot from the point that Barrie net for the win. The teams were combined in a hard-checking final period.

Two Groups Seek Franchise Of B.C. Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition from at least 18 directors and most football writers has apparently thwarted attempts to purchase the British Columbia Lions.

The Lions, Western Interprovincial Football Union last-placers in 1958 but a box-office hit since they entered the WIFU in 1953, now find their franchise is being sought by at least two private groups.

A decision on selling the club is to be made tonight at the Lions' annual meeting here.

Voting rights are held by some 2,000 members who put up $20 each to help the Lions gain a WIFU franchise five years ago. Proxy voting is not allowed.

Election of 12 directors for two-year terms and one for a one-year period will also be carried out. The club constitution calls for a minimum of 24 and maximum of 30 directors. Now there are 25.

TO CHANGE NAME

Members will seek a change in the team's official name to British Columbia Football Club from the Vancouver WIFU Football Club.

Four constitutional resolutions will also be studied.

Nine directors will seek re-election. Others include Bill Belvin former general manager of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers; Neil Colville, one-time NHL star, and Hilliard Lyle, a Royal Canadian Golf Association governor.

Groups seeking to purchase the Lions have campaigned vigorously for three weeks. They say private control would give the club stability, better management and more and better American imports.

Harry Spring, Lions president, said charges of poor management are false. He said there is complete harmony among the directors.

Spring added that claims that more and better Americans would be obtained by private owners are foolhardy. The only method is to go out and scout them as now is done.

BENEFIT MATCH

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor and Detroit police will clash it out Saturday night at Windsor Arena in a benevolent hockey match to raise funds to assist widows of police officers killed in action. At stake will be the Const. George Smith Memorial Trophy. The cup was donated and the annual games initiated last year to aid the widow and children of Const. Smith, killed in an auto accident while escorting a patient to the Ontario Hospital at St. Thomas.

Greaves Wins 12th in Row

DETROIT (AP)—Wilf Greaves, Canadian middleweight champion, won his 12th straight fight Tuesday night, stopping Otis Woodard of New York in the eighth round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

The Edmonton - born fighter dropped Woodard for a count of eight in the seventh round. From then until the end of the round, Greaves pounded his opponent at will.

Referee Lou Jallos stopped the fight after the seventh round.

Greaves was well ahead on points when the bout was called. Both fighters weighed 162 pounds.

Windsor to Get First Revolving Grandstand

WINDSOR (CP)—City council has approved construction of what is thought will be North America's first revolving grandstand.

Council gave its approval for building the stand, which will seat 2,200, and at the same time approved an agreement with the board of education to lease Windsor Stadium, a property adjacent to Jackson Park, the site of the new grandstand.

The estimated cost of the grandstand plus a new bandshell in the park, not yet approved, is $200,000.

The new grandstand will be built in two sections on wheels. It will provide seating for athletic events in Jackson Park and can be swung around on its tracks to provide seats for bandshell programs in the park.

Eastern Senior A League Scoring Statistics

Bobby Attersley of the Whitby Dunlops, held to a pair of assists during the past week, saw team-mate Sid Smith parrot the cup in the OHA Eastern Senior "A" League points race and take over the lead in the goal-scoring department.

Attersley still tops all in points with 51, but Smith had three goals and as many assists to gain on the leaders. Smith has 50 points, including 24 goals, one more than Attersley. Attersley leads in assists with 33.

Kingston's Moe Savard is in third slot with 44, just two points ahead of Belleville playing-coach Ike Hildebrand. Low Sumac of the McFarlands moved into fifth with 39, including 21 goals, while Kingston Coach Ron Garneau is sixth with 38 points.

Bob Boucher of Hull, took over seventh place with 36. Close behind are John McLellan and Paul Payette, of Belleville, with 35 each and George Samolenko, Whitby; Jim Maxwell, Kingston, with 34 points apiece.

John Henderson, Whitby, tops the goalies' race with a 2.24 goals-against average. He is tied with Gordie Bell, Belleville, and Lynn Davis, Kingston, in shutouts. Each man has a pair.

German Leads Chess Tourney

HASTINGS, Eng. (CP)—Wolfgang Uhlmann of East Germany maintained his lead in the Hastings international chess tournament Tuesday with a brilliant eighth-round victory over Leonard W. Barden of England.

The Leipzig master gained his seventh consecutive point after having drawn on the opening day, for a total score of 7½-1½.

Barden was unable to withstand Uhlmann's king-side attack, which ended with the sacrifice of the queen after 31 moves.

Cougars Win Over Spokane

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victoria Cougars fought their way back into coast division prominence with a 4-3 overtime win over visiting Spokane Flyers in one of two Western Hockey League games Tuesday night.

The Cougars win puts them in a tie for second spot on the coast, level with Vancouver Canucks and five points behind Seattle Totems.

In the other game, Totems were unable to overcome a three-goal, first-period deficit against prairie-leading Edmonton Flyers, and fell 3-2 against their prairie opponents.

Sixteen Persons Burned To Death In Oklahoma Fire

15 Bodies Piled On, Around Rear Room Bed

BOSWELL, Okla. (AP) — Sixteen persons, 15 of them children or teen-agers, died tonight in a roaring fire in a four - room wooden home.

All the bodies except that of one child were piled on and around a bed in a rear room which had no outside door.

Apparently someone accessfully pushed the one child out a window before succumbing. But the child was dead.

The victims were Mrs. Ara Gardner, 38; her 10 children; three orphaned nieces; and a visiting nephews from Oklahoma City.

Boswell is a town of about 1,000 in southern Oklahoma, about 20 miles east of Durant.

SAW BODIES

Constable A. B. Richburg of Boswell told of sighting the bodies.

All the victims were Negroes.

Booker Gardner, the father told reporters in the corridor of the Paris, Tex., News, that he started on a hunt about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night and returned at 2 a.m. Thursday with him was a nephew from Oklahoma City, who was visiting in the home.

Gardner is a day laborer in this southern Oklahoma town of about 1,000 population near Hugo.

He listed 10 children.

His wife; their 10 children: Juanita, 15; Easter, 13; Isaac, 11; Larry, 9; Louise, 8; Gwen, 7; Ornie, 5; John Anthony (Joe), 2; Patricia Ann and Patricia Jan, six-week-old twins.

Three nieces, children of Mrs. Gardner's sister, Mrs. May Ruth Haddix: Bobbie Woolbright, 611; Peggy Sue Ward, 10; and Linda Kay Ward, 4. Mrs. Haddix was killed in an automobile accident last spring.

Two nephews visiting from Oklahoma City: Ronald Frazier, 9, and Freddie Webb, 12.

The volunteer fire department could only use a pumper truck because no fire hydrant was within usable distance. The nearest water trips to obtain water.

Constable Richburg, who drove the first truck to the fire, said the roof had collapsed before firemen arrived. By that time it was obvious there was no help for the victims.

Gardner said when he left for his hunting trip, two stoves, burning wood, were in use. Richburg said he believed the disaster was caused by the stoves. He said the fire apparently quickened when the fire was discovered and rushed into one room.

DEATH TOLL

Temperature at the time was 20 degrees, Richburg said, hot enough to cause the family to keep the stoves burning late into the night.

Almost in shock and his face haggard, Gardner cried over and over:

"My Lord, my Lord, my Lord."

He would then apparently unable to comprehend immediately the disaster that struck his family.

He received the news at the home of his brother-in-law, who drove him to the disaster scene.

Woman Drives Hard Bargain With Burglar

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The gunman who held up Mrs. Virginia Macmonagle learned that she drives a hard bargain.

He demanded her purse when he yanked open the door of her car.

"How about my wallet, instead?" she asked.

Apparently surprised, the thief didn't object. Mrs. Macmonagle went a step further.

"No, wait, I'll just give you the three dollars inside of it," she ventured. "No, just two dollars. I need the . . . "

But the gunman had had enough. He grabbed the $3 and ran.

Michel Debre Is Named New French Premier

PARIS (CP) — President de Gaulle today appointed Michel Debre, 45, as the new French premier.

The appointment of Debre, pro-Gaullist senator and architect of the new French constitution, came shortly after de Gaulle himself was installed as first president of the Fifth Republic.

Debre, a fiery constitutional lawyer, was called to the Elysee Palace almost immediately after de Gaulle's return to the presidential residence following the ceremonies which elevated him from the premiership to the presidency.

Debre, justice minister in the old government de Gaulle headed from 1944 to 1946, is expected to announce the names of his cabinet tonight.

DE GAULLE'S PLEDGE

As Gen. de Gaulle became president today, he pledged that during his seven-year term he will impose an iron hand on the public good demands.

Cries of "Vive de Gaulle" came from thousands lining the broad Champs Elysees as he drove up the avenue in an open car after taking office. The 68 - year - old warrior-hero French leader stood stiff and erect in a brisk wind and nippy 42 degrees temperature.

At the Arch of Triumph de Gaulle and his wife placed a wreath on the eternal flame that marks the tomb of the unknown soldier.

The mood of the crowd was serious as Gaulle became the first president after ruling France with a firm hand for seven months a premier. He took office as president with more power than any French chief of state since Napoleon III was deposed in 1870.

PROBING REPORTS YOUTHS GETTING, USING NARCOTICS

Use of Drugs Seen In Trafalgar Twp.

TRAFALGAR, Ont. (CP)—Township police and RCMP narcotics squad members today continued a full-scale investigation of reports that teenagers in this community between Toronto and Hamilton have been buying and using narcotics.

First news of the investigation was revealed Wednesday by Police Chief Fred Oliver who said extensive undercover probes by an RCMP narcotics squad had established that teen-agers here "like almost anyone else" use the drug.

Chief Oliver said his department does not intend to alarm the public in this township of 18,000 because there is no evidence of the widespread use of drugs. "We have, however, to stop this before it does reach major proportions," he said.

"We have reason to believe that marijuana is being used among the teen-agers," Chief Oliver said. "We expect to have conclusive evidence as to the source of supply in the near future."

12 QUESTIONED

At least 12 youngsters have been questioned and more will report to police in the days ahead. Several high school students were among those questioned, but there was no evidence to suspect students.

Chief Oliver asked for co-operation of all parents in obtaining information. He warned them to watch their children closely.

"Dope peddlers become recessive and distributors fail to need drugs and become extremely calm after taking them," he said. "Another sign to watch for is increased demands for money to obtain the drug.

"These youngsters don't realize the seriousness of dope addiction and the consequences," he said.

Marcus Auden, chairman of the Oakville-Trafalgar High School Board offered assistance of that body in the probe.

The Oakville-Trafalgar - Bronte Recreation Committee also said it would join high school officials to sponsor an education program on the dangers of narcotics use.

Committee chairman James Brockie said an expanded recreation and education program would form a great deterrent.

MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

In a joint statement Rev. Roy Grant, the Rev. Father Lesheran Church and president of the Oakville-Trafalgar—Ministerial Association, and Rev. Terry, minister of St. John's Anglican Church and past president of the OTMA said:

"If it is there it must be dealt with. We recognize the seriousness and the police are to be commended for the strong steps they have taken in exposing the situation."

Marijuana is prepared from an Indian hemp plant and can be smoked or made into an infusion and drunk. It is said to affect the user's sense of timing and distort his vision.

DENY UPRISING REPORTS

Canada's Trade Deficit Is Slashed As Imports Down Half a Billion

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's trade deficit with all countries was slashed sharply during the first 11 months of 1958 as commodity imports declined by almost $500,000,000 and exports remained relatively unchanged from the corresponding period in 1957.

However, the bureau of statistics reported today that November imports rose slightly to the second-highest monthly total of the year, and that the 11-month period was the first in October after steady monthly declines for the preceding 12 months.

The trade deficit—excess of imports over exports—was cut by more than half to $289,300,000 in the 11-month period from a deficit of $748,600,000 a year earlier.

Imports from all countries in the 11-month period decreased nine per cent to $4,789,500,000 from $5,230,900,000 in the corresponding period to 1957. Exports at $4,480,200,000 were almost unchanged from $4,482,300,000.

In November, imports rose slightly to $437,200,000 from $450,600,000 a year earlier an excess of imports over exports in the month of $46,500,000 compared with a deficit a year earlier of $103,200,000.

Exports to Britain and other Commonwealth countries during the 11-month period were slightly less than those with the United States but other countries were down. The only import increase was from Canada's imports from other Commonwealth countries, the United States and all other countries declined.

Exports to Britain rose to $712,100,000 from $703,100,000 in period from $878,200,000, but during November slipped to $72,500,000 from $74,100,000 a year earlier.

The decline in exports to the United States, Canada's biggest customer, was noticeable in both periods as they dropped to $2,761,700,000 in the 11-month period from $2,895,900,000 and to $239,600,000 in November from $256,600,000.

Liberated from a Havana jail after the arrival of Fidel Castro's troops, a rebel prisoner is treated for injuries he said were inflicted when beaten by the secret military police of exiled President Batista. A medical aid station, set up by Castro's followers, is being kept busy.

Think Mechta Rocket in Orbit At Top Speed of 72,000 MPH

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists figure the space rocket Mechta now is in orbit around the sun. They predict it will reach its top speed of 72,000 miles an hour next Wednesday.

They expect the peak velocity to be reached when missile gets to the point nearest the sun, a distance figured at about 91,500,000 miles, in its elliptical orbit.

"At that moment it will reach its maximum speed of more than 32 kilometres (about 20 miles) a second," the official Soviet news agency Tass said.

This will be nearly triple the speed at which the rocket was launched last Friday.

According to Russian calculations, the rocket Wednesday had gone more than 621,000 miles on a direct line from the earth. Tass said this distance between earth and Mechta would increase at "a terrific pace since the earth and the artificial planet are diverging in the cosmos."

The Soviet reports on the rocket's position and what it is doing now are all based on calculations, Radio contact was lost Monday.

Anatoly A. Blagonravov, a member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, was quoted in a Tass report as saying:

"The rocket and the Russian expect to land men on Venus and Mars in September.

The Afrikaans weekly Landstem said Blagonravov told the London correspondent in a telephone interview that the next step by Soviet scientists will be to "launch a scientist in a planet to at least 400 miles above the earth."

Blagonravov added:

"The man will have control over the planet and will be supplied with water and food in tablet form. He will send coded radio messages back to earth if anything goes wrong and he is unable to return."

Blagonravov said the Russians expect to land a rocket—presumably unmanned—on Venus and Mars in June, and to follow this up by sending men to the two planets.

He also was quoted as saying the Soviet Union hopes to send scientists to the moon and back by the end of the year.

Blagonravov is reported to have identified the man chosen to make the first flight into space as Ivan Igorsky, 30, a 6-foot-2 bachelor who weighs 180 pounds.

Govt. Undecided Whether To Extend Emergency Powers

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hasn't decided yet whether to ask Parliament for an extension of the emergency powers it assumed in August when it met the Commons four years ago.

The section of the Emergency Powers Act that give Defence Production Minister O'Hurley authority to step up production for defence purposes expire about the end of June.

When the former liberal government sought in 1955 to have these powers made permanent, the Progressive Conservative opposition strongly opposed this move in a debate that went on sporadically for more than a month.

The upshot was quick approval after a concession by then Prime Minister St. Laurent, who agreed to a three-year time limit being placed on the powers. Previously, Defence Production Minister C. D. Howe had resisted attempts to set a time limit.

It has been learned on good authority that the cabinet hasn't yet considered whether to ask for a further extension of the powers at the session of Parliament opening next Thursday.

The powers permit the minister to force producers of defence supplies to take government contracts. He can requisition supplies, appoint controllers to operate defence industries and order investigations into defence contracts.

The state of international affairs during the next few months will be a big factor in the government's decision on these powers.

Supreme Court Battle on Over Toronto Subway

TORONTO (CP)—Three subway-bonus municipalities Wednesday filed an appeal with the Supreme Court of Canada against the method of financing the proposed $200,000,000 east-west subway.

Documents were served on the Toronto Transit Commission, Metropolitan Toronto Council and the Ontario municipal board.

The Ontario legal firm, acting for the solicitors of the municipalities of Long Branch, New Toronto and Mimico, served the appeal to the Supreme Court registrar.

Charles Walton, TTC chairman, said the publicly-owned commission has nothing to offer the three suburbs which might prevent a Supreme Court battle.

Starving Drought Victims Seek Food and Work

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — (Reuters) — Hordes of starving drought victims with emaciated children are straggling into towns in northeast Brazil seeking food and work, according to radio reports reaching here. One report said:

"Ragged mobs, stumbling and staggering from hunger and thirst, are marching on several towns in the northeastern states dragging skeleton-like children by withered hands."

The northeastern towns have asked for soldiers to help protect them against invasion and the sacking of their scanty food supplies by starving mobs.

HYDRO WORKERS WILL PRESENT REDUCED DEMAND

Talks to Reopen On Deadlocked Issue

TORONTO (CP) — A reduced wage demand by 10,000 Ontario Hydro employees was to be presented to management today at a reopening of talks on a deadlocked wage dispute.

Keeley Hemmings, president of the Ontario Hydro Employees Union, said Wednesday night the union is prepared to reduce demands for a 34-per-cent wage boost in each year of a two-year contract.

He did not give details of the new union offer but said a similar concession by Hydro management would produce a settlement.

The public utility has offered a 14-per-cent increase in each year of a two-year deal. Hydro spokesmen have noted that the increase would be in addition to a three-per-cent cost of living allowance which became effective last April 3.

Reports circulated here Wednesday that the Ontario government was preparing to break the strike by the Hydro workers, who voted heavily in favor of such action last month if their demands were not met.

GIVEN FREE HAND

Labor Minister Daley is said to have been given free hand to settle the dispute, which is now in the strike stage. The government is reported to be reluctant to impose compulsory arbitration on the groups.

Mr. Daley earlier this week asked the disputants to meet him today but the union said it preferred to meet the Ontario Hydro which had been previously arranged.

Mr. Cummings called the labor minister's intervention "untimely."

The union has a strike vote which would set power at 25 per cent but maintain services to homes, hospitals institutions and emergency services.

However, the hydro commission said such a distinction between services is impossible because power is supplied wholesale to municipalities for distribution and municipal hydro workers are not involved in the dispute.

Average wage rate at Hydro is $2.16 an hour.

Sludge Blocks Main Water System Intake

NORTH TONAWANDA, N.Y.) AP)—The 35,000 residents of this city in western New York boiled their drinking water today after the ice sludge in the Niagara River blocked the main water system intake.

Schools were closed and many industrial establishments curtailed operations after Mayor John F. Kopczynski declared a state of emergency Wednesday.

Some factories were allowed to operate. Public baths and cafeteria remained shut down.

Householders also turned to bottled water for drinking purposes.

Engineers were attempting to melt the ice sludge and had restored water pressure to about two-thirds of normal.

But emergency measures remained in force.

Official said contamination from the ground surrounding water mains and from nearby sewer lines could be developed in while the mains were empty.

Execute Fifteen Batista Officers, Many To Be Tried

Castro Starts Clean-Up, Nearly 1,100 Arrested

HAVANA (AP) — Speedy "war crimes" trials for followers of fallen dictator Fulgencio Batista have begun in Cuba. Fifteen military officers already have been executed.

Provisional President Manuel Urrutia said thousands of persons will be tried by revolutionary courts in "the same manner as war criminals were tried in Germany." They will be charged with crimes against the Cuban people.

Some of the accused still are being sought, Urrutia told a press conference Wednesday night. At least 1,100 persons have been reported arrested since Batista fled to the Dominican Republic a week ago and military rebel leader Fidel Castro proclaimed Urrutia as provisional president.

GUNFIRE IN HAVANA

Gunfire flared briefly in Havana again Wednesday night. Machine-guns and other automatic weapons fired for about 15 minutes as rebel militia pursued several carloads of men who had been shooting at random.

The militia said they were trying to eliminate diehard Batista supporters, including Batista's chief bodyguard Rolando Masferrer.

Masferrer fled by yacht to Key West, Fla. Minister of Public Recovery Luis Buch said, Cuba will demand his extradition on charges of taking away $17,000,000 belonging to the people. U.S. customs officials said Masferrer's arrival 36 men had about $90,000 when it landed. The men were put on parole to the Miami immigration office.

DRINK SALES BANNED

The government banned sales of alcoholic drinks in Havana today in expectation that Castro finally would reach the capital. Officials hoped the ban would prevent heavy drinking that might add to the unstable security situation.

Castro reached Matanzas, 60 miles east of Havana, Wednesday on his slow progress through the island.

Urrutia avoided comment on reports that Communists were theirs. Castro has been quoted by a Havana newspaper as saying he thought Cuba should avoid diplomatic relations with Communist countries.

Both the United States and British extended diplomatic recognition to Urrutia's government Wednesday. More than half a dozen Latin American nations had done so earlier.

GUARANTEE INVESTMENTS

Full guarantees for foreign investments were pledged by Urrutia. He added that Cuba wanted to be sure the investments benefit the people.

Castro said his government would respect "all international agreements on rights of asylum." Batista and his family and others left in the lurch when the dictator suddenly fled early New Year's Day, have taken refuge in Latin-American embassies.

Trials of Batista men charged with brutally beating prisoners and in some cases even killing them began Wednesday in Santiago in eastern Cuba. Authorities said 10 officers were executed in Santiago, including Batista's chief of operations in Oriente province, Cor. Arcadio Casillas Lumpuy.

Five other military men were executed in Santa Clara. They included a police inspector, Lt.-Col. Cornelio Rojas, charged with torturing prisoners.

Jewelry Found Turns Out to Be Fine Diamonds

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Deputy Rupert Loza picked up a piece of what he thought contained jewelry in the mud near a hotel Wednesday.

He gave it to his young daughter, who tied it to her favorite rag doll.

Then Mrs. Loza decided to check the lost and found ads. The loss was advertised — with a $50 reward.

The bracelet was platinum with 21 diamonds, valued at $4,000.

The Lozas returned it to the owner and collected the reward.

No Room at Victoria Private Club For Chinese-Canadian at Christmas

VICTORIA (CP) — The third complaint of color discrimination in Victoria within a month was filed Wednesday with the Victoria-born Chinese-Canadian said he was barred from two private clubs.

Grand King said in an interview that he was refused a Christmas at a club New Year's Eve tell a member of the club who suggested he take Mr. King inside: "Get that Chinaman out of here."

At the other club, he said, he went inside Christmas Eve with a member but was asked to leave after one drink.

"What color is a Canadian, anyway?" Mr. King asked. "Does he have to be an Anglo-Saxon, or what?"

Frances Woodburn, doorman at the first club, said he couldn't remember calling Mr. King a Chinaman, but said all private clubs in town restrict members and guests to whites over 21 years.

"You have to give the members a little protection," Mr. Woodburn said in an interview.

"They want to be able to sit down and have a drink without a Hindu or anything coming up to them. This is a nice clean place and there's never any trouble, and that's the way we want to keep it."

Frederick Richardson, manager of the second club, said new members in the club are asked to reread the color clause in the club rules "and they get the idea."

"The whole situation can be embarrassing," he said. "We don't treat anything like that."

Report Will Be Sent Makers Of Subway Cars

TORONTO (CP) — W. E. P. Duncan, industrial manager of the Toronto Transit Commission, said Wednesday night a full report on charges made against TTC management by former commission chairman Allan Lamport will be sent to the British firms which built Toronto's subway cars.

The Railway Carriage and Wagon Company, which built the cars, should be informed of the charges.

It is up to the company to determine whether it will send officials to Toronto, he said. A similar report will go to the firm of Metropolitan Cather and Company Limited of Chicago, which produced subway consultants.

Charles Walton, who succeeded Mr. Lamport as commission chairman, said the TTC and general manager will hinge on opinion to Urrutia Mr. Duncan presents to the commission in 30 days as a reply to Mr. Lamport's accusations.

Worker's Body Found at Bottom Of Gas Tank

WELLAND (CP)—The body of a 33-year-old chemical worker was found Wednesday at the bottom an open gas recovery tank at the B. F. Goodrich Canada Limited rubber company plant here. Robinson, five miles north of here.

Police said preliminary details of that Earl Strawn of Welland, number two operator on a midnight shift. Coroner Dr. Malcolm MacLean has ordered a post mortem examination.

Shift foreman James Dunn discovered the body hours after a coroner's jury had recommended stricter enforcement of safety regulations at the Port Robinson plant.

The jury was inquiring into the death of 21-year-old John Hague, found dead in a closed gas recovery tank at the plant Nov. 15.

The children were found by a neighbor, Dr. Jean Turner, who took them down and telephoned the police. A certified respiration saved a fifth child.

Population Well Along Road to 18 Million Mark

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's population is well along the road to the 18,000,000 mark and likely will come within a few hundred thousand of that figure by the end of 1959.

The first estimate of the country during this year and there is no unusual fluctuation of the natural increase both births and deaths—the 18,000,000 mark probably will be passed about mid 1960.

Immigration is likely to be the largest factor in population change. The rate of natural increase usually remains stable but the immigration figure is the immigration policy to the economic climate.

During 1958, immigration fell off to a below-average 122,000 reaching, for the sixth consecutive recession and high unemployment of the early part of the year.

Employment Picture Brighter Than at Comparative Time Last Year Says Cecil Huiser

Due to a great extent to the "Do It Now" campaign and to the municipal winter works programme, the employment picture at Belleville Employment office when the number of unplaced job applicants at the end of December was less than at the same time last year.

The number of unplaced applicants as of the December 31st was 2201, or 1685 male and 230 females, as compared with 2205 a year ago.

The reduction in the number of unplaced applicants for year of unplaced applicants for year ending December 31st, 1957 was 317 as compared with 159 a year ago.

"I feel that this increase has been due to the enthusiastic co-operation by employers in our employment activities in the "Do Now" phase of the winter employment campaign during the months of November and December," said Mr. Huiser said

DRIVE TO CONTINUE

He noted the second phase of the campaign "Do It Now" is now underway with the response in support of the campaign "getting good and very encouraging."

The "Do It Now" campaign will continue to the end of March.

Home improvement loans are available at banks if required.

Under the municipal winter works plan approved by the government's weekly offerings of 91-day treasury bills has been raised $135,000,000 from $115,000,000. There are five weekly offerings in February.

Officials said the government expects to revert back to $115,000,000 weekly offerings in February. Treasury bills provide a quick way for the government to raise funds to tide it over for a short period of time. The maximum interest has to be repaid in 91 days.

The bills are purchased by banks, investment dealers and other financial groups on the basis of call bids. The bills have increased during the last 12 months by a low of nine-tenths of one per cent last August to 3.49 last week.

To prevent a drop in the weekly rise in treasury bill offerings, the government lowered the public ortied ceiling for such issues to $1,595,000,000 from $1,495,000,000. Bank said the new ceiling amount at present outstanding is $1,515,000,000.

Deer Hunt Success Higher In East-Ontario

The success of the 1958 deer hunt which opened on Saturday, November 22 was higher in the eastern part of the province and little changed elsewhere than in 1957, according to a survey by Ontario Department of Lands and Forests wildlife officers.

Two years of good deer reproduction almost throughout the province promises well for the future, the department reports, but adds, "however, much will depend on the severity of the coming winter."

"More snow than usual has fallen to date and it is possible that there will be an accumulation beyond the limits that permit good deer survival. Snow measuring stations will be watched with more than usual care this winter so that warning of trouble in the deer yards will be received in plenty of time."

Practically all the department districts reported a good crop of fawns and doubly numbers yearlings in the kill, indicating herds are making good recovery.

At checking stations operated in the Tweed district, 2,758 hunters were interviewed with a success rate of 30 per cent. The northwest corner of the district produced a poorer hunt this year but this was offset by higher success elsewhere.

Service Clubs Could Help to Get Out Vote

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A Toronto legislator says service clubs could do much to encourage people to vote in municipal elections when there is a lot of low ebb.

Alfred H. Cowling, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Toronto High Park told a service club that his attempt to arouse municipal electoral interest will be one of the main goals of the House municipal advisory committee of which he is chairman.

He felt if everyone got behind service club-sponsored "get-out-the-vote" campaigns, the picture might brighten.

"Municipal politics won't be accepted by Canadians," he said. "It must be an idea which will be given to the people to their proper responsibilities."

Two-Year Wait For $38,080 Pays Off

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Collins Evans, 51-year-old mechanic, found $38,080 after a two-year wait that put him in debt for life—a record breakdown.

Evans, father of four children and a fifth now on the way, found the money behind the seat of a $200 car he bought two years ago for £30, $67.

A court ruled the money was his if nobody else proved ownership during a waiting period.

Last July 8 a court ruled against a bank which claimed the money for itself. The court ruled also ruled the money must be kept untouched three months to allow a possible appeal.

The strain got so bad Evans had to go to mental hospital.

He celebrated his good fortune today by buying a set of teeth.

"I don' know how I'll spend the money", he said, "but the first thing will be a new car. But I'll never get rid of the old one. I'll keep it always as a souvenir."

Govt. Decides To Raise Extra Money by Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has decided to raise an extra $100,000,000 this month through short-term borrowing.

Finance Minister Fleming announced Wednesday the government's weekly offerings of 91-day treasury bills has been raised $135,000,000 from $115,000,000. There are five weekly offerings in February.

Officials said the government expects to revert back to $115,000,000 weekly offerings in February. Treasury bills provide a quick way for the government to raise funds to tide it over for a short period of time. The maximum interest has to be repaid in 91 days.

The bills are purchased by banks, investment dealers and other financial groups on the basis of call bids. The bills have increased during the last 12 months by a low of nine-tenths of one per cent last August to 3.49 last week.

CBC, Producers Ready to Open Fresh Talks

MONTREAL (CP) —A strike by 74 Montreal radio and television producers loomed Wednesday into its tenth day amid the prospect of fresh discussions for a settlement.

The leader of the producers' local 406 union said he hoped to meet with CBC president Alphonse Ouimet today to submit a new proposal to end the strike walkout. He did not disclose details.

A CBC spokesman said the union had not approached the CBC for new talks. The CBC was "constantly ready to discuss with the union any matter of a question of arranging a time and a meeting place."

Gerard Pelletier, president of the Association des Realisateurs (TV) representing the producers, made the statement, about further discussions at a press conference.

Association members continued picketing Wednesday night. CBC union employees have honored the picket lines and the strike has virtually stopped live programming at the CBC French language studios. The union and English language productions to a lesser degree.

ISSUES UNCHANGED

Mr. Quirion told the press conference the strike issue — recognition of the association as bargaining agent for the producers remains the same.

The press conference was held shortly after the CBC announced that the board of governors of the Canadian Council of Authors and Artists (CCAA) had ordered members of the two CCAA-affiliated unions here to join the strike or face expulsion called.

A CBC spokesman said the publicly-owned corporation had received a telegram from CCAA president Leroy of Toronto, saying Mr. Leroy had given the order to members of the Union de Artistes and the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists (CTA).

Jean Ducepne, Montreal president of the Union des Artistes, issued a statement criticizing Mr. Leroy's action and urging his members to continue honoring the picket lines. He said he considers his group autonomous.

Mr. Leroy said Mr. Ducepne has "doubtless weighed the risks involved in removing the membership from the protection of their agreements."

New Traffic Survey Ordered To Determine Feasibility of Bridge at Sault Ste Marie

DETROIT (AP) — A new traffic survey has been ordered to determine financial feasibility of a proposed $18,128,000 international toll bridge between Sault Ste. Marie Michigan and Ontario.

The order was issued Wednesday by state highway officials in Lansing.

Mackie said completion was anticipated in 1961 or 1962.

A group of six bond underwriting firms then would determine whether tolls and other conditions bonds could be marketed to finance the bridge.

OK'S AT MEETING

The financial group, which also participated in financing the $105,000,000 Mackinac Straits Bridge, was represented by D. C. Gray, vice president of B. J. Van Ingen and Co. Inc. of New York at a meeting with Michigan and Ontario authorities here Wednesday.

While none would discuss details of possible financing, Lawrence Harry Bubbs, who is secretary of the International Bridge Authority and the Mackinac Bridge Authority, said he was optimistic.

The over-all $18,128,000 cost estimate came from D. B. Steinman, president of the Mackinac and other world-famous bridges. It includes a 12,000-foot long structure.

Officials of Toronto and Capitals survey indicated that at that time traffic across the St. Marys River will be more than the bridge can handle on the hard, high-interest bond market.

The bond market, bridge promoters said, has softened considerably since and 1958 traffic totalled 1,736,004 persons. There were 413,159 vehicles carried by ferries, now the only mode of transportation between the two cities.

James N. Allan, Ontario treasurer and former minister of highways, estimated the trading area now has 800,000 population, with more than 20,000 in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and some 60,000 in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. He said traffic trends were upward.

Dr. Steinman recommended a bridge rather than a tunnel to connect Sault Ste. Marie with Ontario Highway 17.

He estimated a tunnel would cost $27,500,000, take 36 months to build and require $175,000 a year for operation and maintenance. On the other hand, he said a $18,128,000 bridge could be built in 18 months and would require but $323,000 a year for operation and maintenance.

Discussion of a tunnel then was dropped.

Michigan Highway Commissioner Mackie said he verbally approved construction of the state's expenditure of $3,562,000 for southern approaches, which he said in fact be a part of the bridge, provided it was agreed that when bonds are paid off the bridge will be made toll free.

Under that kind of an arrangement, Mackie said the state could recover 90 per cent of its outlay from the U.S. government. From the international boundary the bridge would be a part of U.S. 2, which in turn is a part of the Interstate highway system.

Fred M. Cass, Ontario highway minister, and Allan said their government would underwrite, they were sure, similar Canadian approaches costing $3,468,000.

The bridge repay bonds which would have, to be financed with bonds, would begin at the American ship canals on the south and the Canadian ship canal on the north, a distance of 4,810 feet.

COST OF SPANS

The American spans would cost an estimated $13,000,000 the Canadian ones $3,547,000. An American toll plaza costing $360,000 and on the Canadian plaza costing $381,000 also are proposed. An access road and a connector of $1,502,000 is included for rights-of-way acquisition.

The International Bridge Authority, a Michigan agency, and the St. Marys River Bridge Co., its Canadian counterpart, would handle financing and building of the bridge. The two organizations already has transferred its bonding powers to the Michigan authority to simplify financing procedures.

Mr. Ruoy was driving his daughters home from school a quarter-mile away. The youngest child had gone with his father for the ride, Ony Mrs. Rudy survives.

There are no signal lights or barriers at the level crossing.

Chester Beecraft, returning home after picking up his five children from another school, was the first one on the scene. He said the only signs of an accident when he approached the crossing were cement blocks scattered about.

He took his children home and returned to the crossing, where he spotted wreckage farther up the track.

He described the crossing as "bad" for motorists because their view of Kitcaner-bound trains is partially blocked by a hill.

Chief Justice Urges Close Look At Tribunals

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Justice J. C. McRuer has asked for a closer look at tribunals dealing with property and personal rights of individuals.

Speaking Wednesday at the opening of the 1959 sittings of the Ontario Supreme Court, he said the legal profession should look into the operations of the tribunals to guard against any encroachment on the judiciary's independence.

Efficient, fair and prompt administration of justice is the lifeblood of our free way of life, he said.

"One cannot view without some apprehension a tendency in some quarters to evade the administration of justice in courts through other processes that determine the rights of individuals without access to the courts."

He suggested that members of the legal profession make a thorough study of processes of all tribunals "with which property and personal rights and particularly those of the right of appeal to the courts has been denied.

SAYS STUDY NEEDED

Attorney-General Roberts also addressed the opening of the new sittings. What should concern bring to the recent upset of Ontario's careless driving law, he said is a federal-provincial study should be held to find a way of enforcing the law effectively and the courts.

Ontario now has, difficulty in enforcing its careless driving law pending an appeal of Chief Justice McRuer's decision that the law infringes on exclusive federal jurisdiction in criminal matters. An appeal of the ruling is expected to be heard this month.

Mr. Roberts said the Ontario Judicature Act now permits appeals on constitutional questions to be made in cases where they involve determination of the right of either the Dominion or provincial authority to legislate and where there has been no opposition by the Attorney-General for the provincial legislation."

REFER TO RULINGS

It had led to "a number of judicial decisions rendered recently in Ontario . . . the practical results of these recent decisions in the field of constitutional law lead me to suggest that a study be made by the federal and provincial authorities."

The study would be designed to produce "a practical solution which, while in no way interfering with the rights and liberties of the subject, nevertheless will prevent disruption of well-established procedures in line with modern business customs and requirements until at least final determination of such questions has been obtained. There is always even a semblance of making our law in this field appear as brittle as 19th century glass."

The attorney-general said there was "a marked improvement" in ceasing congestion in the courts of Ontario "and we can look forward with confidence to a continuation of that improvement."

He said that January 1959 would see all cases ready for trial in the Supreme Court disposed of.

A nine-man committee of judges, lawyers and government officials was studying new ways of streamlining procedures and planned this month to inspect the system in Trenton, N.J., inaugurated by the late Chief Justice Vanderbilt.

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP)—Four-year-old Freddie Mitton tried to emulate Santa Claus by climbing down a neighbor's chimney. He got stuck near the bottom and was rescued by his mother.

A plaque was presented to the Quinte House Builders' Association by the National House Builders' Association yesterday evening. The plaque for the local group was received by Vice-President Earl DeMille from T. C. "Tom" Thompson, executive assistant for the national body. Watching the proceedings are Pat Mc. DeMille, Mr. Thompson and Elton Hutchinson, newly-elected director for the Quinte Association.

House Builders' Group Holds First Meeting

Over twenty local builders and suppliers attended the first monthly meeting of the newly organized Quinte House Builders' Association at the Canara Club yesterday evening. Highlight of the evening was a talk and discussion by T. C. "Tom" Thompson, executive assistant to the National House Builders' Association (NHBA), with which the local association is affiliated.

Introduced by Bert Houston, the speaker gave a brief history of the NHBA during its fifteen-year span in Canada. The parent association, formed less than a month ago, is the thirty-sixth local association to join the national organization. Approximately 2,150 firms allied with the building trades are represented by the NHBA. Mr. Thompson made several suggestions as to the activities which the local organization could participate in and the services which it could render local firms. Included among these suggestions was having a representative in the local planning board. He complimented the Quinte district group on having been so prompt in drawing up a constitution and stated that he looked forward to its having a charter membership meeting in the near future.

A description of the organization of the NHBA and its various committees and their activities was also given by Mr. Thompson. Among these committees several were of special interest. The National Building magazine, once a part of the NHBA but now an independent publication, has an advisory committee in NHBA. There is also a research committee, under the direction of William McKenzie, a professional engineer and builder in Sarnia, which investigates new products and the vestigation of materials which will do a job to meet building code standards. Also a member of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, but at a lower price.

Mrs. Isabel Temple of the Toronto office of the NHBA explained the purpose of the National Home Week committee. The success of this project nationwide was pointed out and several suggestions were made for Quinte and Belleborough, were mentioned.

Mention of the national convention being held in the Queen Elizabeth in Montreal this coming week was made. Earl DeMille and Stan Wilkinson will be representing the present organization. Mr. DeMille will also act as alternate delegate on the national association in the absence of Charles Lambert, president of the local group.

Elton Hutchinson was elected a director of the local association. A resident of Warkworth, Mr. Hutchinson will represent the western end of the territory covered by the association.

Pat Halloran, local treasurer, advised those present that there were now twenty-eight paid members with quite a few more firms having indicated their intention of joining.

Earl DeMille, local vice-president, was chairman for the meeting and thanked the speaker and Mrs. Temple for being present.

The meeting was also highlighted by an excellent chicken dinner served by the Women's Auxiliary at the Canara Club.

Canadian Bar Assoc. Urges Right of Appeal Against Govt. Boards, Commissions

TORONTO (CP) — Right of appeal from decisions by government boards and commissions generally was urged today by the Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association.

In a critical brief to the Gordon committee now investigating government organization in Ontario, the bar association declared:

"The appeal with leave of the Court of Appeal upon questions of law or jurisdiction from all administrative tribunals should be uniformly established."

The brief also called for an end to secret hearings and secret evidence, and for quasi-judicial functions be returned to the courts wherever possible. Those retained should be carried out by boards and commissions under court procedures.

RESUMES HEARINGS

The Gordon committee, headed by management consultant Walter L. Gordon of Toronto, resumed hearings under a mandate given by Premier Frost last May.

In three days of hearings in November, the committee also heard demands for appeals from decisions by government boards in briefs from the Toronto Board of Trade and Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

The bar association brief urged the committee to classify the functions of Ontario's boards and commissions because some had functions "clearly unsuitable" for them.

It said boards discharging judicial functions "should have no other responsibilities and should function without the necessity of consultation with any minister."

Some judicial functions were more suitable for the courts to perform.

MUNICIPAL BOARD

"It seems inappropriate that the Ontario municipal Board should be the judicial forum in which claims against departments of government are determined when that board is not only appointed by the Ontario cabinet but also the members of that board must look to the Cabinet for confirmation of their tenure."

The brief said policy decisions have been delegated to boards and commissions when they should be left to the responsible cabinet minister.

Such policy should be clearly unequivocally and publicly stated either by the legislature in a statute or by regulation.

Thus the executive can be held accountable for public debate on the validity or otherwise of the policy so established."

LIQUOR LICENCES

The liquor licence board's policy was hidden so that no ordinary knew when to expect a favorable or unfavorable decision in a licence application.

Lieut. Carroll Maxwell answered Mrs. Gorman's call to police. He took Everett home, four blocks away, to report the disappearance of little brother to the parents before starting the search.

The bar association called for use of court procedures in hearings by boards and commissions, with a code of evidence established so that people would know what is acceptable. Also needed were adequate notice of hearings, written decisions and an end to secret hearings such as those held by the liquor licence board.

"Special rules should be promulgated so that the powers of a tribunal to act in certain areas are definitely and narrowly circumscribed as they are in the case of ordinary courts."

LABOR BOARD

The brief said the labor relations board "has tended more and more to give either no reasons or such sketchy reasons that counsel find it difficult if impossible in some cases to determine exactly why the conclusion was reached."

The brief said "a high degree of responsibility should be given members of quasi-judicial boards and commissions and accorded them the same respect as the judiciary received.

"Sublime appointments were needed and "once appointed, a member should be removable for just cause clearly established in a judicial proceeding."

The bar association named more than a dozen boards and commissions in article 4 comments but emphasized that administrative tribunal has a

Outdoor Rinks Being Flooded By Fire Dept.

TRENTON — Firemen have been taking advantage of the past days and the frigid weather to get the various school and park outdoor rinks flooded. Yesterday the firemen re - flooded two of them and the day before they gave two rinks the first soaking of ice.

The rink at the park in the Champlain Heights Sub-division, which also sports a wooden framework around the ice surface, was given its initial flooding as was the one at the College Street School.

The town council, the public works department, the public utilities, the Board of Education and the firemen have all co-operated to make these outdoor rinks possible for the children. The rinks are at each school and in several of the town parks as well.

The town council and the public works department have agreed to have the town's snow removal crews assist in keeping the rinks clear of snow. The School Board and the Public Utilities have co-operated in placing lights over the ice surfaces at the schools with the Board agreeing to have the electrical power come from the schools and footing the extra amount on the hydro bill. The school board has also donated the sum of $50 to each school to be used to make the rink possible.

However, it is the Trenton firemen who have the toughest part of the job. Their work comes on the coldest of days, which is best for flooding purposes. With no shelter the firemen stands out in the cold weather spraying the water back and forth to make the surface of the ice suitable for skating.

* Although they dress warmly for the job it takes only a short while until the cold penetrates through the garments and one begins to shiver. Added to this is also an occasional spray from the cold water coming from the hose when the wind shifts around.

But the firemen have no complaints about this added work. As one of them put it yesterday: "It's kind of cold standing out there for a couple of hours, but think of the number of children who have a whale of a time for a good many hours."

most necessary place in our political system.

The association believed "the legal profession has a responsibility to study those tribunals that are performing appropriate functions to discharge properly, impartially and soundly the important roles with which they are entrusted."

Town Briefs

TRENTON — Friday night at 8 p.m. is the big night for the Boy Scouts when they will burn the Christmas trees on the ice bonds of Fraser Parks This has become an annual event with the Scouts and their leaders and while the trees are burning they hold a sing-song. The town garbage collectors and the town trucks will be calling along the different streets and Trentonians who have placed their old trees out in front of their homes, where they normally place their garbage, will have an easy way to get rid of the Christmas "finery." The fire department will have a truck down at the bay shore near the tree-burning to be on hand in the event of an emergency.

POLICE FRONT QUIET

Last night was quiet for the police department with no accidents reported and allowed the officers to carry on with their regular all-night patrols. Even in several of the town parks as well.

The town council and the public works department have agreed to have the town's snow removal crews assist in keeping the rinks clear of snow. The School Board and the Public Utilities have co-operated in placing lights over the ice surfaces at the schools with the Board agreeing to have the electrical power come from the schools and footing the extra amount on the hydro bill. PAST SUCCESSES AND FUTURE HOPES

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde, in his address to the inaugural meeting of the 1959 City Council on Monday, stated that the greater Belleville which has resulted from the annexation of areas of Sidney and Thurlow Townships needs more industries.

This plea for industrial growth has been voiced so often, not only in Belleville but in other communities throughout the province and, indeed, across the nation, that there may be those who tend to dismiss it as no more than a dream. We frequently hear the suggestion that Belleville's record in the contest to attract new industries is not a particularly impressive one.

It is interesting, therefore, to discover that no less an authority than the Canadian National Railways thinks differently. The economics and development branches of the research and development department of the CNR has just issued a booklet entitled "What Increased Manufacturing Employment Means to Community Growth." The study is based on the studies of nine communities, six in Ontario and three in Quebec. The communities were selected for various reasons, but amongst "other criteria considered in the selection of the communities" were the following:—

1—Manufacturing employment should have shown a substantial increase between 1941 and 1951.

2—The manufacturing employment in 1951 should be a substantial proportion of total employment.

3—A substantial proportion of the employment change between 1941 and 1951 should have occurred in manufacturing employment.

Yes, on the basis of these, and other, criteria, Belleville was one of six Ontario communities selected for this study. The others were Chatham, Cornwall, Peterborough, Stratford and Woodstock. In Quebec the communities chosen were Granby, Joliette and St. Jerome.

It seems evident to us that the inclusion of Belleville indicates that we have not been as unsuccessful in past attempts to attract new industries as some would suggest. Past successes give sound reason to hope for future additions to our industrial establishments. We doubt whether many here need to be "sold" on the advantages of a growth in industrial employment. But if they do, the CNR study revealed that for every 100 additional manufacturing workers in a community 117 more people were employed in other establishments, 427 persons were added to the population, motor vehicle registrations increased by 187 and retail sales were boosted by $839,000 annually.

NEW APPROACH TO TRANSPORTATION

All too frequently reference is made to Canada's railway problem as if it was something to be considered in isolation from other aspects of transportation. And it is the truth is that the so-called railway problem is but one of the mounting deficits of the CNR and the low rail earnings of the CPR, is in fact the result of this very attitude.

In the days before intensive competition in transportation, there was no railway problem in the financial sense of the term. The railways operated under a more rigid system of regulation which was not inappropriate to conditions as they then existed. What has created the railway problem is that much of this rigid regulation of the past has persisted, despite the fact that transportation in Canada today is highly competitive.

That this is recognized by the Government at Ottawa is clear from Acting Prime Minister Green's recent announcement that a suitable body is to be set up to review the general field of railway problems and policy. It is heartening to find that the official Liberal Opposition in Parliament feels no less keenly than the Government itself the need for taking a long, hard look at the railway problem. This is apparent from Liberal party leader Lester B. Pearson's recent statement that "What is needed is a new approach not only to the railway problem, but to the whole problem of transportation in Canada."

Mr. Pearson hits the nail on the head so far as the railway problem is concerned when he says that the Federal Government should give the railways special financial assistance on unprofitable services carried out in the national interest. The outstanding example of what Mr. Pearson has in mind, clearly, may be found in the abnormally low freight rates on grain for export. This grain, which accounts for about one-fourth of all rail freight traffic, is carried by the railways at freight rates no higher than those which prevailed in the Gay Nineties.

It is encouraging to find that both major parties in Parliament are in apparent agreement that it is wrong for the railways to bear the full cost of transportation policies which have proved so costly to them over the years.

The skyline on the Prairies is changing. The tall, slim grain elevators, welcome landmarks to the traveller, are being replaced by structures akin to modern cars—longer and lower. We thought the sky-pointing elevators would remain an economic fact on the Prairies—like the high tariff, high freight rates and high prices of timber decline. But the new elevators being built by the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool resemble a giant cube. The architecture appears to be unimaginative, something akin to that applied to warehouses. (Sudbury Star.)

Free Press Not an Issue

Hamilton Spectator

Marie Torre, New York newspaper columnist who television interviewed Judy Garland. The judge had warned that that should be served one ten-day term for contempt. She is appealing the sentence.

It is to be expected that a lot of comment will be heard concerning this rights of newspapers and freedom of the press, and that Miss Torre is acting as guardian of such freedoms will not stand.

That is not so. We cheer for her in her determination to guard the confidence of a person who has entrusted with information. However it is not freedom of the press which is at stake here but the professional ethics of journalism. Just as doctors have the ethics to keep confidences of a patient, so writers and editors obey similar obligations in their relationship with informants. They could never honestly accept information if they thought that they did not have such convictions.

The freedom of the press involves the right of the public to know, and it is the duty of newspapers to be the medium through which the public right to know may be satisfied.

Miss Torre is making an admirable and possibly heroic effort to find out what she deems to be right. But it has nothing to do with freedom of the press.

Sees Voting Hodgepodge

St. Thomas Times-Journal

On December 1, some Ontario municipalities — including Fort William, Windsor, Peterborough, London and Woodstock — took advantage of recently-passed legislation and voted on the question of extending the franchise to both men and women over 21 years of age to vote in municipal elections, as they do in federal and Provincial elections. In almost every case the plebiscite was carried by substantial majorities in favor of the extension.

What effect this will have on other municipalities only time will tell. There are many arguments both for and against extending the franchise. The right to vote in municipal elections has been considered therefore solely on ownership or tenancy of real estate, with little trouble in qualify in this respect being denied the vote, and voters' lists have always been made up accordingly. Extension of the franchise means additional enumeration and consequently greater expenditure in connection with the election.

Such an influential body as the Ontario Municipal Association has gone on record in opposition to franchise extension and several municipalities including St. Thomas, have declined to take advantage of the legislation permitting plebiscites to be taken wherever desired.

The PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On our stairway, at the landing, is a light fixture that calls for one of these long, bamboo-like fluorescent tubes 12 inches in length and an inch in diameter.

It is not the sort of thing you usually lay in a supply of, as you do other bulbs, for the ordinary bulbs. For some obscure reason, perhaps of nature, you always buy one at a time.

Maybe it's the price.

Anyway, the bloom thing was always burning out. About every two or three months, the landing was left in darkness through the failure of this fluorescent tube; and it became somebody's duty, usually mine, to drop into the nearest shop on the way home, (Which is not easy to remember,) and pick one up. It was usually three or four days before the landing got lit up again.

Well, about a year and one month ago, I decided to be practical. And I bought two of the tubes. One should last me, and have always got a spare, and it will be the time either next that the landing will be left in darkness for two or three days.

Do you begin to see?

With the spare on the closet shelf, that fluorescent bar lasted thirteen months! Threatened by the presence of competition, that fluorescent may last for years, all through the sixties. It may last forever.

What I was being practical in buying a spare, maybe I was being unpractical. How do you explain mysteries like this in the practical?

Discouraged, eh! The world looks dark
And all your hopes have gone to wreck
Your finest shots have missed the mark;
You're heartsick and discouraged, eh!

Plans that you built from, all went wrong!
You cannot seem to find the way
And it seems vain to plod along!
You're heartsick and discouraged, eh!

Take heart! Each morning starts anew!
Each night ends the battle line.
Against far greater odds than you
Brave men have fought with vim.

Despite the buffetings of fate,
They've risen, time and time again,
To stand face front and shoulders straight
As leaders of their fellow men.

And you, now blinded by despair,
Heartsick and weary of the fight,
Can every hand beset by care
Clasp, if you will, hands like Light.

Firm Wagers Champagne

Now, confound it, these advertisers have guts, you feel! We've resisted the big "savings" slogans by dizzy years, also the temptations of plinking down and no first payments. The sustained pressure of the television-player ads do catch the eye, but not the ear. Still, we've done girls along about the sixth installment. Comes now, however, a big spender. He has called Fins by Gartenhaus, Inc., which could be anything, but as the advertisement on our business page the other day proclaimed, "a sporting proposition."

These genial barriers, it seems will, as always gladly exchange any gift fur which monsieur purchases at his modest establishment for which gardenia doesn't like. But this year they're ready to institutionalize the whole proposition and bet a bottle of champagne that they can pick a wrap for milady which she'll accept as the husband's choice. Both furs will be sent out, with the label off, from which one was selected by the store, on the basis of the buyer's description of Mrs. Irvin or if she decided to keep hubby's in preference to the Gartenhaus champagne, the champagne is also out a free bottle of champagne. And the whole proposition will be the master of the household gets nothing — except, of course, the bill, which usually comes to him. He gets in either case, the obvious fun in the new game, and the gentlemen, this is the soft sell with a vengeance, the ultimate subtlety in the art of selling. Does Furs by Gartenhaus, Inc., know your wife better than you do? It's the sneaky way they really that one just doesn't leave dangling on the business page.

Fish Wear Nightgowns

Pembroke Observer

There are fish that wear nightgowns. They are among the most resplendent of the tropical variety. They have teeth in their throats.

These are the "parrotfishes," a family distributed world - wide through tropical waters where they frequent coral reefs. The first systematic zoological description of this group was made by Dr. Leonard P. Schultz, United States National Museum curator of fishes, and recently been published by the Smithsonian Institution.

The young parrotfishes of dazzling night robes before retiring, clad in the report, in an outer- vation by Dr. Earl S. Herald, W. wear. Dr. Herald, of the University of Maryland, and presumably confined to one or two species found in West Indian waters. These fishes pass the hours of darkness resting on the bottom of their tanks in quite a remarkable manner, according to this report. They secrete a mucous envelope, usually enclosed in the stomach and then fed backward, until the transparent envelope completely encloses the fish. The envelope is fixed at first a hole in the centre in front of the open mouth. This is sealed by a small web-like at the rear. The mouth flap moves back and forth as water circulates. The openings assure a constant flow of water around the gill and without which the fish could not live.

The entire process of nightgown making requires from a half hour to an hour and a half. It stems entirely. Dr. Winn observed, whenever light was turned on, the fishes emerged and resumed immediately with darkness. As the folds progress the mucous glands are reduced. The purpose of wearing nightgowns can only be surmised. The thin covering, it believes, may afford some sort of protection against nocturnal enemies. Also it may protect the body from becoming surrounded by silt.

The cocoon wearing, as well as the practice of spending the night leaning against some solid object, apparently is dictated by some nervous mechanism which is set off by "reflexes." So far as is known, the practice is unique to fishes.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

KEEP YOUR ANTI-TETANUS SHOTS UP - TO - DATE

"Dear Dr. Molner: Will you please discuss the symptoms of tetanus? Also, how long after injury is it safe to wait before getting anti-toxin? — Mrs. N.R."

If this letter was inspired by a true case of tetanus, or "lockjaw", it is impossible to give an answer into the paper quickly enough to be of benefit in that particular case, I suppose.

But I hopefully presume that isn't the case.

As a physician I have seen outbreaks of diseases which occurred because people were lax about immunization shots. We have in mind a fairly recent diphtheria outbreak, plus several hundred polio cases (a score of them fatal) among people who hadn't bothered to get Salk shots, plus attacks of some other diseases.

Tetanus, as you surely realize, is a highly dangerous disease. If a victim recovers, there is no permanent damage, but not too many recover, and the disease is both frightening and painful.

The first symptoms are often stiffness of the neck and jaw, as well as stiffness around the wound where the tetanus germs have entered. In addition there may be chills, fever, restlessness, and some other signs such as frequent pulse, difficulty in swallowing, etc.

As the disease progresses, agonizing spasms wrack the whole body, sometimes strong enough to distort the bones and break bones such as those of the spine. Finally, it is a terrible death.

NOT HARBORED BY RUST

The lockjaw germ (Clostridium tetani is peculiar in that it thrives without air, not in the air. It lurks in dirt, in animal waste, in refuse. Rust doesn't harbor the germ; the "rusty nail" is a dangerous myth. It may push germs into a deep puncture wound which does not bleed — but has no opportunity in an airless pocket. Slivers can carry the germ, however, if they reach the nerve junctions.

As to the question of "how long it is safe to wait" for protective measures, the answer is as soon as possible.

There are, however, two types of tetanus toxoid. The familiar tetanus shots which everyone should have as a routine protection. This will give quite good protection for four or five years; it gives best protection if repeated every two years, but a booster every four or five years is reasonable. Then, if there is an injury, even a relatively small one if it is a puncture wound, a booster shot should be given at once, to be safely sure.

The other means of protection is tetanus anti-toxin, which is good only for that particular incident, and does not provide continued protection. It must be given within 24 hours after the injury to prevent lockjaw.

Note that I said "prevent". Later, if the disease has begun, large amounts of anti-toxin still will be given to prevent further damage from the accumulating toxin, but cannot prevent the activity of toxin which already has reached the nerve junctions.

Usually the disease will develop within 5 to 7 days of the injury, but it may be anywhere from 1 to 15 or more, and extreme cases may come sooner or later than that. Best protection: Keep your tetanus boosters up-to-date!

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to become pregnant after having the uterus removed? — Mrs. J. C."

Name Scho For Janitor

Cape Breton Post

A new school at Lloydminster, Alta., bears the name of a janitor, Martin Browne, who died three years ago. "An ordinary building was to be endowed himself to all who knew him," said Alberta's Minister of Education at the dedication of Martin Browne.

"It seems sufficient reason for naming a school after a school janitor, in token that a winning personality counts much in the faithful performance of any task. Furthermore, it points up the fact that useful labor in a good cause is honorable and the service of a memorable person whose name sometimes is as worth engraving in stone on the facade of a public institution is the name of any of the world's more renowned persons.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

STUPENDOUS BUT POSSIBLE

At a football game recently my mind was snapped into acute attention by this statement of the announcer: "A touchdown by his own fumble."

Good for Smith, or Jones, or John Doe, or Joe Doakes, or anyone who recovers his own fumble. For if you can't do without it for a moment, you will see that this is quite a remarkable, even humble achievement. Smith fumbled. He dropped the ball. In spite of the struggles and efforts of men to thrust him aside and scoop up the ball, Smith recovered his fumble.

Do we need to remind ourselves that fumbling is a common experience in the lives of most of us? Fumbles are humble something. There are many who feel that they have made a fumble of the whole world of life. But if Smith could recover his fumble, and if Jones could field with eleven sturdy chaps intent on keeping him from doing it, you and I can recover our fumbles as we make them day by day. Furthermore, some of the most glorious realities human beings ever confront is the realization that no fumble we ever make of our lives is irretrievable. We can recover the fumble. We can scoop up the ball and start running again.

Don't believe you're very wrong. You can recover that fumble and don't let anyone including yourself, tell you that you can't.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YESTERDAYS IN TODAY

Days and years do not merely drop and disappear. All time is preserved. We are forever picking up threads of the gone-bys and weaving them into the permanent fabric of our lives. Every new touch something that belonged to yesterday. In a way, we are all children of tradition. We are, in a greater or less degree, carrying about with us the inherited personalities of thousands of others — many unknown to us.

And how very fortunate is that man or woman who is able to build the boy or girl of his or her early years about with one.

We understand people so much easier who are never quite severed from the voices of the past, with a good would the yesterdays of life we couldn't use them; for they are built right into our todays!

Every time a father touches the hand of his boy and looks into his eyes, he is unconsciously building himself there — and the more he can see, the nearer is that father to his boy.

We become that much more useful as we are able to sum up classify, and honestly arrange the events and experiences of every one of our associates.

Watch any skilled workman and he will tell you that you have to learn how much of the valuable years he has crowded into his art.

The tragedy of life is the slipping away of years when men and women have not sufficiently touched, grasped, or made permanent a part of their thought and existence.

We should never forget that today will soon be yesterday, so that if it means something to the vital life of tomorrow, today, tomorrow we shall want to carry much of it along with us.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Skills of Analytical Chemist Acquired After Many Years

Years of training are required for the skilled job of an analytical chemist. Such a man is qualified for many varieties of jobs dealing with this branch of chemistry concerned with analysis.

Dr. William Holland, a former Belleville resident, is chief chemist in the control laboratory of a Windsor firm which is one of the largest producers of pharmaceuticals in the world.

Dr. Holland is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Holland, 153½ Church Street. He attended St. Michael's Academy and Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School where he received his primary and secondary school education.

His training was rigid. It began with a B. Sc. from Queen's University. He then studied for his M. Sc. and Ph. D. at Wayne State University in Detroit. While he was studying for his doctorate, Dr. Holland was also working in the laboratory, gaining valuable practical experience.

The firm for which Dr. Holland works produces the soft elastic gelatin shells for pills, and also many of their pharmaceutical contents. The company produces no pills for itself, but manufactures orders submitted by large pharmaceutical houses. All the production is entrusted to the firm and the highly trained workers it employs.

The job of maintaining the quality and controlling the production falls into the hands of Dr. Holland and his staff.

In a clean, modern lab, Dr. Holland works on new methods of analysis of pharmaceutical products. The ingredients are examined very closely before the product is put into production.

All during production, samples are brought into the control lab where tests are performed to assure the standard of the product is being maintained.

Dr. Holland is continually working on new analytical methods, besides being concerned with developing a routine for technicians and analysts in the laboratory.

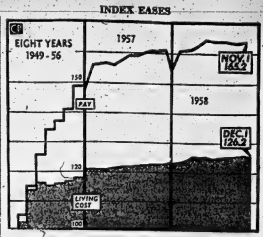
Just to give one an idea of the size of the company's operations and thus the importance of close control which is in the hands of Dr. Holland, 672,990,300 capsules produced at this Windsor plant were shipped to U.N.I.C.E.F. in a seven year period.

SEWER PROJECTS

TORONTO CP)—The Ontario water resources commission has announced $127,000 will be spent on a storm trunk sewer system at Leamington, 25 miles southeast of Windsor, and an estimated $300 000 on a storm and sanitary sewer system at Mitchell, near Stratford.

Season's Worst, Longest Cold Wave Ending

NEW YORK (AP) — Near-normal weather returned to most of the United States today, marking an end of the season's worst and longest cold wave.



Temperatures generally were at seasonal levels, with higher than normal marks in some areas.

Wet weather dampened the northwest coastal sections for the fourth straight day and rain, drizzle or snow spread across wide areas in the eastern third of the U.S.

Light snow fell from Minnesota to New York Wednesday night while warm air flowing northward from the gulf produced a broad belt of low clouds, rain, fog and drizzle from the central gulf coast into the mid-Mississippi and lower Ohio valleys.

Blizzards, icy fog and temperatures down to 59 below zero gripped Alaska Wednesday.

INDEX EASES

The consumer price index dipped one-tenth of a point to 126.2 at December 1, the first decline after four consecutive monthly increases.

The index stood at 126.3 on November 1, an all-time high.

This graph (shaded area) traces the yearly average of the price index during 1949-56 and its movement through 1957 and 1958.

Also shown is the index for average wages and salaries which stood at 165.2 at November 1, last date for which figures are available. (CP Newsmap.)

Drew Sees Time When Russia Will Keep Agreements

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. George Drew, Canadian high commissioner to London, says that in time it will become impossible to mould the Russian people into the rigid pattern which communism dictates.

Mr. Drew, in the capital for talks with government officials, said for that reason he sees a time when Russia will live up to international agreements.

He said in an interview it is difficult to say whether the Russians will come to agreement with the e/West on a control system for atomic tests.

No doubt existed about the desire and willingness of the West to bring about such an agreement but it is doubtful on whether the Russians were prepared to find a workable arrangement for detecting the tests.

Among the subjects being discussed by Mr. Drew with officials here is the 1960 conference on the law of the sea. Mr. Drew said there is no indication of a change in Canada's support of a 12-mile limit.

Floral-Patterned Silk Raincoats Among Styles

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—April showers will bring forth flowers with a swish this year, say fashion experts. Floral - patterned silk raincoats are among the styles on show at the garment salesmen's Ontario market here this week.

The market is held twice a year for manufacturers to show the latest styles in women's wear to retailers. The spring and summer clothes on display will be for sale to the public starting next month.

Judging by the samples on view, rainwear this spring will be more colorful than ever in silks, velveteen and jersey. The style is a modified empire (high waisted) line.

CONSERVATIVE STYLES

Fashions generally are conservative after the wild swings of trapeze and chemise lines. The empire line has been modified to resume almost a normal waistline.

Collars are wide, sleeves reach the mid-forearm and suits have jaunty short jackets.

In dresses, waistlines are in their anatomical place, but wide bands or belts suggest a higher line.

Mohair coats and suits will still be fashionable this spring, with checks ranging from petitpoints to large tweeds.

Spring colors are beige, yellow, intense pink, mossy and acid greens and mauves.

Two-piece swimsuits will be fashionable.

CHRISTMAS CASH

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—The goodwill committee of the Federation of Women's Teachers is sending a cheque for $75 for Christmas to each of 12 exchange teachers from Britain in this area.

BAN LINOLEUM

ST. IVES, England (CP)—Tenants of 122 municipally - owned houses here have been told they will be given notice to vacate if they put linoleum on their floors instead of carpets. The council says the floorboards can rot under linoleum.

Late Afternoon

By VERA WINSTON

Fine fabric, beautifully cut and handled, is what to look for when choosing a dress that will look right late a - day doings, dinner or dancing. This one fills the bill in fine style. Of navy blue or mauve peau de soie, it concedes to the Empire line by means of a narrow band with a bow centred on the molded midriff. The narrowly cutted open neckline terminates in a deep V. The full skirt is pleated and draped for softness.

Three Women Said 'Mothers Of Metro'

TORONTO (CP)—Three women have been dubbed "mothers of Metro"—and one of them says she was not willing.

Here's the story:

Metropolitan Toronto is a federation of municipalities including the city of Toronto and neighboring communities. It was established in 1953 to handle services such as transportation, sanitation, some roads, education, police and planning.

Metro is governed by a council made up of mayors or reeves of the 13 member municipalities plus leading vote-getters in Toronto city elections for board of control and aldermen. Only the three women have been members since its inception. Two are village reeves, Mrs. Marie Curtis of Long Branch and Mrs. Dorothy Hagus of Swansea. The third is Mrs. May Robinson, who has headed the poll for alderman in her Toronto city ward each year since Metro began.

OPPOSED METRO

Mrs. Hague, 80, was the unwilling mama. She was reeve in Swansea when Metro was mooted, and she says: "We did not want metropolitan government it meant we would be swallowed up by Metro."

But after seven years she says she is accustomed to the idea.

Born in Fort Elgin, she attended university of Toronto, taught high school at Alliston, Ont., and graduated from Swansea's school board to its council. She has not lost an election in 26 years—and has been returned reeve by acclamation for six years.

Marie Curtis meets opposition in Long Branch, but she has triumphed every time since she was elected deputy reeve eight years ago. She entered politics about 1933 to persuade the local school board to open a kindergarten. They did.

Mrs. Robinson, who comes from Norwich in Oxford County, was defeated in her attempt to become an alderman in 1953. She tried again seven years ago and won. Her career as a trustee on Toronto's board of education and as a member of city council covers 18 years.

ICICLE INJURY

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Alfred Berry went out the back door to the clothesline and was struck on the head by a large icicle from the eavestrough. It took 12 stitches to close the wound.

Beautiful Beaded Bag

By ALICE ALDEN

Special evenings demand their own variety of beautiful clothes, which in turn, require special accessories. From France comes one of those exquisite beaded bags for which Walborg is justly famous. This delight is of alabaster and 14 karat gold beading, the gold frame and clasp intricately interwoven with silver and gold beads and engraved with aurora stones. Opulent but not overdone, it is worthy of the most exquisite evening dress.

More Men Than Women In Marriageable Age Group

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Almost unnoticed, a remarkable change has taken place in the population of England and Wales. There now are more men than women in the most marriageable age group, 20 to 29.

Statistics for 1958, published by the registrar-general, show that there are 2 822 000 men and 2 821 000 women in the age group. And the government office estimates that by 1997 there will be 3,516,000 men to 3,394,200 women.

This is a reversal of the former position when women outnumbered men. In 1925, for instance, there were 4,325,600 men to 4,975,100 women and in 1930 there were 4,715,200 men to 5,110,000 women.

The reversal has been due mainly to improvements in child welfare. More boys are born than girls about 10 to 100 and health improvements over the last 30 years have led to a drop in the male mortality rate, always higher than the female.

In all the age groups up to 29 there now are more males than females but from 29 onwards there are more women than men. This change is welcomed by the women themselves. There is much less danger of "being left on the shelf." Before 1939, a number of girls carved out careers reading that they had little chance of marriage. Girls today are not so keen to sacrifice their private lives to become "career girls" when marriage prospects are so good.

There is much less danger, too, of becoming a "wallflower" at a dance. In dance halls today there are always more boys than girls, a far cry from the prewar days when finding a male partner was a competitive business.

Relatives, Neighbors, Townfolk Mark Silver Anniversary

Thursday marked the 25th year of marriage for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devolin, of Stirling, who were happily remembered by relatives, neighbors and townfolk.

Previous to their wedding date, January 1st, an enjoyable time was spent at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Clarence Juby, and Mrs. Juby, of Lakefield, when a delicious turkey dinner was served in their honor.

Tables were laid for some 20 guests including all members of the Juby family, and a few other relatives. A special feature of the occasion was the presentation of a pop-up toaster and a large coffee maker, accompanied by an address of congratulations and best wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Devolin each warmly thanked the host and hostess for the delicious dinner in their home and also the donors for the lovely and useful gifts they had received.

On January 1st the home of Mr. and Mrs. Devolin was filled with relatives when brothers and sisters of the bridegroom, with their families, joined with them to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. Owing to icy conditions of the roads a few were unable to be present but they telephoned messages of congratulations.

Special guests present were: Mrs. Harry Woods who was bridesmaid 25 years ago; Mr. Woods, of Oshawa, and Mr. Harold Juby, who was groomsman, and Mrs. Juby, of Stirling.

The home had been previously decorated with white and silver bells, streamers and silver candles. Tables were laden with all kinds of delicious food which accompanied the roast turkey for the buffet luncheon, and included a lovely wedding cake.

The program which consisted of music and song, and a humorous sketch, entitled "Twenty five years ago to-night," made a delightful evening.

The honored couple were presented with a platform rocker and an address of honor and best wishes. Other gifts received from their family and friends were a set of stainless steel cookware; a pair of matching living-room lamps; a chrome smoker and a cup and saucer and cake plate, inscribed in silver.

Mr. and Mrs. Devolin have a son, Gary at home; a daughter, Shirley, nurse-in-training at Belleville General Hospital; a daughter, Muriel, Mrs. Paul Kwiatenuk, who is a secretary in the Medical Department of General Motors, Oshawa. All were present with their parents for the occasion.

On January 2nd the couple were surprised when again their home was filled with neighbors and friends who came to spend the evening with them.

The Rev. W. H. V Walker was master of ceremonies and in paying tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Devolin and family called on others present who also spoke on their behalf.

Readings and musical numbers rounded out an enjoyable program.

An address was read and the presentation of a large wall mirror was made by neighbors on behalf of surrounding community. The recipients voiced their thanks and appreciation for the lovely gift.

Refreshments were served by the ladies.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

SPECIAL THANK-YOU NOTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just been made Corresponding Secretary for the Board of Managers of a wonderful charity organization here. (It is, of course, a volunteer assignment.) I am quite sure that I understand my duties as far as the usual procedures are concerned, but I have one problem on which I would much appreciate your guidance.

The Organization has one most important list, of certain people who make contributions annually or semi-annually to the Organization: for example, an In Memoriam gift on the birthday of a loved one, or as a Thanks Gift on Thanksgiving Day, or at Christmas time. I have been asked to make my thank-you notes for these gifts as nice as possible. Would you please suggest a general form for these notes? Thank you for your suggestions. — N.

Your thank-you notes, which indeed are important, and should have a somewhat personal flavor, might read something like this:

Dear Mrs. Robinson,

Once again we have the pleasure of writing to thank you for another so very much appreciated contribution of — dollars toward the work of our Organization.

It is very nice indeed to hear from you each Thanksgiving Day in this kind and thoughtful way, and we all want you to know how deeply grateful we are for your interest and help in our work.

Thank you again, Mrs. Robinson, and all good wishes to you from all of us here.

Sincerely,
Mary Thompson
Corresponding Secretary

REMEMBER TO PROVIDE NON-ALCOHOLIC ALTERNATIVE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that you urge the hostess or host, when serving drinks, always to provide a non-alcoholic alternative for those who don't want an alcoholic drink. I'm afraid we don't always remember to do this. What we should. What is the best choice for this alternative? — Hostess

Tomato juice is the usual choice. But I think there should also be an "alternative" for tomato juice . . . orange juice, for example, or a cola, ginger ale, or any other soft drink. (I'm glad you are remembering to offer this important non-alcoholic alternative. In these days it's inexcusably thoughtless for a hostess or host to forget this gesture.)

SEPARATE SALAD PLATES AT BUFFET SERVICE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I serve salad with the main course, I always serve it on a separate plate. But now that I'm planning for the first time to give buffet parties, I'm wondering if it is really necessary with buffet service to have the salad served on separate salad plates. Is it? — E.

No. You should plan the main course of a buffet meal so that the items of that course can be served on one plate.

CORRECT TO GIVE A DONATION?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When our club visited another organization in a neighboring town, there was quite a disagreement about giving a donation when the collection was taken up. Some of our members feel that it would be correct to give a donation as a token of appreciation, and also because most of our organizations are dependent on monthly dues. Others feel it is not correct, and that it would be an insult to even offer a donation. Which point of view is correct? — Puzzled

I am inclined to agree with the members who think it would be correct, when the collection is taken up, to add their donation as a token of appreciation and as a good will offering.

IS A HOUSEWARMING GIFT A "MUST"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The question I would like to ask you is to settle a bet! Is it or isn't it a "must" for my husband and me to take a gift when we go to a housewarming? — B.

It is not a "must" for you and your husband to take a gift when you go to a housewarming. However, it is true that very often guests do take presents for the new home. These presents need not be "consequential" or expensive . . . they are usually small, inexpensive, but thoughtfully-chosen items that would be appropriate and useful.

SOUP SERVED IN CUPS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me the correct way to drink soup served in a bouillon cup. — Wilma

To test the heat of the soup, take a sip or two with the spoon provided, the bouillon spoon or teaspoon. Then drink the rest of the soup as you would drink tea.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Ronald E. — Mother nags me.

Mrs. J. E. — He treats his shortcomings too lightly.

Ronald E. — I am 15 and the oldest of a family of three. My father died two years ago and my mother went to work again last year. I am in charge of my kid brother and sister when we get home from school.

As a result of all this responsibility plus a part-time job two evenings a week, I don't have too much time to socialize. I have also fallen a bit behind in my school work. My mother has been nagging me to death, accusing me of being interested in nothing but fun. That isn't true, but I do think I have a right to stay out pretty late on weekend nights.

Another thing that gets my goat is that Mother always brings up this business of my late hours and my drop in school marks in front of my friends. She has embarrassed me so much that I don't feel like having any of my friends over to the house.

Mrs. J. E. — Ron has a wonderful way of treating any of his shortcomings very, very lightly. It is one thing for a boy of 15 to come home a little past the deadline and another for him to turn up at 3 A.M. That's no hour for any young teenager to be out on the town.

Also, this business of his failing "a bit" behind in his school work is an understatement. He is failing in all the subjects he doesn't like, but doing very well in the ones he happens to like. Obviously he can do the work, but doesn't want to apply himself.

Ron has done a good job taking on his responsibilities toward his younger brother and sister. But he is not overworked because they have been very co-operative and I have organized things in such a way that Ron should not have too much of a burden placed on him.

* * *

The Council: The conflict between Ron and his mother seems to be the usual adolescent one, but things have become intensified because of the death of the father and the fact that Mrs. J. E. is under a severe strain, having to work and be at once a mother and father to the children.

Ron has apparently taken on his main responsibilities nobly. In his own mind he feels that he is now Mom's mainstay and head of the family and is, therefore, entitled to some of the privileges befitting his new rank.

Mrs. J. E. is naturally concerned about the proper guidance of a fatherless, adolescent boy. She must depend on him for some things, but is afraid of letting him get too big for his breeches and feels the need to let him know that there is still a boss in the family — and it's not him.

On the whole, this family seems to have done a good job of difficult adjustment and Mrs. J. E. and Ron ought to pin a few roses on one another. This is what we would particularly urge Mrs. J. E. to do where Ron is concerned. He ought to get plenty of kudos for the good things he has done. He ought to know that he is appreciated and should not be embarrassed or humiliated in front of his friends. This is poison to any child, but especially to a teenager.

Mrs. J. E. should try to treat Ron in adult fashion and explain the total problem to him. If she lets him know she appreciates him as the substitute head of the family, it will be easier for him to accept the fact that he must, of necessity, be limited in his privileges. He is still expected to toe the mark as a teenager.

Modish Magic

By ALICE ALDEN

It's easy and economical to rescue that chemise dress from the fashion doldrums and transform it into the elegant Empire silhouette. The Empire bow is the bit of magic used to effect the change. Created to bring the new high-rising look to any waistless outfit, the Empire bow gives the free-form dress just right amount of fit at fashion's newest point of chic. Its wide, flat bow rests securely dead-centre on the bodice, anchored in place with a tiny concealed pin. Elasticized to fit any figure, this extra silhouette-changer closes neatly in the back with hidden snappers.

To Market To Market - In Seest

by Mary Moore

Tuesday is the big market day in Seest (pronounced Soast and rhymes with toast). I wanted to cover the market front while we had Herbie to help carry our buddies so we made a big production of it. Each one of us had one of those string bags in his pocket. But only one purchase of one head of kale filled one of them so plentiful with bronzy tops sticking out through the mesh like the heads of so many ducks.

All of the sweets on the market and in the gardens from the middle of this mild winter, required me to spend two days to make the best possible use of greens during January and February, and to find some outlets for apples and pears. Every German hostess has a garden and every garden has kale and Brussels sprouts and leeks in it. They boil those cabbagey greens for hours. I cooked ours this way.

KALE WITH LEMON BUTTER

I washed it well, cut off the coarse stems, and trimmed off the heavy side of the centre rib. I put it in boiling water over it and in 1 minute drained that off and added 2 cups boiling water for a change — especially in the winter when greens are scarce. These folks are shining examples of the benefits of making the best use of everything available — poor by Canadian standards but vigorous and canny. All ages of both sexes while all over the place on bike and motorbikes.

BAKED BOSKOP APPLES

Wash, ream out the core, fill with Danish honey and Danish butter and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for a change — especially in the winter when greens are scarce. These folks are shining examples of the benefits of making the best use of everything available — poor by Canadian standards but vigorous and canny. All ages of both sexes while all over the place on bike and motorbikes.

BAKED BOSKOP APPLES

Wash, ream out the core, fill with Danish honey and Danish butter and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 8-oz. package for the equivalent of about 10 Canadian cents; walnuts in the shell (costing about the same price as in Canada); red cabbages and, for good measure, a lovely cyclamen with 20 blooms. Gary wanted to add a tiny little moppet pup for sale for a few marks but we already had enough little articulate wiggliers.

So much for the purchases. The people are delightful too. Every farmwife that waited on us was of jolly, rosy - cheeked agile and a saleswoman par excellence. They extracted pfennigs and marks from me like crazy and I suppose I won't wake up to what is going on until it is time to go home and I find I'm broke. However Marianne and Herbie keep their watchful eyes on me.

A modern mining boom town of 10,000 Elliot Lake in Northern Ontario belies the usual conception of such a town as tough and ramshackle. Instead it is a bustling ultra-modern townsite where only 40 months ago moose and bears outnumbered the people. This aerial view shows the central commercial section. First hotel in the area is at centre right and a huge departmens store next to the hotel. Private homes are seen in the background. - (CP Photo.)

40 Months Ago Moose, Bears Outnumbered People in Now Thriving Town of Elliot Lake

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP)—From a visitor's standpoint this is probably the most disappointing town in the history of Canadian mining.

By all the records it should be rough, tough and ramshackle.

It's almost shocking to find instead an ultra-modern townsite of 10,000 standing where only 40 months ago moose and bears outnumbered the people.

The "pioneers"—of this bustling community midway between Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury live in attractive bungalows grouped in neat, well-planned subdivisions which appear to have been plucked from the suburbs of a major city.

SPANKING NEW TOWN

They drive on paved streets to a central shopping district where there is an array of modern stores surrounding a big free parking area. Everything—houses, stores, schools, churches—is spanking new.

Strangest of all, there isn't a mine to be seen. They're miles away in the bush.

But despite the appearances, Elliot Lake is really a mining boom town under it all. And a rip-roaring one at that.

The $50,000,000 community is the hub of a uranium region where a fantastic concentration of men, money and materials is on a crash program to wrest $1,100,000,000 worth of nuclear age metal from the richest orebody in the Western world.

It has meant compressing activity that normally would take 20 years into a fraction of the time to meet government contracts expiring in March of 1963.

GENERAL SPEED UP

The speedup has extended to every phase of development. An army of 15,000 construction men formed the initial airlift force that rushed the mining plants and townsite facilities into being. Now the pressure is on 10,000 mining men to keep up production schedules.

In the townsite where services for the area's 25,000 people are centralized, the last three years have also seen a furious rush to meet the needs of a mushrooming population.

A laundry sign boasts: "Established 1956 and still going strong." The proprietor came from New Liskeard in the spring of that year to install some equipment, intending to return to clean up his affairs in New Liskeard before opening for business. He did a few early orders for friends, was pressed to accept others and never did get away.

Eddie and Walter Blahey, two Timmins brothers, opened the first hotel and grocery store about the same time.

"We used to flip a coin to see who would open the grocery store door in the morning," Walter recalls. "Our biggest problem was getting stuff on to the shelves at the same rate it was going off. The customers finally settled that problem by taking it by the case."

The Blaheys, both in their 30s, were among the early business arrivals who reaped mines fortunes by acquiring the few business lots which were sold by sealed tender for the original townsite area.

EARN BIG WAGES

Right from the start this has been a big-money community. It wasn't unusual for skilled construction workers to earn $250 a week with overtime and today's miners average $100 with bonus crews running to $150. The 11 mines have a payroll of about $1,000,000 weekly.

In the last 18 months the opening of new commercial lots has taken the pressure off most of the original establishments. But business volume is still high enough that commercial building rentals run $4.50 to $5 per square foot—almost the same as in downtown Toronto.

Bill Cole, a former Toronto car dealer who now runs a smoke shop, claims the individual store in Elliot Lake enjoys the biggest market in the country. He says he sold $1,000 worth of postcards in a 30-day period last summer.

The fast pace of business and industrial life has not been easy on those involved.

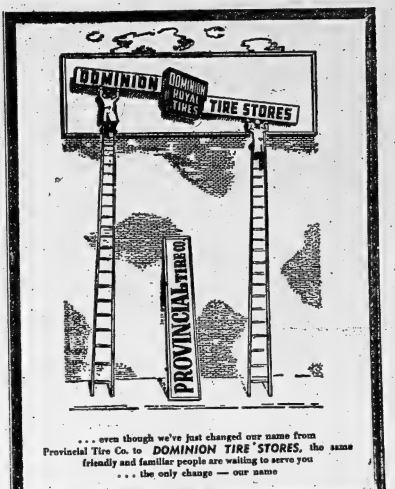
Dr. Paul Joyal, a general practitioner and surgeon who came from North Bay 18 months ago, says mental strain has been the biggest single health problem.

"About a year ago we had dozens of cases every month of what practically amounted to battle fatigue," he said. "Business people and the men in charge of the mines had been working under tension for weeks at a stretch without a break. We had to step some of them just short of the cracking point. Fortunately things are a lot better now."

Dr. Joyal, the first president of the Elliot Lake Medical Society, hasn't had much chance for rest—months of 1958 he delivered 171 babies, each case involving a 40-mile drive to the nearest hospital at Blind River.

But that situation has improved, too. The Sisters of St. Joseph recently opened a maternity floor in a new nurses' residence being prepared for the opening of a $3,000,000 hospital next spring.

Overshadowing the booming prosperity is the uncertain future of the uranium mines. It's still a guess what will happen to the uranium market when present government contracts run out in 1963.



Nobody seems worried about it, though. Scores of people are building luxury homes on 20 - year [illegible] and business places continue to sink thousands into [illegible] and improvement.

Walter Blahey, who's building a $250,000 supermarket addition, sums up the general feeling. "They've spent $350,000,000 on those mines out there. That kind of money wasn't raised for a short-term operation. Elliot Lake has a long future."

May Take 25 Years or More To Make Diagnoses From 100 Millions of Facts Gathered

What's the state of health of the planet on which we live? Thousands of scientists examined that during the International Geophysical Year just ended. Their diagnosis of ills noses are a long way off, but here are some early results. Last of a three-part series.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — IGY brought the greatest physical checkup in all history.

The patient—our planet earth.

For 18 months, scientists climbed, sailed, flew, skied, walked, rode, dug, probed and poked at earth with diagnostic instruments ranging from thermometers to orbiting satellites.

They found high altitude tides, winds of 200 to 300 miles an hour . . . places where the earth's skin or crust is only 2½ miles thick. They charted great rivers of electricity flowing through earth crust and upper air.

These are but some early results. It may take 25 years or more to make the most significant diagnoses from the hundreds of millions of facts gathered.

IGY — the International Geophysical Year—is formally ended. The world scientific effort cost about $750,000,000, and twice that if you include ships, planes and other support.

Its work continues in most major aspects under the title IGC-59, meaning International Geophysical Co-operation in 1959, to extend man's knowledge of his planet.

A great ocean of air is earth's lung for human life.

Rockets indicated winds of several hundred miles an hour at a level where the air is terribly thin and highly electrified.

By night, earth wears a balloon of dim light, the airglow, which is mostly pale green. It seems to occur in patches or cells, moving with average speed of 200 miles an hour at a 50-mile height, reports Dr. Franklin E. Roach of the National Bureau of Standards at Boulder, Colo.

Green airglow comes from oxygen atoms; with some yellow glow from sodium atoms. IGY scientists also detected unexpected storms of lithium—presumably shot up by nuclear tests.

Radiation streaming from the sun, or from particles trapped magnetically above the earth, cause the northern and southern lights or auroras.

But a man-made aurora was detected with one Pacific nuclear test. Scientists theorize a blast could alter the earth's magnetic field enough to allow some and private scientific groups.

trapped particles to stream down upon the earth.

Catching a great solar flare in action last Feb. 10-11, many scientists united to get varied, powerful effects upon earth.

Great currents of electricity flowed through the earth's crust as the earth's horizontal magnetic field strengthened. This was apparently induced by electrical currents in the atmosphere, Balloons detected heavy rumbles some 20 miles of the earth's surface.

IGY men confirmed the existence of the equatorial electrojet, a powerful electric current flowing in daylight hours only above the earth's magnetic equator. Similar currents presumably circle both poles. They offer new insight upon solar effects on magnetic fields.

Aground, seismologists used man - made explosions and the shock waves to probe deeper into quakes to fill in their understanding of the earth's interior and its crust. Shocks from underground A-bomb tests offered a new tool for doing this.

Seismic soundings detected the thinnest crust of the earth yet discovered under the sea—3½ miles—and also the thickest under deserts—nine miles deep.

Radiation streaming from the sun, or from particles trapped magnetically above the earth, cause the northern and southern lights or auroras.

But a man-made aurora was detected with one Pacific nuclear test. Scientists theorize a blast could alter the earth's magnetic field enough to allow some and private scientific groups.

The third for knowledge launched by IGY is not satisfied. Organizations of scientists have formed special new committees to push on, especially in cooperative studies of the oceans, Antarctica, and space science. The watching of the sun will continue, and so will most of the other researches started and less intensified an effort.

"We must press forward—there are still great problems to solve," says Britain's Dr. Sydney Chapman, heading the special IGY committee organized by scientists

Republicans Cry 'Politics' for Charges Made

WASHINGTON AP) — Republican congressional leaders struck back today with cries of "politics" against Democratic contentions that the Eisenhower administration is lagging behind in the space age.

In the opening round of what appeared likely to become a two-party fight in the new Congress, senators Styles Bridges Rep. N.H.) and Thomas Kuchel Rep. Calif.) assailed the call of Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas for his party to seize national leadership from the White House.

Johnson told fellow Senate Democrats Wednesday that there is a "deficit of vigor" in the Eisenhower administration. They therefore have a mandate to assume constructive leadership beginning now, not two years hence," he added.

EXPECTS BARRAGE

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Committees, described this as the opening shot in a Republican barrage he said he expects the Democrats to fire at President Eisenhower's fiscal and defense security policies.

"I am happy the president is making a strong effort to balance the budget," Bridges said. "I know that he is deeply concerned that the Congress act for be made to maintain the national security and he can be trusted to do that.

"But that won't keep the Democrats from making political attacks on his proposals."

Kuchel characterized his legislative program in a State of the Union message Friday, and will be submitted to Congress, as one he said will be a budget balanced at about $77,000,000,000.

Display Helps To Sell More Cheddar Cheese

TORONTO (CP) — Imported cheeses are helping the sale of Canadian cheddar because "the more variety you have in cheese the more cheese you will sell of all the types offered," the Canadian Cheese Manufacturers' Association were told Wednesday.

Charles McLaughlin of Dominion Stores Limited purchasing division told the association's annual meeting that per capita consumption of cheese in Canada had risen from 5.7 pounds in 1931 to 6.25 pounds. The figure was still rising.

J. M. Hartwick, speaking for H. A. Thurston, president of Ontario Dairy Products Council, told members he expected an increase in cheese production this year.

The meeting continue

Council Suspends Police Chief Of Streetsville

TORONTO (CP) Edward Rutledge, police chief of nearby Streetsville for four years, was suspended Wednesday by Streetsville council on six charges of improper disposal of confiscated liquor and one charge of insubordination.

Rutledge, who said he had no comment to make, has until Thursday to ask for a public hearing by council. William Arch, chairman of the police committee, said if a hearing is not requested, Rutledge will be automatically dismissed.

Robert Nuttall, senior officer of the three other members of the force, now is acting chief.

Arch said the chief did not submit all his reports to council, resulting in the insubordination charges.

Seaway Valley Being Converted Into Park Sites

CORNWALL (CP) — The Ontario-St. Lawrence development commission says work will start immediately on parks along the St. Lawrence Seaway valley to relieve unemployment.

The program ultimately will cost about $467,000.

Commission chairman George H. Challies said Wednesday that 100 men would be given jobs at the outset and more will be hired in the spring.

First order of business is to clear underbrush and begin laying out campsites, trailer camps and picnic grounds.

Younger Men Put in Charge Of Party's Bloc in U.S. House

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Republicans have reshuffled their leadership in the 86th Congress which opened in Washington Wednesday.

In the House of Representatives, the change was made to have a younger man in charge of the party's bloc.

But the Senate appointment of minority leader, Senator Charles A. William Knowland who resigned and ruined his political career in an unsuccessful campaign to become governor of California, was a display of the infighting between both Democrats and Republicans are waging as the 1960 presidential election approaches.

The struggles within the parties are by factions and not by congressmen, many of them of a liberal or progressive persuasion, who are quarrelling with the old-timers and old ideas. They are finding the changes slow in coming.

Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, 76, was eased out as the house Republican leader after 20 years in that capacity. Charles Halleck, a 58-year-old representative from Indiana, was chosen in his place. Both are regarded as highly conservative.

The Senate appointment of Everett Dirkson of Illinois was the choice of old-guard Republicans, fearful of naming senators tried to have John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky appointed in an attempt to move closer to the president and so exert an influence on government policy. They were placated to some extent by the choice of a young Californian, Thomas Kuchel, as Senate whip.

The young Republicans, elected in spite of waves of Democratic support last November and two years earlier, believe that is to retain the presidency when Eisen-

A two-hour discussion by Anastas Mikoyan, left, deputy premier of Russia, and U.S. Vice-President Nixon strengthened belief that Mikoyan's visit to the U.S. was aimed at arranging further top-level conferences. But when asked if the Soviet Union had changed its position in demanding that Western forces get out of Berlin by May 27, Mikoyan replied: "One does not change a good position."

Mikoyan Ignores Rising Tide Of Demonstrations by Those Who Have Escaped Red Rule

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Anastas Mikoyan has been peace terms and trade drive at Detroit today despite a growing storm that Iron Curtain immigrant groups are determined to make the Soviet deputy premier's visit a fiasco for Russia and America.

Mikoyan is paying no attention at all to demonstrations against his visit. He is firmly pursuing his policy of peaceful coexistence, trade and honor and advocacy of better political and trade relations between the Soviet Union and the United States—and more contacts in general.

Immigrant groups, spearheaded by Hungarian refugees, vowed to be boycotting more violent in efforts to attract attention for their attacks on the Soviet visitors.

Chanting, shouting, spitting and sign-waving were the principal tactics used Wednesday at the airport and downtown. One young Hungarian woman, arrested for tossing a rock in the general direction of the Russian party, said she was "sorry I missed. She said her father died in a Russian concentration camp, two husband spent six years in a work camp and "I saw my friends killed by the Russian Communists."

More demonstrations are anticipated in Detroit and Chicago where there also are many immigrant's from Iron Curtain countries.

Mikoyan Wednesday addressed a group of business and financial Midwest industrialists at the aristocratic Union Club. He told them Russia and America have been able yet to create shelters which are good against H-bombs, and that in his view such shelters are merely a consolation until the first bomb struck.

He said: "In one minute not only the fruits of our labor but we ourselves might be lost."

The Soviet leader was told by his host in Cleveland, Canadian born mutli - millionaire Cyrus Eaton, that Eaton hopes the U.S. Congress will remove restrictions on credits to the Soviet Union and on trade also.

Mikoyan and his group went to Akron by train and officially presented to Eaton the troika three horse team and carriage which the Soviet government has sent as a gift to Eaton and his wife. He had dinner with the Eaton family.

In Detroit today Mikoyan is in the hands of Walter L. Gaier, president of Detroit Edison. He is to visit the Ford River Rouge plant and catch a glimpse of General Motors and Chrysler and two Detroit Edison plants. He will have luncheon and dinner with Detroit automotive and industrial executives.

Inflation Seen Greatest Single Threat to Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Chronic inflation is the greatest single threat to Canada's economic development, James Muir, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said today at the bank's annual meeting.

He listed as inflation factors large government budgets; liquid holdings, consumer credit, or other means of increasing private expenditure; and current income; and a "round - robin of cost-price increases."

Mr. Muir said the oil and gas industry had been responsible in large measure for Canada's brilliant economic showing since the war and the "wise policy of government—in considering the report of the Borden royal commission—to move hastily to put the utility straitjacket on the industry.

He said every rail-rate boost "distorts a price and cost structure already distorted beyond all reason by the Crowe Nest Pass rates on wheat, fixed in 1897 and still unchanged."

Mr. Muir's comments were contained in a text made available to the press in advance of publication.

HAD URGED TAX CUTS

In his remarks on inflation Mr. Muir commented that "we agreed as in previous years and while the economy was still on the downgrade—he had urged tax cuts by government and price cuts by business.

"Instead of tax cuts last year we have encouraged government business activity while reducing pressure on prices, we got increased pressure on both counts.

"Instead of an immediate decision last year to move forward with the depth of the cycle, we find ourselves today with a decision to make in terms of trying to compete with the present economic figure running at a very inflationary spiral.

"It is the dissidvantage of government expenditures as a cure for recession that it is both pondorous and irreversible—it takes time to get projects under way time to get projects undes way and once started they must be completed."

UNPOPULAR JOB

Mr. Muir said that in the end, as recovery continues and inflationary pressure grows, "the government will have to find the difficult and unpopular task of cutting expenditures, which is the less difficult but even more unpopular task of increasing taxes."

Mr. Muir added, "It is not beyond the wit of our fiscal experts to devise measures to do this where to devise a system that will minimize the role of the business cycle in determining the size and nature of government-sponsored activity.

"Surely a more flexible tax system could be devised which would adjust tax rates to counter cyclical disturbances, not only quickly and effectively but without arbitrarily changing the relative importance of the government sector in our public life."

Injun Joe, Who Parlayed Tepee, Pet Skunk, Trinkets Into Big Money Is Dead

TORONTO (CP) — The Great Spirit has claimed Injun Joe, who parlayed a tepee, a pet skunk and a mountain of trinkets into a multi-million dollar business.

Injun Joe was not an Indian. Nor was his name Joe. He was Eri Konig Boyden, son of a prosperous Ottawa merchant.

When he died in hospital here Monday at 83, Boyden had transformed a child's fascination for an Indian legend into a money-making roadside business in the summer at the western fringe of Algonquin Park.

There, for four months of the year, Injun Joe lounged in a tepee with a pet skunk behind outdoor counters piled high with postcards, moosehide moccasins, hand - tooled leather jackets, birchbark canoes, porcupine quill table mats, small Indian drums, beaded dance belts, tomahawks, carved wooden animals and deerskin purses.

HANDPICKED SITE

An important factor in Injun Joe's choice of a location was that thousands of American tourists seem to think Algonquin Park is a sort of Coney Island in Pennsylvania rolled into one.

But when they get there, what they find is a vast and beautiful expanse of forest and lakes. After a couple of weeks of fishing and relaxing, they pack up and—usually still holding most of the money they arrived with—head home.

But between them and home squatted the impenetrable Injun Joe who believed that business was a success unless you arrived home broke.

Boyden never said how much his summer stand paid him. It was enough for him to travel during the rest of the year.

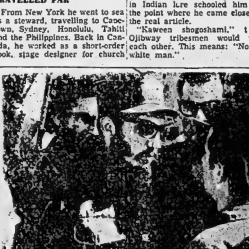
He ate in the New York restaurants, attended the Broadway theatres and cut an impeccable figure strolling leisurely along Fifth Avenue. He made an annual swing through the U.S. southwest and west, picking up handicraft from American tribes.

MADE MANY ARTICLES

He figured he made 40 per cent of his merchandise himself and got 40 per cent from Canadian Indians, whose handiwork he explored. He put the decline in quality down to indifference and the exploitation of the white man.

"Indians would do Popeye in plastic if that's what the public wanted," he once remarked. "They're just not interested in making fine quilt and beadwork any more."

Boyden served overseas during the First World War with the Royal Canadian Regiment of Signals and returned with a heel wound. He studied at a Canadian art school, then in New York where with hopes of becoming a stage designer. He got the job—with a road company that folded in Broken Bow, Neb., where Injun Joe met his first wife, Indian Peter Red Elk, who became his



In the depression, Boyden shared a Greenwich Village flat with an artist friend and painted.

TRAVELLED FAR

From New York he went to sea as a steward, travelling to Caracas, Sydney, Honolulu, Tahiti and the Philippines. Back in Canada, he worked as a storekeeper cook, stage designer for church theatricals and as commercial artist.

It was shortly afterward that he made his first trip to the Algonquin region. His long interest in Indian lore schooled him to the point where he came close to the real article.

"Kaweo shogoshami," the Ojibway tribesmen would tell each other. This means: "Not a white man."

Though he has no official position in the government of Cuba, Fidel Castro, leader of the rebels who overthrew the Batista government, says the new administration will prohibit gambling and corruption and will create 150,000 new farmers by giving away land. He has remained in Santa Clara, though his followers are in control of Havana, the capital.

Decision Reserved

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Decision was reserved Wednesday on charges of assault with a deadly weapon occasioning bodily harm laid against Thomas James Harper, 48, of Woodstock, following a Halloween night incident near his home.

John Wilson, 17, was in hospital 17 days with a chest injury from a .22-calibre bullet.

Harper testified he fired a pistol in an attempt to frighten a group of boys from damaging his home because "I was frightened to death"

Wilson testified he had just stepped out of a car when he was hit. He said he had done nothing to provoke the shooting.

EODA to Promote Area at Two Sports Shows

OTTAWA (CP)—The Eastern Ontario Development Association moves into the big time this year with the first efforts to promote this area by representation at international shows.

The association decided at a meeting here Wednesday it will have a successful display at the New York City Sportsmen's Show from 13-23 and at the Ottawa Sportsmen's Show March 13-23.

Taking part in the effort will be Renfrew County, Pembroke, Renfrew, Arnprior, Perth, Smiths Falls, Alexandria, Cornwall, Hawkesbury, Kingston, Gananoque, Brockville, Prescott, Cornwall and Rockland.

Twelve of these will send representatives to the New York show leaving by Gerry Rowe of Cornwall, and 10 to the Cleveland show led by Cliff Hudson of Kingston.

Harry D. Callan, EODA general manager, said all 40 Eastern Ontario communities will have literature for the shows. He said industrial contracts especially will be sought through the exhibits.

MEDIATION SUCCESSFUL

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal mediation has settled a dispute between the Seafarers' International Union (CLC) and the British Columbia Tow-boat Owners' Association. Terms of agreement include a wage increase of $84 a month in inner waters over the duration of the three-year agreement, company contribution to the seamen's welfare fund and 1½ time for overtime.

More Residents Driving But Fewer Killed

TORONTO (CP) — More Ontario residents drove last year but fewer were killed on the highways.

The department of transport says 1958 figures will show that while motor vehicle registrations and gasoline consumption increased sharply, fatalities were about 150 less than the 1,379 in 1957.

The ratio between deaths and distance travelled is an all-time low.

Arthur Rowan, chief statistician for the department, says there were 7.7 deaths per 100,000,000 miles travelled in 1957 and 7.6 deaths for the same number in 1958 which had increased yearly over 10 years. The 1958 figures had not yet been compiled but are expected to be sharply lower.

Traffic fatalities on roads patrolled specifically by provincial police in 1958 dropped 13 per cent to 729 from 850 in 1957, it was also announced. The totals do not include fatalities in towns, cities and other municipalities not patrolled by the OPP.

The attorney-general's office today instituted a crackdown on poor driving a year ago, said the provincial police can be justly proud of the accomplishment.

U.S. Steel Being Sent to Soviet Via Halifax

HALIFAX (CP) — United States steel is being shipped to the Soviet Union through this port in exchange for Russian scrap and pig iron and chromium ore.

R. J. Fisher, president of a firm of shipping agents, said Wednesday night that the steel, mostly sheets, came here by rail. He thought it originated in Cleveland.

Three ships will carry it to Riga, in Soviet Latvia.

The first of the freighters arrived here Dec. 13 with a carload of iron and manganese ore, loaded "somewhere in the Soviet Union."

Name of the shipper of the steel and the destination of the ore, pig iron and scrap could not be learned here.

Ultimate end of the proceedure, above, is to produce better pine trees for the pulp and paper industry. In Baldwin country, Alabama, Jerry Brock is using a needle-tipped syringe to squirt high-grade pollen through a plastic bag protecting a graft on a young tree. The graft itself was shot from the high branches of a high-grade pine with a rifle, and when given a new life on the young tree, is protected from pollenization by interior trees by the plastic covering. Left shows the female flowers or pine cones on a one-year-old graft. It is this portion of the graft that is protected when selected pollen has been introduced.

Too Much Stress Placed on Exams

ROTHESAY, N. B. (CP) — The Canadian Headmasters' Association of Independent Schools Monday adopted a resolution urging universities to pay more attention to the high school records of prospective entrants and principals' reports on them.

The headmasters felt too many universities are judging a student's ability on the results of his entrance examinations alone. The resolution is to be sent to the National Council of Canadian Universities.

D. S. Finlon of Lower Canada College, Montreal, was elected president. The executive committee includes Dr. F. A. C. Wilkenson of Port Hope, and G. W. Smith, Lakefield.

High-Riggers

One of the most skilled and spectacular jobs in Canada's colorful logging industry is topping and rigging the spar tree—used to hoist and load heavy timber onto railway cars and trucks.

The high-rigger is an experienced logger, who spends considerable time and thought in selecting the right tree. He limbs tree as he scales it, tops it at the 120-150 foot height where trunk measures 14-20 inches in diameter.

Cool nerves are essential as high-rigger clings to trunk of topped tree which may sway from 14-20 feet; he then begins rapid descent. Experts limb and top a tree in 1 day; rigging spar tree may take a week.

3-inch spurs which bite deep into tree and sturdy ropes with steel core are part of safety equipment. For their skill and daring high-riggers are paid $22 a day.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The remaining members of the McFarlands hockey club which brought the coveted Allan Cup to Belleville last spring, will travel with the team to Europe, regardless of what additions are made to the club.

Manager Drury Denyes made that announcement when he was queried regarding rumored dissatisfaction of certain veterans of the club would be cut to make way for reinforcements.

"We have already released seven of the Allan Cup squad," the manager said, naming Guidolin, Marutiak, Montgomery, Lepine, Geyer, Kowalchuk and Marineau. The rest of the boys will be going overseas to help bring back that world title."

Coach Ike Hildebrand was worried, too, over the rumored stories. "These boys were good enough to help us win the Allan Cup, and they are, in my opinion, good enough to retain the world championship," he said.

Ike said he realized that help was needed in the frontline divisions, and hoped it would be forthcoming, but, he added, if rumors were true he would not stand for the trading of two or three players for one who would only be with the club this season, or for the overseas trip.

"We have to look farther than winning the world championship," the dynamic little coach said. "We must remember there will be senior hockey here another year, and we do not want to break up the club, willy-nilly, and have to start from scratch, so to speak, next season."

Manager Denyes said there apparently had been some misunderstanding in the news release regarding the appointment of Billy Reay as the club's assistant general manager.

"It was definitely understood that Mr. Reay would act as assistant manager to help relieve me of some of the arduous hockey duties. With our present daily work commitments, it was impossible for either myself or Hildebrand or anyone to do the work necessary to the final organization of a team to represent Canada at the world tournament," he said.

"Player help was definitely necessary. Both Ike and I knew that, but where could we get him at the time to find them. That was mainly the reason for the acquiring of Mr. Reay as the assistant general manager. It also was definitely understood between Reay, Ike and myself that the new assistant manager would have nothing to do with the coaching. That is strictly Ike's job, and nobody will interfere with it."

Hildebrand concurred in the statement. "These boys do not want to work for two bosses, and I am the one they recognize as the man in charge."

"I will likely ask Billy's advice on certain things."

The news release on Reay's appointment stated that the new assistant general manager would have a free hand to make changes or add players, etc. "There apparently was some misunderstanding there," commented Manager Denyes. "Mr. Reay was sent away to look over players and see what could be done about acquiring the reinforcements felt necessary to round out the club. He will bring back recommendations but in the last analysis the coach and I will have the final say."

The manager did not commit himself to any names but he did infer that efforts would be made to secure the services of Connie Broden, at present the playing manager of the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and who starred with the Whitby Dunlops along with Jean Paul Lamirande in the world tournament at Oslo last year.

"We could use Broden for the world tournament only. Then he would be back in Canada in time to join the Hull-Ottawa team for the Eastern Ontario senior league playoffs. However, we have nothing definite on that as yet," he said.

Teepees, All-Stars Tie 2-2

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines TeePees, first-place team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, played to a 2-2 draw Wednesday night against a league all-star team.

A crowd of 2,100 saw a sparkling game which produced plenty of fast, clean action.

In last year's inaugural all-star game, which pits the mid-season leaders against a selected squad, TeePees were beaten 8-4.

DEJORDY, MIKITA SHINE

Dennis Dejordy, all-star goalie in a mid-season poll of coaches, played an outstanding game for TeePees while their all - star centre, Stan Mikita, the league's top point - getter, scored both goals.

Jacques Caron of Peterborough Petes also was outstanding in goal, though both Mikita's counters were at his expense during the 30 minutes he was on the ice. Bert Wetzel of Hamilton Tiger-Cubs followed Caron and blocked 17 shots.

All scoring was in the first period. Freddie Hillis started both Mikita scoring plays, the relays going to defenceman Pat Stapleton for the first goal and to Chico Maki for the second.

Forty-four seconds later Dave Keon of Toronto St. Michael's Majors beat Caron on a power play. The tying goal came five minutes later, Sandy McGregor of Guelph Biltmores netting a Keon rebound. Dave Sly of St. Michael's started both plays.

Good goaltending kept the last two periods scoreless.

MISS OPPORTUNITIES

The all-stars missed a fine scoring chance with just 59 seconds left. Wayne Connelly of Peterborough broke clear but was brought down by TeePee defenceman Terry McGuire who drew two minutes for tripping.

Tight forechecking by Mikita and Maki broke up the all-star power play which followed, and produced a faceoff in the all-star zone.

With seconds left, Maki won the draw and passed back to defenceman Pat Stapleton who rifled a shot at Wetzel which the goalie caught in his glove.

Earlier in the period referee Hugh McLean ruled George Ustaja of Guelph had kicked the puck in the net, and refused to allow the first goal.

High-Flying Hawks Run Unbeaten String To Seven

Hall Produces First Shutout In 4-0 Victory Over Blues; Toronto Defeats Detroit 3-1

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It may be a bad omen for the Chicago Black Hawks, but Glenn Hall, their goaltender, has produced his first shutout of the season.

The Hawks blanked New York Rangers, their nearest rivals for second place, 4-0 in one of two National Hockey League games Wednesday night. Last-place Toronto Maple Leafs improved their prospects by defeating Detroit Red Wings 3-1.

Hall and the Hawks don't seem to operate on the same wavelength. About this time last year Hall had a goals-against average of 2.45 and was leading the league with six shutouts. But Chicago was in the NHL cellar.

This year Hall has just been doing an statistically with an average of 3.08.

And Chicago is right up there in second place with 41 points, four more than New York.

ONLY SIMMONS WORKS

The only other goalie with a goals-against average worse than Hall's is Don Simmons, Boston Bruins, with 3.16. Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens leads the goalies with a 2.08 average. Hall made 25 stops to Lorne (Gump) Worsley's 30 as Chicago climbed to within 10 points of idle Montreal which has a game in hand. starting to seven games.

Ed Litzenberger and Ted Lindsay sparked the scoring, with a goal and an assist apiece. Eric Nesterenko also had two. Ron Murphy got the others.

Hall's closest call came in the second period when Jimmy Bartlett, on the ice to kill a New York penalty, had a breakaway from 10 feet out.

Toronto's win was additional evidence that the Leafs, season-long cellar-dwellers, can't be forgotten.

Detroit and Toronto were tied 1-1 up to the 18:55 mark of the third period. Then Bob Pulford tallied the winner, and Dick Duff followed up with the final goal at 19:45.

Detroit rookie Len Lunde opened scoring in the first period, and Leaf centre Billy Harris tied the score midway through the second with his 15th goal of the season.

Ed Chadwick, Toronto's regular netminder since Dec. 21, became suddenly ill with a virus infection after dressing for the game and Johnny Bower took over in the nets.

Bower was credited with keeping his team in the game during the first two periods with some dazzling saves. He was especially effective against Detroit ace rightwinger Gordie Howe, whose only point was an assist on Lunde's goal.

96 Eligible For Running Queen's Plate

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Jockey Club announced today that 96 Canadian - bred three-year-olds still are eligible for the 100th annual running of the Queen's Plate. A June date for the centennial of America's oldest stakes event will be announced later this month.

Purse for the 1959 event at New Woodbine will gross more than $70,000. The Jockey Club offers a prize of $50,000 and $2,500 gold trophy. The winning owner also will receive the traditional gift of $5 guineas offered by Queen Elizabeth. Presidential fees, interim payments and starting fees will add $20,000 to the Jockey Club's prize.

At the moment, the prospective field is headed by such promising stakes-winners as Bull Vic, New Providence, Le Grand Rouge, Willowdale Boy and Winning Shot.

Butt Vic, owned by the partnership of Larkin Maloney and Conn Smythe, was Canada's leading two-year-old last season with earnings of $45,640. He won the Coronation Stakes, the Display Stakes and one division of the Carleton Stakes.

New Providence, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor, had earnings of $28,010 last season and scored his most notable triumph when he defeated Bull Vic in the Cup and Saucer Handicap.

Willowdale Boy, owned by Peter Del Greco, won the Colin Stakes, first division of the Summer Stakes. Winning Shot, owned by J. S. Evans, won the Yearling Sales Stakes at Fort Erie.

Le Grand Rouge, regarded by some horsemen as the best juvenile in the Maloney-Smythe barn last summer, won the Victoria Stakes. Conn Smythe also has two other juveniles "with possibles" in Busher Royal and major flight.

Eleven horses from Western Canada and two from Quebec remain eligible for the Canadian racing classic.

Bulldogs Whip Dutchmen 4-1

Greyhounds Defeat Sudbury

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was spoilers night in Ontario senior hockey action Wednesday.

Windsor Bulldogs, who have been beaten by every team except the OHA-NOHA loop's top clubs for two weeks, piled another upset by whipping the league-leading Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen 4-1.

It ruined Kitchener's chance of pulling away from Dutch Gainor and Ross who are only one point behind.

Kingston Merchants, who have been copying Windsor in the OHA Eastern circuit, held second-place Belleville McFarlands to a 3-3 tie.

The Bellerville squad, which will represent Canada in the 1959 world championships, is badly in need of points to catch up on the leading Whitby Dunlops.

In the other action Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds downed Sudbury Wolves 4-2 to replace Sudbury in third spot in the OHA-NOHA standings.

It was a complete rout at Kitchener with the fifth-place Windsor club skating the leaders into the ice.

The Bulldog pressure let up briefly in the second period but Kingston's goalie Gus Gravelda, a new Windsor acquisition, came up with a sparkling effort.

FADED IN STRETCH

Belleville seemed to be making a runaway of it in the early part of the game at Kingston. Merchants suddenly revived in the second and third frames in less than three minutes.

Bart Bradley, Ernie Menard and John McLellan provided the Belleville scoring punch but Ken Lindenmeier, Don Bellringer and coach Bus Gagnon came back for Kingston.

Sudbury held the lead twice on their own ice but the relentless Soo squad kept storming back. John Bobenic and Andy Voykin scored to give Sudbury an edge but Joe Bumbacco and Jim Farrell were in fast with the matchers.

A two-goal splurge in the third period by Laurie Peterson and John Offidani put it on ice for the Soo.

Leafs Send Dave Creighton To Rochester

TORONTO (CP)—Centre Dave Creighton has been waived out of the National Hockey League and sent by Toronto Maple Leafs to Rochester Americans, their American League farm team.

Leafs said Wednesday night no NHL clubs wanted the 28-year-old forward for the $15,000 waiver price. Creighton has seen service with four big-league teams, Toronto, Boston, Chicago, and New York, during a 10-year NHL career.

His departure makes a place for Larry Regan, whom Leafs bought for the waiver price from the Bruins earlier this week.

Regan will join Leafs tonight at Montreal for a game against the league-leading Canadiens.

BRIGHT SIGNED

EDMONTON (CP) — Fullback Johnny Bright, who holds the Canadian record for yards gained rushing, signed a two-year contract Wednesday with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Bears, Indians Game Marked By Wild Melee

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A wild melee broke out among spectators and players Wednesday night in the American Hockey League game in Hershey between the Bears and the Springfield Indians.

Don Cherry, Springfield defenceman, was in the middle of the initial strife, which developed while he was serving a penalty. Fights among the spectators followed, delaying the game about 12 minutes.

No one was badly hurt and so one was arrested.

The hockey game went into overtime and the visitors won, 4-3.

In Providence, meanwhile, the Reds defeated the league-leading Buffalo Bisons 2-0.

LITTLE BOY, BIG SOON

The trouble in Hershey started when Cherry leaped over the boards at the ice before he had finished serving a minor penalty for holding. The game was delayed while referees gave him another minor for leaving the box too soon.

As Cherry turned to the timekeeper to protest, several spectators jumped over the boards at the defenceman's sweater. That's when the battle started.

Two spectators were pulled to the ice and buried under a mob of players as both goalies rushed to clear the ice.

Police referee escorted one fan across the arena and ordered him to leave the premises. Just as he reached the exit, another fight broke out in the stands. An estimated 20 spectators, including women, took part in this affray.

STATE TROOPERS ACT

Arena police couldn't get close enough to end matters because of the congested space in which the battle was waged. After about three minutes two Pennsylvania state troopers broke up the melee.

Cherry was given a misconduct penalty and sent to the dressing room.

Colin Kilburn blasted in a long shot to decide the game in overtime. Other Springfield scorers were Ken Schinkel with two goals and Floyd Smith. Gene Achtzen, Len Haley and Bob Solinger replied for Hershey.

At Providence, Harry Lumley registered his third shutout of the season. Ray Ross and Larry Leach scored the goals.

Giants, Colts Place Eleven On National All-Star Team

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The champion Baltimore Colts and the New York Giants captured 11 of the 22 positions on the 1958 Associated Press all-pro team selected today by sports writers covering the National Football League campaign.

Defensive end Gino Marchetti, one of the six Colts on the squad, was the only unanimous choice, getting all 41 votes of the experts. Baltimore's Johnny Unitas, who set a record by throwing at least one touchdown pass in 25 consecutive league games, received all but one vote for the quarterback position.

BROWN MAKES IT

Ray Berry, the offensive end who set a championship game record for passes caught and yards gained in the Colts' 23-27 gelts also had guard Duane Putnam, end Del Shofner and halfback Jon Arnett on the offensive outfit.

DETROIT HAS TWO

Detroit placed two men while Green Bay and the Chicago Bears had one each as did Cleveland, Washington, Philadelphia, San Francisco and the Chicago Cardinals failed to place a man on either the defensive or offensive outfits.

Linebacker Joe Schmidt and halfback Yale Lary were Detroit's representatives. Defensive back Bobby Dillon represented Green Bay and middle guard Bill George made it for the Bears.

The only rookie to make either the first or second team was Pittsburgh's Jimmy Orr who, along with Pete Retzlaff of the Philadelphia Eagles, received offensive end positions on the second team.

Kingston Overcomes Macs' Lead To Earn 3-All Tie

Rally for Three Quick Goals To Knot Count in 2nd Period; Third Frame Was Scoreless

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The McFarlands should learn not to "trust Greeks bearing gifts" in the form of hockey teams appearing to be easy prey for their puck-chasing talents.

Last night in Kingston they pilled up a 3-0 lead, then saw a frustrated first-period gang of Merchants turn into a demolition squad and tie the score before the quit-work whistle blew in the second heat. The third period was scoreless.

Walks they missed not a few chances to win the game, the same applies to the fired-up Merchants, and Gordie Bell stood between the lickmen and defeat in a fast and furious third period. The Merchants outshot the Macs 42-31, targeting 20 shots to the Macs' five in the overheated second frame.

The McFarlands grabbed what seemed to be a comfortable two-goal lead in the opening frame and added another four minutes after the second got underway. Then Kenny Lamontagne's goal touched off a fuse of rapid-fire that saw the Merchants grab a Macs' five in the overheated second frame.

The Macs seemed to wilt under the pressure after the first Kingston goal. The defence was not sold on Gaetan and Bell accordingly was given a busy time. They regained some of their offensive composure in the third period and it was a nip-and-tuck battle with the Merchants going all-out in an effort to snatch the win.

Barney Kelsey, Minnie Menard and Johnny McLellan were the McFarland goal-getters with Crawford getting two assists and Brown, Payette, Hildebrand, and Jones getting singles.

The Bellringer, Linseman, Chiarelli line was the best on the ice for Kingston with the first two scoring and Gagnon getting the third Merchants' markers.

Bradley and MacDonald drew the only sentences of a game characterized by the absence of any heavy body checking.

Floyd Crawford sent Bart Bradley and Wilmer Brown away on a speedy foray after five minutes of the first period with Bradley potting Brown's rink-wide pass for the first counter. Ken MacDonald was thumbed for the first of the game's pair of penalties, but the Macs at this point had no trouble in warding off the Merchants' feeble power.

Minnie Menard broke into the clear but goalie Lynn Davis charged almost to the blueline to swipe the puck up and out into the crowd.

Crawford again started a pay-dirt charge when he flipped the puck to Kelsey who in turn relayed it to the far wing to Menard. Minnie let go a hard drive from a difficult angle that Davis stopped and juggled and the falling puck rolled into the net.

Johnny McLellan zipping into the goalmouth shovelled Ike Hildebrand's pass into the net to give the Macs a 3-0 lead early in the second period.

Then the roof fell in. Linseman fired home Chiarelli's pass from a second and a second later Bellringer got credit for a goal when the puck dribbled over the line after the winger was checked. Savard's pass out to Gagnon parked in front of the net resulted in the third goal in less than three minutes and a new hockey game was underway.

Kingston fired by their success maintained a driving offensive and Bell was tops in kicking out their drives. Bradley was chased at 17.38 but the Macs weathered the storm.

The Macs settled down in the close-checking hard driving period with both clubs going out for victory and missing chances when Bell and Davis were apparently sealed. Some 1,742 fans saw the game.

Phillies Reject 'Fabulous' Offer Says Mayor

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mayor Richardson Dilworth says Philadelphia Phillies had turned down a "fabulous" offer to transfer their National League baseball franchise to Minneapolis.

Phillies' officials were not available for immediate comment.

"Bob Carpenter (owner of the Phils) does not want to take the Phillies out of Philadelphia," Dilworth said, "but it is very likely he would be seriously interested in a proposition from New Jersey."

A syndicate reportedly is buying up a huge chunk of ground across the Delaware River just outside Camden, N.J., and adjacent to the Garden State Race Track, to lure the Phillies.

Dilworth said the Phillies' situation has not yet come to the stage of final decision on moving. He said the original criticism of the city's proposal to underwrite a new stadium has softened.

Businessmen here, he said, have come to realize that big league teams are an attraction for new business and industry.

A new stadium seating 45,000 with adequate parking facilities would cost $10,000,000, under the city proposal, Dilworth will meet Friday with civic, business and sports leaders to discuss the situation.

Reject Offer To Take Over B.C. Lions Club

VANCOUVER (CP) — An offer to take over British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union was overwhelmingly rejected Wednesday night at the club's annual meeting here.

More than 1,800 members—largest turnout ever at a club annual meeting—rejected the offer from Nat Bailey, prominent restaurateur and sportsman.

Bailey offered to take over the management of the club and guarantee $110,000 operating capital. While making his offer to the meeting, he was continually heckled.

A second offer from a group headed by Bill Ralston, which offered to purchase the club for $100,000, was withdrawn.

Members also elected 12 directors for two-year terms and two for one-year terms.

Leonard Rejoins Tourney Trail

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stan Leonard, 44-year-old Vancouver professional who earned $40,000 on the golf circuit last year, will leave Vancouver this weekend for the United States, where he will rejoin the gold trail in the Corsby tournament Jan. 15.

Leonard, just returned here from a vacation in Hawaii, has not competed in a major tournament since the British Columbia centennial here last September.

He said he plans to compete in 15 major tournaments this year, starting with the Bing Crosby meet at Pebble Beach and including the Masters and the U.S. open.

Leonard's major achievement last year was winning the Las Vegas tournament of champions where he collected $25,000, including $15,000 in bonuses.

Minor Hockey

Maple Leafs and Red Wings chalked up victories in the mid-get section of the Belleville minor Hockey Association last night while the Black Hawks and Bruins fought to a 4-4 tie.

The Leafs defeated Rangers by a 5-3 score with R. Jones potting a pair of goals. W. Gilroy, C. Allenby, S. Maltby and J. Muir each scored one goal. Ted Bowers with two, Muir, Malloy, D. Smith and Allenby had assists. D. Fisher was the Ranger marksman with R. Ling assisting.

R. Snow and Ted Bowers fired two goals to pace Red Wings to a 3-1 decision over the Canadiens. J. McCabe added the third Wing goal while D. Galpin and E. Flunder drew assists. T. Rowland fired the Canadien goal on a play with C. McGrimmon.

A. Waddell turned in a two-goal performance for the Bruins in their tie with Black Hawks. L. Scott and R. Burr also scored for Bruins and M. Foxon had a single helper. Black Hawk scorers were N. Richards, K. Johnson, S. Graham and P. Brown. K. Nolan picked up the lone assist.

DECIDE B'BALL GROUPS

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—The United States entry has been placed with Argentina, Formosa and the United Arab Republic for the first elimination round-robin of the world basketball championship tournament at Santiago, Chile, starting Jan. 15. Group two comprises Brazil, Panama, Mexico, and Canada. Uruguay, Puerto Rico, Bolgaria and the Philippines are in the third group.

17 Youngsters Die in U.S. Football

CINCINNATI (AP) — Seventeen football players' deaths in the United States last fall show a need for supervision of sandlot football and development of improved headgear.

That was the recommendation of a committee which reported to the American Football Coaches Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association Wednesday.

The fatally injured players, all of them in high school or sandlot competition, were a tiny fraction of the youths who played football last fall.

The committee headed by Dr. Floyd Eastwood of Los Angeles State College said 11 deaths occurred among high school players and six in sandlot ball, which is completely unsupervised.

For the eighth time in 27 years, no fatalities occurred in college football. Nor were there any in semi-pro ranks.

Head injuries, and spinal injuries caused by blows on the head, have accounted for 81.5 per cent of all football deaths since 1947, statistics are responsible for most of the others.

The committee listed the most vulnerable parts of the body in this order: Both sides and front of the head; internal organs; top of the head; back of the head.

Boyd Takes Split Verdict From Mims

CHICAGO (AP)—Bobby Boyd, throwing punches freely, took a 10-round split decision over veteran Holly Mims Wednesday night.

The 25-year-old Boyd, unranked now but in 1956 a No. 1 middleweight contender, hit his 30-year-old foe with everything but his knees in the free-wheeling bout in Chicago.

The fight progressed mainly with flurries, both men rushing along them enough to get back burns.

Mims, raised the No. 7 contender by the National Boxing Association, and No. 4 by Ring magazine, absorbed his second loss to the Chicagoan. Boyd beat him in the same ring in 1956 and they fought to a draw a year ago in Miami Beach.

Boyd outweighed his foe 190½ pounds to 155½.

New York's New Ring Boss Adopts Wait-and-See Policy

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—The new boss of boxing and wrestling in New York has adopted a wait-and - see policy instead of sounding off with threats.

Melvin Krulewitch, (crew-lawitch) a retired Marine Corps major general, is a trim man of 63 with a smattering of grey hair.

He held his first news conference at his Madison Avenue law office and handled himself as an experienced lawyer might be expected to do.

"I am in no position to express an opinion," he said when asked to comment about boxing. "I want to get my feet on the ground and form my own opinions. I am on the threshold of a new job. I want to see my way clearly ahead."

STEPPING LIGHTLY

There was more in the same vein. The new chairman stepped lightly around queries. No fireworks. No blasting ultimatums. Pleasant, but careful, he warmed up only when the talk got around to wrestling.

Krulewitch was a college wrestler at Columbia. He wrestled in the Marine Corps.

In the 1930s he won the light heavyweight title at New York.

"Four or five years ago I was wrestling with my stepson and I decided I was through," he said. "Occasionally I box a round or two with the chief.

"You didn't come up with a cauliflower ear from your wrestling," a writer observed.

"Oh yes, I did," he said, pulling on his right ear. "I had to have it drawn out when it was fresh."

Krulewitch wouldn't be drawn into any comments about the present state of boxing or wrestling. In New York wrestling matches are billed as exhibition by state law.

LIKE EVERYTHING

"I like boxing. I like wrestling. I have had a little more personal contact with wrestling because I have more fire and life to it. For a number of years I was a member of the Amateur Athletic Union wrestling committee and entered local competitions. I wrestled to win. In the marines I hit but to be a fall, no decision."

And boxing?

"I have seen most of the big fights — Dempsey and Tunney, Dempsey and Carpentier. I like heavyweights."

It would like to see more fights in the state, more small clubs as well as large ones.

It may come as news to the new commissioner that the clubs, large or small, are few and far between.

"Would you like to see Floyd Patterson fight?" he was asked.

"If certainly would," he answered.

So would a lot of people.

WAS BOXING CHAMP

BARRIE (CP)—Archie Thompson, 31, former Ontario lightheavyweight boxing champion, died of a heart attack Tuesday while shovelling snow beside his home. Thompson had been coaching youngsters in boxing and baseball in recent years at the YMCA and other youth groups. He was employed at the nearby Camp Borden army camp.

Stockton, Calif. — Tony Dapas, 134½, New Orleans, outpointed Teddy Davis, 134½, Stockton, 10.

TOP WOMEN DRIVERS

TORONTO (CP) — Two top-flight women drivers from England will compete in the Canadian winter car rally covering 1,300 miles of Northern Ontario Feb. 5-8. They are Pat Moss and Ann Wisdom, both 23, who won the European ladies' touring championship driving a British car from Liege, Belgium, to Rome and back last year. This is the first time top European drivers have come to Canada to compete. They will drive an Austin A-40. Pat is the sister of Stirling Moss.

Abbie Pearson American League Rookie of Year

BOSTON (AP) — Little Abbie Pearson of the Washington Senators has been named American League 1958 rookie of the year by an overwhelming margin.

The 23-year-old centre-fielder, one of baseball's smallest competitors at 5-feet-6, 160 pounds, headed the balloting conducted by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Ryne Duren, New York Yankees fireball relief specialist, was second while right - hander Cary Bell of Cleveland Indians was third.

The voting was by three baseball writers in each of the eight American League cities.

Pearson, traded by Boston Red Sox with Don Kaschia to Washington last January for Pete Runnels, hit .275 in his freshman major league season.

In 146 games he went to bat 530 times, scored 76 runs, connected for 146 hits and 190 total bases.

He had 25 doubles, five triples, three homers and 33 runs batted in.

He was called up by the Red Sox from the 1957 season after a sensational minor league career in which he never hit less than .300.

HODGES IN HOSPITAL

NEW YORK (AP)—Gil Hodges, slugging Los Angeles first baseman, was resting comfortably Wednesday following a minor operation and said he expected to be discharged from the hospital Saturday. "I wasn't serious, just painful," Hodges explained. "And I felt it was time I did something about it. It bothered me, on and off, for the past three years."

Alex Olmedo Out With Pulled Muscle

PERTH, Australia (AP) — A pulled stomach muscle today forced Alex Olmedo to default in a doubles semi-finals of the Western Australian tennis championships.

Olmedo, star of the recent Davis Cup matches, between the United States and Australia, was playing with Barry MacKay when he walked off the court after 12 games and said: "I'm sorry, I cannot continue."

The 22-year-old Peruvian had dropped his third straight service and was in obvious pain. Sweden's Ulf Schmidt and Jan Lundquist had won the first set 6-3 and were leading 2-1 in the second.

It was virtually certain Olmedo would pull out of the singles semi-final Friday and rest for the Australian matches later this month in Adelaide.

CHRONIC TROUBLE

Olmedo said his troublesome stomach muscle was a chronic one which hurt him several times in California and reappeared in Brisbane.

Modern Movie Love-Making Vulgar Says Director Borzage

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The man who made one of the screen's all-time great love scenes calls modern movie love-making vulgar.

"It's embarrassing to watch," says director Frank Borzage, who made Seventh Heaven with Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor in 1927, a picture that won the first Oscars ever awarded an actress and a director.

"Lovemaking on the screen used to be tender and sweet," says Borzage. "It was left to the audience's imagination what was taking place.

"Now nothing is left to the imagination. Kissing is more gum chewing now than lovemaking."

Borzage didn't bring it up but a remake of one of his old pictures serves as a perfect example.

"FAREWELL" SUCCESS

Frank wrote the first Farewell picture with Gary Cooper and Helen Hayes. It was an artistic and commercial success.

The remake, one with Rock Hudson and Jennifer Jones was not. In the original Farewell, censors cut out a scene from the script in which Miss Hayes, Miss Hayes while the Italian troops marched off in the distance, Borzage convinced the censors that he could portray the scene in good taste.

"I did it all with their eyes," he recalls. "The censors passed the filmed scene. The audience knew what was happening but was not offended."

In the recent remake, the illicit angles of Ernest Hemingway story were stressed in keeping with the screen's new realistic mode of lovemaking. One scene showed Miss Jones going through the pains of childbirth. The scene was so realistic that several persons, including actress Audrey Hepburn, fainted at the premiere. Yet the picture was far from the commercial success of its predecessor.

FILM 'BIG FISHERMAN'

Borzage, inactive much of the last few years, now is making one of the biggest pictures of his career. It's the late Lloyd C. Douglas' last novel The Big Fisherman a story of St. Peter.

There's a love story between John Saxon and Susan Kohner and Borzage is giving it his time-tested treatment.

"It will be sweet and tender," says the veteran screenmaker. "And the lovers will be the same age—none of this stuff where the greyheaded hero makes love to teen-age girl. I've always insisted that love should be the same or about the same age."

NOHA Suspends Player and Two Referees

TIMMINS (CP)—Two referees and a Kapuskasing player have been suspended by the Northern Ontario Hockey Association as a result of a rowdies which took place in a Porcupine Mines Senior League game Dec. 26.

NOHA president Cliff Thompson, referees Alex Stewart of Timmins and Ted Cadieux of Kapuskasing and Ruskies Nickie Rukavina are to appear before the NOHA executive at a meeting tentatively scheduled for Feb. 1. Police officers were called to the ice of the South Porcupine arena in Golf Dunphy of Ruskies-Soo Porcupine game, wants the officials to explain why Rukavina should not be given a game misconduct penalty.

The referees' report said Rukavina cross-checked Stewart and swung at Cadieux.

The NOHA executive says if Rukavina doesn't appear four seasons suspension will be imposed.

Rukavina joined Ruskies this season after playing with Philadelphia Ramblers of the International League.

Cus D'Amato Target for London Writers

LONDON (AP)—Floyd Patterson has defended his world heavyweight boxing title only three times since winning it in Sweden Dec. 1956, and London boxing writers can't figure out why.

Dismissed Hackett of the London Daily Express has directed a caustic question to Patterson's manager, Cus D'Amato:

"Why doesn't you sign up the new champion No. 1 challenger, Ingemar Johansson, when he arrives, Sonny was in New York in November, he says purpose? Is Patterson scared of letting the tycoon can lick any man in the world. It might not be a bad idea to set him up."

Said Sam Leitch in the Daily Herald: "We've two years D'Amato has picked on Patterson only opponents D'Amato wanted. D'Amato has become the biggest one-man nuisance in the whole sport."

AVOIDING JOHANSSON?

"In New York D'Amato said Patterson may have several fights in 1959 before getting round to Johansson. He includes Britain's Brian London and Henry Cooper among worthy challengers.

In London, Cooper's manager, Jim Wicks, says he'll sign now for a title fight against Patterson—for £35,000 ($98,000).

"I would want the contract before Cooper's fight against Brian London next Monday," added the cautious Wicks. "Otherwise we'll talk about no tracts next Monday, and then I shall want even more money."

Wicks, of course, has taken that for granted. Cooper will beat reigning British champion London.

London is supposed to have agreed to a £12,000 ($32,800) fee a fight against Patterson—if he defeats Cooper.

Hats, Welcome Given Russians In Colorado

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—The Russian hockey team was smothered in comfort and welcoming hats Wednesday night.

The visitors landed in Denver by plane, then were driven here for a two-day stopover on their games that may provide the toughest test of their U.S. invasion.

The Russians have won three and tied one of the halfway point on their tour. They meet Colorado College Friday night and Denver University's defending collegiate champions Saturday night. Both collegians are managed by Canadians.

The 18-man Russian squad and accompanying officials are staying at the Broadmoor Hotel, a plush resort whose guests are usually royalty.

Dignitaries, cheer leaders and a small group of sport fans met the Russians when their commercial airliner landed in Denver.

The guests appeared pleased at the welcome, posed for photographers, then were herded into cars after exchanging hats with their welcomers. Some of the Russians' faces were replaced by 10-gallon cowboy models.

Matched against the hustling, rugged young Canadians, the Russians could be in for trouble. The games will be played in Broadmoor Arena, the smallest the Russians will see on their tour. It might spoil the visitors' slick passing attack.

Alderman Wants Pan-American In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Alderman Frank Baker has asked city council to make application to have the 1963 Pan - American Games staged in Vancouver.

His request had support from mayor Tom Alsbury. It followed receipt of a letter from Alan McGavin, chairman of the Canadian Pan-American Games committee, asking applications from Canadian cities.

Manager Alsbury said "it sounds like a fine idea for Vancouver that we should host such an event and is quite in line with what we've been trying to develop here."

Victoria city council also is considering applying for the 1963 games. Winnipeg has had a committee working on an application since last fall.

The Pan-American Games are being held this year in Chicago and 2,000 athletes from north and and 2,000 athletes from north and South America are expected to compete.

Fred Rowell, former chairman of the Pan-American committee of the Canadian Olympic Association, and Alex Osborne, liaison officer to the Pan - American Games, say it is fairly certain the 1963 games will be awarded to Canada.

Juvenile Delinquency Will Be Subject of Hour Program

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK AP)—Innumerable people are forever uttering innumerable words on the subject of juvenile delinquency. But producer Robert Northshield defined the problem from his viewpoint of youths the other day:

"Their problems is that they have 24 hours in a day to fill, and how do you pass a day?"

His observation is the result of the weeks he spent recently in Detroit filming and taping a television report on a successful battle against delinquency there by an organization called Youth Anonymous.

ABC-TV will present a one hour report on Youth Anonymous on Monday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m. EST. ABC news chief John Daly will head a group of reporters who survey the methods being used in Detroit to resist juvenile delinquency.

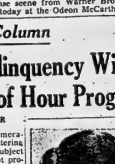
Northshield explained that Youth Anonymous, headed by an ex-convict, named Ernest Tipp Rumsby, aims to aid the 15 per cent of "hard-core" juvenile youngsters who normally cannot be reached by other organizations.

One of the most interesting aspects of predicting the report, Northshield's opinion, was how he used a camera crew with the confidence and respect of three youths in order to record the way they spend a typical day.

"At first they tried to shock me," Northshield said. "But we laughed at them or ignored them. I grew up in Chicago, and being a tough kid in Detroit doesn't impress me at all.

BIGGEST PROBLEM

"Basically the kids were trying to make the simplest things complex simply to kill time. That is their problem—killing time."



The ABC report also covers a court hearing, a meeting of Youth Anonymous, and a trip with Rumsby through the scenes of his own slum youth and early crimes.

Diana Dors, who has no objections to being called Britain's Marilyn Monroe, says that as far as the world of television production is concerned Americans are far more calm, cool and collected than the British.

Miss Dors, now in the other day to appear next Sunday on the Steve Allen show NBC-TV.

She says:

"Television here is much more TV.

Was Rundown, Stomach Rebelled--Afraid to Eat

Suffered Bad Indigestion, Gas, Sour Acidity, Ache Backache; Limbs, Joints Sore, Painful. Tells of relief by taking Syntona.

"I was badly rundown and feeling miserable but after taking a short treatment of Syntona I am able to be up and around every day from morning until night", said Mr. George Schnarr of 29 Elgin Street W., Kitchener Ontario.

Just Felt Tired Out

"For several months before using Syntona I just felt tired out with indigestion and could hardly eat a meal without having awful indigestion, gas and sour acid afterwards. I had a dull aching pain across my back and my limbs, joints and muscles were sore and painful. I had a weak appetite, sallow complexion and at times I could not get up in the morning.

"But Syntona has given me wonderful relief from the indigestion and also the pain and soreness in my back and joints. I can now go around easily and feel ever so much better in every way. I sleep well at night and don't have that fatigued, worn-out feeling as I did."

Has Helped Thousands

Whether you are 15 or 90 you may become rundown and feel tired, indigestion impaired, back and joints may become painful and stomach sour, bowels constipated, nerves upset and you are troubled with it grow and the way it has helped thousands in these rundown conditions.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Havana Gives Hearty Welcome To Rebel Leader

Cubans Warned to Guard Victory Against Batista

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's capital started a wild celebration after a fumultuous welcome for Fidel Castro. The rebel leader warned his cheering supporters they must guard their victory against die-hard followers of dictator president Fulgencio Batista.

Castro Thursday night told a crowd of 30,000 at Camp Columbia, the army headquarters, that the next five to 15 years will tell whether the Cubans will profit from their victory over dictatorship and oppression.

The path ahead will not be easy, he said, and the reconstruction of every Cuban is needed to cut the nation on the road to freedom, happiness and prosperity.

WARNS OF FOES

Castro warned of enemies still at large. He said certain elements are trying to provoke disorder. His soldiers had seized huge supplies of arms and ammunition from Batista.

The rebel chieftain finally reached Havana Thursday afternoon after a week of slow triumphal progress across the island from Oriente province.

All business and industry came to a halt and virtually the entire population of 6,000,000 turned into the streets to cheer as the leader and his bearded followers made their way through the city. I' was the biggest hero's welcome Cuba ever has given.

With an escort of tanks, autos and jeeps loaded with soldiers, Castro proceeded, at snail's pace through the surging crowds to the presidential palace.

There he was met by Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, who called him "the great son of the Cuban people."

Castro's motorcade moved on to Camp Columbia, about five miles from downtown Havana. Castro was pale, tired and hoarse but he spoke for 90 minutes, until almost 11:30 p.m.

One of the growing problems is the flood of refugees from the surging crowds to the presidential palace.

Gun and Camera Enable Woman To Catch Thieves

NORWALK, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Maria Villegas, victimized by burglars three times in a month, decided to trap the thieves in her own way. She armed herself with an unloaded rifle, an inexpensive camera with flash attachment, and waited in her bedroom.

Eventually, two neighborhood boys aged 13, entered her home.

"When they started to force the lock of a bathroom box where I keep the money," she told sheriff's officers, "I stepped from behind a door and snapped their picture. I then aimed the gun and yelled for help."

Her arrival brought help. Sheriff's Capt. Herman Garbe said the boys admitted stealing $220 from Mrs. Villegas.

The picture turned out fine, too, and in color.

Defence Minister Says Position on Arrow Unaltered

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has not yet made up its mind finally on whether to discard the Arrow supersonic jet interceptor program, says Defence Minister Pearkes.

The minister said Thursday there has been no change in the situation respecting the expensive Arrow since Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in September that government policy on the project will be reviewed in March.

Speaking to reporters on the controversial subject after meeting a union delegation calling for continuance of Arrow production, Mr. Pearkes said tests are being continued to determine whether the American Hughes armament control system and the Falcon air-to-air missile could be used in the controversial Arrow.

Mr. Pearkes asserted there was substantially the same as he gave to a union delegation that saw him last October.

DECIDE BY MARCH 31

A member of the delegation—Dennis Mahoney of Toronto, international representative of the United Automobile Workers—quoted the minister as saying at the meeting that the government will decide between now and March 31 on whether to order the Arrow into production.

He also said the minister stated the decision will not be based solely on a cost comparison with available American aircraft. Defence needs apparently are the decisive needs, the department's recommendation to the cabinet.

The delegation — headed by President Claude Jodoin of the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress — urged on Mr. Pearkes and Labor Minister Starr that the Arrow be kept in production, both for defence purposes and for helping Canada's "deteriorating" aircraft industry.

The Arrow is being built by Avro Aircraft Limited at Malton.

FORT WILLIAM GROUP

Union workers of another company in the A. V. Roe Canada Limited network—Canadian Car and Foundry—also appealed before middle-of-the-week layoffs of 600 here to seek help to prevent the closure of the company's Fort William plant.

After this meeting, Works Minister Green said the government "will do everything it can to help."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:— Variable cloudiness and scattered snowflurries will persist over most of Ontario today and Saturday as winds from the northwest continue bringing cold air into the province. Little accumulation of snow is expected except in the snowbelt areas of Southern Ontario where off-lake winds will cause numerous snowflurries and occasional snowsqualls.

Polish Treasures Being Returned By Federal Govt.

Ends Twelve Year Diplomatic Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — The crown jewels of ancient Polish kings, along with priceless scrolls and Chopin's original manuscripts, will be shipped back to Poland in the next five to 15 years will fulfil another of diplomatic wrangling between Canada and the Polish Communist regime.

With Polish Red and non-Red forces declaring a truce on the artistic front, the external affairs department announced Thursday night that many millions of dollars worth of Polish treasures, stored in two vaults under the Bank of Montreal vaults here, will be returned to the Cracow State Museum near Warsaw.

Professors and not politicians will escort the treasures back. Dr. Jerzy Szablowski, head of the Cracow museum who has been in the city several times, will personally undertake delivery, informants said.

FEAR DETERIORATION

Non-Communist Polish forces, who had come to Canada to escape the destiny of the treasures, decided to co-operate in the return. They feared deterioration of the priceless collection locked in the trunks for 12 years.

It had to be decided is the destiny of another part of the collection, consisting of 132 rare paintings, stored in the Quebec Provincial Museum since the days of the late Premier Duplessis. He told the legislature last year: "I have made up my mind" and they will remain here in spite of promises or threats.

But the Polish regime has shown no willingness to wage a political battle for their return.

BROUGHT IN 1944

The treasures have been locked in the vaults since the Poles sought a haven for the jewelled swords and armor and 18th and 19th century scrolls as the Nazis invaded and ravaged their homeland.

Victor Podoski, then head of the Polish consulate here, died in 1954 and for three days until the government arranged burial by a records office at the Dominion Experimental Farm. They were moved later to the Polish section of the Quebec City.

Now a federal civil servant, he said he is sorry to see them go.

Suspend Search For Drowned Man

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Police Thursday night suspended their search for the body of a 19-year-old tractor driver drowned Thursday when his vehicle plunged through the ice on Kenogami Lake, 15 miles southeast of here.

Police said dragging would resume, in the morning for Paul Stewart of Dunnville.

The grisly dragging became lost in the dark and wandered down the lake towards Grassy Narrows, where lake ends enter Larder Lake in Bayly Township.

The tractor dropped through thin ice into 18 feet of water.

At Least 80 Perish as Dam Bursts, Releasing Lake on Spanish Village

ZANORA, Spain (AP)—A dam on Lake Sanabria burst early today, unleashing a flow of water on the mountain village of Riva-tejago. More than 80 persons are known to have perished and many more are missing.

House in Riva-tejago a town of 500 inhabitants, were swept away.

The dam broke at 12:30 a.m. and most villagers were asleep. Lake Sanabria is a reservoir. Soldier troops garrisoned in Zamora and Benavente and the Falange party Youth Front were ordered to the scene.

The Monacabril power station, on the western edge of the lake, and employees on duty there also were engulfed by the wall of water.

The disaster occurred in one of Spain.

Telephone and telegraph connections with Rivadeago were cut, and the road from the village to Puebla de Sanabria was washed out in a number of places, making rescue operations difficult.

Provincial Governor Juan Murillo Lopez de Hierro and a group of rescue operations.

Heavy rainfall during the last month had swollen the lake to the brim. It also is known as Lake Castro. It is the largest in the extreme northwest corner of Spain, situated about 25 miles north of the border with Portugal.

Rivadeago is just below the Monacabril dam.

Engineers immediately left Madrid for the disaster scene.

Toronto Transit Commission Providing Complicated Row

TORONTO (CP) — This city's transit system, considered a model of efficiency by many experts, is providing one of the most drawn-out and complicated rows in Toronto's civic history.

The system represents a public investment of more than $800,000,000 and boasts Canada's only subway, a 4½-mile affair running north and south through the heart of the downtown business area.

But no sooner had the Toronto Transit Commission completed the subway five years ago, than a bitter fight over a proposed east-west subway broke out.

Metropolitan Toronto's three lakeshore municipalities have opposed plans to finance the new underground.

And the city was thrown into an uproar last week when TTC chairman Allan Lamport resigned his $15,000-a-year post and councillors, controllers and the Mayor — themselves — launched an investigation.

Only last year, a Toronto firm of management consultants, J. D. Woods and Gordon, issued a highly publicly-owned TTC, said its management was efficient and sa- fastened the system to Metropolitan Toronto Yonge Street subway.

Now it has been learned that even while the survey was going on there was feuding between the TTC chairman and its general manager.

Chairman Lamport, 53-year-old former Toronto mayor, resigned after two of the other four commissioners refused Mayor Nathan to re-assign the duties of general manager W. E. P. Duncan.

He wanted Mr. Duncan relieved of his position and appointed general manager of the east-west subway program. After resigning he said the TTC head had "arrogated to himself powers intolerable" and charged that there were hidden mistakes and bungling in building the Yonge Street subway.

Mr. Lamport said subway cars were overweight and tracks were better worn down quicker than expected.

Mr. Duncan, a professional engineer who was named general manager in 1952, says he'll resign if charges of costly blunders in connection with the Yonge Street subway can be proved.

Mr. Lamport remains a commissioner at $8,000 a year and he's being urged to take chairmanship if his proposals regarding TTC personnel are met, and control over it from political interference, unanimous approval by the TTC board before any alterations in specifications of subway cars, and all inquiries and complaints addressed to the TTC is brought to the attention of commissioners and not blocked by TTC officials.

Frederick Gardiner, chairman of the metro council which embraces Toronto and 12 suburbs, has called Lamport's demands, says he'll call an emergency meeting of the council unless the TTC "revolution."

Canada's Truce-Keepers Will Remain on Job in '59 at Least

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's truce-keepers in Indochina and the Middle East will remain on the job for 1959 at least, officials say.

Authorities say that the Canadian truce supervisory commissions in Indochina and the United Nations Truce Supervision in Egypt have been such stabilizing influences that there is little prospect of them being withdrawn this year.

The country now has such a store of experience as a patrolling armistices that it is at the head of a list of United Nations countries which can be asked to supply personnel for new missions.

Since 1954, Canada has sent more than 600 personnel to Indochina. Most of them are now being withdrawn last year but two other teams are still being maintained in divided Vietnam and Cambodia.

Canada, India and Poland comprise the commissions. This country would favor some reduction in strength of the teams—more than 30 Canadians now are serving on them—but not a withdrawal, especially from Viet Nam.

According to the armistice agreements signed in 1954 by Communist northern Viet Nam and non-Communist South Viet Nam, there is to be reunification elections.

But there is little prospect of reunification.

The feeling here is that the commissions have been performing a worthwhile role in aiding the United Nations peace effort in Geneva armistice. The Communists might look on withdrawal of the commissions as a tear up and abrogation of the Geneva truce.

Canada, India and Poland comprise the 5,000-man force.

Accused Admits Passing Bonds Believed Stolen

DETROIT (AP) — Ivn Baltin, 45, of suburban Birmingham, was held Thursday for investigation of obtaining money under false pretences in connection with the $11,000,000 robbery of a Detroit bank.

Detective Ralph Smith of the bad cheque squad said Baltin admitted passing two bonds worth $1,000 each. Smith said Smith said were part of the loot taken last May from the bank at Brockville, Ont.

Smith said Baltin told him he got the bonds from a friend who asked him to exchange them for cash. Smith declined to reveal the friend's name. He said the man was a Detroit resident and the police are looking for him.

Smith said Baltin admitted cashing the bonds in Essex, Ont. on Dec. 20, 1958. He said Baltin told him he did not know the bonds were part of the loot taken in the Brockville robbery.

Smith said some $9,000,000 of the $11,000,000 in stocks and securities taken from the bank have since been recovered. He said about $10,000 worth of the stolen goods still "are floating around and turn up from time to time."

The Brockville Trust and Savings Company was robbed last May 3 by burglars who cleaned out two large vaults and a number of safety deposit boxes. Officials of the company at Montreal said at the time the loot totalled "at least $3,350,000."

No accurate estimate of the loss was available Thursday, however, they had no record of the safety deposit box contents.

De Gaulle May Grant Amnesty To Algerians

PARIS (AP) — Charles de Gaulle, installed Thursday as the first president of the Fifth Republic, may open his seven-year term with some measure of amnesty, especially for prisoners in Algeria.

Michel Debre took over de Gaulle's former job of premier, but the post wasn't the same any more.

While de Gaulle held the job with sweeping powers and power for seven months, Debre as minister of justice helped draft the French Republic's constitution to give more power to the president and less to the political whims of the premier and the National Assembly.

The president no longer has to approve the cabinet first and can remove it only by a censure motion majority — which at the same time must agree on a new premier.

Fourth Republic cabinets usually were brought down by ministerial crises — disputes which themselves could never provide the majority necessary to take the majority of the members.

WILL ACT FOR BEST

Debre appointed a 21-member cabinet that included 17 ministers from de Gaulle's government.

Chamber Urges Firm Steps To Fight Inflation

Wants Unions to Tell Financial Position

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce today urged the government to take firm steps to combat inflation and require labor unions to divulge their financial positions.

These two suggestions were given particular emphasis in the chamber's annual submission to the cabinet.

The brief suggests gradual tax cuts, close surveillance of government spending and delay of any further welfare expenditures for the purpose of curbing and fighting inflation which, the chamber said "is steadily eroding away the value of the dollar."

It proposed that unions be required to register with the federal labor department and report their financial expenditures and financial position to the government in the same manner companies are required to do.

It said this should be written into the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act. Expected to be up for revision at the parliamentary session opening Thursday.

CREDIT NEEDED

On other subjects the brief proposed:

1. The financial machinery to make the government better able to experience so that they can compete with other countries now enjoying such credit facilities.

Adoption of a public policy aimed at maintaining personal freedom and at keeping government from detailed participation in decisions of private business and from competition by state agencies with private enterprise.

3. Aggressive action to ensure a free and continuous flow of desirable immigrants.

4. Discontinuance of the sale of annuities by the government's annuities branch.

5. Immediate establishment of machinery for interprovincial taxation, and planning for the construction of interprovincial, development and road highways of national importance.

6. Support for secondary industry development of subsidies to encourage export of finished goods.

7. Steps to control the flow of capital to Canada in 1967 to mark the centennial of Confederation.

INFLATION MENACE

Inflation was described as the most pressing and the most fatal factors contributing to it are the wage-price spiral, taxation and the high levels of government spending.

Among the proposals on labor, the brief said legislation should prohibit agreements in which employment depends on union membership and prohibit strikes until a majority vote in favor of a secret ballot.

It also urged a secret vote after a strike has been in effect for 30 days to ensure that employees have an opportunity to consider the employer's offer on an impartial basis.

COURSE IN COURTESY

GALTMORE (AP)—Ten hours of courses in public relations are required of recruits in the Royal Canadian Air Baltimore's police academy, Capt. Norman J. Morales has announced. Instead of recruits are told to avoid such forms of address as "sonny," "Mac," "babe," and "gal" because they may provoke hostility.

Balance Budget, Work For Future Tax Relief -- Ike

Useless Spending Seen Threat to Safety of U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today challenged the heavily Democratic new Congress to meet the Communist threat by living within his $77,000,000,000 budget and working toward tax relief "in the foreseeable future."

In a "state of the union" message outlining administration plans, the president said his formula is designed to strengthen the U.S. way of life. He said useless expenditures "might tend to undermine the economy and therefore the nation's safety."

FIRST SESSION

His 5,000 - word address, prepared for delivery at a joint session of the Senate and House of Representatives, also set forth these other proposals:

1. Enactment of new civil rights legislation to be submitted to Congress next month — being specific about the legislation, the president deplored closing "some public schools to avoid desegration controversy, and pledged anew he will use "every power necessary to enforce the law as interpreted by the courts."

2. New laws aimed at wiping out "corruption, racketeering, abuse of power and trust in labor-management affairs."

3. Amendment of the 1946 full employment law "to make it clear that the government intends to use all practicable means to protect the buying power of the dollar." The president did not specify just what he has in mind, but he again has called on labor and business leaders to exercise statesmanship to curb the wage-price spiral. And he announced he will set up a cabinet committee on price stability for economic growth.

4. Passage of new farm legislation designed to reduce heavy federal outlays in that field eventually, and to assure "greater freedom for farmers to reflect the wishes of producers and consumers."

GIVE DETAILS LATER

As in the case of the others, Eisenhower went into no detail on his proposals. He gave specific provisions of all the programs will be set forth in a

Starr Requested To Intervene in Strike at CBC

MONTREAL (CP)—CBC officials and 74 hired CBC Montreal radio and television producers looked to Ottawa today for next developments in their 11-day dispute.

The producers sent Labor Minister Starr a telegram Thursday requesting he intervene in the dispute between the corporation's five French-language broadcasting by the CBC in Montreal. They also asked him to try to arrange a meeting with Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Earlier Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, called a meeting for today in Ottawa with heads of seven unions which represent CBC employees.

Mr. Jodoin said only that he had some ideas to put forward.

74 FIRED

The CBC fired the 74 producers Thursday, advising them their individual contracts with the corporation are "null and void." The producers were told in separate telegrams they had repudiated their contracts and a letter of acceptance from work was unauthorized.

The 2,000 other workers respecting the producers' picket lines were told in individual telegrams that they are not to be paid for the period they have not worked.

A producers' statement Thursday said they were "out of the telegrams. "We estimate the CBC spent $3,200 of public money to intimidate strikers with whom they refused to negotiate Thursday afternoon.

DEMAND RECOGNITION

The statement reiterated the producers' demand for recognition as bargaining agent of their newly - formed association des Realisateurs (CCCL), central figure in the strike.

The CBC has refused recognition on the grounds the producers are part of management, and as such unable under federal law to organize as a labor union.

The corporation has proposed to study recognition based on the producers' offer to abandon management responsibilities temporarily until the producers returned to work. The proposal rejected recognition before agreeing to return.

The CBC said 100 union members, including 18 English-language radio announcers, have returned to work since the strike began.

French and English-language radio and television have been operating with a skeleton management, supervisory and confidential staff members.

Little Sign Of Break in Wage Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators for the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Hydro Employees Union today made new proposals for a contract settlement but there was little sign of a break in the dispute.

A negotiating session adjourned Thursday with no indication that either the 10,000-member union or Hydro had made any major moves from their basic positions on wage increases. Talks were expected to resume today or Monday.

The union, an affiliate of the National Union of Public Service Employees (CLC), has asked a 3½-per - cent wage increase in each year of a two-year contract. Members voted last month to strike if demands are not met.

Union officials were reported to have modified their demands to a 2½-per-cent increase for the first year with the second year left open for further discussion.

A union source indicated this proposal will be put forward in the talks.

Hydro has stood fast on its offer of a 1½-per-cent increase in each year of a two-year agreement. The proposal is in line with conciliation board recommendations.

One contentious union demand is a request for assurance that hydro will stop contracting out work, a request Hydro is expected to resist.

The union says that turning over work to outside contractors has cut heavily into its members' jobs.

No date has been set for a strike. The union says a walkout would cut off all industrial power. Employees would continue essential services unless hydro attempted to use supervisory personnel to increase output.

Point of Law Raised on Parking By-Law

TORONTO (CP)—City solicitor J. Palmer Kent Thursday raised a point of law which makes certain illegal parking legal and which at another time of the year would put police in a quandary.

He told a council committee that all city by-laws, including those applied to traffic signs refer to standard time.

In summer months, the solicitor pointed out, restrictions such as 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. refer to Standard Time rather than Daylight Time, meaning some motorists may have been improperly fined.

Mr. Kent was asked to report how city by-laws could be amended to take care of the situation.

New Industry for New Brunswick

CANADA

The southern area of New Brunswick is particularly suited to dairy farming and recently what may be a new departure for the industry began with the export of 12 pure-bred Holstein-Friesian heifers to South America. The cattle were shipped to Venezuela where they will be used as breeding stock. Above, cattle graze on the rich banks of the St. John river near Fredericton.

BALANCE BUDGET

series of special messages which will go to Congress in the next several weeks.

Eisenhower told Congress the U. S. economy is strong and healthy, and that the 1958 business recession is fading.

"Personal income," he said, "is at an all-time high."

Eisenhower said his military budget will advance "a sensible posture of defence," along with increased efficiency and avoidance of waste.

But he added at another point: "The basic question, facing us today is more than mere survival — military defence of national life and territory. It is the preservation of a way of life."

FOREIGN AID PROGRAM

He called for continuation of the foreign aid program, but did not estimate its cost. The request is expected to go higher than the $3,700,000,000 tagged for spending this year.

Eisenhower's budget message will go to Congress Jan. 19.

Democratic Congress members already have challenged the announced budget total as unrealistic and inadequate for national security. Some Republicans have joined them in questioning the $40,900,000,000 reported included for defence.

Without mentioning the $71,000,000,000 figure today, Eisenhower hit back at contentions it isn't big enough in the light of Russia's spectacular progress in the space field.

The president called his defence plans sensibly balanced against a need for maintaining a sound economy and fighting off devastating inflation.

Eisenhower said that by working together, Congress and the president can keep the budget in balance. And then he held out hope for tax relief, saying that if a balance is achieved "there is real hope that we can look forward to a time in the foreseeable future when needed tax reforms can be accomplished."

Fair Buildings Being Improved

About $6,500 worth of renovations and additions to the Belleville Fair accommodations have been made possible through federal grants obtained through the office of Lt. Col. Gerlin, M.P., according to fair board president, Dr. Russell Scott.

A new cattle shed, new roof on the horse box stalls, and improvements to the horse barn are among the projects now under way at the fair grounds. The cost of the improvements will be partly defrayed by a 50 per cent federal government grant and a 25 per cent provincial government grant. The remainder will be borne by the fair board.

Salesmen Fined For Giving Away Cartons of Beer

HANOVER (CP) — Two brewery company salesmen Thursday were jointly fined $300 with the option of three months in jail for giving away beer and advertising pamphlets in a pre-Christmas canvass of this community 37 miles south of Owen Sound.

Arthur T. Lennox of Port Colborne and Max Gilchrist of London, Ont., were arrested with a carload of beer after they had visited a few homes.

Police said their automobile contained 72 cases of beer, half a carton of bottle openers and scores of pamphlets.

Ontario liquor law, gifts of beer or liquor are illegal. Persons may only possess beer or liquor purchased by them.

$100,002 FOR BENEFACTOR

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — A wealthy white rancher has willed $100,000 to a Negro woman he said once treated his sicces and a leg with "old-fashioned remedies." The will of Duece V. Palmer, 70, left the $100,000 to Ellen Mae Rose, 45, who lives with her husband, Ivan, on the Palmer ranch near here.

shipping back the treasures to Poland. But he was glad now.

"The Poles want the treasures back," he said Thursday night. "I know that even the non-Communists in Poland are most eager to have them back."

Joseph Polkowski also was relieved. As one of the original custodians of the treasures, he had fought the Reds' demands all through the past-war years. He swore allegiance to a Polish government in London. He finally capitulated on orders of the London exiles who also feared for the future of the collection.

VALUE ESTIMATES VARY

Value of the treasures, including those at Goderich, has been estimated variously at between $5,000,000 and $50,000,000.

The treasures were examined in the bank vaults Dec. 23-24, the first inspection in 12 years. Among the experts present were Polish royal and three other Polish professors.

With them was 46-year-old Witold Malkowski, world-famous pianist who played a prominent part in negotiations. He said later he was elated that Chopin's original scripts now will be "accessible to Poland and the world."

Called in as other experts were D. C. Norman of Ottawa, Gutenberg Bible specialist; Aleksander Junia, New York director of the Paderewski Foundation; Stefan Konckl, Montreal painter; General Jozef Zajac, Ottawa art collector.

They all agreed the 12 years of storage had not done much damage but there was danger of steady deterioration if the collection was not removed.

Cheese Producers Fail to Carry Advertising Load

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario cheese producers have failed to carry a fair share of the annual $1,000,000 budget, and do very little to support the national campaign, C. W. Shugg, director of the Dairy Farmers of Canada public relations branch said Thursday.

Mr. Shugg told the Ontario Cheese Producers Association annual meeting that his department had "a potential of $380,000 to spend" but only one set-aside sale up to this morning a total of $3,000 had been made.

Under the June set-aside dairy farmers are asked to contribute part of their cream or butterfat or equivalent in milk solid during the month of June. Mr. Shugg's branch handles promotional and advertising activities paid for by Canada's dairy farmers.

It is further than just letting the national program down," he continued. "When a producer fails to make his fair contribution then shippers and retailers in the neighborhood get the idea that they shouldn't contribute either."

S. J. Gagnon, assistant deputy federal minister of agriculture and J. Gilmour, chief of the agricultural stabilization board, said Canadian butter production had increased over the period since 1952, but consumption had dropped four per cent.

'No Intention' Of Using Hidden Speed Traps

HAMILTON (CP)— Attorney General Roberts said Thursday night the provincial police have "no intention" of using hidden radar speed traps.

He gave the assurance in a speech at a banquet held by the Ontario „Sheriffs' and County Court Clerks' Association.

Mr. Roberts said police will certainly an aid to sensible enforcement" but speed traps are more effective in plain sight than if they are hidden.

"If radar is being used on one of our provincial highways there would be no objection to having it known that it was somewhere along that road .

"The purpose of its use would be attained without anyone necessarily being fined for speeding."

The attorney - general also promised that when the demerit driving point system goes into effect Feb. 1 provincial police will not "station a few officers" of people for alleged offences for the sole purpose of convicting them."

Mrs. Donohue Not Guilty on Murder Count

TORONTO (CP)—A 29-year-old brunette was found not guilty of murder Thursday because, an Ontario Supreme Court jury ruled, she was insane Nov. 11, 1957, when her four children were hanged from the basement rafters of their home.

Mrs. Noreen O'Donohue, the wife of Toronto lawyer Michael J. B. O'Donohue, had been charged with murder following the child, Maureen, 4.

Dr. Jean Turner, a neighbor, found the children hanging from the ceiling when she entered Mrs. O'Donohue's invitation to "go and see for yourself." Dr. Turner cut down all but the last, Maureen, the fire department. The youngest child, a few months old, was revived.

Dr. Turner said she left her own home on the morning of Nov. 11 after receiving a phone call from Mrs. O'Donohue. She asked how the O'Donohue chil, dren were and the mother replied: "I don't know. It's too late, they're dead."

Defence counsel Pat Hartt called only four witnesses—all doctors and three of them psychiatrists—to establish Mrs. O'Donohue was suffering from insanity when the charge of the hangings and did not appreciate the consequences of her act.

The star witness was Dr. Bull said Mrs. O'Donohue was committed to the Provincial Hospital at Whitby after a psychiatric examination disclosed she was mentally ill.

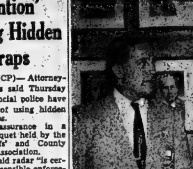
Last Sept. 5 Mr. Bull said, she had recovered to the point where the trial for murder was possible.

Mr. Hartt said afterward the woman would be returned to Whitby for further treatment.

13 Foreign Ships To Spend Winter At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Reports that groups in the Atlantic provinces are agitating for increased icebreaker service pose the latest threat to the winter trade in Montreal harbor may be stuck to its guns.

The Atlantic Provinces are making do with one department of transport icebreaker, the ice-ridged Sauvel—while a fleet of four tug ships is at work on the harbor at Montreal and the powerful Labrador is stationed at Quebec City.



One government official suggested today the fleet working in the area is chosen Montreal would be halved if the east-coast ports got more help. Canada's engineers said they would be skeptical of chances of freeing ships ashore after they left the force out.

Some foreign freighters would face the prospect of awaiting the spring breakup. They have been known to be trapped during the winter conditions clogged the river with ice by early December.

The powerful icebreaker Labrador is now on its way to join Montreal and moved to a point 30 miles east of the harbor at nightfall. She was to resume work on a channel to the Montreal harbor mules of the separate her from the nearest.

Lady Druggist's Bottle Barrage Routs Gunmen

LONG BEACH, Calif. AP)— A lady pharmacist with a strong throwing arm routed two gunmen Thursday night with a barrage of bottles.

Mrs. Marian Buckmaster ducked behind a counter when the bandits tried to hold up cashier Marjorie Hair, 21, on the other side of the drug store.

She opened her attack with a pint of iodine. The bottle hit one man on the side of the head and broke. The gun in his hand discharged, sending a bullet into Miss Hair's toe.

Mrs. Buckmaster executed a flanking manoeuvre behind the cover of her counter, popped up and hurled a quart bottle of cough syrup. It smashed on the counter next to the gunmen. Everything then.

The bandits went into a sticky retreat, firing wildly about the store at their unseen foe. One bullet smashed into a perfume display, spreading an overpowering aroma over the battlefield.

As the bewildered, bespattered bandits turned and fled, Mrs. Buckmaster loosed a final salvo. She was a little high with the hair and missed to the left with the shampoo, but nicked one fleeing figure with the mouth wash.

Ontario House To Open Session On January 27

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature will go into session Tuesday, January 27, a week earlier than last year.

"I think this will be a heavy session," Premier Frost said Thursday in making the announcement. "We'll take all the time necessary to complete the public business."

The premier's announcement came amid growing speculation there will be a provincial election this year. Although the current five-year term doesn't expire until 1963, by-elections have been held no more than 3½ years apart since the Progressive Conservatives took office in 1943.

The coming session will be the fifth for the 25th legislature formed in elections since Confederation. The last legislature formed in the 1955 election, also had five sessions — in both cases fall sessions were added to the usual spring sittings.

The session will mark the debut of a new opposition leader, John Wintermeyer, who was named Liberal leader succeeding Farquhar Oliver at a party convention last April.

Six new members will be sitting in the 98-seat assembly, all Conservatives elected in by-elections since the last session. They are Charles MacNaughton, Huron; Rene Brunelle, Cochrane North; Allan Lawrence, Toronto St. George; Maurice Hamilton, Renfrew North; Lloyd Price, Hastings East and George Gomme, Lanark.

Standings in the House are unchanged since the last session—Conservatives, 84; Liberal, 11; and CCF, 3.

Council Members Mayor, Guests Of Y's Men's Club

Yesterday evening the Y's Men's Club held their annual dinner for the members of the city council.

Highlight of the evening was the distinction conferred upon Mayor Gerald Hyde, former president of the club, and district governor, of honorary life member. Mayor Hyde is the sixth person to be honored since the local Y's Men's Club was formed in 1926. Mr. Man Bud Trill made the announcement during his introduction of the mayor, the guest speaker.

In lieu of a long speech Mayor Hyde turned the floor over to the council members present for a brief address by each. Those present, Claude Tice, William Argue, Mrs. Effie McCabe, Ralph Graham, Les Digby, Dr. James Forrester, George Wishart, Walter Elliott and Jack Ellis, spoke on some of the problems facing council in 1959. Wishes for the success of the YMCA building campaign which is just getting under way, were also expressed.

Of special attention was the industrial commission's work. Alderman Graham urged all citizens who hear of any industry which is planning to relocate or establish a new branch to inform the mayor or any member of council so action might be taken to make the firm concerned aware of Belleville's opportunities for an industrial location.

MAY REVISE BROCHURE

Alderman Walter Elliott suggested a revision to the present brochure available through the Chamber of Commerce for prospective industries. He also suggested that local citizens might make use of these brochures by passing them on to people who might be interested.

Alderman Trice stated that the Belleville Y's Men's Club will be going to win the world hockey championship in Prague this year.

Mayor Art Newman announced that the club had netted $1,500 from their radio auction and $600 from the sale of Christmas trees. More monies were added to the treasury through the active and just system of levying fines especially when Y's Men Dinah Washington appeared at the local "Y", discovered faulty plumbing on the premises. President Dinah Washington arrived at the meeting with due decorum.

New Highway Planned for Hamilton Area

HAMILTON (CP) —A multi-million dollar super-highway—the Queen Elizabeth Way 403, will start Toronto — is planned for the Hamilton district south of Highway 53, it was announced Thursday.

The new highway, which would run to Fort Erie, is expected to open up land for light industrial development and cheaper and other neighboring townships.

Art Child, member of the legislature for Wentworth, asked for comment Thursday said: "It would be a safety highway. I shouldn't think it is danger of bogging down at 30 miles an hour."

A highways department spokesman said he was unable to discuss details of the route.

Airborne Boat Flies Half Block Then Hits Auto

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) Warrant Officer Mort Schechter of the air force had no trouble identifying the flying object that struck his auto during a wind storm.

It was a boat.

Becoming airborne on a 60-mile-an-hour wind, the 14-foot aluminum boat sailed merrily aloft a block before it struck the windshield of Schechter's car near Elmendorf air force base Wednesday night.

Damage to the car was estimated at $300.

World Population Still Increasing At Fast Rate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) A United Nations survey bears out the saying that the rich get richer and the poor get children.

The latest findings of the experts are that the world population is still increasing at an unprecedented rate. The total may reach seven billion by the year 2000, compared with the present figure of under three billion.

But the experts predict there will be a wide gap in population growth between the advanced and the underdeveloped countries, with the poorer countries experiencing a far greater proportional increase than the wealthier countries.

Here are some highlights gathered by the UN population commission:

The population of North America, the temperate zones of South America, Japan, Europe, the Soviet Union, Australia and New Zealand will reach 1,175,000,000 by 1975 and exceed 1,500,000,000 by the start of the next century. This compares with 862,000,000 in 1950.

The populations of Africa, Central America, the rest of South America, Asia outside Japan and the Soviet Union, and the Pacific islands except Australia and New Zealand will reach 2,660,000 and 5,600 from the sale of Christmas trees. More monies were added to the treasury through the active and just system of levying fines especially when Y's Men Dinah Washington appeared at the local "Y", discovered faulty plumbing on the premises. President Dinah Washington arrived at the meeting with due decorum.

Community Centre Manager, Len Gaudette, Is Dismissed

TRENTON — Len Gaudette, manager of the Community Centre for less than a year, was dismissed from the post yesterday afternoon by the town-appointed Community Centre board, which is headed by Ken Baker.

Mr. Gaudette apologized publicly to Mr. Baker for remarks he had made previously to the chairman. It was reported that the rink manager had told Mr. Baker to get out of the office at the rink and stay out. The chairman accepted his apology.

Don McPherson, a member of the board, spoke and told Mr. Gaudette the board had reached a decision at another meeting to give Mr. Gaudette the privilege of resigning.

Before the rink manager gave his answer he reviewed the work done over the past months, and stated that he had been required by the board to work 18 hours per day.

REFUSES TO RESIGN

He told the board he would refuse to resign. The motion was then made and seconded that Mr. Gaudette be removed from office as manager of the Community Centre and dismissed to take effect immediately. The motion was approved without a dissenting voice by all members present, but with one member not voting on the issue.

Speaking on the matter Chairman Cliff Baker said that the resulting was entirely Mr. Gaudette about working 16 hours a day. It is only figuratively speaking. But he said he and the board felt that it may be necessary for the manager to put in a good many hours during the next few months when the rink is operating full steam ahead. In the summer months it would be necessary for a few hours a day to handle things. He told Mr. Gaudette that the board had been receiving many complaints about him not being in the rink office at the time when he was needed. He said there was also a third thing concerning the hours for a rink manager, but the manager was expected to devote himself exclusively to the need arises.

Mayor Wyatt Butt, who was present at the meeting, said he had not been aware there was any discussion and that he was sorry this condition had arisen. He said that the job connected in the board members as they are all good citizens and respectable business men. Bill Daley had the interest of the town at heart or they would not be on the board.

He said he felt they were right in their actions and that the manager had the right to order the chairman of the board out of the rink. He said that if any town committee has the right to hire a man they have a polite and reasonable answer to any question he may ask of an employee. He said he had made to attend all the board meetings but had always had a high regard for the board which governs the Community Centre.

SORRY FOR EMBARRASSMENT

Board Member and Councillor Vagn Lange told the Mayor the reason he had not been informed of the Mr. Gaudette dismissal between the board and the manager was that the meeting was held because the members had felt and had hoped it could have all been straightened out for the better.

He said the difference was not something that had just happened today but had flared up from the past few days and the past months. He said he felt the board had acted wisely in its decisions.

Board member Jim McDonald said he felt that it was unfortunate but that it had in no way been a hasty decision. He also said reports in the press not being allowed at the meeting and that "we are members of the papers and that the door has been barred on us, as if there is another meeting in town", said Mr. MacDonald. "I think the press is an important and newsworthy than ours but to it. We know it and the newspapers know it. they come when they get the final order selected so on pee is being fooled. As we have been informed of the meeting it was not the duty of the committee chairman to inform the newspapers."

Winter Work At Hanna Park Is Progressing

TRENTON — Winter work of cleaning up Hanna Park is progressing with three men still employed on this job, Bill Ireland said yesterday.

Mr. Ireland is a member of the Parks Board and chairman of the committee which was appointed to handle this project. Acting as foreman for the work at the park is town gardener Bart Boers. Also working closely with Mr. Ireland on the committee is the chairman of the Parks Board, Ted Parker.

Early in December of last year the committee met with Mayor Ross Burtt at Hanna Park to outline the work in full detail to be done. Men were hired under the federal and provincial governments' winter work program and put to work.

Since that time and despite the cold weather, a considerable improvement has been noted in the park. The men are removing "wolf" trees, these are trees which have little value and are not desirable. The men are also collecting the fallen trees and piling them with ones that have already fallen. These will later be burned. In other places in the park the trees have been thinned out to make room for the remaining trees to grow and for kiddies to romp in the summer months.

With the help of a fluidizer, old and dead trees have been uprooted and will be dragged away at a later date. A large amount of brush has been piled on the bile of woodsmen's axes.

During the winter the board has completed many projects at Hanna Park, to make it more attractive for the thousands who visit the park during the summer months as well as visitors. The buildings have been repaired and painted, swings and teeters have been repaired and the old band stand, which was said to be a menace to children, has been removed.

Members of the Trenton Elwanis Club also took an interest in the park and many of them turned out one night to clear the broken bottles and other trash that had been thoughtlessly thrown around by park visitors.

Alter Chairmanships Of Two Committees

TRENTON — The first regular monthly meeting of the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary for 1959 was held in the board room of the Trenton Memorial Community Hall on Monday evening, with president-elect W. T. Lawson in the chair and most of the retiring officers present.

Because of some unforeseen circumstances it was necessary to re-consider the chairmanship of two boards which were left vacant by the resignation of Comrade James O'Neill as a member of the branch executive committee, due to his having accepted the position of manager of the Trenton Legion. The executive committee was unanimous in its decision that the loss of the necessary be recommended to the general membership of the branch as his successor.

SPORT VS. EDUCATION

We see by the latest issue of Sports Illustrated, that another educational institution in the United States has "bit the dust." The football team, its success and record, has become more important to the directors and alumni than the purpose for which the institution was founded - - to produce educated, inquiring, and orderly minds. The University of Notre Dame, in Indiana, will be striving more towards providing recreation and amusement for football fans in the future than towards providing the atmosphere and facilities for education and enlightenment of the country's future citizens.

A rather unusual aspect of the situation is the fact that basically there was a very good football team at this university and a very good coach. The coach, thirty years old, was elected coach of the year not too long ago. The team, culled from a university enrolment of not quite 6,000 students, was in competition with squads from other universities with vastly superior enrolment from which to draw their athletes. The team members were also required to maintain a 77 per cent average in their schoolwork in order to be eligible for the team. This was a part of a move started a couple of years ago by the university president to curb the somewhat commercialized aspect of college football in Notre Dame.

The football fanatics, however, have been able to overrule the university president. They have signed a coach, who had a five-year contract with the Washington Redskins, a professional team. In order to get this coach, who has his professional reputation to maintain, the alumni and their university staff supporters obviously had to promise a no-holds-barred recruiting program to get absolutely first class "amateur" athletes to "enroll" in their university. This can only be achieved if the academic standards are shoved back into a remote corner.

The seems to be an indication of a frequent American characteristic - - if it is a question of the worthwhile, which one might quietly enjoy, or the spectacular, which one might enthuse upon to one's fellows, always pick the spectacular - - more people will take notice. They might not agree but they will notice.

"A university is established to produce sound thinkers, with well balanced and informed minds - - not a first class athletic squad, with a well balanced line and an informed backfield. It is a sad reflection on our way of life when we allow the substitution of the spectacular and the meaningless for the worthwhile and the enduring.

If the money which the Notre Dame alumni are willing to pay out to obtain a professional football coach and supply him with topnotch players were applied to giving scholarships for prospective scientists, humanists, and theologians, the end result would be far superior to what presently exists; or they might pay out this money to help the underprivileged in our own society or, perhaps better yet, in a society less fortunate than our own - - for material wants.

Sport is a good thing, but, like other good things, it has its place and should be recognized and practised in moderation. Its place is not as a substitute for the true reputation of a university - - which reputation should be clear thinking.

"EASY PAYMENTS" FOR INDUSTRIES

The "easy payment" plan is invading another field with a vengeance.

"No money down - - years to pay" plans are now available for industrial firms desiring new plants.

In a U.S. publication the Georgia Power Co. advises industrialists that "at least 100 non-profit community groups throughout Georgia have money ready and waiting to construct plants on a long-term lease or lease-amortization basis. This 100-per cent financing is available to reputable firms, with no strings attached - - no employment guarantees."

We are not at all sure that we like this "easy credit" plan any better in the realm of industrial finance than in the area of consumer finance. Still, if there must be such a plan, we are all for its operation by "non-profit community groups" providing they are not just facades to hide the fact that the taxpayer is meeting the bills. Incidentally, "non-profit" could be a misnomer. The richest dividends some big property owners could hope to reap could be realized in this manner by investing in the growth of the community and by taking their profits not from the newly-established industries but as the result of the appreciation in the value of their other holdings.

EVERY PARENT KNOWS THAT

Two causes of colds among school children have reportedly been identified by medical science. We had always supposed everybody knew what the two causes were - - the child on the right and the child on the left. — (Winnipeg Tribune.)

THE HALL TABLE
By EDGAR A. GUEST

Little table in the hall,
How I dread to look your way.
On your polished surface small
Rest the dues I cannot pay.

Little table, I declare,
You it is that pleasure kills
All the mail for me you bear,
And I know it's only bills.

You are loaded up once more
With the debts I cannot meet.

Little table, I declare,
You it is that pleasure kills
All the mail for me you bear,
And I know it's only bills.

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

(Article 82 contributed by the Hastings County Historical Society)

THE KETCHESON FAMILY

In 1784 lands were granted to the Loyalists, across the seas to Britain or the British West Indies, while others stayed on this continent, going to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Canada.

Among the U. E. Loyalists who sailed from New York City in 1784, were William and Ketcheson, his wife Mary, and their family.

A native of Yorkshire, England, William Ketcheson had served in the King's Army during the Revolutionary War, and afterwards settled near Port Mouton, Nova Scotia.

In 1784 fire swept through that settlement, and the Ketchesons soon moved westward to the Bay of Quinte, settling at Adolphustown.

By the year 1800 the Ketcheson family had grown, the growing sons of sturdy pioneer stock and true to the U.E. Loyalist tradition, the desirability of obtaining extensive land holdings. Accordingly, land grants to the 200 acre were obtained in the fifth concession of Sidney Township, where the family continued to grow.

Today, descendants of William Ketcheson are to be found in almost every Canadian province and in many American states as well.

During the past three years, descendants of this grand old family have been preparing a genealogical history of the Ketcheson family.

Their labors reached a successful conclusion in December with the publication of an attractive 72-page book. This genealogical history came as a pleasant Christmas present to several hundred subscribers.

Dedicated to "Those Intrepid United Empire Loyalist Pioneers" who came to Upper Canada to establish new homes, the book was published by a committee headed by Cecil H. Ketcheson of Shilbury, others active on the committee included Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Frankford, Mrs. Albert Colling, Belleville, James R. B. Ketcheson of Kingston, Samuel Morden Ketcheson of Toronto and E. Claude Young of Wallington.

All of these people deserve the thanks of the descendants of William Ketcheson as well as of all historically-minded persons. The publication of this book is a milestone in the genealogical records of Ontario.

As research goes, Claude Young is particularly to be congratulated. The family coming "Blood-line" book was certainly a formidable one. Some idea of the difficulties of the task can be seen in its length (72 pages), the thousands of names involved, and the fact that one of William Ketcheson's children, (William), had, in turn, 9 children, 81 grandchildren and 228 great grandchildren.

The book is handsomely printed and has pictures of William Ketcheson and several of his children.

Some of the Loyalist families that have intermarried with the Ketchesons include the Breckenridge, Bogart, Bowerman, Hayes, Farley, Foster, Frelick, Gilbert, Herkimer, Meyers, Ostrom, Redner, Robbins, Spencer, Thrasher, Vanderwater and Vermilyea families.

Congratulations on a job well done!

Anxiety Bleeds Life Away

Montreal Gazette

"More life may trickle out of men through anxiety than through a gaping wound."

Thomas Hardy wrote these words. And Lord Moynihan, president of the Royal College of Physicians, quoted them in his book The Anatomy of Courage, to aim his powerful and accurate picture of what happens to a mind gripped by anxiety.

There are many who still look upon this New Year, in the middle of the twentieth Century, as being a time of almost unparalleled anxiety. Perhaps it will say, have eyes been raised to the future with so much fear, so much doubt, as they are today. For so much is being said, by far from true. For such a saying must claim that the world is not a safe and a useful place, and now the way has been made easy for those who say the world has never been safe. And even if the powers that now threaten us were not turned to beneficent purposes, not even they would push back from the uncertainty that lies in its very heart.

Is this a grim thought, such as may cause life to trickle away, as through a wound? It is not. It is one that we choose to hide from themselves an admission of what life is really like.

It is easy to exploit the longing to aim the highest ideals of life might no longer be necessary, and all things might run smooth and placid. It would be very pleasant, to be sure, if life could be made secure and dependable and predictable, if it could never be any of these things for long, and never all of them together, even for an hour.

What we have known and cherished is always breaking down, and closing in doors, and driving us out to make new adjustments and to seek new shelter. Human life can never hope to escape the hard conditions of life, failure, sickness or death.

James Hilton, the author of Lost Horizon, put it very well when he wrote:

". . . if we look back it doubtless seems to us that life was a tranquil thing in olden days, compared with today. But, of course, it wasn't. It never was — never is — never will be. The predicament is always with us . . .

"Personally I find this encouraging rather than otherwise. As a generation we are not the luckiest that ever lived. But we only face, though in different forms, the problems that have existed from the beginning — the problems of morals, or matters of government and religion.

"Life is something to be challenged by, not to be cowardly terrified of. And if it is life, whether we like it or not."

Indeed, it may be said that all the good things of this world are not in the distractions of its leisure, or the craving after show and display. They are rather in the spiritual things that come from which spring mercy, tolerance and the satisfying achievement. All that is best in anybody we have ever known has come out of their response to life's uncertainties, from the steadiness that has grown in their trials, and the forbearance they learned in their troubles.

There is no other answer. Those who think that life might be untroubled, hope in vain, and by their foolish disappointments, are likely to be troubled souls.

But how very good is life to those who have come through their tribulations, and have discovered, almost in surprise, a wisdom that is quite their own, and see with new eyes the dawning peace of understanding.

For them comes the silent and secret and growing happiness of each New Year.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On an intercity drive with three companions, I could not help but observe the curious behavior of three individuals. As the car sped along the wintry highway on a glorious early sunny day, our driver, an insurance executive, could see nothing but travel in the beauty of the landscape, the splendor of nature, the radiant loveliness of Canada in her purest garb. Condemned to a life in an office, he was at heart a poet, an artist, an aesthete.

In the back seat, right, sat a university professor whose subject is history. And all he saw as we rose and fell through hill and valley, past farms and through villages, was the architecture that revealed to his educated eye the history of each scene: the age and period of the farm house, the character and style of the village, the now abandoned grist mills, the half century old churches, their denomination declared long before we came abreast of them.

The last passenger was an engineer, and soldiering is his hobby. He was a staff officer in the last war. He is a senior officer of the militia now. And all the hundred and fifty miles I guessed, his only interest was to figure, in a military eye, how he would advance a battalion of infantry over this slope, how he would attack that hill, how defend this village in the valley. To him, the whole trip was a sham battle.

As for me, I spent the trip observing people.

But how can you generalize about the human race with their interests are so various, so contrary?

Everybody Philosopher

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

The word philosophy is coined from two Greek words meaning love and wisdom. The illustrious Greek philosopher, Aristotle, philosophy was the love of wisdom.

However, since Aristotle's day the word philosophy has somewhat changed its meaning. Most people are agreed that it is the study of wisdom. Its master study, of all studies. It begins with your wondering and wanting to know about yourself, other people, the world and what makes it work.

As you learn about something you cannot help learning more about yourself and the whole world. Your curiosity prompts you to ask questions. This helps you to learn and form opinions. Everyone is a philosopher whether he knows it or not.

Since Aristotle's day, certain subjects have been taken away from the realm of philosophy. We no longer class astronomy, botany, zoology or petrology under the master study as we do. We call these subjects the physical sciences. They deal with subjects we can see, touch and examine with our senses.

Philosophy is one that deals with the important things we cannot touch and see. It is concerned with ideas, beliefs, reasons, opinions, and the plain old logic of common sense. Very often an argument about such things cannot be proved one way or the other. But every such debate opens up the mind and leads to thinking about big important things.

One branch of philosophy is called ethics. This is the study of right and wrong, good conduct and bad conduct.

Another branch of philosophy is metaphysics, meaning beyond the material or physical world. It considers such questions as, "What is the cause of the world or the sky?" Everyone wonders about such things at some time or another.

Everyone knows that certain great thinkers have done this before him. What he loves most is to check his own thoughts with the thoughts of the world's greatest philosophers.

STERILIZATION RENDERS MALE INCAPABLE OF PROCREATION

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would you answer some questions about male sterilization:

"What does the operation involve? What effect does it have on sexual desire or activity? Can it cause a stiffness of the mind? Affect the intelligence? Cause physical laziness?" My husband thought he observed the latter in sterilization of animals (cattle and pigs.)"

I am not sure I can understand the fog of ignorance which so often surrounds this subject. Furthermore, I think the answers can be provided in about two minutes.

The operation involves either the tying or cutting of the duct, or tube, which carries the male reproductive cell, or sperm.

It is not a serious operation from the technical or surgical standpoint.

But for the sake of the subsequent questions in the above letter, I remember that sterilization is not by any means the same operation performed on farm animals. That is castration, which means the removal of the organs which create the sperm cells.

Sterilization merely interrupts the passageway. The cells, and the male hormones, continue to be produced, and the answer to all of the other questions in the above letter are to be answered in the negative.

The operation is painless. I attend the family reception held by Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bowyer on their 40th. wedding anniversary on Sunday.

Mr. Allan Latta is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Vallis in Bermuda.

Mr. J. E. Walmsley will observe the 35th. anniversary of his birth tomorrow. Many friends will be happy to extend to him congratulations and good wishes.

How to Avoid Being Fired

Playboy, New York

One contribution the New York Herald Tribune made to fighting the current recession was a series of short articles by David Sarnoff and Charles Sawyer on "How to Keep From Getting Fired." Though the recession has progressed somewhat, we think the philosophy is worth passing along. Here are two excerpts:

The typewriter: Nothing makes you look so productive and indispensable as a good-looking typewriter. You can (and should) use your typewriter for correspondence, a novel, short stories, light nature essays, anything. Simply be sure to do your writing on memo paper, requisition forms, invoices.

Pencil sharpener: A modest cost, you can purchase one of those rubber gadgets that enables you to cradle the receiver on your shoulder. By fastening down the rubber buttons, with a piece of tape, you can keep your shoulder free to write all day while you write letters, or read. This technique also enables you to wave away bosses who come by with "What are you doing?"

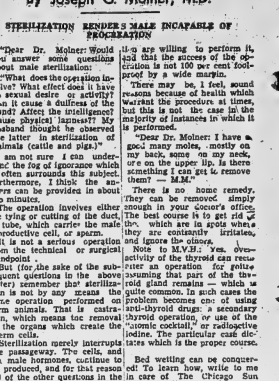
BETTER CHECK AND RECHECK

How do you measure life?

Some measure it by mileposts — that is, by years. Methuselah was said to have lived about 900 years. But since we are told nothing more about him, we cannot say that he lived to a great age, we have the feeling that his milepost is not exactly of the highest merit. Jesus lived less than 33 years and His words and deeds have changed the face of the entire world.



Everyone of us knows that in the last analysis the true measurement of life is not years. It is not even achievement. It is the set of the life which really gives it significance. Sometimes a child dies in the first decade of his life or here and during a few brief years makes a profound difference in the lives of many. It would appear that gentleness and love are the basic elements by which we measure the true significance of life. But we must as well ask ourselves whether there are any other factors besides these worthy of diligent consideration.

Let it then have gentleness and love, and that life has what it takes to make a life significant. A life may become distinguished with our great ability. It may be happy without brains. But significance — that is a different matter. Meekness and love appear to be the sure factors capable of giving life real significance.

Check up on your standards of measurement.

Six Open Rinks Now Operated By Commission

Plenty of skating is in the offing for the residents of Belleville this season thanks to old man winter and the extended cold spell.

The Belleville Recreation Committee have announced that open spaces on five school properties have been flooded and suitable for persons in their respective neighborhoods. Also part of the harbor has had snow removed and flooded. Not in the last decade has the city's recreation committee been able to have six outdoor rinks at one time. As was the case in the past, several were started with the ultimate result warm weather set in before a proper ice base was made. However, this year seemed no problem and the younger fry are probably the only ones that are hoping this cold spell does not leave.

Outdoor areas flooded are at Prince Charles School, St. Michael's Academy, Pine Street School, St. Joseph's School and the harbor immediately behind the Wharf Street Detailing Club. Queen Mary is also being made ready.

Free skating at the Arena for Primary School students currently held each Monday and Wednesday evening from 4.00 to 5.30 p.m. will still continue during this and next month at least.

Wood Chipper Used to Cut up Christmas Trees

Discarded Christmas trees collected by the city public works department have been put into small space this year.

On more or less of a trial basis, a wood chipper, owned by the Ontario Hydro was rented for a few days this week and this machine was used to cut up Christmas trees as they were collected by the works department.

City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull noted today that with the chipper in operation possibly as many as ten times the number of trees could be put on one truckload. Christmas tree chips were then discarded at the city dump.

The chipper has now been returned to the Hydro, but a regular truck is still on the job picking up the remainder of the Christmas trees.

Varied Program Enjoyed by Senior Citizens

The Senior Citizens held their regular meeting at the Kiwanis Centre on Wednesday evening, and had a fair attendance despite the cold weather.

President James Brennan opened the meeting with the singing of the National Anthem. The birthday song was sung for three ladies with the gentlemen singing "Happy Birthday" to them. The minutes were dispensed with owing to a lengthy program.

Mrs. Drummond, secretary, read a letter of thanks from the past president, Mr. Field, and another thank-you letter from Mayor Hyde. One minute silence was observed for a late member, Mr. Charles Wallis, who died last week. All members sang "Nearer My God to Thee".

Bruce Sills and Charlie Thorn provided the music for square and round dancing, also the sing song. Mr. Thorn sang two beautiful solos and Miss Sharon Thorn did a specialty dance which was well received.

The lucky draw was won by Mrs. Acerra. The rest of the evening was spent in euchre. Ladies' prizes were won by Mrs. Drummond, 1st.; Mrs. Conway, 2nd. The gentlemen's prizes were won by Mr. J. Simpson, 1st.; Mr. W. Clair, 2nd.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Fred Cooke and Mrs. White with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

A special welcome to folks 60 and over to come and enjoy friendship with the Senior Citizens of Belleville.

James Muir urges more flexible tax system, with wider control of money and credit to curb chronic inflation

West can set an example of "free economy in action" by keeping markets open to underdeveloped countries.

"Chronic inflation is the greatest single threat to Canada's economic development", declared James Muir, Chairman and President of The Royal Bank of Canada, at the bank's Annual Meeting in Montreal on Thursday, January 8th. Reviewing the conditions which must be met to ensure continuing economic growth, high level employment and a stable currency Mr. Muir said, "Regardless of the skill and energy of the monetary authorities, an effective monetary policy is impossible so long as consumer credit is free to move in the opposite direction. The Central Bank contracts credit in booms and expands in recession. Unregulated consumer credit expands in booms, contracts in recession. These dependent on bank credit have to bear the full brunt of credit restriction while others enjoy a spending spree. To break up this unholy alliance of inutility and futility I have repeatedly urged that monetary and credit control should embrace a wider area of our financial world than they now do.

FORMIDABLE TASK

"Until fundamental budget changes be made the Government must finance its deficits by selling bonds to the general public, the chartered banks, or the Bank of Canada. The ability from bond to equities, in spite of the relative attractiveness of bond yields, rules out the general public. The need for liquidity inhibits sales to the banks, except for the shorter maturities. Purchases of securities by the Bank of Canada, another form of borrowing from the chartered banks, or in this case the Government, finances government debt through an increase in the money supply. Thus at a time when the monetary pressure is growing, the indicated policy for the Bank of Canada, monetary restraint, may run directly counter to the financial needs of the Government. It is this formidable task of steering between Scylla and Charybdis, between failure of monetary policy and failure of fiscal policy which, in the months ahead, will try to the limits the imagination and resourcefulness of those charged with the problem of government finance.

"But surely it is not beyond the wit of our fiscal experts in government and elsewhere to devise a system that will minimize the ups and downs of the cycle in determining the size and timing of government expenditures for economic activity. Surely a more flexible tax system could be devised to give holders of tax rates to counter cyclical disturbances, not only quickly and effectively, but without arbitrarily changing the relative importance of the government and private sector in our economic life. Such a system, combined with a more comprehensive coverage by our monetary authorities in the regulation of credit, could I think provide an economic climate for higher employment and more rapid growth, and, at the same time, protect the value of our currency from the ravages of chronic inflation."

CONVERTIBILITY

Referring to the recent devaluation of the franc, and Britain's move toward convertibility, Mr. Muir said, "One of the most important devices for ensuring the mobility of investment funds, capital goods, consumer goods and services among the nations of the world is a freely operating foreign-exchange mechanism. In this context two recent events of special interest concern the French franc and the pound sterling.

"Devaluation of the French franc was inevitable. Now it remains to be seen how stable the new rate will be. Naturally this will depend upon how firmly the internal economy of the country can be built up and upon how faithfully the people will accept the new restrictions they must endure to come through successfully.

"The immediate significance of Britain's move towards convertibility must not be exaggerated. All she has done is to make formal what has informally been more or less the case, viz, put Canadian and U.S. sterling, so-called, and Transferable sterling in the same bracket. This means that all non-sterling area holders of pounds are now in the same boat. What is to say they can freely dispose of their sterling for dollars or any other currency at a fixed rate while the support points established by the British authorities, viz $2.78 to $2.82 U.S.

"One important outcome is that London can deal freely and directly with the currencies and again get back to where she was before the war as the most important foreign exchange market in the world.

"The great hope is that these latest developments will hasten the day when the U.K. can throw all shackles overboard and make the pound free and fully convertible for everybody inside, as well as outside the sterling area."

FOREIGN AID

"Aid to underdeveloped countries", said Mr. Muir, "is useless unless it leads to sustained, and self-sustaining, development; nor fundamental social changes in the underdeveloped country

Royal Bank Assets over $4 Billion.

K. M. Sedgewick, General Manager, reported that Royal Bank assets had passed the $4 billion mark, and that Capital funds now totalled nearly $250,000,000. "Deposit figures in Canada have of course, increased remarkably," said Mr. Sedgewick, "and we are particularly pleased to see substantial growth during the year in our personal savings deposits where the figures are larger by $148 million odd than those of a year ago. As at date of the Balance Sheet, our depositors numbered 3,927,121, indeed a source of much satisfaction to us.

Mortgage loans arranged by the Royal Bank had increased by 22 per cent to nearly $261,000,000, and shareholders now numbered 22,156, an increase of 2,200 for the year.

Referring to the bank's continuing program of new construction and the improvement of existing premises, Mr. Sedgewick noted that important new offices now under construction, would be opened in 1959 in Charlottetown, Toronto and Vancouver and that within a few months work would commence on new main offices in Ottawa and Windsor and on an important branch office in Edmonton.

BUILDING PROGRAM

"During 1958 we opened 33 new branches in Canada and four outside Canada — three of which were in Cuba and one in Puerto Rico. We have completed major additions to our branches in Bridgetown, Barbados, Nassau, Bahamas, and at a number of other points. Work is in progress on new main office buildings for Kingston, Jamaica and Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic. Also our Bogota, Colombia main office is being expanded and completely modernized."

The recent appointment of a Far Eastern representative, with headquarters in Hong Kong, said Mr. Sedgewick, had placed The Royal Bank of Canada in a position to provide on-the-spot assistance to Canadian traders who wished to take advantage of what Mr. Sedgewick felt to be "opportunities for further important expansion of trade between Canada and far eastern countries."

"We are required before the spirit of enterprise is sufficiently strong to achieve a rate of growth called 'escape velocity' independent of the temporary rocket-thrust of economic aid. Without fundamental changes, greatly expanded aid provided by over-enthusiasm, if not emotional compulsion, may have pervasive effects, not only in the underdeveloped West, but in the underdeveloped countries themselves.

"I think we must raise the question whether economic aid is the best way to help underdeveloped countries. Or the West until much more has been done both in education and in the careful preparation of programs that achieve a proper balance between agricultural and industrial development.

The big question, said Mr. Muir, was whether the "underdeveloped" and developed countries would try to develop a private enterprise economy as an instrument of growth. This depended, he said, "not merely but mainly" on what we set our own house in order but that we keep the economies of the West open to the goods produced by the underdeveloped countries. Otherwise we can only expect these countries to adopt a policy of self-sufficiency with its inevitable counterpart, centralized control of the economic system. In other words, if we would have underdeveloped countries abroad develop along private enterprise lines we must set them an example of the free economy in action."

RISK-TAKER MERITS REWARD

"Adequate reward for productive effort and risk is an important condition for economic development", said Mr. Muir. "Government, with the aid of tax experts, should make a thorough study of our complex tax structure with a view to improvement both in the distribution of the burdens and in the allocation of the net rewards for productive activity.

"I would like now to move to more specific cases. If labor becomes more productive, higher wages can be paid without inflation. The increase is both an incentive and a deserved reward. If risks are taken to expand production in some direction, the opportunity for a correspondingly large reward is not only prerequisite, but justified to the extent of the risk-taker's contribution to general welfare.

"I would like to join those who are urging the Government in considering the report of the Borden Commission on energy not to move hastily to put a public-utility straitjacket on one of the most important contributors to Canada's risk-capital investment: the oil and gas industry — a risk industry that has been responsible in large part for Canada's brilliant economic showing since the second world war.

"Uncertainty bred of fear, fear of crippling regulation, can cut off risk investment and destroy all hope in the free world for sustained and healthy economic growth."

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

BARK REMOVERS

Sometimes we are puzzled by the appearance of a certain bird; then pictures or descriptions of songs and calls in bird books are very helpful in making a decision, as to the species. Three-toed woodpeckers are so seldom seen in settled Canada that the majority of us are not sufficiently acquainted with them to spot one on sight. As for the three toes, we can hardly expect to be in a position to count them! But unlike other woodpeckers they have only one toe pointing towards the rear.

There are two species of these birds of the north woods, the Arctic and the American three-toed. Both are year round residents wherever found, with a widely scattered territory; both inhabit evergreen forests; both are particularly unsuspicious.

The Arctic, occasionally called the black-backed, is to be found from Newfoundland westward right across Canada. The American breeds somewhat farther north, yet is at times seen farther south. Nevertheless, as it is never very common and keeps strictly to deep woods, we are delighted when able to definitely identify one.

Males of both kinds and the female American three-toed are the only members of the entire woodpecker family that wear yellow caps. The female Arctic has no cap, so might be confused with a female Hairy, which is roughly speaking the same size, because of the somewhat similar ladder-back black and white markings on the sides, were it not for the solid, black back to prove the species.

LIVE IN COLONIES

These birds often live in regular colonies where bark-boring beetles are plentiful. They flake off the bark, thus uncovering the insects. A number of trees with bare patches is an indication that three-toeds have been at work, because their method of getting at the beetles differs from that of other woodpeckers.

Bird voices always seem louder when heard in quiet winter woods. However, though like some other woodpeckers, particularly noisy in summer, the Arctic is usually fairly silent at this season. But if it does make any sound we can hardly fail to hear it. In flight, the cry is loud and shrill, reminding us of a chairy. At other times it makes a clucking noise, or gives a rattling call. The American three-toed has a squeal suggesting a yellow-bellied sapsucker.

Woodpeckers are more often heard than seen. So if you hear an unfamiliar voice, look out for such identification marks as yellow caps and black backs.

A real event in the Glenn Holmgrain family history took place at Memphis, Tenn., with the birth of a baby girl. The baby, Jane Elizabeth, was the first girl born in the Holmgrain family in 200 years. Holmgrain couldn't believe it when the nurse told him it was a baby girl. Then he dashed to call his mother, Mrs. Eric Holmgrain of Rock Island, Ill., who caught the first plane for Memphis. Holmgrain's family history, dating back to Sweden, shows no daughters born in two centuries.

Lay Magistrate Sums up Tour Across Canada

MONTREAL (CP)—A cross-Canada tour has shown Miss Peggy Simmons, a British lay magistrate, that juvenile delinquency here differs only in degree from that in her British homeland.

She said in an interview she found delinquency generally rising in both Canada and Britain but in Britain there are few cases of youths stealing cars for joy rides.

"Everywhere I've been in Canada I've heard of this problem," she said. "We don't treat it in Britain."

Miss Simmons said one reason could be that "our young people are more inclined to walk than Canadian youth."

VISITS GUIDES

Montreal was the last stop on Miss Simmons' tour. A district commissioner for the British Girl Guides, her visit was mainly to visit guide groups across Canada.

She also inspected institutions for delinquent girls and boys. As a British lay magistrate, she hears cases of delinquency and broken marriages.

Miss Simmons said it has been her experience that delinquency is more prevalent among boys than girls.

But there was no simple explanation for this.

"It may be, though, that girls are naturally more law-abiding than boys, or perhaps they are just a little more clever about keeping out of trouble."

OCCUPATIONS APART

Miss Simmons said her two occupations seldom meet.

"In seven years that I have done court work, I've seen only two guides in court. The guide movement has little interest for the delinquent type of girl.

"Being a uniformed organization, it doesn't appeal to them. Also, the movement has a certain set of standards which delinquent girls cannot or will not accept."

Mother's Helper

GOING to a Baby Shower? Of course, you'll take along a carefully-chosen gift for the newcomer. And if there are other children in the family, it's thoughtful to include a small gift for each. The 10-cent variety is fine—but do wrap them as nicely as the present for the baby.

Teague, of Texas, became the bride of William Ronald Guthridge, of Belleville, son of Doctor and Mrs. J. R. Guthridge. Archdeacon J. R. Creegan, rector of the church, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandmother, Mrs. B. Clegg, was attractively attired in a travelling suit of blue with white accessories and corsage of pale mauve orchids.

After congratulations and good wishes, the happy couple left for Newfoundland where the bridegroom is stationed with the RCAF.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Geraldine J. — I am hurt at his criticisms.

Daniel S. — I am trying to help her.

Geraldine J. — I am 24 years old and I'm engaged to a man three years older. Daniel comes from a very educated, cultured family and I feel somewhat lacking in background when I come up against them.

I have told Dan that I want him always to be frank and honest with me and to let me know if I am not measuring up to what his family would expect in his wife. I didn't go to college and my parents never taught me some of the things that are so important in better circles.

Ever since I told this to Dan he has been criticizing me so much that I am beginning to wonder whether I will ever be able to measure up. Sometimes he imitates my mannerisms or way of speaking and he can be quite sarcastic. I find myself feeling very hurt and angry and I am beginning to wonder whether I will feel this way after marriage.

Daniel S. — I am trying to help Gerry, and hurt her, I realized when I started going with her that the difference in our backgrounds might become a problem, but I figured it would iron itself out somehow.

I was very happy when Gerry asked me for criticism because I realized that she has the desire to improve herself. This is quite important because I don't want my family looking down on her. Everyone in my family is in the professional class.

I think it is so important always to be honest and that's why I am seriously upset with Gerry's reaction. It is a number one requisite of marriage to be absolutely frank with your spouse. I certainly won't be able to hide my feelings when Gerry makes mistakes after we are married. Gerry should be told that she has someone to guide her.

The Council: We don't go along with Danie's notions at all and we think Geraldine ought to reconsider her situation very carefully.

Daniel sounds quite pompous and is filled with too many false notions about marriage. We don't think there are number one or number two rules for marriage, but if there were we would put consideration and tenderness toward one's partner at the top.

Sarcasm and constant criticism are not ones of considerateness and tenderness. Daniel likes to see himself in a good light and as a mature and eager for growth and change. Dan has taken advantage of her suggestion and given vent to an impulse he probably would have kept hidden until after marriage.

The fact that Daniel fears his family will "look down" on Geraldine is a very unfavorable element in the whole picture. If he were sure of his own love, it would be convinced that his family would see her lovable traits — provided they are good willed individuals and not stupidly snobbish.

Daniel really believes he is marrying out of his class and he resents it. We think it likely that Geraldine is too good for him and should leave him to his "class".

Nursery School Training Will Increase in 20 Years

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—In 20 years time, most Ontario children aged between three and seven will attend nursery school or kindergarten, says Elsie Stapleford, director of the day nurseries branch of the Ontario department of welfare.

This will come about, she says, as more women go out to work and more people realize the value of nursery school training.

"In only 20 years, the number of children attending kindergarten has doubled, and we can expect more children of three and four to attend junior school in future," she said.

Miss Stapleford's job is to ensure a minimum standard of care for 9,000 children attending 300 nursery schools in the province. Other schools run by local boards of education are not under her jurisdiction.

"The day nurseries branch licenses nursery schools if the building is adequate and the staff trained and competent to handle children," she said.

"But these are minimum standards only. Many nursery schools are better-equipped than the law requires; others have not yet been licensed though we are working with the operators to make them acceptable."

WEDDING INVITATIONS TO THOSE IN MOURNING?

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My sister passed on four months ago. She and I had had an apartment together for several years, had many mutual friends. In this past week I have received two invitations to the church weddings of friends of hers, one invitation including all so the invitation to the reception in the home of the bride. Tell me, please, what is correct to send me such an invitation, since of course they know I am in mourning? If so, would it be proper for me to accept? — Sister

Yes, it is entirely proper to send wedding invitations those in mourning. Actually one invitation was a most kind gesture, showing you the bride's friendly thought of you, their courteous intention. Don't you think you might be hurt if you were left out of the list of friends invited to the wedding?

Whether or not you accept these invitations naturally depends on your own wish. But it is entirely proper for you to accept, and often people in mourning do accept the invitation in the church ceremony, attending it as they might attend any other religious service. Also, if you wish you may attend the reception, perhaps leaving directly after you have greeted the bride and groom and other members of the receiving-line; or of course you may decide it would be more appropriate and easier for you to forego this social part of the wedding.

... "but that does not mean the child does not learn anything," said Miss Stapleford. For instance they are given paints which help them to learn to express themselves in arts, and blocks and building toys, which teach them co-ordination.

Co-operative nursery schools are a growing part of Ontario's pre-school system. Miss Stapleford reported.

The schools are run in a community by a qualified person assisted on a part-time basis by the mothers of youngsters at the schools.

"This works well because it brings a closer relationship between parents and school, and interests many women in becoming nursery school teachers," she said.

Miss Stapleford was born in Vancouver, grew up in Regina, attended the University of Saskatchewan and did graduate work at the Institute of Child Study, Toronto.

She worked at the Ontario Hospital, Whitby, for seven years, and spent the years as superintendent of a children's home at Ottawa at the beginning of the Second World War.

Then she returned to Toronto to organize new nurseries in York County, and was appointed director when the department of welfare became responsible for day nurseries at the end of the war.

QUESTION:

Would you have a recipe for "Sweet and Sour Spareribs"? — the kind with plum sauce; also a nice dressing for poultry. Mrs. Don C.

ANSWER:

SWEET AND SOUR SPARERIBS: With Plum Sauce.

Cut strips of spareribs into serving pieces. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, paprika and a little nutmeg. Grease a large baking dish and brown spareribs on all sides in very hot oven, turning two or three times. Reduce heat to 325 deg. F.and pour over them Plum Sauce! To serve four mix together in saucepan 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-2 cup brown sugar, one 1-2 teaspoon salt and when well mixed stir in 1 cup water to make a smooth paste. Puree some red canned plums and some of their juice through a sieve and measure 1 1-4 cups of the plum puree and add it and 1-2 cup vinegar and 1 tablespoon soy sauce. Cook slowly, stirring constantly until it thickens. Cook over boiling water stirring occasionally, until there is no taste of raw starch. If desired add a little chopped candied ginger of powdered ginger may be used. Baste the spareribs once or twice with this sauce before it is served.

BIG" DRESSING FOR POULTRY:

Double these amounts to fill a 5-lb. turkey. Three cups cooked rice (one cup raw rice cooked in 3 cups water), 2 cups fine dry breadcrumbs, 1" cup finely chopped celery, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-8 teaspoon sage or poultry dressing or rosemary, 1 cup milk, 6 slices side bacon, 3 tablespoons chopped onion. Saute together the chopped bacon and onion lightly for 5 minutes. Do not brown. Pour off all remaining fat but 3 tablespoons and mix with remaining ingredients. It is now ready to stuff into prepared fowl.

Manufacture of Fine Cars For Racing in 'Canada Class' Part of Program of Scuderia

One of the aspects of the Scuderia Hysteria which a number of its members enjoy is the designing and building of cars for competition and highway use. Most of the cars presently under construction, however, are for the purpose of racing. The first car built by one of the Scuderia members was constructed by Jim McCaw from various odd suspension parts and the engine from a Standard 10 automobile. This was a dual-purpose car and was used by its builder for both racing and rallying. Proof of the car's sturdiness and design was evident when it completed the 1400-mile winter rally three years ago without mechanical failure. It was also quite noticeable as a Canada Class competitor on the various race circuits in Ontario being painted in a gleaming gold colour. It was one of the first Canada Class cars.

The Canada Class was especially set up to encourage members in various affiliated clubs of the Canadian Automobile Sport Club (CASC) to design and reconstruct cars of good quality and sound engineering. The engines, suspension parts and other components can come from standard production vehicles whose initial cost was not over $2,000.

BUILDS SECOND CAR

Mr. McCaw is presently constructing his second Canada Class car. The chassis and suspension design was worked out by Alan Slater, a graduate engineer, who also designed the chassis for one of the St. LAC's most successful Canada Class cars. This other vehicle, owned and built by Vic Yachuk of Cataraqui, literally "cleaned up" the opposition during last season's racing. This year Mr. Yachuk will be competing under the colors of the Scuderia Hysteria.

It might be more accurate to explain that the building of a vehicle is hard to accredit to any one person, likewise the design.

Although the designer, or the builder may have his ideas pretty well set down at the start of his project and may do the lion's share of the work there is always the odd improvement or idea which is picked up from another Scuderia member as the project progresses. Sometimes the entire design or choice of a component part can be changed almost at the last minute when something better is suggested or discovered. There is usually no end of spectators, jokiters, and helpers from the club dropping in at the various garages where a Canada Class car is under construction. They all offer their suggestions, criticisms, and advice. There is usually someone at hand to weld a welding torch or hold a chassis part in position as it becomes an integrated component of the vehicle.

MOTORS MODIFIED

Indicative of the results which these enthusiasts get out of even the most mundane motor performance which Mr. Yachuk's Canada Class car has obtained from a Morris Minor flat-head (or valve in block) engine. In its original state, as issued by the factory, this motor, of only 918 cc (about 60 cubic inches) displacement or capacity, developed the power equivalent to 27.5 horsepower at 4,400 engine revolutions per minute. This was with a compression ratio of 6.8:1 and a single carburetor, which allowed the engine a maximum speed of 4,600 revolutions per minute (rpm). Through the use of an Alta head, especially designed and built for the Morris motor, by an English firm, Mr. Yachuk converted the former valve-in-block engine to an overhead valve or valve-in-head, engine. Together with raising the compression ratio to 9.5:1, the use of two carburetors, and balancing the moving parts within the engine, the performance was increased almost 100 per cent to about 54 horsepower output at 5,500 rpm with a maximum engine speed of about 6,200 rpm.

These engine modifications, when combined with the Slater chassis, a revised and modified Morris Minor suspension, and a body designed by the builder, resulted in a car capable of around one hundred miles an hour and quite phenomenal road holding and handling abilities. With the exception of its first race, when it placed third in class, this machine, with Mr. Yachuk at the wheel, took a first award every time it appeared on the race circuits at either Harewood, near Brantford, or St. Eugene, near the Quebec-Ontario border, often coming ahead of cars of larger displacement and class.

Not all cars raced by the Scuderia's members are specially built Canada Class cars, however. Many members, such as Ray Rockall of Belleville or Doug Fraser of Trenton use their "everyday" cars: the former racing his Triumph TR2 roadster and the latter racing his Morris Minor two-door vehicle.

PREPARATION VITAL

In the racing of any car, however, the accent is on proper tuning and preparation of the vehicle and its engine before a race. Cars in competition are invariably in better condition mechanically than the majority of vehicles on the road. There is a very good reason for this. Each competing car is checked and rechecked before a race to ensure that all mechanical components, such as brakes, suspension, steering, and wheels are in excellent condition so that there will be little or no chance of their failing during the race, causing the car to go out of control with the possible injury of its driver, other cars on the course, or the spectators, who are usually a safe distance from the course anyway behind wire fences.

The winter is the time during which the Scuderia members ready their vehicles for next year's racing. New brake linings, and clutches are usually installed; engines are overhauled; bodywork is repaired. New tires and spare parts are acquired. Wheels are trued up and balanced. Plans are made and new Canada Class cars are started. Minor improvements to standard production vehicles are made to improve their handling or cornering ability.

Wintertime as well as summertime is very busy for Scuderia Hysteria.

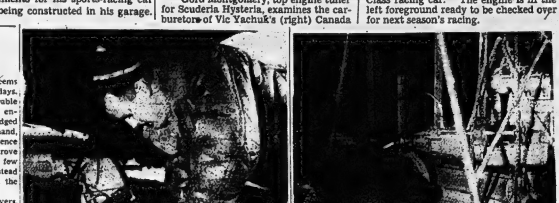
Roundabout

By DOUG PHIPPEN

The experience of motoring for the sheer pleasure of it seems to be finding greater acceptance amongst Canadians these days. When we first became interested in this pastime, via a venerable M.G. "T.C.", back in 1951, there were very few motoring enthusiasts about. So few, in fact, that one always acknowledged another's presence on highway or byway by a wave of the hand, a flicking of the headlights, or toot of the claxon. The presence of another enthusiast was not hard to determine, he usually drove a sports car or other small foreign vehicle. Over the past few years, however, the situation has changed considerably. Instead of there being but a few hundred of these machines upon the highways, there are literally tens of thousands.



No longer does the wave of a hand occur between the drivers, except for the truly knowledgeable. We shall never forget the shock of acknowledging the presence of another M. G. and driver on the road—about 1954 it was — only to have them blandly pass by without so much as a bat of the eyelash. Talk about the disenchanted — even our noble "T.C." seemed to sense the seriousness of the situation as its engine momentarily dropped in its rev scale.

Although the "true enthusiast" seems to be getting as rare as the classic "T.C." actually the ranks of those enjoying motoring for the fun of it have been increasing at quite a rate. Apart from the registration figures for sports and imported cars the numbers of motorsport club members have been increasing each year. Back in 1953, when the Canadian Automobile Sport Club (CASC), or Committee as it was known before Incorporation, was first formed as a leading body for Canadian sports car and motorsport clubs, the total number of members of affiliated clubs came to about 700 people. Today we understand the number of affiliated clubs has increased from the original four to over thirty, from coast to coast, and almost 5,000 members are represented.

Proportionately Canada has a greater number of motoring enthusiasts than that great country to the south of us, whose largest organization, similar in scope to the C.A.S.C., has about 15,000 members.

In Belleville there are around thirty enthusiasts who are forming a local chapter of one of the earlier clubs in Canada, the St. Lawrence Automobile Club, which started in Kingston. We are happy to see this personally, because we have always got a lot of pleasure from driving and meeting with others who enjoy driving as well. It is always pleasant to see others sharing one's enjoyment in this sport.

Good motoring to all, especially those hardies who keep trying to urge wee cars over high hills with the wife and kiddies on board.

Doug Fraser of Trenton, checks over his slightly modified Morris Minor to see that all is ready for his winter rally program.

Things are a bit disjointed as Canada Class car and engine are parted in the early stages of winter preparation of the Scuderia Hysteria's racing vehicles.

Vic Yachuk carefully disassembles the Alta head on his Morris Minor-based engine. The use of the Alta head combined with other modifications increase the motor's power about 100 per cent.

Ray Rockall and Doug Fraser discuss plans for the forthcoming Canadian Winter Rally which Mr. Fraser and several other Scuderia Hysteria members have entered.

What Is Scuderia Hysteria? Local Club's Unique Group Of Sport Car Racing Buffs

Some people like to go fast, some like to tinker, some like to make something better than it is, others like to have fun. The Scuderia Hysteria forms a meeting ground for these many different types of people who all have one thing in common. They like to apply these personality traits to sports cars and racing them. The Scuderia Hysteria (this name may sound confusing, probably because it is, but it is derived from an appelation common to the Italian auto manufacturers' racing carstables, such as Scuderia Ferrari, this accounts for the word "scuderia". The world "hysteria" sort of follows along with the rhyme scheme), has its nucleus in the members of the St. Lawrence Automobile Club (St. LAC) who desire to race or to help others in their efforts to race.

HOW IT ALL BEGAN

The idea for forming this group came from the fertile mind of Jim McCaw, current president of the St. LAC Club. It was during the early part of last year's racing season at a four race near Brantford when it was realized that a large number of St. LAC members were either competing in the pits servicing competitors' cars.

The Scuderia was formed almost on the spot.

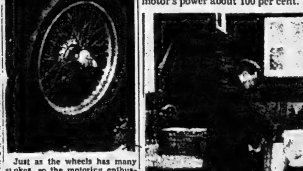
The organization of the Scuderia is fairly loose, allowing members freedom in their various eccentricities, with only a correspondence secretary, to write for application forms and information on events, and a business secretary, to consolidate the competitors' buying power. There is the exception of Mr. McCaw, who exercises a more or less loose rein of leadership and guidance.

Since its inception the Scuderia has become a very active organization. Meetings are held once a week and all manner of things pertaining to the preparation of members' cars for forthcoming events are discussed. The relative merits of drivers and vehicles within the group and tales, both short and tall, of past racing or rallying experiences are also related with great gusto.

These meetings alternate between Belleville, Kingston, and Trenton since these are the Scuderia members from each of these localities.

RACES AND RALLIES

The member also compete in extra-club rallies (average speed runs over the ordinary public highways and roads) as well as races which are held events on closed road circuits on private land). James Graham and Jim Williamson of Belleville, James McCaw and Les Rice of Kingston, and Doug Fraser of Trenton, are well known for their rally efforts to uphold the honor of the group in the more quiet as contrasted to the motorsport activities.



The annual Canadian Winter Rally, which is internationally recognized as a major event in rallying, has had much attention from the various Scuderia members in the past as individual entrants. This year will mark the first time that the Scuderia Hysteria has entered the mid-February event, and the competing members will be entering as a group.

Over ten cars will be raced during the forthcoming sports car racing season by the Scuderia members. All entries are made under the Scuderia name with the drivers listed individually. Where possible the Scuderia attempts to make up teams of three vehicles of the same make.

ESPRIT DE CORPS

Quite symbolic of the esprit de corps of the Scuderia is the fact that they will be supporting a piper, properly attired, to pipe their cars on to the various race courses this coming season. (Symbolic also is their slogan "Damn the Competition") After an event is over, one can inevitably find this particular group of enthusiasts, no, too far from the side of the course, sitting around in front of a couple of tents broiling steaks over a portable stove. If another group of musically inclined enthusiasts join the festivities is anticipated then those waiting for their steaks this coming summer can listen to the music of a Dixieland band.

During the summer it is almost a way of life rather than just a pleasant sport.

Just as the wheels has many spokes, so the motoring enthusiasts have many interests and lie varied directions. For any local persons interested in finding more of their directions the newly organized Belleville Sports Club is holding a short road rally and social gathering Sunday, January 25th, at 1:30 p.m. Anyone interested is welcomed to attend. The start is at the large parking lot at the corner of Station street and Canniffon Road.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Jim Vipond, sports editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, in a recent sports editorial, dwelt at some length on the financial position of the McFarlands, with regards to their overseas junket next month.

Mr. Vipond deplores the lackadaisical attitude of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association towards the matter, and suggests the federal government "would be making a valuable contribution if it took on the responsibility of flying our representatives to world tournaments or the Olympics or the British Empire Games."

The Macs' financial problem, he says, focuses attention on the unhappy situation existing in Canada with regard to the country's participation in world tournaments. The McFarlands are caught in the lean year of Canadian enthusiasm for international hockey competition.

The Toronto sports editor goes on:

"Unlike the Biblical seven-year spans of fat and lean years, they happen season about when it comes time to sending abroad a team to defend this country's popular winter team sport.

"Heaven forbid that the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association should be guilty of such thoughts but it is rather strange that after such feverish excitement in the year of the Dunnies' success there should be a lethargic approach to a new contender.

"A cynic might be led to believe that the hockey powers wouldn't worry too much about a Russian victory in this lean year as it would assist in building up an attraction should the Russians visit Canada in the fat year of '60. That was being suggested when the Kelowna Packers visited Russia recently.

"But the fact remains that Canada should at all times send the best possible team to compete in world competition. If does not sit well that Buffalo, and/or New York, should be able to prevent Pete Conacher from joining the McFarlands for the duration of the tournament.

"Conacher gave up professional hockey for a business career and was immediately suspended by his hockey bosses. He has permission from his business firm to play for Belleville but the leech-like tentacles of professional sport ignore his participation. It's a dog-in-the-manger attitude. "If we can't have him they can't have him," even though there is a national issue involved.

"Senator Dr. Joe Sullivan, goalie of Varsity Grads' Olympic championship team of 1928, who recently returned from a Russian tour, commented at a dinner on Saturday night that the Russians are leaving us behind in many fields. He suggested they had a business-like approach to everything, even hockey.

"Such a business-like attitude toward world hockey competition has brought Russia to the fore in many years. There is nothing slip-shod or half-hearted about Russia's plans to send a team abroad.

"A strong team is selected, trained and flown to the country of competition such as the United States as an immediate example. At completion of the tournament the team is quickly flown home again. It is a simple but methodical operation.

"If we are going to compete with the Russians we could do well to study their methods. They thought enough of ours at the outset to study our approach to the fundamentals of the game.

"There is obviously a great propaganda value to the world hockey tournaments, particularly games between Canada and Russia. It behooves our government to take interest in the team idea of these thousand-to-one shots to defend us.

"Harold Ballard, a hard-hitting veteran executive of amateur hockey in Canada suggests this country's in-and-out approach to world competition is an insult to Canada.

"He suggests our government should fly the Canadian team to the scene of competition.

"His suggestion is backed with the knowledge that the government places great importance in sending its political representatives on invaluable good-will tours. And he believes that a strong Canadian representation in world sport also focuses attention on this country. Russia believes it to be invaluable propaganda.

"Would not our Federal Government be making a valuable contribution to international competition if it took on the responsibility of flying our representatives to world tournaments or the Olympics or British Empire Games?

"Meanwhile the Belleville club struggles for players and money. National encouragement being lacking, it behooves the rank and file of the sports world to get behind this club that it may make the trip under the most favorable conditions."

Hawks Make It Eight Straight; Habs Blank Leafs

Grab Six-Point Hold on 2nd With 4-2 Win Over Bruins; Hot Jacques Marks 6th Blank

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Boston Bruins' netminder Don Simmons feels something sharp at the back of his neck, it's probably an axe.

Deputy General-manager Lynn Patrick's repeated assurances that the Port Colborne native isn't to blame for the slump that sent Boston sliding to fifth in the National Hockey League, his recent performances augur at least a temporary change in the Bruins nets.

Thursday night was one of his more woeful as he made only 16 saves while Bruins were losing their 12th game in theiu last 18 starts, 4-2 to the pluto-bot Chicago Black Hawks.

SIXTH SHUTOUT

In Montreal Jacques Plante, an odds-on favorite for the league's best netminder, chalked up his sixth shutout this season as Canadiens defeated the visiting Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0.

Simmons, who played sensationally against Montreal in the Stanley Cup playoff last season, now has a horrendous 2.10 goals-allowed average as the Bruins, with one of the league's best offences, have far-and-away the worst defence with 128 goals against them in 41 games.

To give Simmons his due he was up against some of the league's fastest-climbing scorers and one of them, Bronco Horvath, scored in an open net.

The win gave the resurgent Hawks a six-point hold on second place, 10 points back of the all-conquering Canadiens.

BRUINS TRY HARD

Bruins gave it a good try most of the way.

In the first Lorne Ferguson put the Hawks ahead 1-0 at 4:40 but at 12:35 Don Marshall, who had left winger Vic Stasiuk's goal.

Eddie Litzenberger was will be offering all - star selectors some second thoughts on their right wing choices, scored his 20th goal of the season in the second period and Chicago went into the third period with a 2-1 lead.

Jerry Toppazzini got that one back for Boston at 4:55 of the third, with an assist going to newcomer Larry Regan, bought up from Providence Reds of the American Hockey League to replace Stasiuk who was injured.

SLOAN NETS 15th

Then Tod Sloan scored his 15th of the season when he and Ted Lindsay were all alone on Simmons and with the lanky netminder going for an easy save, ward Lindsay sent the puck into the open net at 19:39 for the clincher.

All the Canadiens scoring was done in the first two periods— Maurice Richard's 17th in the first, Bob Turner's unassisted goal at 6:55 of the second and Andre Pronovost's at 17:03 of the same period.

Richard's goal came after he hauled in a blueline pass from rearguard Tom Harvey and pulled the trigger from 10 feet out.

Defenceman Turner's goal was the crowning humiliation for the Leafs. With Montreal a man short he kneeled down to block a slapshot by Dickie Moore with his chest. Then he outskated Regan, playing his first game at centre for Leafs since waived by Boston, to the Toronto goal.

Private Radio To Broadcast Hockey Game

OTTAWA (CP) — Private radio stations have been granted special permission to broadcast Saturday night's National Hockey League game in Montreal between Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks.

Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the board of broadcast governors, said Thursday night in a statement the decision was reached "after agreement with all parties concerned.

The game will be broadcast in English by station CFCF Montreal and in French by CKAC Montreal. It will also be transmitted over a special network to Quebec province French-language stations.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's Montreal radio stations and French radio network usually broadcast Montreal games. However Montreal operations have been disrupted by a strike of CBC producers.

Maroons Trim North Bay 3-1; Regain Lead

NORTH BAY (CP) — Chatham Maroons retained leadership of the OHA-ONHA Senior A series Thursday night with a 3-1 victory over North Bay Trappers in the opening of a three-game northern swing.

Chatham now holds a one-point edge on Galt Terriers, Seagram Dutchmen. The loss was North Bay's 38th in 38 games, dividing them other into the league cellar.

Cooper Leyte, Danny Blair and Jim Connelly scored for Chatham with Connelly's goal bringing a storm of protest from the Trappers who claimed it was scored from an outside pass.

Ches Konoczny, who has been one of the club's most potent scorers this season, got the North Bay goal.

BONES NEED PASSPORT

ROME (AP)—Orcotheca, the small skeleton perhaps 10,000,000 years old unearthed by the ancestor of mankind, ran into passport trouble. Swiss scientist Dr. Johannes Hurzeler finally got permission to take it to his laboratory at Basel after promising it would be returned to Italy.

Fifty-Five Nags Named for Grand National

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP) — Fifty five horses were named Thursday for the 113th running of the Grand National steeplechase — the world's toughest horse race.

Mr. What, last year's winner, headed the list of jumpers for this year's grind over 30 jumps and four miles, 856 yards at Aintree March 21.

Irish trainer P. J. Teafe has hopes that his nine-year-old gelding by Grand Inquisitor out of Duchess of Feduks can carve a place in turf history by winning the famous Aintree race two straight times.

The last time that was done was in 1935 and 1936 by Reynoldstown. Only four horses have won the historic race in successive years — the others: Abd-el-Kader, 1850-51; The Colonel, 1880-70 and Poethlyn, 1918-19.

Success for a horse in the National usually means it has to carry a much higher weight in its next attempt.

Thereafter Green Drill and Wyndburgh, who followed Mr. What home last year, will compete.

Tiberetta has the reputation of being the world's fastest footed horses. He never has fallen at Aintree, and has won both the Grand Sefton steeplechase, run over part of the Grand National course.

The list of 55 horses probably will be cut to about 30 by post time. Weights will be assigned Jan. 29. Then trainers have chances to pull out before the deadline. Entry fees are $100 each at two acceptance stages—Feb. 3 and March 10.

Lions Seek Randy Duncan Playing Rights

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the WIFU are seeking the right to play football by Randy Duncan, sensational quarterback who led the Iowa Hawkeyes to victory in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

Frank Gnup, president-manager of Lions, said Thursday the team seeks the rights from Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four football union.

Duncan is the No. 1 draft choice of Green Bay Packers of the United States National Football League.

Capozzi said coaches Wayne Robinson of Lions and Frank Clair of Ottawa have discussed the deal, but Lions have not made an offer yet.

In Ottawa general manager Jim McCaffery of the Rough Riders said he received an offer from Lions about five or six weeks ago but turned it down.

Clair and Robinson are attending the American football coaches' convention in Cincinnati.

McCaffrey said it is possible the Lions are trying to make a deal with Clair and Barry Mitchell, Ottawa president, at the convention.

Grid Players Do Basketball On Skates!

HAMILTON (CP) — Football players are playing basketball!

It happened Thursday night when five members of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats football club met a team of Hamilton Terretes — ladies' intermediate basketball team.

But even the match, both teams played on skates. The footballers were Garry McDougall, Steve Oneschuk, Bobby Dawson, Zeke Karas and Angelo Mosca of the Tiger-Cats.

The ladies won, 9-8.

From North Bay

Conacher, Gosselin, Broden Sought by Macs, Says Denyes

NORTH BAY (CP)—Belleville McFarlands, Canada's world tournament representatives, are after three new forwards and one of the reinforcements sought by North Bay Trappers' left wing ace, George Gosselin.

The disclosure was made by Drury Denyes, general manager of the Belleville team, in a telephone interview. The other two forwards McFarlands want to obtain are Connie Broden, playing coach of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, and Pete Conacher, the former National Hockey League player who quit professional hockey this season.

Gosselin and Broden played prominent roles for Whitby Dunlops last season when they won the world championship in Oslo.

"We are definitely interested in Gosselin," Denyes said. "We proved himself with Whitby and we're sure he could help us keep the world crown in Canada. Of course, we would not expect to get him as keen as the Trappers have a chance to make a playoff spot.

"Broden would give us the fast-skating centre we need while Conacher and Gosselin would supply defensive scoring power and versatility."

Professional hockey boss-football club directors have one thing in common : a yen to fire coaches.

In the last 25 years the six National Hockey League clubs have had 45 coaches. In the same period, nine pro football clubs in Canada—five in the West and four in the East—have had 60.

Fewest changes have been made by the New York Rangers of the NHL, mainly because Jack Adams became almost a permanent grandmother to the club. He coached the Wings from 1927 to 1947, nine years after Conn Smythe had followed him in the job—Tommy Ivan, Jimmy Skinner and Sid Abel.

BIG TURNOVER

Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL, for the pro hockey and football teams in coaches with 12 over the 25-year period. And Hawks have won the fewest Stanley Cup championships—two. They won the Cup in 1934 with Ottawa's Tommy Gorman as coach and in 1938 with Bill Stewart as pilot.

Montreal Canadiens have had eight coaches and Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs have had seven.

In football, Hamilton leads the list in coaches with 10. Following with nine each are Ottawa, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders. Montreal and Winnipeg each has had eight. Edmonton six and Toronto and British Columbia five each.

BRUINS GROWL

Red (Montreal Star) Fisher gives some interesting background to the action of Boston Bruins putting four forwards on waivers.

Fisher says there will be no "ripped to shreds" by dissension. It started shortly after Christmas when the Bruins lost 6-1 to Canadiens in Montreal and 5-3 to the Red Wings at Detroit. Many of the players, said Fisher, blamed coach Milt Schmidt for their failings.

Boston general manager Lynn Patrick heard of the mutterings, gathered the players around and told them to speak up.

"Nobody said a word," Fisher reports.

Before Patrick released the names of the players on waivers, Fisher had them in print—Norm Johnson, Earl Reibel, Real Chevrefils and Larry Regan.

Milt (Toronto Star) Dunnell says that Bill Juzda, "gutlioned by Toronto Maple Leafs, is making the grade in the Providence hockey coach seem almost Glamorous."

Future of Boxing Policeman Depends on Verdict Tonight

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Gosp (Ace) Armstrong, unbeaten Elizabeth, N.J., welterweight, hopes to solve all Eddie Dixmore problems tonight by sending the Newark policeman back to his beat.

Dixon, torn between the comparative security of a $4,000-a-patrolman's job and the lure of a potential $20,000 a year in the prize ring, probably will make his decision after tonight's fight at Madison Square Garden.

At first, Dixon said he had decided to pound a beat rather than take his chances in the ring. Next day he changed his mind and announced, "I'm going to fight." In the meantime he has been walking the beat, working out in his spare time.

AGAINST RULES

Joseph P. Weldon, Newark police director, had informed Dixon that the rules of the department prohibit a member from engaging in any other business. He promised Dixon that he was another business.

Advised of Dixon's decision to go through with the bout, Weldon refused comment. It is expected he will have something to say after the fight.

If the odds favoring Armstrong are right, it may be that Dixon will be happy enough to go back to the beat and forget fighting. Armstrong has a perfect 15-0 record, beating Charley Joseph and Rory Calhoun but not Mr. He has knocked out only one opponent but dumped Calhoun four times en route to a unanimous decision in his most recent outing, March 7.

Nothing was said when Dixon, who has been on the Newark force for about nine months, appeared in the garden in two semi-finals. Victories over Bobby Gordon and Eddie Thompson and the $4,000 TV guarantee that goes with it. He also got a share of the gate but that probably won't top $1,000.

Dixon, a 26-year-old Korean veteran, is the father of two youngsters. He started boxing in 1953 but has had only 20 bouts. His record is 16-4-0. Armstrong beat him twice in the amateurs.

The 10-round match will be carried on NBC radio and television, starting at 10 p.m. DST.

Altitude May Affect Russians Says Coach

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo, AP)—The frivolity at a western saloon before beating them, the Russian hockey players went to work Thursday.

Their coach, 40-year-old Anatoli Tarasov, called them out for two workouts in the Broadmoor ice palace, a short walk from the hotel where the team is quartered.

The visitors will play Colorado College tonight and Denver University Saturday night.

Soon after the Russians arrived Wednesday night, Tarasov admitted the 6,000-foot altitude was giving him concern.

COACH WORRIED

"I am worried about that," he said through a state department interpreter. "I wanted to have two practice sessions Thursday to get the boys used to it."

The Broadmoor rink, measuring 183 by 82 feet, is smaller than other arenas on which the Russians have won three games and tied one since their arrival in this country.

The two college teams challenging the Russians this weekend are made up entirely of players from Western Canada.

Queen Mother Had Two Race Winners

HURST PARK, Eng. AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth Thursday had two winners at the Hurst Park race meet—her first-ever horse racing double. She watched both races.

Double Star won the Star and Garter Handicap steeplechase over two miles and 213 yards by three lengths. That victory by the seven-year-old brown gelding by Arctic Star out of right Star was worth £342.

Later Sparkling Knight, a seven-year-old bay gelding by Cameron out of Sparkling Gold, the Tolworth Handicap steeplechase over the same route and a first prize of £273 pounds.

Jimmy Brown Fullback in Pro Bowl Game

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jimmy Brown is a fullback with a mission in Sunday's ninth annual Pro Bowl football game.

The explosive 228-pound Cleveland Brown fullback set a Football League rushing record of 1,527 yards last season, was held to 38 yards in 15 carries in the last skirmish of the NFL's regular season finale. He modestly credits his blockers for his regular-season record.

"Those blockers got me past the line of scrimmage—that's the big job," Brown said Thursday night.

But when it comes to the 1958 Pro Bowl, or even his disappointing performance in the playoff game with New York Giants, Brown says: "I just played bad games."

This year Brown will be in a backfield directed by Norm Van Brocklin, Minnesota, at the East's backfield are Frank Gifford and Alex Webster of the New York Giants.

The East goes into the game a fifty-point underdog. The West has won five of the eight games, including the last two. The East has won three.

Bruins Reclaim Dutch Reibel

BOSTON (AP) — Earl (Dutch) Reibel, one of four forwards put on waivers recently has been reclaimed from New York Rangers by Boston, the Bruins' management said Thursday night.

Reibel had been taken by New York, Norm Johnson by Chicago and Larry Regan by Toronto for the $15,000 waiver price when Boston decided to clean house on its slump-ridden National Hockey League squad.

The Rangers, seeking to send Reibel to a minor league farm, had to put him through the waiver process all over again and the Bruins reclaimed the veteran centre.

Boston, in fifth place, has assurances from last-place Toronto it won't claim Reibel, so Dutch belongs to the Bruins.

Hull Canadiens Meet McFarlands Here Tonight

The spirited, fast-skating Hull-Ottawa Canadiens are the guests of the McFarlands at a Memorial Arena tonight.

Featured in the cast will be Connie Broden, the power playing coach, who starred with the Whitby Dunlops in the world tournament at Oslo last year.

Broden's supporting players form one of the "Ageless" aggregations in the Eastern Ontario senior league. They never quit skating and trying.

They are the only club to have the Indian sign with any degree of success on the Whitby Dunlops. They have defeated the champions four times, while dropping the same number of decisions, and tying one.

Oddly enough they have bowed to the McFarlands five times in eight starts, tying one.

They have been troubled with the injury jinx, but Broden expects to have some of the Whitby warriors back in action tonight.

Which means there should be hockey fireworks at the arena this evening when they are the attraction in the league lock-horns in an important battle.

Would Challenge Any Team To Playoff

SASKATOON (CP)—The problem of dates in some cities is all that is holding up a decision on the Western Hockey League prairie division schedule to 70 from 64 games, league president Al Leader said Thursday after a meeting of prairie directors.

Leader said the decision will be announced this weekend. The coast division recently adopted the 70-game schedule after beginning the season on a 66-game arrangement.

Directors touched briefly on the $25,000 challenge put in the pot for a playoff between the champions of the Western and Quebec leagues.

Leader said it was agreed at the meeting that Western Canadian League winners could challenge the Quebec League winner for the winner-take-all.

Bud Poile, general manager of Edmonton Flyers, leaders in the WHL prairie division, said if his team won he would be in favor of it playing with some other league.

"I'd challenge the National, American or the Ontario Hockey League champ—it's a good-deal playoff," said Poile. "For such a game we'd pay the team's expenses to Edmonton."

Olmedo May Be Ready for Big Tournament

PERTH, Australia AP)—Alex Olmedo had another series of heat treatments today for the strained stomach muscle which forced him out of the West Australian tennis championships.

Doctors said the sore spot was much relaxed. He indicated that with several days' rest and further treatment the United States Davis Cup star will be in good shape for the Australian national championships beginning next Thursday in Adelaide.

Olmedo defaulted Thursday to Andres Gimeno of Spain in the singles semi-finals.

Quebec Hockey

Veteran Jacques Locas, the Quebec Hockey League's leading goal - getter, netted two more Thursday night bringing his total to 35 goals in 34 games as his club, the tail - end Chicoutimi Saguenens, whipped Quebec Aces 8-4.

Local threatens to better the mark of 50 goals in 57 games set by Jack Bellveau; now with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, in the 1952-53 season when the QHL was known as the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

In other QHL action Thursday night Trois-Rivieres Lions upset league - leading Montreal Royals 3-1 to advance into second place over the Aces.

May Change World Hockey Tourney Rules

BERLIN Reuters)—New proposals for the organization of the world hockey championships have been worked out here by a special committee of the International Ice Hockey Federation.

The East German news agency ADN said the committee proposed that from 1961 onwards only eight teams should compete in the final series for the world championship. There would be preliminary contests to decide the finalists. Under the team of the host nation not qualify for the finals it could be admitted by special decision of the world championship committee.

The proposals will be put before the next Congress of the federation in Prague in March, ADN said.

Clubs Meet To Discuss Pool Problem

KITCHENER (CP) — Representatives of OHA-NOHA Senior A teams will meet in special session at Sudbury Saturday with the main discussion centring on continuance of the latest pool system, Kitchener-Waterloo club officials said Thursday.

The system requires a 10-per - cent deduction from each gross match gate to pay travelling allowances to all teams, referees' fees and leave a balance to divide.

Some teams are in arrears and the pool is reported running $7,000 behind due to the long trips north - south travelling coming early in the season.

Last year an administrative error caused the pool to over-pay clubs $6,000 and this year clubs undertook to pay back the OHA-NOHA on a $1,000-per - club assessment spread over two years.

Intercollegiate Court League Opens Tonight

TORONTO (CP)—The Intercollegiate Senior Basketball League opens its season tonight in Montreal and Hamilton and finds most coaches giving the edge to defending champions of winning the championship.

Even John McManus, coach of last year's championship University of Toronto squad, is not overly optimistic. Bill Hoyle of last year's players are on the team.

A basketball forecast for the new season by the U of T Athletic Association sums up his teams chances in the league: "Not too bright."

There is the same story on the other campuses.

RESULDING JOB

Ted Reid, 41, coach of Queen's University Golden Gaels, says he is building a team for 1960 rather than one of this year's regulars, Gus Turnbull and Greg Stone are definite losses.

Hank Biastoli, coach of Assumption University, says: "We would be a title contender if our outside men score consistently . . . Otherwise we'll have trouble beating the University of Western University of Western Ontario."

Ron Murphy, basketball coordinator at McGill University, finds team prospects this year not too bright. Last year at this time they didn't win a game. In Hamilton Mountain Jack Hoyle of McMaster sees "lack of height and depth" as his team's problem.

INEXPERIENCED SQUAD

The Western Mustangs under Jack Winram Hetwig will start the season with a young and inexperienced squad.

Tonight's games will see Assumption at McGill and Western at McMaster. Games scheduled for Queen's for a Saturday night game. Varsity Harriers, a team scheduled for Toronto Jan. 17 against McGill.

Bob Hamilton won the championship last year for the first time since 1940, will again have Don Lipke, last year's leading team scorer with 278 points.

Tor ne ad ng Jay McAlinon, ar top pointgetter for Jim Harrison, a four-Jan, Paul Fedor and Bob Evans leaves the Gaels' first-string sadly depleted.

Lions Organize For Next Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry Spring Thursday night was re-elected president of the British Columbia Lions of the Western International Football Union.

His election came at the first meeting of the club's 34 elected directors. Re - elected treasurer was Jon MacDonald. Also re-elected to the eight-man executive were F. D. Rolston, A. R. Eyre and E. B. Wiginton.

The directors decided to seek two changes at the WIFU annual meeting.

They include blocking by backfielders as well as linemen, up to the third stripe past the line of scrimmage; unlimited imports and, failing that, unlimited changes of imports; withdrawal from the Canadian college draft in return for complete rights to players at the University of British Columbia and protection of all intermediate players in B.C. IRC—now falls under the draft and Lions have protection only on players in junior and lower age-group leagues.

Detroit Signs Irish Back

DETROIT (AP)—Nick Pietrosante, Notre Dame fullback, has signed a two-year contract with Detroit Lions of the National Football League, the Associated Press learned today.

A reliable source said the bruising backfielder will receive $20,000 over two years, counting salaries and bonuses. This is one of the highest prices ever paid a rookie by Detroit.

Pietrosante, after leading Notre Dame in his senior year, starred in the Eastern All-Star football game. Coach Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State, who coached the East team, predicted Nick will be a great in the NFL.

Charlie Horton, Baylor guard and Lions' No. 2 draft choice, has announced he will play in Canada, so the Detroit club signed quickly with Pietrosante to make sure its top draft choice stayed in the NFL.

Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union are said to have offered Pietrosante a package deal that would have netted him more than $20,000.

NEW PROS LOSE

MELBOURNE (AP) — Ashley Cooper and Mervyn Rose, two of the newer Australian recruits in the pro ranks, lost their first sets in straight sets in the first round of a $4,560 tournament Thursday night. The matches were played on a movable floor placed in the centre of the Olympic cycling track. Cooper, the U.S. and Wimbledon amateur king who turned pro Monday, bowed to Frank Sedgman, another Australian, 6-4, 6-2. Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, whipped Rose, 6-3, 6-3.

Flyers Trounce Teepees 6-1; Marlies Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines TeePees Thursday night received their first solid beating of the OHA Junior season and it took the Peterborough Petes to do it.

Backing full services of star forward Jean Mikita, the first-place St. Catharines squad had little answer to Flyers, who scored six before TeePees found the net in the final period.

Mikita, who broke his wrist during Wednesday's all - star game at St. Catharines, made only two short appearances on Barrie ice.

Marlboros held Peterborough Petes 1-1 in the first period but trailed 3-2 going into the third when Wayne Roddy's three goals led Petes to victory before 2,200 fans.

Fred Dart, Bill Mahoney and Chuck Hamilton got the other Peterborough goals. Jim Murchie and Jack Pappin scored for the visitors.

In Hamilton, Jean Ratielle scored a pair and Ron Ingram, Brain Sandy McGregor and Bob Ertel added singles.

Newcomers Neil Fourth put the tail-end Cubs on the scoresheet with a third period goal. Stu Mcneill and Don Wilcox got the others. Hamilton drew two majors and Cubs one minor in losing game. Guelph was assessed a pair of majors and seven minors.

KAYO FOR CAPRARI

ROME (AP) — European featherweight boxing champion Duilio Caprari of Italy knocked out German champion Willy Quatuor in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title bout Thursday night. Each weighed 130 pounds.

A father and his three young children died in the crumpled cab of this pickup truck when it was struck by a CNR freight train nine miles northeast of Kitchener, Ont., Wednesday. Howard Rudy, 44, had picked up his two oldest children, Nancy, 11, and Phyllis, 6, and was bringing them home from school. Walter, 4, had gone with his father for the ride. Only Mrs. Rudy survives. (CP Wirephoto).

A few hours before, the world was a happy place for Mrs. Elma Rudy of Breslau, near Kitchener, Ont. Then the highway took another of lives and Mr. Rudy's world is now a nightmare of memories.

Parliamentarians to Tackle U.S. and Canada Problems

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Parliamentarians from Canada and the United States today take a first step towards finding some means of eliminating the misunderstandings that periodically ruffle relationships between their countries.

Two committees, one representing the Canadian Parliament and the other the U.S. Congress, will open a two-day series of conferences designed to set up machinery through which members of the two legislative bodies can meet from time to time for consultation.

The aim is to acquaint each side with the governmental functions and problems of the other in the hope that better understanding will prevent the passage of legislation that might disrupt the traditionally easy going Canadian-American friendship.

PROBLEMS LISTED

The talks today and Saturday will be devoted to setting out procedures for future meetings but underlying the discussions will be Canadian complaints about U.S. farm surplus disposal legislation, curbs on imports of Canadian oil and high tariffs on lead and zinc. On the American side, there is fear that Canada's new anti-dumping legislation might be applied unfairly against American imports.

The committees were set up by resolutions adopted by the Parliament and the Congress last year.

The nine-man Canadian delegation flew here from Ottawa Thursday night.

CANADIAN GROUP

The Canadian group was led by Senate Speaker Mark Drouin and Commons Speaker Roland Michener and included Senator William R. Brunt, Progressive Conservative, of Hanover, Ont., Senator Sydney J. Smith, Liberal, Kamloops, B.C., Hon. Lionel Chevrier (L — Laurier), Hazen Argue (CCF — Assiniboia), William N. Houck (L — Niagara Falls), Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon), and Ross Thrasher (PC—Essex South).

Their first stop today was to be at the White House for an appointment with President Eisenhower. Later, they will sit on the floor of the Congress, as guests of that body, to hear the president deliver his annual State of the Union message.

TORONTO

Mr. Gardiner asked that no changes be made in the TTC senior management until the Metro executive is elected Jan. 17 and a joint meeting with the TTC is held. And Metro won't put any money into the proposed east-west subway until it knows what caused Mr. Lanaport to quit, he said.

An appeal against the second subway project has been filed in the Supreme Court of Canada by Long Branch, New Toronto and Mimico. It's the last legal step in their fight against proposed subway financing.

The lakeshore municipalities challenge the right of the Ontario Municipal Board to bind future Metro councils to applying a two-mill surtax on real estate to support a pay-as-you-go policy for 30 per cent of the municipal share of the $200,000,000 subway.

Defeldent of the municipal board and the Ontario Court of Appeal favored Metro's method of financing. They will share the cost with the TTC. Lakeshore residents pay extra transit fares to get into the city by streetcar routes and don't think they should subsidize the system unless they get fare reductions.

BLOOR STREET CHOKED

Bloor Street, the proposed east-west midtown subway route, has been choked with traffic at rush hours for the last 30 years. The $65,000,000 Yonge Street subway carries an average daily volume of 1,700,000 everyday except Sunday and hits speeds of 45 miles an hour.

Mr. Lamport said last month that the provincial government may be asked to take over the TTC if new rapid transit plans bog down.

Thursday night, TTC Chairman Charles Walton predicted Thursday night the Toronto Transit Commission would show a profit of nearly $1,000,000 on its 1958 operations.

Mr. Walton, who moved into the top post following the resignation of Mr. Lamport, said the TTC would try to keep fares at the present level.

Giants' Cepeda Named National Rookie of Year

BOSTON (AP) — Orlando Cepeda, heavy-hitting first-baseman for the San Francisco Giants, today was named the National League's rookie-of - the-year in 1958.

The 21-year-old Puerto Rican was a unanimous choice for freshman honors in balloting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Cepeda, a husky 6-foot-2, 200-pounder from Ponce, won a berth with the Giants last spring after a sensational 1957 season with Minneapolis of the American Association.

The young San Francisco slugger kept the Giants in the thick of the pennant race until late in the season.

Cepeda, who hits and throws right, batted .312 with a .312 batting average, seventh in the league, 25 homers and 96 runs batted in. He had 309 total bases, including 38 doubles and four triples, to rank fourth behind Ernie Banks, Willie Mays and Hank Aaron in that department.

Veeck Keeping Sox Purchase Reports Hot

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Veeck returns to Chicago today after a week in Cleveland, keeping reports hot that he will buy control of Chicago White Sox.

Veeck has an option, valid until Feb. 15, to buy the 54 per cent of Sox stock controlled by Mrs. Dorothy Comiskey Rigney.

Vice-president Chuck Comiskey owns the other shares and Veeck has been trying to buy them. Chuck, 32-year-old grandson of the club's founder wants to gain control himself and has made clear a counter-offer.

PRESTO—SNOW GONE

LONDON (AP) — Everton Thursday switched on the electric grid it buried beneath the surface of its soccer field last summer — and like magic the ground thawed out and the snow melted. The grid is a network of wires, much like those in an electric blanket. "It keeps the soil warm and makes the ground yielding and good even on the coldest days," explained one official. Everton plays Sunderland in a vital league game Saturday.

Movie Column

Top Stars Getting Too Old To Appeal to Young Audience

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie industry's biggest problem for 1959 is starpower.

This column already has explained how 12 stars virtually run the picture industry because of their draw power. Now producers are discovering that the draws are not as powerful as they're reported to be.

"Most of the top names are getting too old to attract the younger audience, who make up the bulk of movie goers," one industry source said. "There are few younger names coming up these days. The supply of stars is getting to the critical stage; if it isn't solved, Hollywood is going to be in real trouble."

Average age of the top 12 is 46. Only two — Marlon Brando and Tony Curtis — are in their 30s.

LESS CHANCE INVOLVED

Despite the declining box office for some of the mature stars, they still draw the big pictures. The reason for this is the changing economics of the film business. Many of the big pictures are made by independent producers, who must go to the banks for financing. Bankers are well-known for their avoidance of risks; they're more willing to give millions for films if it's assured it will star a name who has been a Hollywood fixture for 20 years.

There are some hopeful signs. The actresses seem to be making a comeback after being eclipsed by the male stars for a long period. Two women — Elizabeth Taylor and Brigitte Bardot—made the top 10 of Motion Picture Herald's box office poll; last year the list was all-male.

Six other dolls — Doris Day, Kim Novak, Ingrid Bergman, Joanne Woodward, Debbie Reynolds and Deborah Kerr—made the list of the next 15 stars in box office power.

AT THE PARK — Romance blooms during the days of Allied Air Force Headquarters in Algiers in Cinemascope production of "The Warriors," co-starring Jeanne Crain and Peter Finch, now at the Park Theatre today and Saturday. On the same program in Cinemascope and Technicolor is "The Big Punch," starring Pete Duel, Mary Murphy, Mamie Van and Walter Brennan.

AT THE BELLE — Sophia Loren and Cary Grant make love scenes sizzle in their new co-starring romantic comedy, "Houseboat," in Technicolor production, co-starring Martha Hyer, now playing at the Belle Theatre and directs tonight and Saturday.

At the McCarthy

A featured player at 14, a star at 16, Jean Simmons brings to her challenging role in "Home Before Dark", now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, the experience gained in 30 important motion pictures. The beautiful young star has appeared in every type of picture from Shakespearean drama to gay musicals like "Guys and Dolls".

As Ophelia to Sir Laurence Olivier's "Hamlet", Miss Simmons won an Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences nomination. In the opinion of critics who have witnessed preview showings of "Home Before Dark" she is certain to again be a strong Academy Award contender for her poignant portrayal of a young wife whose reason tottters when she is threatened with the loss of her husband's love.

Born in London on Jan. 31, Simmons began her film career at the age of 14 in the part of Margaret Lockwood's sister in "Give Us the Moon". By the time she was 16, she had achieved stardom in Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations". After a brief and brilliant career in English films she came to Hollywood where her stellar status has grown steadily.

Hockey's Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Towering Eddie Litzenberger is the hottest right wing in the National Hockey League at the moment.

The six-foot, three-inch Chicago Black Hawks forward has collected nine points in his last six games to vault into contention in the NHL point-race.

He got a goal and an assist, Thursday night as Chicago defeated Boston Bruins 4-2 for their eighth game without a loss and those two points gave the Needdorf, Sask., native sole possession of third place in the race with a total of 41 points on 18 goals and 23 assists.

Litzenberger and Bronco Geoffrion, the rightwinger who leads the league, tacked to get any points for the fifth game as his Montreal Canadiens beat Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2.

The leaders:

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, January 10, 1959

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — You are doing some muddled thinking about your goals and ambitions today. Firstly, you want to be extravagant, then you wonder if that was what you wanted in the first place. Reflect, think clearly, then proceed sensibly.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Don't try to be forceful today where an influential person is concerned, for no amount of arguing will see him or her going along with your ideas. Pause before you make any unguarded statements. P.M. get your health built up.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — There are many important matters for you to attend to in the material world, but you are wasting time brooding over some unhappy situation. Forget this quickly and get out and work constructively. This can be a very worthwhile day.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You are not quite satisfied with your current security, and are about to change things so radically that you could very well become bankrupt. Think before you leap. Then concentrate on economizing, especially on pleasure, and on speech.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You are tempted to act strangely toward a devoted friend because you have troubles at home. This would puzzle him or her very much. Learn to control your emotions and keep a valuable friend. Get your appearance improved.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — You are having trouble finding just the efficiency gadget you require, or it is too expensive. Continue to search, but do not succumb actual cash until early part of coming week for this and other necessary items, especially choice foods.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Although you are uncertain about your actual financial standing, do not waste time arguing over petty amounts. P.M. have fun inexpensively with those who do not expect you to spend lavishly.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — A certain situation at abode has you puzzled. You cannot get others to agree with your ideas and you owe it to them to at least listen to their reasons and explanations. Strike a happy medium and bring it into that sphere of your life.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Going around in circles of fuming will help not at all right now. Cultivate patience and know that delays are sometime for the best. Spend time constructively shopping, having meetings, etc. Take care on road and in speech.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — There would be very little wisdom in changing your financial situation right at this moment. Avoid any money problems and be out early with those comrades with whom you can have an enjoyable and profitable time.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 20) — Refrain from speaking your mind with one who has some authority over you. This only leads from down, dignity and helps not at all with said individual. Concentrate on important tasks that concern self alone. Be selfish for once.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A private anxiety could easily keep you from profit and an excellent opportunity that presents itself today if you are out in business world. Forget it. Go out and meet interesting people, do research work, follow your hunches.

If your child is born today — The wonderful child born today will be blessed with both practical sense and a high concept of the spiritual and the artistic. A well-rounded education is a must here at the very best, schools so that a fine career can be carved out and your progeny will soon start having tremendous earning power. Lack of proper guidance could ruin a potentially great chart here
